A TYPHOON KILLS MANY

Follows Chinese Freshet Which Caused 1,000 Deaths.

Shores of River Thickly Strewn With Bodies of Dead.

Victoria, B. C., May 28.—The steamer Shinenno of the Japanese line, which arrived yesterday, brought news of another disaster, through a typhoon at Hankow, following on the disastrous freshet which involved the loss of more than 1,000 lives, with the wrecking of 1,000 junks and stranding of many steamers, including several of the foreign river craft.

The typhoon came suddenly and in a few hours reduced hundreds of boats in the Kan river to splinters. Steamers broke away from their moorings, and only those which could get up steam quickly escaped.

The steamer Wu Saig was driven ashore. The Klang Foo, a paddle steamer, and several other steamers were damaged. The shores were thick with corpses of river people.

Hundreds were recovered before the steamer left Shanghai. News was also brought of a great coal mining disaster in Wwang Si, where 1,000 lives were lost when the mine took fire.

PROHIBITION IN SEVEN STATES

Four Entire States Joined the Ranks in the Past Year.

Kansas City, May 28.—"Eight million, six hundred thousand people abolished the saloon last year, including four entire states. The seven prohibition states have a population of over a million, while twenty-seven millions more live in other prohibition territory, making about 45 per cent of the total population of the United States free from the blighting influence of the saloon. Of the thirty-four legislatures in session last year, twenty passed laws unfavorable to the liquor traffic. In recent years no legislation favorable to the liquor traffic has been enacted."

Such was the language in which the progress of the temperance movement in the United States was reported to the general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States of America today.

EXPRESS "SALES" BRANDED A FAKE

Unclaimed Packages Juggled to Catch the Nimble Nickel.

Seattle, Wash., May 28.—There will be no more sales of "unclaimed express packages" in this city if an ordinance to be introduced in the city council goes through, and the "game" will be barred in the state if a proposed law, to be submitted to the legislature next winter, is passed.

It all comes from a "sale" advertised by an express company last week. There were said to be several thousand unclaimed packages. A member of the city police force, sent out on the quiet to attend the auction, has made a report, and a small-sized scandal is imminent.

The charge is made that the "sales" are a fake; that all packages are tampered with and the really valuable stuff held out, while a large box or package, containing small articles, is broken up and the separate articles placed in separate packages. The public is not allowed to examine the packages at the sale, but are given tickets, which they can present the next day.

A police spotter kept tab on ninety-seven packages. The average prices paid was $1.75, and it was found that the total value of the ninety-seven packages was about $3. In the lot were seven letter files of pasteboard, each package wrapped in clean paper, without any of the marks that distinguish a real package. Nine of the packages contained patent medicine advertising of one kind, the whole evidently taken from one box and wrapped in separate bundles.

There has been much complaint from innocent purchasers of these packages, and the police made their investigation. The result is a movement to stop the sales, which are declared to be pure "fakes."

ATTEMPT WAS UNSUCCESSFUL

Jack Harrington Drank Poison in Effort to End Life.

Jack Harrington, 25 years of age, made an unsuccessful attempt at suicide this morning. He drank chloroform in the basement of his boarding house, 2004 Piedmont avenue, but was discovered in time to save his life. Attending physicians say he will recover.

"The second attempt at taking my life will be a success, even if I did fail the first time," said Harrington, when he regained consciousness.

The young man has been despondent for some time past and his rash act is thought to have been due to this fact. He drank several ounces of the poison. J. Marx, who keeps the boarding house, smelled the fumes and found Harrington unconscious.

MINORITY OF COMMITTEE FAVORS THE REMOVAL OF PAPER AND PULP DUTIES

The Majority Advocates Delay to Allow for Further Investigation.

Minority Presents Ample Evidence for the Passage of Stevens Bill.

Washington, May 28.—The special committee of six members of the house, appointed upon complaint of the American Newspaper Publishers' association to investigate the wood pulp and print paper situation in relation to the tariff and with regard to an alleged conspiracy in restraint of trade, today submitted a majority and a minority report.

The majority report, which is signed by Representatives Mann of Illinois, Miller of Kansas, Stafford of Wisconsin and Bannon of Ohio, is a preliminary report and recommends that no legislation affecting wood pulp and print paper be enacted until the committee has further investigated.

The minority report, which is signed by Representatives Sims of Tennessee and Ryan of New York, recommends the passage of the Stevens bill placing wood pulp and print paper on the free list.

The Majority Report.

The majority report is summed up in the following words: "As the present price of paper would not to any considerable degree be immediately affected by the repeal of the tariff, and as the passage of the Stevens bill, in its present form, might spell 'ruin' to the paper industry and ruinously high prices for paper in the near future, your committee believes it the part of wisdom before making recommendations for positive legislation to await until its investigation has been completed and thoroughly digested."

The report says that the tabulation of returned schedules of newspapers by the census office covers but few of the metropolitan dailies, which are the heavy consumers.

"From these returns, the average price at present, including in many cases freight charges, to 919 newspapers is $2.86 per hundred; that of these, 361, using paper in rolls, have an average price of $2.54, and 558 have an average of $3.07 for

The Minority Report.

The minority report indorses the Stevens bill in its entirety and recommends its passage.

Discussing the issues between the publishers and the paper manufacturers, the report states that an acute situation, which might be termed "trade hysteria," was precipitated in 1907 in news print manufacture, when a group of sixteen Wisconsin mills, known as the Wisconsin Wood Pulp association, bought 50,000 cords of pulpwood in the province of Quebec, Canada, which purchase entailed a transportation of that material a distance of 1,500 miles. "It introduced a new and unlocked-for factor into what was more or less on a speculative operation," says the report. "It demoralized the wood pulp markets of the United States, as well as of Canada, where nearly 1,000,000 cords of pulpwood are bought for export to the United States.

"It started paper quotations upward until one paper trade journal reported that the current prices for news print paper on July 1, 1907, ranged from $32 to

DEMOCRATS TO OPPOSE

Compromise Currency Bill, But Will Not Filibuster.

Many in Senate Will Speak Against Its Passage.

Washington, May 28.—Fifteen Democratic senators, all that remain in the city conferred for one and a half hours today and agreed that they would stand together in opposition to the Aldrich-Vreeland compromise currency bill. Many of them will speak against the passage of the bill, but there was nothing to indicate that the opposition would take the form of a filibuster. The absence of such an inclination was best illustrated by the prediction after the conference that "congress probably will be able to adjourn tomorrow, certainly not later than Saturday." This opinion was expressed by several Democrats.

Senator La Follette's position was considered at the conference, and the question arose as to whether it would be advisable to stand by him if he should be disposed to prolong his fight against the adoption of the conference report on the bill. The discussion did not result in a decision, but the sentiment appeared to be against that course.

Most of the Democrats seemed to be of the opinion that from a political point of view it would be best for the Democrats to register merely their objections to the bill, such as cared to do so making speeches against it, and then vote as a unit. Of course, it cannot be said positively that all of the Democrats will vote against the bill, as the session was a conference, and not a caucus, and therefore there could be no decision of a binding nature, nor instructions given. Practically all of the Democrats present took part in the discussion. The senators present were Messrs. Culberson, Teller, Bacon, Bankhead, Johnston, Simmons, Clay, Gary, Taylor, Overman, Frazier, Newlands, Owen, Gore and McLaurin.

SELLS LUMBER INTEREST.

Grand Rapids Man Disposes of Northern Lumber Co. Holding.

Marquette, Mich., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—For a consideration of $85,000, William F. McKnight of Grand Rapids, Mich., has sold his one-third interest in the Northern Lumber company, operating near here, to Pennsylvania men, who already hold the same amount of stock, and who now assume control. The remaining one-third is held by Former Mayor Rush Culver of Marquette. McKnight is a leading Democratic politician and probable choice for state chairman.

FLOOD DOES DAMAGE AT SIOUX CITY, IOWA.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 28. — Perry creek, which flows through this city became a raging torrent today as the result of heavy rains. Many families marooned in their homes had to be removed on rafts or carried out through the water. Many cows and horses perished. Several bridges were washed out. The financial loss is heavy.

PIPE LINE WRECKED.

El Paso, Tex., May 28.—Dynamiters yesterday wrecked the big pipe line that conveys water from Bonita mountains, N. M., to Carrizozo, N. M., where all the engines of the El Paso & Southwestern railway system are supplied. This pipe line which diverts the entire water supply of the Bonita river, cost about $1,000,000.

DRUCE WITNESS IS SENTENCED

Mrs. Margaret Hamilton Gets Eighteen Months for Perjury.

London, May 28.—Mrs. Margaret Hamilton, who was one of the principal witnesses to the alleged identity of the duke of Portland with T. C. Druce, was today sentenced to eighteen months penal servitude for perjury, her appeal having been disallowed.

Mrs. Margaret Hamilton, who is 70 years old, was arrested March 7, last, charged with wilful perjury and conspiracy in connection with the Druce case. She was found guilty at the Old Bailey, April 9, but sentence was postponed pending an appeal on points of law.

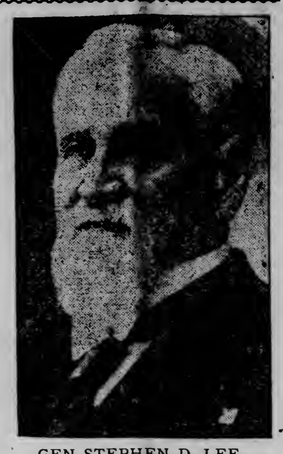
FAMOUS CONFEDERATE GENERAL PASSES AWAY



GEN STEPHEN D. LEE.

GEN. S. D. LEE IS NO MORE

Commander-in-Chief of Confederate Veterans Dead.

One of Last Surviving Generals of the Confederacy.

New Orleans, May 28.—A special from Vicksburg, Miss., says that Gen. Stephen D. Lee, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, died at his home, there, at 6 o'clock this morning.

Gen. Lee was one of the last three surviving lieutenant generals of the Confederacy. Over-exertion, last Thursday, in the ceremonies attendant upon the reunion of Iowa and Wisconsin veterans of the G. A. R., at Vicksburg, brought about Gen. Lee's illness. Following the reception of the Northern visitors, in which Gen. Lee took a leading part, he suffered an attack of acute indigestion, but later rallied, and during the past week showed much improvement. Yesterday afternoon, however, he again collapsed and grew gradually weaker, until death relieved his sufferings.

At the time of his death, although not the ranking officer of the Confederacy, Gen. Lee was commander-in-chief. Lieut.-Gen. A. P. Stewart of Chattanooga is ranking officer, but on account of his infirmities, he has not taken an active part in the af-

POWER WORKS NEAR PORT ARTHUR CARRIED AWAY BY FRESHET---MANY IN PERIL

Power House, Canadian Pacific Bridge and Pavilion Are Swept Away.

Part of Track Carried Into the Lake and Number of Families Missing.

Winnipeg, Man., May 28.—High water struck the power dam at Current river, one mile from Port Arthur, Ont., shortly after midnight, carrying away valuable works entailing a loss of $300,000, estimated at the present time. The freshet was due to the heavy rains of the past few days. The power house, Canadian Pacific railway bridge, and pavilion at the park were swept away. The Canadian Pacific track was carried into the lake and a number of families living near the dam are missing. Men have left Port Arthur in tugs to rescue those in peril. Traffic on the Canadian Pacific railroad will be held up for a few days.

CHOLERA GETS FIRM FOOTHOLD

Four Cities in Philippine Province Afflicted With Disease.

Manila, May 28.—Cholera has apparently taken a serious foothold in the province of Pangasinan. Four cities including Dagupan are infected, and the bureau of health is sending additional inspectors, planning to stamp out the disease. The entire family of the light keeper at Dagupan was infected, and five of its members died. Their condition was discovered through inability to extinguish the light in the day time.

Cholera also is rife in the province of Capiz, where 231 cases have been reported since January in Rizal and Zambales. There is no fear of a general epidemic.

TO PLAT TOWNSITE.

Surveyors Leave Winnipeg for Fort Churchill, the Future Metropolis.

Winnipeg, Man., May 28.—The interior department of the Dominion government is sending out from here this week a survey party to lay out a townsite at Fort Churchill, the future metropolis of Hudson Bay, to which point the government will build a railway from Northern Saskatchewan. The site is on the east side of the Nelson river. Only one settler lives there now and he will get 160 acres of land.

MILK FOR CANAL EMPLOYES.

New York, May 28.—When the Tagus of the Royal Mail Steam Packet company, which arrived from Kingston yesterday, makes her return voyage she will carry to the canal zone three tons of fresh cow's milk in bulk, which will be refrigerated and served to the employes on the canal.

LUMBER DAM BLOWN OUT

Dynamite Used on Obnoxious Obstacle at Cable, Wis.

Loss Will Prove Heavy to Wisconsin Lumber Company.

St. Paul, May 28.—A special to the Dispatch from Cable, Wis., says: The Namakogan dam was blown out during last night with two charges of dynamite. This dam is located where the Namakogan lake empties into the Namakogan river and furnishes the water supply for the North Wisconsin Lumber & Manufacturing company of Hayward, Wis., to drive their logs each year. The going out of the dam will mean great loss of logs and facilities to the company.

This dam has been a source of annoyance to the settlers for years and at times it would overflow their lands. It is not known who placed the dynamite.

ROCKEFELLER TO BUILD HOSPITAL

In Connection With His Institute for Medical Research.

New York, May 28.—Tentative plans have been made for a large hospital to be conducted in connection with the Rockefeller institute for medical research. Borings have ben made south of the present building, where there are extensive outcroppings of rock. It is likely the foundations will be laid at that point, as the site will command a view of the river, and at the same time give the patients a full benefit of the breeze from the river.

It is understood that the idea has been approved by John D. Rockefeller, who established the institute, and that the funds will be provided by him when the project is declared to be entirely practicable. The institute was founded primarily for investigation of cerebro-spinal meningitis, with a view of finding a cure for that mysterious disease. Mr. Rockefeller was prompted to take an interest in the investigation through the death of a favorite grandson of the fatal malady.

From many points of view the hospital will be unique. Its patients will be those suffering from obscure diseases, either chronic, or what have been a puzzle to medical science.

ABRAMS RELEASED.

Proved a Satisfactory Alibi in the Case of Mrs. Shaw.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 28.—A Daily News special from Appleton, Wis., says: Charles Abrams, the New London clothing merchant, who was held pending the investigation of the mysterious death of Mrs. Carrie Shaw, the wealthy young Hortonville widow, whose body was found in the mill pond on Wednesday morning last week, was arraigned today before Municipal Court Judge Ryan, and upon application of District Attorney Rooney was released. Mr. Rooney declared that he was now satisfied that Mr. Abrams cannot be connected with the case, having proven a clear alibi.

TUNNEL WILL PERMIT OPENING OF MANY MINES.

Denver, May 28.—An agreement was entered into here yesterday between the company owning the Newhouse tunnel and representatives of more than 300 properties adjacent thereto, extending from Idaho Springs to Central City, whereby the tunnel, now 17,470 feet in length, will be extended into Gilpin county, where is located the oldest and one of the richest gold mining camps in Colorado, and the district drained of water. This will permit of the reopening of many valuable mines and employment for more than 6,000 men.

HARD WORK SAVES BOY

Minneapolis Youth is Rescued After Being Buried Alive.

Only Injury to Victim of Cave-in Was Bitten Tongue.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Gee, but I bit my tongue" was the first thing Johnny Flood said when he became conscious after being buried alive in the cave-in of a sand bank in which he was playing. He is 13 years of age.

For ten minutes last night he was buried alive beneath four feet of wet sand and earth while the neighbors labored frantically with shovels and bare hands to liberate him.

He was finally dug out and restored to consciousness and his first words as he spat out the sand and dirt were mourning for having bitten his tongue.

Johnny Flood is the son of Patrolman James Flood, of the Minneapolis police department. Last night he was playing with his brothers and several other boys in a ditch which is being dug on Ninth avenue, between Ninth and Tenth streets south, and in which gas mains are being laid. The boys had got down in the ditch and were digging caves into the sides of the ditch. Suddenly there was a big cave-in and when the other frightened boys came to their sense they were buried to their waists in sand. Young Flood was nowhere to be seen. Neighbors came running from all sides armed with shovels, and in about ten minutes had dug young Master Flood from his living grave.

He was carried home and there a physician soon restored him to consciousness. He sat up, and save for the hard bite his tongue had got, seemed not the worse for his experience.

PRESIDENT SIGNS THE MILITIA BILL

Provides for the Reorganization of All the State Troops.

Washington, May 28.—The president yesterday signed the bill providing for the re-organization of the militia of the United States and its arming and equipment at a cost not to exceed $2,000,000, and gave the pen he used for the purpose to Gen. J. A. Drain, chairman of the executive committee of the National Guard association, who was active in the movement to secure the legislation. Assistant Secretary Oliver of the war department, who has been specially charged with the execution of the provisions of the new law, said today that one of the first steps to be taken will be the appointment of a board composed of five representative officers of the organized militia, to consult with the secretary of war, regarding the condition and needs of that branch of the military establishment.

JOHNSON APPROVES

Of Efforts Bryan is Making for Campaign Publicity Law.

Chicago, May 28.—Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota, who was in Chicago yesterday on his way from the South to Minneapolis, gave his indorsement to the effort William J. Bryan is making to have congress pass the bill requiring publicity for campaign contributions. Governor Johnson suggested that candidates in general elections be required to reveal how much was contributed, and that candidates for nomination be required to show how much they spent and by whom it was contributed.

SYNDICATE DEPOSITS $10,000 FOR BURNS MATCH.

Sydney, May 28.—The syndicate which is arranging for the visit to Australia of "Tommy" Burns, the heavyweight pugilist, has deposited $10,000 to bind the match between Burns and Lang, the Australian boxer. The fight is to take place at Sydney in August. The syndicate also has the option of arranging two additional fights for $7,500 each.

London, May 28.—On being asked today whether his Australian visit would interfere with the negotiations for a fight with "Jack" Johnson, the colored heavyweight, "Tommy" Burns replied that Johnson would have to wait until his Australian engagements were concluded.

HEARST GAINS ON RECOUNT OF BALLOTS.

New York, May 28.—The actual recounting of the ballots cast for W. R. Hearst and George B. McClellan for mayor, in the last election for that office, in this city in November, 1905, was begun yesterday, after a delay of more than two years. The contents of two ballot boxes were counted in the presence of a justice of the supreme court, and resulted in a net gain by Mr. Hearst of 27 votes in the two precincts the votes of which were counted. There are 1,940 precincts in the greater city. Mayor McClellan's plurality over Mr. Hearst, in the original count, was 3,478.

TEXAS FOR BRYAN.

Fort Worth, Tex., May 28.—The friends for United States Senator Bailey controlled the state democratic convention, that finished its labors here yesterday. A platform was adopted declaring for Bryan first, last and all the time, and containing many of the features of the Nebraska platform written by Bryan this year. Senator Bailey is indorsed in this platform in the strongest possible terms.

bill Mr. Foraker said he hoped to "find somebody in authority some day to enforce the fifteenth amendment," and Mr. Bacon replied briefly.

Mr. Aldrich then "appealed to the senator from Georgia," not to further lead the discussion away from the pending bill.

The request met with ready response and the discussion of the committee compromise bill was begun by Senator Teller, who declared that the "door was exceedingly wide open in the matter of securities. The house bill joined to the senate bill, he said, had never been discussed by the senate and he believed full consideration should now be given it. "But," he added, "the pubuished statement that I favor filibuster on this measure is not correct. I do not believe the opponents of this measure should enter into a filibustering procedure."

Mr. Teller called upon Mr. Aldrich for information as to whether cotton warehouse receipts would be accepted as security for emergency notes and the chairman of the committee on finance replied that anything a bank could take as collateral security can be used if approved by the association and by the secretary of the treasury, and he concluded warehouse receipts would be included. In the same way mortgages might be included in the approvid securities if taken by a bank to secure its loans.

"I object to this scheme," said Mr. Teller, "because I do not believe it will stop with what is proposed in this bill. I know there is a determined effort among bankers to make commercial paper an asset upon which to insure money."

VICTORY SO-CALLED.

James Carroll, the amateur lightweight boxing champion of San Francisco, said at the end of a recent women's boxing and fencing exhibition:

"Physical culture among women, women's growing strength and pluck, lend interest to marriage, change marriage's complexion.

MONEY BILL IN SENATE

Compromise Measure is Laid Before the Upper House.

La Follette and Gore May Adopt Filibustering Tactics.

Washington, May 28.—When the senate met today there was an unusually large number of senators in their places, many having returned from their homes in response to telegrams asking that they be in attendance when the conference report on the currency bill should be taken up. The temperature was high and palm leaf fans were again in evidence. Just outside the senate chamber, in the lobby, Secretary Taft was holding a reception and, for the want of a fan, he operated his big seal palmetto hat to keep down the perspiration.

The journal had been read only five minutes when Senator Fulton, at the request of Senator Aldrich, asked unanimous consent to dispense with its further reading.

"I object," yelled Mr. Gore, the blind senator from Oklahoma, and his words were accompanied by laughter on the Democratic side.

Gore and La Follette Confer.

Immediately before the senate was called to order, Mr. Gore was in conference with Senator La Follette and his course in objecting to the approval of the journal without reading suggested that these two senators, who are uncompromisingly against the Aldrich-Vreeland currency bill, which was the order for the day, might join in obstructive tactics against its passing. It developed from informal discussion between senators on the floor that Mr. Gore was the only member of the conference of Democratic senators who insisted that the united stand against the bill, which had been agreed upon, should take the form of a filibuster.

Mr. Aldrich came into the chamber a few minutes after 12 o'clock and smiled when the senator from Oklahoma insisted upon the reading of the journal in full. Senator La Follette was in his place and moved about on the Democratic side, his manner being interpreted as indicating a purpose to secure a complete discussion of the currency bill as circumstances would permit.

Only ten minutes was consumed in the reading of the journal when morning business was in order. Senator Warren reported a bill from the committee on military affairs and asked immediate consideration, but Mr. Aldrich, declaring that there would be abundance of time for such matters after the conference report on the currency bill was out of the way, objected. He reminded the senator from Wyoming that he had given notice that he would call up the currency bill today.

Mr. Aldrich then entered upon his promised explanation of the compromise currency bill, but he had not gone far when the Democratic senators began a demonstration, which indicated that they were not as quiescent as has been represented, and that they had no intention of letting the bill go through without making at least a little trouble.

Beginning, Mr. Aldrich said sections one and two of the bill were the only sections that had not been considered by the senate. He explained the change in the form of taxation, and said it increased the average taxation for four months to the extent of one-half of 1 per cent, making the average 6½ per cent. He approved the new features of the bill, recalling the contents of each section.

Mr. Aldrich had not spoken at great length when Mr. Culberson asked whether the senator from Rhode Island could give some assurance that an anti-injunction bill would be passed before congress adjourned. This was the first positive indication of an effort to obtain party capital out of the situation and the interruption aroused general interest.

Mr. Aldrich replied, speaking for himself, he believed it was absolutely impossible at this session to pass such a bill because of the great diversity of opinion on that subject. Some senators, he said, believed the powers of judges should not be curtailed and there were other views on that subject, but he did believe that in the next session such a bill could be passed as there would be then time to adjust differences of views.

Again Mr. Culberson interrupted and asked to know whether a campaign publicity bill could be passed before adjournment, and Mr. Aldrich declared that so far as he was concerned he would favor voting on the bill on that subject as soon as the pending currency bill should be disposed of.

Mr. Bacon said that, as it was reported that both political parties favored legislation to give publicity to campaign funds, he favored that question as the one to be acted on without any other question to complicate it.

Mr. Culberson interposed to say that to insist upon the house publicity bill meant its defeat, and Mr. Foraker declared that he saw no reason why senators should object to the house measure unless they were opposed to the enforcement of the provisions; the committee on privileges and elections was unanimously in favor of the house bill. He said also that he favored publicity in the matter of campaign contributions before, as well as after, conventions.

A request for unanimous consent by Mr. Beveridge to the house publicity bill be taken upon the disposition of the currency measure was objected to by Mr. Hale, who said he did not propose to "mortgage the future of the senate" and that question could be determined when the pending measure was out of the way.

Discussion Proceeds.

The discussion of the currency bill was then allowed to proceed.

Mr. Culberson inquired of Mr. Aldrich whether the currency bill reported to the senate would permit railroad bonds to be used for securing emergency currency.

Mr. Aldrich replied that it included securities held by any bank provided they were approved by the association and the secretary of the treasury.

"It undoubedly," he added, "provides for the acceptance of railroad bonds as security if approved by the association, and by the secretary of the treasury."

FOR INJURED FEELINGS

Sander Johnson Wants $2,500 Balm From Street Railway Co.

Claims Detention in Jail Over Night Was Unwarranted.

Because the Street Railway company, through an oversight, it is said, neglected to appear at the hearing of Sander Johnson, arrested for disorderly conduct on a street car, and the case was dismissed, Johnson has sued for $2,500 damages for injury to his feelings, caused by his detention in the city jail over night.

The case was brought on for trial in Judge Cant's room, this morning, John Jenswold, Jr., appearing for Johnson, and Thomas Wood and H. A. Dancer for the company.

According to Johnson's story he and another young man, with two young women, started for a dance in the West end. He claims that the conductor on the street car collected the regular amount of fare from him and then, shortly afterward, attempted to collect another fare. Johnson claims that when he refused to pay a second time, the conductor pushed him to the rear of the car, and when the party got off the car at Twentieth avenue west the conductor had him arrested.

The Street Railway company has a different version of the trouble.

The company claims that previous to the meeting of the young men with the young women, they created a disturbance in a Superior street store and had been ordered by the floorwalker to either be quiet or get out. It is alleged that when the conductor attempted to collect the fares from Johnson, he claimed that he had already paid and that, in the discussion which followed, Johnson became abusive, threw his hat on the floor of the car, used profane language and went so far as to slap the conductor. It is claimed that no attempt was made to eject him from the car, but when the party got off, at Twentieth avenue west, the conductor called a policeman and had Johnson arrested for disorderly conduct. It is understood that the company will have a number of witnesses to testify concerning Johnson's alleged actions on the car.

The company, it is understood, will set up in defense that Johnson had been drinking, and that he was somewhat under the influence of liquor when the trouble occurred.

MARINE NEWS

RANNEY ON FIRST TRIP

New Steamer Goes Down Lakes Light for Initial Voyage.

Will Carry Coal Between Cleveland and Lake Michigan Ports.

The new steamer Rufus P. Ranney, constructed during the past winter at the yards of the Superior Shipbuilding company and launched about a month ago, leaves this afternoon for Lake Erie, light, on her maiden trip.

The Ranney left the shipyards this morning, coming to the Duluth dock of the Northwestern Coal company to take fuel. She made her trial trip about two weeks ago, running to Two Harbors and back to test the machinery. Everything was found in fine shape, and it is expected she will go through to Cleveland without a mishap.

The Ranney is in charge of Capt. Henry Stone, part owner, and will go down the lakes with a full crew. She will be chartered for two or three trips to Milwaukee with coal, it is expected, and will not be seen in the local harbor again until well into the season.

BOATS CLEAR LIGHT.

W. H. Truesdale Unable to Secure Return Cargo Here.

The abnormal dullness in shipping for this season of the year is reflected in the departure yesterday of the new steamer Truesdale, light, for Buffalo. The Truesdale brought a coal cargo to Duluth and was unable to secure a cargo for the return trip. The steamer Rufus P. Ranney also leaves light this afternoon for Lake Erie ports.

Bringing coal cargoes to the Head of the Lakes at 40 cents and returning light is not profitable business for the shippers, and some of them are balking against it. Some of the boats in the lower lakes have laid off their crews and will not start again until there are better prospects for return cargoes. Coal cargoes are being offered freely in Lake Erie, but the tonnage is tightening up on account of the number of owners holding their boats in port.

RAISE BOAT BY GAS.

Another Effort to be Made to Float State of Michigan.

Detroit, May 28.—Another effort is to be made to raise the steamer State of Michigan, that was sunk off White Lake Harbor, fourteen miles north of Muskegon, in 1893, at the close of the season of navigation, and canalons, a new invention by Messrs. Straud & Canalon of Chicago, are to be used as the raising device to lift the boat from the position it has occupied, in fifty feet of water, for nearly fifteen years.

Sunk in the sand, with its bottom almost inseparable from the embrace of old Lake Michigan, the huge iron cylinders are to be forced under the boat, and then a light, buoyant gas is to be forced into the cylinders until they are so light that the sunken hull, it is thought, will be lifted from the bottom.

VERDICT FOR DEFENDANTS.

Chicago & Muskegon Transportation Company Wins $10,000 Suit.

Milwaukee, May 28.—Judge Tarrant, yesterday, directed a verdict to be given in favor of the defendants in the case brought against the Chicago & Muskegon Transportation company and Peter Barry by the Hackley National Bank of Muskegon, Mich., to recover the face value of a note for $10,000.

STEAMER ATTACHED.

Maimed Man Holds Boat for Settlement of His Claim.

Ashtabula, Ohio, May 28.—The sheriff, yesterday, served an attachment on the steamer Harvey H. Brown of Detroit. The action hinged on a claim of Arthur Bartlett of this city, who seeks $50,000 damages against the company for the loss of both legs while in the employ of the company.

HAVE POOR PROSPECTS.

Wild Boats Have Only 9,000,000 Tons of Ore in Sight.

Cleveland, May 28.—Coal moved freely yesterday and there is a fair supply of tonnage for Canadian ports. In the ore line it is figured that vessels operated by ore shippers have 20,000,000 tons capacity for the full season, and that the boats during the remainder of this season will be able to move about 16,000,000 tons out of the total 25,000,000 tons, which is the outside figure named to be moved this year. This will leave only 9,000,000 tons for outside tonnage. Last year the wild vessels moved over 20,000,000 tons.

CHANNEL IS OPEN.

North Opening of Wisconsin Draw Dredged to Full Width.

Maj. Graham D. Fitch of the United States engineers' office reports that yesterday the government had the north opening of the new Wisconsin draw span at the Northern Pacific bridge dredged out to the full width of 175 feet and covering the space over which the bridge will swing. To the east the channel is fully dredged. The channel to the west of the bridge lacks one forty-foot dredge cut on the north side to complete the total width.

Vessels may now use the north opening fully loaded by runnig through the middle of the opening or within 135 feet of the protection pier. There is a line of small dredge stakes, four or five in number, driven forty feet away to the north from the north edge of the deep water to the west of the bridge. Deep water will be found by keeping forty feet or more to the south of these stakes.

To Remove Wreck.

Capt. Reid of the Reid Wrecking company arrived in Duluth this morning with his wrecking outfit, en route to Sand Island, where he will go to work removing the wrecked steamer Sevona, which has been pronounced a menace to navigation. The wreck is owned by Capt. Reid, and he is taking a large crew along to remove it as soon as possible. He expects to get away tomorrow evening for Sand Island.

Charters for Duluth.

Buffalo, May 28.—Only two charters were made yesterday and both were by the Lackawanna line. They are the S. M. Olwent and the Hugh Kennedy to Duluth at 30 cents.

Dies in Hospital.

Grand Haven, May 28.—Harry Conlon, aged 48, a steward on the Parks Foster, died of pneumonia yesterday in the Marine hospital at this place. The body was taken to Chicago for funeral.

A HARD STRUGGLE

Many a Duluth Citizen Finds the Struggle Hard.

With a back constantly aching.
With distressing urinary disorders,
Daily existence is but a struggle.
No need to keep it up.
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.
Duluth people endorse this claim.

Leander Sinotte, rug manufacturer and carpet cleaner, of 1701 Michigan street, Duluth, Minn., and living at the corner of Michigan street and Eighteenth avenue, says: "Some six years ago I gave testimonial in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills, because I felt so well pleased with the prompt relief from trouble with my kidneys and back which the use of this remedy brought me. I had been annoyed with constant dull pain across the loins and through the kidneys. To stoop, or to attempt to lift anything was sure to bring on sharp twinges of pain. The action of the kidneys was irregular. I tried many remedies until I got Doan's Kidney Pills, but found little relief and no permanent benefit. This remedy completely drove out the whole trouble, and as six years have passed without any return of the complaint, I consider my cure a permanent one."

WANTS INQUIRY INTO THE FLOOD

Bede Has Bill for Appointment of a Commissioner.

Washington, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Bede yesterday introduced a bill to authorize the federal district court to appoint a commissioner to make a finding of facts as to the cause of the great flood in the Upper Mississippi in 1905. It has been the contention of farmers, whose crops, stock, buildigns and property were destroyed that the great flood was caused by the government reservoirs, and, therefore, that the government should pay the damages.

Mr. Bede, of course does not expect action at this session, but will press it to passage at the session convening in December.

WAGE SCALE SIGNED.

Unique Cure for Kidney Disease

Backache.
Deposit in the urine.
Headache and aching limbs.
Scanty, highly colored urine.
Pain and smarting when passing water.
Harsh, dry skin and continued loss of flesh and weight.

To their unique action on both the liver and kidneys is due the enormous success of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills as a cure for diseases of the kidneys.

So intimate is the relation of the liver and kidneys that one is rarely affected without the other. Hence the failure of mere kidney medicines and the success of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Portrait and signature of the famous Receipt Book author, A. W. Chase, M. D., on every box.

Mr. John W. Todd, Otsego St., Ilion, N. Y., states:

"For 25 years I suffered severely from kidney disease. Different doctors told me I could never be cured—such severe pains through the back and kidneys, retention of urine, with frequent calls at night. Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills helped me at once. Their action on the kidneys is direct and I found the effect all that could be desired—a cure."

TAFT MEN ASSURED

That War Secretary Has Nomination for President Cinched.

Dry Farm Homestead Bill Will be of Great Benefit.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ante-convention campaign is over so far as the Republicans are concerned, and on the face of the returns everything points to the nomination of William Howard Taft of Ohio, at Chicago next month as the candidate of the G. O. P. for president. This, of course, is not conceded by the "antis" as those opposed to Secretary Taft are known, including the "favorite sons" from Indiana, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and New York. But the Taft people are content over the situation, and from now until convention time will put forth every effort to prepare for the contests pending in 12½ districts, largely in the South, and which will have to be settled before the convention reaches the nominating stage. Thus far the campaign has progressed upon a high plane and there is every reason to believe that it will thus continue until Nov. 3, when the electors of the United States will express their preference for the chief executive of the nation. That there will be some vituperation and possibly "mud-slinging" is a foregone conclusion, but there is no evidence that rancor will enter into the contest.

With the campaign for nomination on and the campaign for election shortly to be begun, it is interesting to the student of politics to look back over a half a century or more and note the changes that have taken place in the methods of campaigning and the increasing dignity which surround the presidential campaign of today.

The presidential campaign of 1840 was the longest in the history of the country and, excepting that of 1856, altogether the most exciting. It began eleven months before the election with the nomination of Gen. W. H. Harrison at Harrisburg in December, 1839, a nomination effected by the most extraordinary of sharp political contrivances, ingenious and complicated beyond anything ever since attempted at a national convention; that was intended to defeat and did defeat Mr. Clay, whose nomination, except for this contrivance, was almost certain to have been made.

The operation of the contrivance referred to was as follows: Each of the delegations in the convention selected a committee of three of its own members, to which committee the members of the delegation delivered their several "views and opinions" as to the nominations for president and vice president most desirable to be made. The committee thus selected and instructed met together in one body and after receiving and comparing the "views and opinions" of the delegations, proceeded to formulate their own. These were reported back to the delegations. The delegations, enlightened in this way, then proceeded separately to ballot for candidates. The results of these ballotings were laid before the committees again, aggregated into one body who, after comparing and deliberating upon them, formulated further views and opinions for the information of the delegations.

The delegations assembled for a third time and so on until a majority of votes was found to be for a particular candidate. It was by means of this elaborate and remarkable proceedure that Clay was defeated and Harrison nominated.

The campaign that succeeded was one of extraordinary excitement and incident. According to Mr. Benton it was conducted on the Harrison side by the banks and their agents who "used money in fabulous amounts and ways not dreamed of."

And the campaign of that eventful period is likely to have a parallel in the campaign just on, so far as issues are concerned for it will be fought "on currency and banking and the tariff."

"One of the most important measures to pass congress at the present session, so far as arid and semi-arid states and territories are concerned, is the so-called Smoot-Mondell dry farm homestead bill," said Representative Howell of Utah. "The state of Utah comprises an area of about 52,000,000 acres, of which only about 2½ per cent is under cultivation. The reason is that by far the greater portion of the lands of the state are so situated that irrigation is impossible and, under the old methods, farming is out of the question. Then, too, the land laws as they now exist require a homesteader to reside upon his claim in order to acquire title. Without water, residence is impossible, and there are millions of acres so situated that no available water supply can be reached without traveling ten, twenty and even fifty miles. It has been clearly demonstrated that arid lands can be made productive by the summer fallow process. That is to say, such lands are plowed one year and allowed to remain fallow until fall, when they are fitted for a crop, and the next season, after the harvest, they are permitted to remain uncultivated, or, rather, without being sowed. The year following, in the fall, another crop is planted, and by this method fair crops are secured every alternate year. The owners of such farms live in the villages, sometimes fifty miles distant, and they are compelled to haul all the water they require for themselves and their horses. The standard homestead under the old laws was 160 acres. Inasmuch as only one-half of an arid farm can be cultivated in one season, it was decided by those having the interest of the great Western plains at heart to try to get congress to consent to double homesteads in the arid regions, and the Mondell-Smoot bill was drawn with that object in view, and the senate added a section which elminates the requirement as to continuous residence upon such a homestead. That is to say, as soon as the president signs the bill, which I am confident he will do, it will be possible for a settler to take up a homestead of 320 acres and to cultivate it under the method I have described, and at the same time reside with his family in a nearby village, where, besides the comforts of life, he can educate his children and enjoy himself, hold intercourse with his neighbors and have the advantages of church attendance. Utah is unique in its village life. Villages dot the state from end to end, and most of our farmers, instead of living on isolated farms, reside in the small hamlets and towns and drive to their fields as occasion may require. I believe that the enactment of this new law will result in the taking up of several million acres and the cultivation of the same in our state alone. It will add thousands to the rural population of all the states affected and will convert the sagebrush plains into waving wheat fields, and the jack rabbit will give place to live stock of value to the human race."

FOUR PERSONS ARE KILLED BY TORNADO.

Guthrie, Okla, May 28.—Four persons were gilled in a tornado which swept through Alfalfa county near Ashby, ten miles west of Alva, last night. The storm started in Woods county, twenty-five miles south of Alva and swept a path half a mile wide through Alfalfa county for several miles. Much property damage was suffered. It was easily the most severe storm in the history of the county. The storm had sufficient force to pull pumps out of wells and break bones in bodies of live stock. The dead: Peter Rudy, his wife and two children.

THE ACTIVITY IN IRON CONTINUES

Many Sales of Moderate Tonnage Made the Past Week.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 28.—The Iron Trade Review says: Great activity continues in the pig iron market, with an immense volumo of inquiry and many sales of moderate tonnage, aggregating a large total. Following the heavy buying of large interests, smaller consumers in large numbers have come into the market, and orders have been freely placed. There is, of course, some diqerence of opinion as to whether this buying movement is justified by industrial conditions, and it is unquestionably true there is a considerable placing of orders in anticipation of increased business without positive evidence that such increase will be realized. In some quarters pessimistic comments are being made, and it is predicted that dullness will soon return. On the contrary, there is substantial evidence from many quarters of increased melt, and there is a better feeling throughout the country. Sentiment is certainly doing its share and may have a powerful influence in averting a return to conditions which characterized the period of depression. Among the sales reported during the week are: Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railway company, 20,000 tons; the Northwestern Iron company, 20,000 tons; Woodward furnaces, 12,000 tons; Matthew, Addy & Co., 12,000 tons; Sloss-Sheffield company, 6,000 tons; Republic Iron & Steel company, 6,000 tons; Iroquois Furnace company, 3,000 tons.

The leading pump interest has purchased 8,000 tons and is inquiring for 4,000 more. A large part of the iron sold last week by Southern interests was at $11 Birmingham, but $11.50 now seems to be the bottom price, and several large interests have advanced to $12. In the North there has been considerable activity in basic.

Improvement in the coke market continues. Several furnaces have contracted for their requirements for the last half of the year, and others are in the market. There is also some improvement in demand for foundry coke, especially in Chicago and St. Louis.

In finished materials the market has, on the whole, been quiet, but there is some improvement in sentiment, and owing to the reaffirmation of prices, with no prospect of another New York meeting being held in the near future, it is believed that buying will slowly improve. There is now an open market on bar iron in the East, but manufacturers are acting in harmony and improved conditions are expected to result.

The contract for 7,000 tons of sheet piling for the Black Rock ship canal harbor, near Buffalo, has been taken by the Lackawanna Steel company, in competition with two other interests. The McClintock Marshall Construction company has been awarded the contract for the Pittsburg & Lake Erie bridge at Beaver, Pa., involving some 13,000 tons. About 4,500 tons of structural material has been contracted for in the Chicago district, and fair tonnages have been contracted for in the Central West and East.

HOUSE SUMMARY.

Currency Bill and Several Other Measures Are Passed.

Washington, May 28.—Interest in the proceedings of the house yesterday in the report of the confereos on the currency bill. After an hour's debate the report was adopted 166 to 140.

Aside from the currency proposition there were passed the following measures: Providing for the erection in Washington of a pedestal for the statue of John Witherspoon; requiring greater space and better accommodations on steamships for a steerage passengers; authorizing the sale of certain lands at the head of Cordova Bay, Alaska, and granting relief to the Alaska Terminal & Navigation company; extending the time for the completion of the Washington & Western Maryland railroad in the District of Columbia; authorizing a re-survey of certain townships in Wyoming; granting to the interstate commerce commission additional authority in the matter of requiring reports of all accidents on interstate carriers. The conference report on the omnibus Indian land bill and the senate amendments to the bill granting obsolete ordance to various institutions and organizations, also were agreed to.

NEVER WORE HAT.

St. Louis, May 28.—After having served as errand man for a local candy manufactureing firm for forty years, Jacob Gross, 70 years old, who during his years of service was never known to wear a hat, died yesterday from heart disease. He always went about hatless, summer and winter, regardless of the weather. Several years ago the firm notified him that his salary would be increased, but he steadfastly declined to accept the profferred increase.

fairs of the organization for many years.

Gen. Lee was one of the South Carolina Lees. He was born in that state in 1833. He received his appointment to the United States military academy at West Point and was graduated from that institution, receiving his commission in the artillery.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, Gen. Lee resigned his commission in the United States army and entered the Confederacy, serving in Virginia until after the battle of Antietam, when he was made brigadier general and sent to Vicksburg.

Gen. Lee played a prominent part in the siege of Vicksburg, and following the fall of that city was taken a prisoner. He was later exchanged and promoted to the rank of major general, and ordered to the Southwest.

He was subsequently assigned to the Army of the Tennessee, with the rank of lieutenant general, and served until the close of hostilities. Afterwards Gen. Lee, as president of the Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical college, devoted himself to the education of Southern youths. On the death of Gen. John B. Gordon, Gen. Lee was unanimously chosen commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, and was always the most conspicuous figure at their annual reunions. Just before his death he was preparing for the reunion, June 8, at Birmingham.

Gen. Lee was commissioner of the Vicksburg National Military park. It was in this park that several handsome monuments were unveiled by the Iowa and Wisconsin Veterans, last Thursday.

Gen. Lee's home was at Columbus, Miss., and the body probably will be taken there for interment.

BELTRAMI LAND SALE.

Farm in Town of Frohn Brings Very Fine Figure.

Bemidji, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the fertile lands of Beltrami county are in demand for agricultural purposes is established by a transaction just closed, whereby a 160-acre farm, in the town of Frohn, a few miles east of Bemidji, was sold to a party from Todd county, for the sum of $3,000.

The farm was the property of G. G. Mol, and is nicely located in the fertile region east of this city. The purchaser of the land is Allen Mikkelson of Clarissa, who was greatly pleased with his bargain, and is enthusiastic over the prospects of raising bumper crops and engaging in dairying and livestock raising on the new farm.

OPENING OF CAMPAIGN

"The Man Who Made Birmingham Dry" Will Visit Duluth.

"A Ride on the Water Wagon" Will be His Topic.

"A Ride on the Water Wagon" will be the subject of an address by Clinton N. Howard, probably the foremost temperance lecturer on the continent at the present time, at the Pilgrim Congregational church, next Sunday evening.

Mr. Howard is "the man who made Birmingham dry,' and he has also taken an active part in many of the other interesting prohibition battles of the South.

He is being sent to Duluth by the State Prohibition committee, and his address here will be the opening gun of the campaign which the Prohibitionists will wage in Minnesota this year.

His address, "A Ride on the Water Wagon," was delivered before 5,000 people in Birmingham, on the eve of the election there, and is said to have been largely responsible for the victory of the Prohibitionists.

He is claimed to be one of the most forceful speakers, as well as one of the most interesting personalities, in the Prohibition movement.

The lecture in Duluth will be free, and it is the first of several temperance rallies which will probably be held here this summer and fall.

paper in sheets. It seems probable that publishers paying high prices most readily responded to the inquiries of the committee."

The report continues: "While there appears to have been complaint on the part of the paper manufactures that the selling price of paper for 1906 was too low to be fairly remunerative, yet we are inclined to think it was not until the summer of 1907 that there was a general increase in paper print prices. That a general increase was in fact put into effect on new contracts appears to be unquestioned."

As to the charge of the existence of a combination in restraint of trade the report says:

"The evidence before the committee so far fails to prove any combination of print paper manufacturers to advance prices or otherwise in restraint of trade, but considerable evidence was presented which might excite suspicion that such a combination had been made and was in existence."

Removal of Tariff.

Under the sub-head, "removal of the tariff," the report in part says: "The question as to the removal of the tariff on print paper and wood pulp is intimately connected with the conservation of the forest resources of the United States, as well as its effect upon the paper manufacturing industry and the newspaper publishing industry. The committee is not yet prepared to make recommendations as to the permanent policy of the United States in regard to the duty on paper and pulp, except that the committee is firmly of the opinion that the tariff on news print and wood pulp should not be removed, as to paper or pulp coming from any country or place which prohibits the exportation of pulp wood or which levies any export duty on paper pulp, or pulp wood, or makes any higher charge in any way upon wood pulp or pulp wood intended for exportation to the United States.

"The evidence taken so far would seem to indicate that the temporary suspension or entire removal of the present tariff would not have any great immediate effect, and if the tariff is removed at any time it should be coupled with the right to free exportation of wood pulp from the Canadian forests. The removal of the tariff on print paper and wood pulp would probably result in a considerable increase in the price of print paper and the early destruction of the pulp wood forests in the United States.

Need More Pulp Mills.

"It would seem that for the American publisher to be assured of low prices for his paper, it is essential to maintain pulp mills in the United States. Under conditions Canada could levy export duties on print paper that would result in enhanced prices without the presence of competition from American paper manufacturers.

"Your committee proposes during the summer vacation to continue its investigations and expects to be able to present to the house at the next session of congress definite recommendations, based upon complete information thoroughly considered.

"The scare of last year as to the future supply and price of pulp wood and as to the ability of the mills to furnish news print paper to meet the demands of consumption has subsided, and when new contracts are made during the present year for pulp wood to be delivered in 1909 the price is likely to be lower than the prices now being paid for pulp wood on contracts made last year. The decreased consumption of paper consequent upon the general business conditions of the country means a lessened demand for pulp wood and we believe a consequent return to normal prices."

$82 per ton. This advance had been foretold by paper salesmen and others nearly a year prior to a so-called paper famine."

The report points out the fact that more than one-half of the spruce wood used in American mills for making news print paper comes from Canada, and states that at the time the Wisconsin purchase of Quebec wood caused the trade flurry, "the officials of the International Paper company, (a corporation producing about one-third of the entire supply of news print paper manufactured in the United States), computed that the increased cost of their labor by reason of shorter hours had added $300,000 per annum or 60 cents per ton to their expenses and that their wood would cost $1,200,000 additional, or $2.40 upon each ton of paper produced, a total of $3 per ton upon the entire output of about 500,000 tons of news, manila and other varieties of paper. They also figured that of their news print paper output, only 55 per cent could be taxed with these burdens because the other 45 per cent of their news print production had been tied up with low priced contracts covering the year. Accordingly, they decided upon $50 a ton delivered as their minimum upon all future sales which substantially fixed that price for the entire market. This figure carried with it an average advance of about $10 a ton in a period of two years. The action was too abrupt. It provoked trouble and resentment at a time when newspaper revenues were shrinking because of depressed business conditions. It brought to the attention of the country a situation that demands rectification."

Sought to Offset Losses.

Immediately following the panic of October, 1907, it is stated, newspaper publishers sought to offset their losses caused by diminished advertising revenues and by increased cost of paper, by reducing the number of pages of their papers, resulting in a diminution of consumption. In consequence, the paper mills, which had been taxed to supply the market, soon found their stocks accumulating with a decreasing demand for their product. The market was soon glutted. Confronted with the alternative of reducing their prices or closing their mills and discharging their labor, the paper manufacturers, it is stated, chose to maintain the high prices. "They kept their prices so far above the normal level," says the report, "that Canadian mills were able to pay the duty of $6 a ton and to undersell American mills in the American market, doing this while paying wages for labor that compared favorably with the wages paid by the American mills.

The maintenance of high prices under such conditions, it is stated, brought about the unlooked for result of giving to Canadian labor some of that work of production which otherwise would have gone to American labor.

Many cases of hardship among publishers in consequence of notification of a proposed increase in price are cited. It is pointed out that these papers were forced to the alternative of contracting at the higher price or a suspension of publication.

Continuing, the report says: "These hardships and this inability to have their customers share the added cost of paper, present a case of urgency that differentiates this request for tariff removal from other pending propositions of similar character. The price of a newspaper is like the price of a postage stamp. It is measurably fixed. It cannot be raised or lowered to meet the constantly changing prices of raw material. In this respect it is unique.

"Evidence of concert of action on the part of the papermakers in obtaining higher prices was furnished by reports from many newspapers located in every part of the country, though actual violation of the criminal statutes has not been shown. However, the papermakers failed to explain the uniformity of prices or to entirely justify their advance in price.

"The testimony also showed that the reduction in the hours of labor was not general throughout the entire country, though all mills raised their prices upon the allegation that their labor cost had thereby been increased. The claim that pulpwood had increased in price has more merit than the claim of increased labor cost, but the increase in wood cost did not justify the advances which the papermakers ultimately adopted."

After calling attention to the fact that "an extraordinary and unaccountable secrecy marked the relations of manufacturers and publishers," and that contracts with large consumers were made under obligations of confidence and secrecy, the report concludes:

"We find that the existing duties have raised the price of wood pulp and print paper, not only in itself, but by giving to the paper manufacturers a shelter behind which they could organize combinations, which, if not technically susceptible of proof as unlawful trusts, are, in our opinion, in reality such. It is true that the tariff of itself perhaps might not account for the full advance in price, but the tariff, plus the tariff engendered combinations, do account for all of it.

"We find that the revenues derived from import duties on pulp and printing paper are so small and the benefits to be obtained from the abolition of those duties are so considerable that we urge the placing of pulp and printing paper on the free list. We believe that relief from existing conditions can be fully and promptly secured only by the immediate consideration and passage of H. R. No. 18,668, introduced by Mr. Stevens."

Owing to the fact that both Memorial Day and Independence Day occur on Saturdays this year, we take this occasion to announce that we will be open on Memorial Day during the usual business hours—8 a. m. until 10 p. m., and that we will be closed all day on July 4—Independent of what other stores may do.

As a means of benefiting all who, through patriotism or bereavement, use Memorial day for the sacred purpose it is intended, we have issued an order permitting any of our employes, with friends or relatives amongst the departed or amongst the survivors of the G. A. R. to report for duty after 2 p. m., by which time the ceremonies will undoubtedly be completed.

This will leave us rather short handed and, should our customers not be waited upon with the usual promptness, we feel sure that due allowance will be made for the occasion.

WILL INITIATE MOSHER.

Secretary of State Commercial Clubs to Join Blackduck Club.

Blackduck, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. H. Squier, president of the Blackduck club, announces that the fifth annual outing of the club has been postponed to some date in August, yet to be determined.

This year it is the intention of the members to initiate Curtis L. Mosher of St. Paul, secretary of the Minnesota State Federation of Commercial Clubs, and W. R. Ingram of the South St. Paul stockyards, who were recently at Blackduck and Bemidji, and who made formal application for membership.

IGNORED INSTRUCTIONS.

Insurance Agent Sued for Writing Prohibited Policy.

Fargo, N. D., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—An unusual case is occupying the attention of the United States court here. R. E. Hatcher was the local representative for the Northwestern National Fire Insurance company, and was prevented by the company's orders from writing insurance on buildings in which horse collars were manufactured. He wrote a $2,400 policy for Bristol & Sweet, engaged in that business, sending his company a letter of explanation that all other companies were taking the risk. Before the arrival of his letter the building was burned. The insurance company paid the amount, and now sues Hatcher.

TWENTY WILL GRADUATE.

Largest Class in History of North Dakota College.

Fargo, N. D., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The North Dakota Agricultural college will graduate twenty young men and women this year, the institution's largest class. The baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. J. S. Montgomery of Minneapolis, while Judge Amidon of the United States court will deliver the commencement address. The graduation will not occur until Friday of next week, but the other class exercises will begin Monday evening.

BANKERS AT COLERAINE.

First Annual Meeting of the Eighth District Division.

The first annual meeting of the Eighth district division of the Minnesota Bankers' association will be held at Coleraine today. A number of Duluth bankers left for Coleraine this morning. They will be joined there by bankers from St. Paul and Minneapolis. John C. Greenway, ex-senator C. C. McCarthy of Grand Rapids, J. A. Latta, vice president of the Swedish-American Bank of Minneapolis, W. F. McLean of the National Bank of Commerce of Minneapolis, Chief Clerk G. H. Snyder of the City National Bank of Duluth, and J. S. Pomeroy, cashier of the Security Bank of Minneapolis, will speak on different subjects in relation to state and national banking.

A reception and informal ball will be given in honor of the visiting bankers.

CUMMINS AND DOLLIVER

Now Have Center of Stage in the Iowa Campaign.

Des Moines, Iowa., May 28.—While orators for both the standpat and progressive factions are in every nook of Iowa this week, interest centers generally in the meetings of Governor Cummins and Senator Dolliver, who is the main spokesman for Senator Allison. These two oratorical giants are fighting with might and main and hurling defiance at each other in the most melodramatic manner Iowa has ever seen. Several times their paths almost cross.

Governor Cummins spoke at Cedar Rapids, in the heart of the standpat Fifth district, Monday night. The following night, Senator Dolliver spoke at the same place. Dolliver then went to Sioux City, where the governor spoke not long ago. He also makes an address at Fort Dodge where on Monday night the governor winds up his campaign.

The Cummins men are making much out of the fact that Col. Charles A. Clark, formerly commander of the G. A. R. in Iowa, presided at the Cummins meeting in Cedar Rapids, thus refuting the claim that the old soldiers are all for Allison. Arthur E. Holder, formerly deputy state labor commissioner in Iowa and president of the Iowa Federation of Labor, is out in a public letter, urging labor to stay by Cummins.

There seems little question that the corporations are spending vast sums of money in promulgating literature for the standpat candidates. But on the other hand, the progressives have also sent out several tons of literature, so that no matter which wins, the Iowa farmers have had plenty to read on both sides.

A New Kind of Bread.

The Germans are said to be making a new kind of bread of wheat or rye, for which the grain goes through a process similar to malting. It is said to have a delicate flavor, and by reason of the process, more easily digested. The same is true of beer, which is sometimes called liquid bread. The brewing of golden grain belt beer converts the barley into a delicious food-drink that, besides containing a high percentage of nourishment, is an aid to digestion. SNAKE AFTER AN EDUCATION

Comes to School Through Floor and Causes Excitement.

Port Jervis, N. Y., May 28.—The little rural school house, three miles from Boskit station, on the main line of the Erie road, furnishes a wonderful tale. Eleven scholars attend, six boys and five girls. The flooring has been undergoing repairs at such times as school hours were over.

Country boys are as mischievous as their cousins and when Johnny Bennett saw something poke its head through the loose flooring he called the attention of the other boys to it.

It was a black snake, and young Bennett shied a bottle of ink at the protruding head.

"What's that?" asked the teacher.

"Johnny hit a snake," said a boy near by.

Miss Guinness took a broom for protection and investigated. What she saw caused her to cry out in astonishment. The bottle of ink which had struck the floor near the snake was red ink, and the fluid had spilled and run over the reptile giving its body a ruddy hue from the head half way down.

"Mercy sakes, what a poisonous looking creature," cried the schoolteacher. "Clear the room, girls."

The snake crawled out on the floor. Miss Guinnes tried to sweep it away with the broom. It crawled around the broom handle and she dropped the broom.

"Kill it, boys," she cried, and the boys were active.

Loose boards, more ink bottles, and everything portable was used to belabor the snake and it was quickly dispatched.

TO GRADE MINOT STREETS.

Minot, N. D., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council has decided to call for bids for the grading of Minot's streets at a cost of $27,000. This work was declared necessary at a recent meeting of the council, and as soon as bids are received, it is likely that a contract will be let and work will be started immediately.

BRAINERD IN 1910.

High Court Foresters Adjourns to Meet in That City.

Stillwater, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The high court, United Order of Foresters, which has been in session here this week, has concluded its business and adjourned. The next meeting, two years hence, will be held in Brainerd. Great interest was shown in the preparations for the forthcoming supreme court meeting in St. Paul July 20.

Officers were elected and installed as follows: W. J. Rodgers, St. Paul, high ranger; J. W. Gammon, St. Paul, high vice ranger; G. H. Grant, Stillwater, high secretary; John Mack, Minneapolis, high treasurer; Dr. E. A. Meyerding, St. Paul, high physician; Mrs. Jennie Jones, Brainerd, high chaplain; Mrs. Emma Brady, St. Paul, high archer; Louis Lee and Mrs. Rose A. Abbot, both of Brainerd, high inner and outer woodwards respectively; J. H. Ward, Stillwater, and Mrs. Minnie Plang, Minneapolis, high auditors.

Representatives to the supreme court which meets July 20 in St. Paul, Judge James Schoonmaker, St. Paul; M. E. Sullivan, Stillwater; B. W. Sweatland, Minneapolis; John La Plant, St. Paul; Grant Evans, Minneapolis; Mrs. Harriet I. Schoonmeker, St. Paul, and John Mack, Minneapolis.

MUZZLE CHICAGO DOGS.

City Gets Hydrophobia Scare and Fido Pays the Penalty.

Chicago, May 28.—Chicago faces a serious situation in combating the near-epidemic of rabies and hydrophobia, which has become serious, sufficiently to enlist the extreme efforts of the health and police departments to counteract further spread of prevailing conditions.

Not in any spirit of alarm and with nothing more than the desire of the authorities to take such means as lay within their power to effectually block further spread of the trouble, health and police authorities held an important conference yesterday and with a fresh record of four cases of well-developed rabies as the result of infected dogs, street regulations will go into immediate effect.

Every dog in Chicago must be muzzled.

JUNE PAYMENTS $70,000,000.

Dividend and Interest Disbursements Will be Large Next Month.

New York, May 28.—The June dividend and interest disbursement will extend $70,000,000. Up to the present date dividends declared upon the stock of New York City banks and trust companies, the various railroads, industrials, and public service corporations of the United States aggregates $35,706,074, as compared with $34,222,829, declared June, 1907. The total interest payable upon the bonds of the railroads, industrials, public service corporations, and upon the bonds of all the cities, counties and states of the United States, amounts to $18,244,916, as compared with $36,099,233 paid in June, 1907.

WILL CAMP NEXT MONTH

Duluth Militia Will be at Lake City June 15.

Local Companies Expect to Win Prizes for Marksmanship.

The Duluth militia companies will be among the first to go into camp at Lake City this summer. The Third regiment, of which the local organizations are members, will be on the grounds June 15, and will remain until June 24. Col. C. E. Johnson will be in command.

The First regiment will have second turn at the camp, arriving at Lake City July 6 and remaining until July 15. Next will come the Second regiment, from July 16 to July 25. The last organization to use the camping grounds will be the First battalion of artillery. The First regiment will be in command of Col. Charles McReeve, the Second in charge of Col. A. W. Wright, and the First battalion will be in charge of Maj. G. C. Lambert.

Duluth will have three militia companies at Lake City this year. Company E was only recently organized, but it has been doing good work at the practice drills, and expects to make a creditable showing at camp. There will also be three or four other new companies at camp this year. Bemidji is one of the Northern Minnesota towns that will have a company of uniformed men in the field. In Duluth's new organization there are a number of young men who served in militia companies prior to their last enlistment, and this fact is of great assistance in drilling the new recruits.

Duluth took the honors in shooting last year, and will be hot after them again this season. This part of the state seems always to produce good shots, and last summer they had no trouble in taking top place among the sharpshooters. This comes partly from the fact that they do considerable practising on the local range, and that a good many of them are enthusiastic sportsmen. The time they spend hunting for deer and other game in the fall of the year affords good training.

The boys are looking forward with a good deal of pleasure to their ten days at camp. It is the annual summer vacation for many of them. They never fail to have a good time while at camp, in spite of the marches, drills, etc., that they are called upon to go through with.

MONITOR HIT BY BIG SHELLS

Satisfactory Test Made by the Navy With Fighting Ships.

Old Point Comfort, Va., May 28.—The biggest naval gun, the heaviest projectile, and the highest explosive known, combined with close range and deadly aim, were yesterday allowed to work their full havoc on the turret plates of the monitor Florida. The result is declared to be a victory for turret construction, and this nothwithstanding the 11-inch hardened steel plate was broken and blackened, the turret seams sprung and rivets loosened and twisted.

It was not five minutes after the terrible impact that the finely balanced mechanism of the turret was being worked with perfect ease and the 12-inch gun on the left side was trained at will. Inside the turret where stand the gunners and crew, the havoc was much less apparent than from the outside. Examination showed that of the many delicately adjusted instruments for fire control, sighting and operating the turret, few if any were out of working order.

"If this had happened in battle the Florida would be fighting yet," said one of the rear admirals, with enthusiasm.

Then followed a futile attempt to destroy the newly designed fighting mast on the stern of the Florida. After five shots of the guns had gone through it, the mast stood firm. "Forty shots would not bring it down and no enemy would waste ammunition and time shooting at it," was the expert comment.

HETTY GREEN GIVES DINNER

Entertains Sixteen at $20 a Plate at Swell Hotel.

New York, May 28.—Mrs. Hetty Green gave a dinner Tuesday night at the Hotel Plaza for sixteen persons, paying $20 a plate. The floral decorations cost $50 more, while the music and fees cost another $50.

Among the guests were Countess Annie Leary, Rear Admiral Ide and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Hawland Pell and Mr. and Mrs. Amory C. Carhart.

Mrs. Green planned the dinner some ten days ago and requested that all mention of it be kept a secret. Mrs. Green and her daughter Sylvia received the sixteen guests at the entrance of the state apartment, on the second floor of the Plaza, overlooking the entrance of Central park.

The dinner for appointment and quality has not been surpassed by any given at the Plaza.

Mrs. Green was the leader in the conversation during the dinner, and discussed with her guests old Knickerbocker days.

It is said Mrs. Green has planned a series of dinners for the next two months.

SUCCESSOR OF BURY.

Bede Indorses Woodfill for Postmaster at Two Harbors.

Washington, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Bede recommended the appointment of Frank M. Woodfill to be postmaster at Two Harbors, to succeed Thomas A. Bury, deceased.

The omnibus Indian bill was passed by congress yesterday. It contains two items of interest to Minnesota. One provides for deeding in fee to the Episcopal diocese of Duluth such property as they are now occupying for mission schools and churches on Indian reservations. Another paragraph grants permission to the state to purchase, at $1.25 per acre, some 2,000 acres of land on the Fond du Lac Indian reservation, near the town of Cloquet, this land to be used as a forestry experiment farm.

Washington, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Bede called at the navy department yesterday to hasten the gaining of the consent of the British government to the taking of the Scorpion through the Welland canal.

Postmaster Guy Eaton has returned from New York, where he has been looking the Scorpion over. He is enthusiastic over the vessel, she being larger, more modern and, in fact, superior in every way to the Gopher. "She's a dandy," exclaimed Commander Eaton.

ANDERSON GETS BIG VERDICT

Pittsburgh Coal Co. Must Pay $8,000 for Employe's Carlessuess.

A verdict awarding Gust Anderson $8,000 damages against the Pittsburgh Coal company was returned by a jury in Judge Dibell's room late yesterday afternoon, after deliberating over the evidence about four hours.

This is the largest amount of damages returned by a jury in the last two terms.

Anderson sued the company for $20275 for injuries received while working in the hold of a coal boat at the Pittsburgh Coal company's dock.

He was employed with a number of others to shovel the coal into a pile where the clam shell shovel could pick it up. As the bucket was being drawn up it struck the deck and Anderson put out his hand to steady it, but was knocked down. Michael Ladzinski, who was giving the signals is claimed to have made a mistake in his orders and had the bucket lowered suddenly and it dropped on Anderson fracturing and crushing his leg.

Anderson was represented by John Jenswold, Jr. and the coal company by E. C. Kennedy.

STEENERSON'S BODY IS FOUND BY FISHERMEN.

Newport, R. I., May 28.—The body of Benjamin J. Steenerson, a private in the United States Marine corps, who was drowned last February while attempting to save the life of his companion, John M. McIntosh, of Pennsylvania, was picked up off Prudence Island by a fisherman, last night. Steenerson's father is Congressman Halvor Steenerson of Minnesota.

TWO DROWNED OFF CALIFORNIA COAST.

Avalon, Island of Santa Catalina, Cal., May 28.—Capt. A. Crist of the launch Zeus of Avalon and S. E. Pooline, ordinary seaman, of the United States converted cruiser Buffalo, were drowned, and E. E. Easton, wife, two small children and colored nurse, were rescued by the Buffalo, on the high seas, Tuesday night, after drifting helplessly two days in a small launch. Capt. Crist was lost from the launch Sunday night, several miles off Avalon, in a mysterious manner. A small rowboat is missing from the launch, and search is being made for the captain, in the hope that he may be found alive. Seaman Pooline fell overboard from the Buffalo, in effecting the release of Mr. Easton and his party from the launch, Tuesday evening, while a heavy sea was running off the western coast of the island. Another sailor dived overboard in an unsuccessful attempt to rescue Pooline and was himself barely saved.

KITSON NOT SQUAWMAN.

Victim of Cass Lake Drowning Confused With Commodore's Son.

St. Paul, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alexander Kitson, the cruiser drowned at Cass Lake last week, and whose name caused a confusion of identity, it being supposed at first that he was Al Kitson of St. Paul, has two step-daughters at present in St. Paul. They are Mrs. Kremer of West Central avenue, and Miss Julia Ketchun, who is visiting with her. Mr. Kitson was their step-father, having married their mother many years ago. Mr. Kitson at the time of his death was 70 years of age. He was one of the best known men in Northern Minnesota, and highly respected by all who knew him. He was a genial, jovial, upright man and was known as the best cruiser in that section of the state. He had lived there many years. The statement that he had married a squaw is not correct. His wife was of mixed blood, having a Chippewa strain.

Disturbed the Congregation.

The person who disturbed the congregation last Sunday by continually coughing is requested to buy a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar. At all druggists.

GRAND FORKS TO HAVE BIG FAIR

Plans Are Being Rapidly Consummated for Coming Event.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Arrangements for the big Grand Forks fair, to be held here on July 28 to 31 on the state fair grounds, are progressing very satisfactorily. The great amount of detail work is being cared for as rapidly as possible, in order that this may be disposed of before the opening of the exposition, which will this year be on a larger and grander scale then ever before. The directors of the Grand Forks County Agricultural society are at work every day in pushing the project, and this united action is certain to result in the most complete exposition ever held in the entire Northwest.

The appointment of the superintendents and judges for the various departments has about been completed. Every department has been placed in the hands of capable and experienced men and women, so that each division will receive the closest attention and best possible direction. The judges and superintendents, as named, of horses, cattle, swine, sheep and poultry are:

Horses — Superintendent, James A. Murphy, Manvel; judge, W. E. Pritchard, Ottawa, Ill.

Cattle—Superintendent, J. P. Kennedy, Grand Forks; judge, Prof. J. H. Shepard, agricultural college.

Swine—Superintendent, James Coulter, Grand Forks; judge, W. B. Richards, agricultural college.

Sheep—Superintendent, James Coulter, Grand Forks; judge, Prof. W. B. Richards, agricultural college.

Poultry—Superintendent, A. G. Lockman; judge, L. D. Cannift, Fargo.

Beans vs. Meat

Beans and meat have about the same food value, but not the same cost

Which would you rather serve?

Beans are 23 per cent nitrogenous—84 per cent nutriment. They are Nature's choicest food. If you could serve them once a day, think how much you would save on your meat bills.

Will it not pay you to get the best beans—beans that are always ready—beans that your people will want?

Encourage your folks to eat beans. They are appetizing, hearty, cheap

You who serve home-baked beans don't serve them often, because they are hard to prepare and hard to digest.

Beans, to be digestible, must be factory cooked. Your oven isn't hot enough; you can't break down their fibre.

And beans should be baked in live steam, as ours are. Then they are mealy and nutty and whole.

Van Camp's pork and beans baked with tomato sauce

The beans that we buy cost $2.10 per bushel. Other beans sell as low as 30 cents.

We spend five times as much to make our tomato sauce as other sauce costs ready-made.

That's why some brands may be cheaper. But the most economical, in the long run, are those that your people like.

Our beans, our tomato sauce and our pork are baked 90 minutes together

Thus we get our delicious blend.

And Van Camp's have a nutty flavor, a sparkling zest, a piquant tang that you can't get in other brands.

Keep a dozen cans in the house—a dozen meals always ready. For you will eat more beans than you think you will, when you once get a taste of Van Camp's.

10, 15 and 20¢ per can.

DRIFTING SAND ON PARK POINT

Assistant Engineer Darling Replies to Olson's Complaint.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The complaint made by President Olson of the board of public works was printed in The Herald of this date, that the government is to blame for the large amount of sand blown about on Park Point is only partially true and does an injustice to this office. Maj. Fitch, who went away this morning on a tour of inspection, authorized the writer to make a statement of the facts.

A large amount of sand was dumped in the lake during the extensive dredging contracts which were executed in the years 1897-1902, and when the weather was calm the dump scows were required to place the loads as far in-shore as possible, in front of Minnesota Point. This clause was inserted in the contract at the suggestion of the writer, who thought it a pity to waste the sand in deep water, as had previously been done, when it might instead serve the purpose of making land and strengthening Minnesota Point, which was very narrow at best.

The scows could not be taken into less than ten feet of water, and so dumping was done several hundred feet out from shore, where a shoal was formed, with about ten feet of water over it. The result worked out as expected; that is, the storm waves acting upon the heaps of sand under water, drove some of it up to the shore, while the undertow carried portions of it into deeper water. It has taken some years to bring this about, and the process is not yet completed, but it has already added something like 300 feet to the width of the point along about Eighteenth street, and a less amount for a distance to the north and south of this, between Thirteenth and Twenty-furth streets, which was as far as the in-shore dumping extended.

In rough weather the dumping was done in deep water; that is, in a depth of forty feet or more, and it is safe to say that none of this material has reached the shore, and it probably never will.

It is true that the beach formed by the in-shore dumping furnishes some of the sand that is carried by the wind and dropped on the point, but not all of it. I walked along the point today, from the White City to the canal, and find that the wind has cut into the bluffs and drifted the sand very badly as far down as Twenty-seventh street, which is at least three blocks beyond where the new beach was formed by dumping. There are other places further along to the south where the same thing is going on, but to a less extent, owing, perhaps, to its being more thickly wooded.

While the new beach from Thirteenth to Twenty-fourth streets has the drawback of presenting a larger area of sand to the action of the wind, a feature which was not anticipated, the fact should not be forgotten that it will be a valuable protection to the property in case of a very severe storm. Mr. Reon, whose residence is on the east side of Lake avenue, near Sixteenth street, was telling me today that the waves in the great storm of November, 1905, came up to his house and nearly carried it away, giving his family a terrible fright. This was before the beach had formed out to its present width. Now he is troubled some with the drifting sand, but says he would not be afraid of another such storm, as the beach would serve as a breakwater. If there had been a beach all along Minnesota Point during that storm like there is now at Eighteenth street the waves would have broken over it and not have reached up and attacked the sand bluffs as it did. This office commenced last year to reinforce the point with dredgings at the barrens, where it is much needed on account of the narrow width, and a continuation of this plan, to include practically the entire front of Minnesota Point, has been contemplated.

A petition was received by this office about two years ago, signed by every property owner on the lake shore of the point, north of the canal, to have dredgings dumped in front of their property, and verbal requests have been made by some of the owners just south of the canal for similar deposits. Some dumping has been done in accordance with these requests, but it will be impracticable to do much of it near the canal, on account of the danger of the material working around the end of the piers and into the entrance channel.

DEMOCRATS REFUSE TO INDORSE BRYAN.

Concord, N. H., May 28.—The Democrats of New Hampshire, in state convention, yesterday elected four delegates-at-large to the national convention.

An attempt to insert in the platform a resolution favoring the presidential candidacy of William Jennings Bryan was defeated by a most pronounced majority, but the Bryan supporters were victorious in selecting as delegates-at-large the men on their own ticket.

WILL EXAMINE SITES.

Committee Will Consider Experimental Farm for St. Louis County.

Professors Green and Hecker of the College of Agriculture of the State university are coming to Duluth next week to look over some of the available sites for the proposed experimental farm that the Duluth Commercial club has been working for.

At present the nearest state experimental farm is located at Grand Rapids. Duluthians are anxious to have one in St. Louis county, near this city, so that the agricultural possibilities in this section may be developed and its advantages advertised.

The educators who come next week will go first to Cloquet and look at some sites there. They will then come here for the same purpose.

AFFECTED BY DECISION

Attorney Says Gross Earnings Tax Might Prove Unconstitutional.

Point Raised in Texas Case Applies in Minnesota.

In the opinion of Attorney H. H. Phelps, the United States supreme court decision declaring unconstitutional the Love gross receipts tax on railroads in Texas gives rise to a grave question as to the constitutionality of the Minnesota gross earnings tax law, provided the press dispatches relative to the decision give a correct synopsis of it. Mr. Phelps says that until he has an opportunity to read the whole decision it is difficult to say just what effect it might be expected to have on the Minnesota law, for in a brief dispatch it is no easy matter to thoroughly cover the whole decision.

If the Minnesota law could be declared unconstitutional, and the railroads could be put on the same basis of taxation as the ordinary property owners, the result would be vastly beneficial to Duluth, where the greater part of the taxable property along the lake and bay fronts is held by the railroads, which, under the gross earnings law, pay tax money into the state treasury, instead of to the city in which their holdings are located. Under present conditions the cost of all public improvements abutting on this railroad property has to be borne by the city, or by the few property owners having land adjacent to that of the roads. Declaring the law unconstitutional would mean a difference of millions of dollars in the assessor's valuations in Duluth.

The original action relative to the Texas law was against the Galveston, Harrisburg & San Antonio and other railroads, to recover taxes and penalties. The state supreme court held the penalties void under state legislation, but upheld the tax. The railroads appealed to the United States supreme court. The point of the decision which is of vital interest to Duluth and Minnesota is that the state cannot tax interstate business.

The Texas law imposed an annual tax on railroad corporations equal to 1 per cent of their gross receipts when they lie wholly within the state. The decision held that, while the railroads are within the state, the larger part of their gross receipts is derived from passenger and freight business coming from points outside the state; that while the state can tax the property of a railroad at its actual value as a going concern, it cannot tax the interstate business.

Chapter, 253, Minnesota laws of 1903, which is substantially the same as the gross earnings law existing prior to that date, except that a larger tax is provided for, fixes a gross earnings tax on railroads lying wholly within the state, and also a similar tax on the interstate business transacted by railroads passing through the state. This is a tax on interstate business, according to the decision, and it is this feature of the Texas law which makes it unconstitutional.

Chief Fuller and Associate Justices White, Harlan and McKenna dissented in the decision. The dissenting opinion views the statute as an occupation tax, sustaining the state court on that point, and denies that it is a tax on interstate commerce, because its operation on interstate commerce is only incidental, not direct.

Fear is also expressed by the dissenting judges that the decision introduces a new rule at taxation that will seriously affect the taxing laws of various states and so cripple their powers that they cannot compel their own corporations to bear their just proportion of such public burden as can be met only by taxation.

Cable Service Began 49 Years Ago.

Forty-nine years ago the laying of the first Atlantic cable was completed and the first messages sent over it were an exchange of sentiments between the queen of England and our president. There are now about sixteen cables across the Atlantic. It was 54 years ago that the public had the first opportunity to test the curative powers of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and as proof of its wonderful success we only need point to the unequalled record of cures of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel complaints to its credit. Today it is more popular than ever, because more people are being convinced that it can cure them of sick headache, bloating, heartburn, vomiting, sour risings, dyspepsia, indigestion, costiveness, biliousness and malaria. Insist on having the genuine Hostetter's.

CROWDS INSPECT NEW BUILDING

First of Five Reception Days at New Home of Y. M. C. A.

In its handsome new home at Second street and Third avenue west, the Young Men's Christian association is extending the glad hand to the entire city and will keep open house all the rest of the week.

Yesterday was the first of the reception days. Many people visited the building during the afternoon and more were there in the evening.

Floral decorations, loaned by Seekins, enhanced the beauty of the rooms, and Flaaten's orchestra played. The building will have a gala appearance all the rest of the week, and visitors will be welcomed.

A feature of the program for this evening will be a union service, participated in by several clergymen of different denominations. Watson S. Moore will preside as chairman, and among the speakers will be Dr. A. W. Ryan, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church; Rev. S. M. Rice, pastor of the First M. E. church; Rev. S. L. Mitchell, pastor of the First Baptist church, and Rev. Baxter Waters, pastor of the First Christian church.

Local clergymen and the members of church societies, as well as the congregations at large, are especially invited to inspect the new building today, and to be present at the exercises this evening.

Frank H. Burt, president of the Y. M. C. A. training school of Chicago, will be in the city tomorrow and will be the principal speaker at the exercises tomorrow evening.

Members of the state executive committee of the Y. M. C. A. will be here tomorrow as well, and will be tendered a banquet by the local association, at 6 o'clock.

The "open house" will conclude with a big mass meeting for men on Sunday.

TORNADO AT OMAHA.

Omaha, May 28.—A severe storm, accompanied by a wind, which destroyed everything in its path, struck the north end of the city early yesterday. Park trees and shrubbery were entirely destroyed in Miller Park, and a barn was carried a hundred yards and dropped into the middle of the park intact. The storm dipped again in the southern part of the city, but no buildings were in its path. The storm took the form of a small tornado, but fortunately struck the earth in unoccupied places and beyond a bad scare no serious damage was done.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A negro family consisting of eight persons, was drowned near Weber Falls, on the Canadian River, thirty-five miles southeast of Muskegee, Okla., during the recent flood.

The Atlantic battleship fleet Wednesday completed another leg in its memorable cruise and anchored in the blue depths of Commencement bay, the furthermost inland water of Puget sound, 200,000 people looking down from the precipitious amphitheater extending from Point Defiance to the center of the city.

New York suffered from a heat wave Wednesday. The weather bureau thermometer reached 86 degs., making it the hottest May 27 since 1880. The heat was responsible for two deaths and several prostrations.

The Democrats of the Second congressional district of New Hampshire Wednesday elected delegates to the national convention. They were not instructed.

The coal mines in the Fairmount and Clarksburg, Md., regions, controlled by the Consolidated Coal company, resumed work on full time Wednesday, the lake trade demand being responsible. From 7,000 to 10,000 men are affected.

In a mine explosion at Salinesville, Ohio, Wednesday, three men were killed outright and one man was killed by a falling pipe, after he had been dragged out of the mine by the rescuers.

With the submission of the famous affinity letters from Mabel Snell McNamara, the grandniece, and Mrs. E. A. Hamilton, the clergyman's wife, and the presentation of the final witnesses, the contestant in the Snell will case closed his side Wednesday. The jury may bring in a verdict on Saturday.

MANY STRAWBERRIES SHIPPED.

Bridgeville, Del., May 28.—A new record in the shipment of strawberries was made in this section yesterday, when seventy-four car loads of berries were shipped. The previous record for one day was fifty-five cars, made last summer. The price of berries has dropped, many farmers selling as low as 4 cents a quart which, they claim, is not a paying price.

CHILDREN AS POLICE SPIES.

Inspector Miles O'Reilly of the New York police force has taken up an interesting experiment. He has constituted the children of the public schools assistant inspectors, with the request that they report to him whenever they see an officer entering or leaving a saloon.

There can be little doubt that the experiment will be successful in one way. Nothing could happen to the average school boy more likely to give him an exalted opinion of himself than to be made a policeman, even if he is denied the coveted uniform and star, which he would value far more highly than the most lavish salary.

It will give these lads a very comforting and grateful sense of importance, and their work will doubtless be done very effectively. Police inspectors are necessarily few in number, and they cannot be everywhere at once. But school boys are very numerous and ubiquitous. Except possibly during school hours, no policeman will feel safe in slipping into a groggery to solace himself with a drink, and even then the thirsty officer will be haunted by a fear that some youthful police inspector may be playing hookey in his neighborhood.

Naturally the policemen are very indignant about it, and their natural dignity is very much shattered by the knowledge that their comings and goings will be spied upon by mere school boys, by lads whom they have pursued many a time after some piece of mischief has been done. Some policemen, judging from the boy view of it, seem to take positive delight in making life a burden to the small boy, and who could have imagined a better chance to get even than Inspector O'Reilly has offered?

But while this new scheme will be very bad for the saloon business, and will force thirsty policemen to content themselves with pale thirst-quenchers like milk shake and pop, is it going to do the boys any good? Even if it improves the discipline of the police department a great deal, will the gain offset the damage that may be done the school boys?

For one thing, a boy who has been set upon the track of a policeman by the policeman's superior, will never again have the same awe of and respect for the policeman that he had before. A policeman, to the average small boy, looms large and majestic as the visible representative of the law, which in the lad's mind is likely to be spelt with very large capital letters. That respect for law, shattered though it may become in later years, is the foundation of that boy's citizenship. It wouldn't be pleasant to think that possibly Inspector O'Reilly's scheme is destroying it in a large number of school boys.

Again, this scheme sets the children to spying and tattling, and both of these are large vices in childhood's eyes. Children hate a spy and a "tattle-tale," and their hatred comes from a right instinct. Yet the fascination of being a police inspector, and of dogging the footsteps of policemen to discover their sins, might easily overcome that natural sentiment, and that wouldn't be a good thing, either.

MR. JEROME'S SELF-CONDEMNATION.

His unfitness for the responsible office he holds has nowhere been more clearly shown than in District Attorney Jerome's attempt to justify the offense of George W. Perkins in contributing $50,000 of life insurance trust funds to the Republican campaign treasury. His very justification of this crime is enough in itself to warrant the removal from office of this recreant public servant.

"It was perfectly plain," said Mr. Jerome, "that Bryan's election would have been followed by a shrinkage in the value of the securities of the New York Life Insurance company, of say at least 10 or 12 per cent, so that with $450,000,000 of securities this contribution by Mr. Perkins was a shrewd business move, even if it were illegal. Moreover, there was abundant evidence that the officials of almost every financial institution in New York city had contributed to the Republican party committee to help defeat Bryan, so that if Perkins was guilty I had my work cut out for me good and plenty for a year or more ahead."

In other words, unless big property interests contributed lavish sums of money, there was danger that the people would vote their will, and since the prosperity of "big business" was at the expense of the people, the securing of the people's will meant harm to "big business." Therefore it was a "shrewd business move" to steal insurance trust funds to contribute to the party which protects "big business."

This callous attempt to justify corruption of elections with money gained by the larceny of trust funds should condemn this man without further evidence. When prosecuting attorneys wink at the heinous double offense of plundering trust funds to corrupt an election, it is time the people did a little serious thinking.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR WOOD PULP.

Your newspaper is printed on paper made from the wood of certain trees which are none too plentiful on this continent, and which are being consumed much faster than they are growing. Besides, the supply of pulpwood, and the machinery used in turning it into paper, have fallen into the hands of a paper trust which is using its power in a tyrannous manner. Protected by a tariff schedule, it is squeezing the newspaper industry of the country, and unless something very radical is done it will not be long before newspapers, now the cheapest product of the country, will be very much more expensive.

While congress is working hard to avoid its duty of taking action against the tariff schedule that makes this condition possible, and against the paper trust that is abusing its evil power, it is interesting to note that there is some possibility of relief through the discovery of a substitute for pulpwood in the production of paper.

Consul General Guenther of Frankfort, Germany, in a recent report to the state department includes a statement regarding an experiment in paper-making which will be of interest to all paper users—which means everybody—as well as to the planters of the South.

On the island of Trinidad, off the coast of South America, a planter has discovered, it is claimed, a method of making paper from the bagasse, or refuse, of sugar cane. The bagasse, having been ground three times and pressed, is treated by a secret process, boiled, passed between rotating millstones, put into the usual machines for manufacturing paper pulp, and afterwards cut up under hydraulic pressure. The inventor claims that 84 per cent of the bagasse is transformed into paper pulp, and that a superior paper can thus be produced.

It will never do to take a report like this at its face value, especially as it seems to consist largely of the claims of the inventor, and everybody knows how prone the inventor is to build his hopes into towering dream castles that are likely to vanish into thin air at the rude touch of practicality. Yet the hope held out by this report is certainly tangible enough to be worth investigating. Anyway, it sounds better than the plan suggested a few weeks ago, that the newspapers use black paper and print with white ink. Any wood can be used to make black paper, and old newspapers can be used at the same time, though for white paper special kinds of wood are necessary and old papers can't be used over because the ink will not bleach out. This scheme might do in case of necessity, but the sugar cane plan sounds very much better. If it works, it furnishes a new and brilliant outlook for the sugar cane industry of the Southern states, for with paper as a by-product, the refuse would be worth more than the sugar extracted from the cane.

Anyway, since congress will not provide the relief that is so obviously necessary by repealing the duties on woodpulp and paper, it is time that the country were looking for some other way to provide the paper, and perhaps this Trinidad planter has found the way.

Only we hope that that "secret process" of which the report speaks will not be bought up by the paper trust and used to continue its merciless exactions.

THE CURRENCY MONSTROSITY.

It is very evident that congress intends to give the country a currency bill. The house has passed one combining the features of the Aldrich and Vreeland measures, and unquestionably the senate will follow suit.

It is too early to judge the measure, either here or in Washington. Congress hasn't judged it. It has been forced to vote for it under threat of losing its public building "pork." The ultimatum went forth: "No currency bill, no public building bill;" and the statesmen had to vote for the currency bill or give up their public building appropriations.

In general, the bill provides for emergency currency either under the Aldrich plan of depositing securities with the treasury, or under the Vreeland plan of currency associations of banks which will issue the emergency money secured by their holdings of stocks and bonds and commercial paper. One very interesting provision is the reduction of the percentage of required reserve to 10 per cent, which will facilitate the movement of the nation's money to Wall street to be used in gambling operations, and which should therefore be good for stocks.

No great good for the people can come from a plan hatched in Wall street and carried out by Aldrich and Cannon. If the people think that a measure so sponsored is in their interests, they show a confidence not justified by current events.

Senator Aldrich says the measure is a sort of "faith cure," which the country needs. If faith can be built upon such a measure, faith is easily made. If prosperity can be restored by the passage of this bill, it will be very much like restoring it by the utterance of some nonsensical hocus-pocus of words borrowed from the magicians.

THE FARCE OF THE TARIFF.

The other day two bodies were meeting at the same time in this country, and both were considering the same thing, each after its own fashion. The thing they were considering was the economic condition in which the American people find themselves. Certain trusts, safely entrenched behind tariff schedules which tax all the people for the benefit of a few, have been and still are levying tribute which impoverishes the people while it builds up fortunes in the hands of a few that are menacing to the security of the republic.

One of these bodies was congress, and the other was the National Association of Manufacturers.

Congress attacked the problem by referring the tariff to a couple of committees composed of men that have been largely responsible for maintaining the present schedules, even though they must be aware of the harm they are causing the people. These committees are to consider the tariff during the summer and fall, and report back to congress about it again next winter.

The National Association of Manufacturers, about the same time, was listening with keen and intelligent interest to a discussion of the causes of present conditions, and to a suggestion for a cure, from its committee on interstate commerce. Said the committee:

"Need we explain that this is by removal of import duties from all articles whose production they monopolize? It is self-evident that a law taxing the American people for the benefit of monopolists who can export their goods at a profit should be repealed, and that protection should no longer be extended to those who have proved that they do not need it."

This is the truth about the tariff, but the people would have been further along if it had come from congress, accompanied by definite action along the line suggested. Congress is the body that can and must, if anybody does it, change the tariff to make it serve the people instead of permitting it to protect the plundering of the people.

Congress could revise the tariff in accordance with the truths uttered by the manufacturers any time it wished. It could revise it today, even. If that were showing too little deliberation, it could take the matter up and work all summer at it, if necessary. Nine months elapse before the present congress expires, and it could use all of that time, if it were necessary.

But it isn't going to use any of it. It is going to refer the whole matter to two committees controlled by interests that wish the tariff to remain about as it is, and then it is going to adjourn and go home and ask to be re-elected.

Proper tariff revision, the kind the people need, will not come out of committees headed by Senator Aldrich and Congressman Payne in a thousand years. Yet it is to such committees that congress has intrusted the preliminary consideration of the work.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

A bell boy employed at the Lenox hotel did the honors in a stroll to the train yesterday afternoon, while the bridegroom of a day walked behind and evaded the rain as best he could. It all occurred because the bellhop was told to carry the grips of the honeymooners to the depot.

Either the boy didn't understand or he did not want to understand, for instead of walking behind the newly wedded couple and carrying their grips, thus permitting them the use of the umbrella kindly loaned by the house, he grandly took the young lady by the arm, held the umbrella over her, and permitted the husband of the lady to walk behind in the rain, struggling with a couple of generous suitcases.

F. H. Ames, known to the commercial traveling world as the "King of Rub-no-more," is at the Hotel Lenox after an extended stay down on the Florida reef line. "Down there among the summer resorters," says Mr. Ames, "the financial stringency can be traced by the comparative emptiness of the hotels where the tourist of moderate means secured lodging.

The first class hotels—the hotelries where you pay from $10 up, are crowded with the wealthy, but the places where a modest deposit of two plunks will buy bread and provide a resting place for weary travelers are empty and deserted-looking. The man with a modest income has deferred the delights of the balmy Florida springs until the ledger balance assumes a more properous appearance.

"But the natives are not suffering from the effects of the industrial depression. The orange crop promises to be a bumper one, while phosphate mining, a recent industrial development, has been the means of bringing many shining shekels to the Florida citizens. Phosphate mining is being promoted by Northern money, but the profits are not being lost to the property owners of Florida.

B. F. Hayes of Chicago, has just returned from a Western trip during which he visited the new state of Oklahoma. In speaking of the way they do things in the new state, Mr. Hayes stated at the St. Louis yesterday, that graft is so far unknown among the state officials of Oklahoma. They evidently are impressed with the opinion that they were elected to office to serve faithfully the interests of the people and what's more they seem inclined to carry out the will of the people with all their ability.

Mr. Hayes states that the governor is a plain, hardworking man, who beats it to the office in the early hours, and shedding his coat tears into the business of the state with all the energy at his command. The state's attorney is is a former traveling man, and Mr. Hayes says if one wants to see hustle and genuine work it would do one good to visit the office of this state official. The laws of Oklahoma are new and the attorney general has many troubles of his own. According to Mr. Hayes, the ex-traveling man is going at the work in the right way and is administering the laws of the new commonwealth in a highly efficient manner.

The first legislature established a good record. Like the governor, many of the members of that body peeled their coats and got right down to business with an earnestness that promised great things for the new state.

In fact, Mr. Hayes states that in all departments of the new state government, they are exhibiting signs of industry that could be well imitated by older and more firmly established commonwealths. The visitor to Oklahoma, according to Mr. Hayes, is thoroughly impressed with the earnestness of all the state officials as well as the members of the legislature.

Willie on Hero Worshiping.

Pa often talks about a man named Homer, who lived long ago.
Pa seems to think that he was great; I can't somehow believe it, though.
The only thing he ever done was twang a harp and sing a song.
I'll bet he couldn't of stood up before Jim Jeffries very long.

Another man pa thinks was great was Michael Angelo. You'd think,
To hear pa talk a while, that Mike could put Hans Wagner on the blink,
It seems that he could sculp and paint and do a lot of handy turns.
I'll bet you, though, he couldn't of been one-two-three with Tommy Burns.

The greatest man that ever lived, pa thinks, was Shakespeare. He could sling
The ink all right, I guess, and knew a lot about most everything,
Pa says that Shakespeare's gifts were far ahead of any other man's.
I'll bet you, though, he wouldn't have stood much show in the ring with Gans.

THE WEATHER.

The weather man looks for fair weather tomorrow, which is very encouraging and timely information. This morning it was warm and partly clear, though the air was still damp and the clouds refused to depart. The weather man says it will be partly cloudy and cooler tonight with local showers. Last night's lowest temperature was 51 degs. and yesterday's highest was 62 degs.

A year ago today spring weather prevailed, showery and warm.

The sun rose this morning at 4:19 and sets tonight at 7:51, making 15 hours and 32 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Showery weather continued during Wednesday or last night throughout the Northwest, the Missouri, Upper Mississippi and Red River valleys and Western lake region due to low pressure conditions over the Lower Missouri and Upper Mississippi valleys. Warm weather is still the rule in the Central and Eastern states. Areas of high pressure occur off the New England coast and the plateau region. Rising pressures in the Middle West and Southwest are attended by lower temperature. Another disturbance is developing over British Columbia. Indications favor scattered showers in this locality tonight followed by fair weather Friday."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures:

MIRTHFUL REMARKS.

Chicago Tribune: Oldsawyer—A rolling stone, you know, gathers no moss.

Noxley—But it doesn't follow that a rolling candidate gathers no delegates. Look at Taft.

Washington Star: "Your daughter has a wonderful ear for music."

"Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox, wearily, "seems like it can stand most anything."

Baltimore American: "Mr. Skinflint, I want to marry your daughter?"

"Well, young man, can you support her in the way to which she has been accustomed?"

"Oh, yes, sir, I can, but I won't."

Philadelphia Press: "I've got great news for you," cried Jack, excitedly.

"What is it?" asked his cousin Jennie.

"I'm going to marry Mary Prettyman."

"Pshaw! that's not news. She asked me a month ago if I'd be her bridesmaid."

Chicago Record-Herald: "We don't hear the word kleptomaniac as much as we used to," said the observant citizen.

"No, 'grafter' means about the same thing and is more quickly said."

Chicago Tribune: "Still trying to muster up courage to propose to the girl, are you, Algy? Don't be a clam."

"Dear boy, I can't be a clam, don't you know. She says I'm a lobstah."

Houston Post: "When you ask papa for my hand, the first thing he'll want to know will be if you have any money."

"I shall tell him I have $5,000 in the bank."

"Don't you do it! Tell him you haven't a cent that isn't tied up in real estate; then he can't borrow it."

Baltimore American: "Good gracious, Mrs. Riter, what is all that noise and swearing about?"

"Sh! That's my husband, who is furiously angry because I disturbed him in his work to tell him the coal was out and we would have to order more today."

"Is his work so important?"

"Yes; he is writing a series of articles for a popular magazine on how always to keep sunshine and cheerfulness in the house."

Who Caught the Fish?

From the city came angler with costly split-bamboo
And forty-seven different kind of flies.
He had read all works on angling and knew a thing or two
Of fish of every shape and every size.
He used a line of braided silk and multiplying reel,
With German silver mountings all to match.
He had a patent landing net and gaff of polished steel;
And scales to weigh the fish he meant to catch.

A freckled country urchin cut a rod from a birch bough;
He knew no lore from modern angling books;
He tied a bit of twine to it as well as he knew how,
And with a nickel bought a dozen hooks.
He had no silken line, nor reel, or deadly pointed gaff,
Nor fancy tempting flies with tinsel bright;
But naught cared he: "I'll catch some fish," he chuckled with a laugh,
And dug a can of garden worms that night.

The city man and country boy fished up a babbling brook,
Where schools of handsome brook trout frolicked by.
The boy impaled his juicy worms upon his little hook,
The expert whipped the ripples with a fly.
The man a gleaming trout yanked out at almost every cast,
He kept it up from early morn to night;
But when that freckled country boy, disgusted, quit at last,
He hadn't had a solitary bite.

It Would Be Useless.

Baltimore Sun: If there were such a thing as watering delegates like watering stock, one might suspect the Taft managers as employing it. But there are few delegates who care for water!

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of the Herald of This Date, 1888.

Conductor Henry Black of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, died in the this city on May 27, after a short illness. Mr. Black was the step-son of Superintendent White and was the first passenger conductor on the Iron Range road. His remains will be intered in the family lot at Racine, Wis.

The annual meeting of the directors of the St. Louis River Waterpower company was held in Duluth a few days ago. All the old officers were re-elected, but nothing was done regarding the improvements to be made at the Dalles.

Fred D. Herriman has reopened the restaurant at the rear of Cullen & Hathway's saloon at the West end, which was formerly run by Archie Riley.

Seven leading officials of the great Lehigh Valley Transportation company arrived in the city today and looked over the dock facilities, as it is the company's intention to acquire large terminal facilities here. The Lehigh company now runs a fleet of eight or ten large steamships between Chicago and Buffalo.

After Aug. 1, bricklayers in Duluth will work but nine hours a day.

The city is full of contractors to bid on the large amount of city work to be let in a short time. Among the contracts to be let are First street grade, about $500,000; West Michigan street grade, about $220,000; Superior street paving, about $160,000, and a number of smaller contracts.

The chanmber of commerce has appointed a committee of five to join with a like committee of the city council to make arrangements for a Fourth of July celebration on a scale never before attempted in Duluth.

London Grove addition is the latest piece of ground in the East end that will be placed on the market.

G. F. Swift of the Swift Packing company has purchased an interest in the meat business of John B. Sutphin, and the new firm will begin business next Monday.

Announcement is made of the building of a mammoth flour mill in Duluth at once. It will be located on what is known as the Peck mill property at Rice's Point. The mill is to be 100 by 200 feet in size and six stories high. The building and docks will cost about $130,000, while the machinery will cost nearly $400,000 more. The mill will have at first a daily capacity of 1,500 barrels, which will be increased later to 6,000 barrels. The company will probably be called the Duluth Imperial Mills, and the manager will be B. C. Church, a wealthy miller of Sterling, Ill. The principal stockholders are B. C. Church, R. S. Munger, Peck & Son, T. A. Olmstead and J. D. Ensign.

MILLER AND BEDE.

Eveleth Star: The boys of the press are having a great time trying to elect and defeat Congressman Bede. "On with the dance."

Chisholm Herald: From reports from the several sections of this county, we should say that Mr. Bede is to have the fight of his life to get back to the house. The revolt is heavy everywhere, and especially is this true of Duluth, the home of Mr. Miller. He has a host of friends there and should carry it at the primaries by a large majority. We have no reports from the other counties of the districts, and he may fare better there.

Hinckley Enterprise: Have you noticed how much better our J. Adam attends to business since the candidacy of Clarence Miller? Mr. Bede now probably realizes that lecturing and attending banquets and making promises is not all the Eighth district requires of its congressman.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Mr. Miller, who wants to go to congress from this district, is quoted as saying that it is time the tariff be revised to meet the conditions of today. Republican congressmen, even to Joe Cannon, all say the same thing, but they are careful to say it when there is no possible chance of having the question taken care of in congress. When such a movement is possible the congressmen do not hesitate to say that it would be bad business to tinker with the tariff just before a general election, and in this land of the free there is always a general election coming. But public sentiment is working up its muscles, and congress will have to defend its title before long or there will be many new faces in the national halls of Sputtersburg.

Aitkin Republican: Evidently Congressman Bede does not like the way Duluth is supporting Clarence Miller for congress, and he is getting even by refusing or neglecting to ask for $65,000, which is necessary for the Duluth federal building.

Hibbing Tribune: J. Adam Bede asked all the newspaper boys if they would like to be subpoenaed to testify at the paper hearing at Washington. Was this a bribe or just a joke?

Virginia Enterprise: And while they are all doing their stunts for Miller and Bede, the proposition as to who may be the Democratic nominee has seemingly never entered the minds of the congressional promoters. Should Martin Hughes of Hibbing again become an active one he would make either of the prospectives look about a bit.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Duluth wants everything that Washington has to give, and its understanding is that the congressman from the Eighth district is sent to the national capital for the sole purpose of attending to the wants of the Zenith City. We are ready to admit that Duluth is entitled to a great deal and we do not want to be understood as begrudging it any of the good things, yet we will hold to the opinion that Duluth is not the whole Eighth congressional district. The district outside of Duluth never had a smell until Mr. Bede was sent to Washington.

Cannon Falls Beacon: We would suggest to Candidate Miller of the Eighth congressional district that he announce as his campaign slogan, "Down with Cannon." J. Adam will certainly not join him in that.

Governor Johnson's Misconception.

New York Sun: Governor Johnson of Minnesota is quoted as saying that:

"What the Democratic party wants is a winner."

It is evident that Governor Johnson has not followed closely the history of his party in the last few years. If he had he would know that his political associates do not care a snap about winning. They are proud and happy to have their organization an annex to a successful lecture bureau and newspaper plant.

E. R. Sinkler Denounces the Political Bosses of North Dakota.

Appeals for Support of People on His Own Record.

Lansford, N. D., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—E. R. Sinkler, who is seeking the Republican nomination for member of congress, delivered a splendid address to a large audience here. His remarks, which aroused great enthusiasm, were, in part, as follows:

"I belong to neither faction contending for supremacy in the Republican party. I am not an insurgent, as represented at Grand Forks, nor am I a Stalwart. I am a Republican. I have not received a nomination from any convention called by any party or part of any party, nor would I accept such a nomination if it were tendered to me in the face of the primary election law. I stand on my own record. To the people I make my appeal and not to any coterie of bosses. On my own record I hope to succeed and obtain your suffrage, and not through this or that combination. I have made no promises and will make none. I have made no combinations and will make none. My campaign is being conducted strictly within the provisions of the primary election law, and by the decision of a just, intelligent and fair-play-loving public I am willing to abide. I have not prayed the old gang to allow me to run for office, nor have I bowed in suppliant obedience to the Insurgent leaders. If I am elected to the great office to which I aspire I will call to the duties I am performing in that office all the power with which I am endowed in the interests of the people of this state and this nation. I am for man as against the dollar; for man as against corporate political domination; for the masses against the minions of wealth. My one aim in all I do shall be to serve faithfully and well the people of my state, and I hope that in so doing I may gain the approval of North Dakota's citizens, and I deem no struggle too hard, no labor to severe to gain that approval. Single-handed and alone I have waged this fight, and thousands of friends have sprung up in my wake who are taking up my cause. Those friends are with me, not through the powers of patronage, because I have none to dispose of; not through the influence of the dollar, because the dollar and I are strangers, but because men like a fighter; because men admire persevering effort; because men recognize that I am waging an unequal contest against combinations and overcoming all obstacles by continuous hard work and individual effort, and standing squarely on the primary election law.

"They say I cannot be elected because I have not the support of the old gang. They say I cannot be elected because I was not nominated by the insurgent leaders at Grand Forks. Is it necessary for a man, in order to hope for success at the polls, to first be indorsed by a few self-constituted political leaders? Must one first get the consent of the Merchants hotel gang or the Valley City crowd before aspiring to political preference? Are they the ones who, under the primary election law, are to determine and pick out the persons who shall administer the affairs of government? Where did they get the authority to dictate the personnel of the ticket? When they say that no one can successfully wage a campaign at the primaries without their sanction and unassisted by their combination, do they not assume to themselves the power of the boss? If a few men can get together and pick out a ticket, and no individual can succeed over that ticket so picked out, then the primary election law is a failure and we have gang rule in its worst form. When the Merchants hotel and Valley City leaders say that one running without their consent cannot be elected, they assert a condition which does not exist. They may manipulate conventions and align insurgents and Stalwarts in battle array against each other in the convention hall, but they cannot do so at the polls. Self interest, promises, combinations, the passions of men, their ambitions control conventions. Not so with the people. Their votes are cast for this man or that man through a conscientious desire to further the prosperity of their common country. They will vote for men who can do something; for men who not only stand for man as against the dollar, for the masses as against vested interests, but standing thus have the strength and power to make a fight for the common people. They will not vote for this man or that man simply because some boss or set of bosses have issued the edict. The man who gets the votes at the primaries must stand on his own bottom, on his own merits, on his own qualifications. Honesty, ability and the power to do things are what the people demand in their candidates, and not dollars and combinations."

AFTER THE LAUNDRYMEN.

Congress May Come to Rescue of the Maimed Shirt.

Washington, May 27.—"If the prosperous laundrymen of the District of Columbia continue to do as they have been doing, we might as well hand our linen to the tender mercies of the bulldog or the billygoat," declared Representative J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia, soon after he had presented to the house a bill regulating the operatins of laundries in the capital city.

Mr. Moore has attended 103 banquets in the last 103 days, which is the record.

"When a man buys a brand new shirt and sends it to the laundry, it is returned to him like a flag that has been frayed by the breezes," declared Mr. Moore with deep emotion, and he spoke of the destruction of the 103 garments which he wore at the 103 functions aforesaid. "Its simply awful," concluded Mr. Moore.

The Moore bill provides that every laundry in the district shall pay a license tax of $50 a year. It prohibits the use by laundries of acids and "violent" machinery.

"Any laundry in Washington caught in the act of using acids or 'violent' machinery on garments sent to it by the unsuspecting is to be mulcted by the government in the sum of $100."

SHE LOST HER JOB.

Miss Doerge Would Not Wear Directoire Gown on Street.

Chicago, May 27.—All the Rialto is seething and a-boiling and giving off a prodigious steam of words because of the following note received by Miss Ida Doerge, the triggest young thing in Joe Weber's company:

"My Dear Miss Doerge: Your engagement with me will terminate in two weeks, as per contract. Very truly,

"JOE WEBER."

Miss Doerge was asked to wear the directoire gown in State street, but flatly objected, saying it was indecent. She wears tights in the play, but says that is business. So Miss Carlisle wore the directoire gown and nearly precipitated a riot, and Miss Doerge is out of a position.

DELAY DUE TO THE RAIN

Wet Weather Means Heavy Loss to Duluth Contractors.

Courthouse Necessitates Construction of a New Storm Sewer.

The long-continued spell of wet weather is proving disastrous to Duluth contractors in street improvement and sewer work. Not ouly is the work being delayed in an annoying manner, but work done prior to the rainy season is being destroyed in some instances by the water, entailing a big expense upon the contractors.

Especially is this true of the sewer work that was completed late last fall. The sewer jobs coming in this class were not really entirely completed, for it is customary to let the ground settle as much as possible before the finishing touches are added. During the winter and early spring the earth settled sufficiently to make it necessary to do more work in the way of filling and leveling, but before this could be finished the May rains set in, and for the past week have been doing a lot of damage to these jobs, meaning more delay and more expense in finishing them. All street improvement work is also at a standstill.

The storm sewers are filled to overflowing. The fact that so large an amount of water flows down the hillside during and after a heavy rain storm brought to the attention of the courthouse commission that difficulty was liable to be met with in the construction of the new courthouse, for such construction will necessitate interrupting the flow of water in the present storm sewer down Fifth avenue. The city engineer was asked concerning the matter. It was finally concluded to build a new storm sewer around the site of the new building, the expense to be borne by the county.

The first sewer will be something of a temporary improvement. Four right angles will be necessary in the sewer to get the water around the construction work. Later on, when the courthouse is complete, a new storm sewer will be built entirely around the site of the grouping plan, catching the water on the upper side and conveying it by a roundabout way to the lower side and thence to the lake. Above and below the site the old sewers will be used, of course.

JURY ACQUITS NELS BERGESON

Finds He Did Not Take Livery Rig With Intend to Steal.

The jury in the case of the state against Nels P. Bergeson, accused of grand larceny in the second degree, returned a verdict of not guilty, late yesterday afternoon, after deliberating about five hours.

Bergeson, the state claimed, hired a rig from the Board of Trade Livery barn, last fall, and instead of returning it, he sold it to a man in the West end for $35. Bergeson claimed that he hired the rig for another party and that he was paid $25 for the same. He claimed he did not know whether the rig was ever returned by the other party. Bergeson was defended by Hans B. Haroldson.

MADE QUITE A DIFFERENCE

Range Merchant Had a Logical Explanation for Assessor.

These are the days that the assessors in the cities, villages and towns throughout the county are hearing the "hard luck story." The assessor is usually the last person that the householder or the housewife care to see and, unless caught unawares, the owners of personal property, who would keep their valuation down to the lowest figure, usually have about the same story to tell of the old age and worthlessness of the household effects they possess.

It remained for a range merchant, however, to furnish a new excuse for the reduction of his personal property assessment this year.

When the assessor visited his store and asked how the stock compared with last year, the storekeeper was very emphatic in his statements that the value of the stock was about the same, namely, $3,000.

The assessor took a look around the place and came to the conclusion that $3,000 would be a fair valuation to place on the stock. He gave the merchant a personal property list to be filled out and sworn to before a notary. The storekeeper worked away on the list for some minutes, signed it and returned it to the assessor. On looking it over the assessor was surprised to notice the storekeeper had put the value of the stock at $1,500. He called the attention of the merchant to the discrepancy, but was met with the bland explanation:

"Sure the stock is worth as much as last year, but you see last year I had a partner, and this year I run the the business alone."

Display the Stars and Stripes.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I trust the citizens of Duluth will show their patriotic zeal this coming Decoration day by a bountiful display of American flags on their homes, also by showing due courtesy to the old veterans while they are on parade. The flag of our country should at all times be respected. We cannot show our loyalty in a better way than to have our homes decorated with the American flag. I trust the proper authorities will see to it that no wagons or automobiles will interfere with the old veterans on their line of march. In the Eastern cities the utmost courtesy and respect is shown the old veterans. Let the people of Duluth show they are made of better stuff than last Decoration day. In time of trouble with a foreign foe we are mighty glad to fall back upon the soldiers to protect our flag and country. Then let us show them the respect and courtesy which they so well deserve, by a proper observance of Decoration day. In the theaters, when the orchestra plays "The Star Spangled Banner," the audience should rise to their feet and remain standing until the last note has died away. On Decoration day let the people of Duluth display their patriotism and it will reflect credit upon the city. Let those who respect the American flag show their patriotism on Decoration day and all other national holidays. McLAUGHLIN.

Truth and Quality

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing. Accordingly, it is not claimed that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is the only remedy of known value, but one of many reasons why it is the best of personal and family laxatives is the fact that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts without any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

It acts pleasantly and naturally and truly as a laxative, and its component parts are known to and approved by physicians, as it is free from all objectionable substances. To get its beneficial effects always purchase the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

DEVICE TO DISPEL FOG.

Tests of Invention May be Made in San Francisco Bay.

Washington, May 27.—Senator Perkins of California has brought to the attention of the navy department a fog-dispelling device of one of his constitutents. He requests that the department arrange to give the device a test in San Francisco bay. If the hopes of the inventor are realized the device will dispel fog at a radius of three miles in all directions, by means of a carbide generator. The only noise is a muffled blast at intervals. The device may also prove adaptable aboard ship.

The carbide generator by means of a chemical process forms gases which explode on coming in contact with the air and dispel the fog.

Bad Attack of Dysentery Cured.

'An honored citizen of this town was suffering from a severe attack of dysentery. He told a friend if he could obtain a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, he felt confident of being cured, he having used this remedy in the West. He was told that I kept it in stock and lost no time in obtaining it, and was promptly cured," says M. J. Leach, druggist, of Wolcott, Vt. For sale by all druggists.

LARD CAN OF SOVEREIGNS.

Fortune Found by a Man Moving an Old House.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 27.—While moving a house on the property of the late Miss Mary Ann Kilch, in Glenfield, James Graham, a contractor, discovered an old lard can, which, when opened, was found to be filled with English sovereigns and half sovereigns to the value of $5,000. They had been buried by Miss Kilch, who was suddenly stricken with paralysis about two months ago, and, although she lived several days, was unable to tell where the treasure was buried. The gold was turned over to a sister of the dead woman.

HOSPITAL ATTENDANTS STAMPED ON PATIENT.

Canton, Ohio, May 27.—Coroner Bothwell of Stark county today made known his findings in the case of John Adams, the civil war veteran who died of injuries in the Massillon state hospital, and warrants will be sworn out for the arrest of two hospital attendants.

The coroner says his investigation disclosed the fact that the old man had been stamped upon by attendants. Adams was 70 years old and his home was in Beach City.

MAN TAKES POISON UNDER A MISTAKE.

St. Louis, Mo., May 27.—Wrongly believing himself to be the man for love of whom Mrs. Grace Jackson, a young widow, attempted suicide yesterday by drinking water in which matches had been soaked, L. F. Fenger, a soldier of Jefferson Barracks, committed suicide today in his mother's house with carbolic acid. He drained be bottle of acid in his mother's presence and died soon afterward. Mrs. Jackson is recovering. She declared that while she was on friendly terms with Feager he was not the man she loved.

FAMOUS "SMOKE CASE" IN FINAL STAGE AT HELENA.

Helena, Mont., May 27.—Before Judge Hunt in federal court arguments have begun on what is known as the 'smoke case,' brought by farmers of the Deer Lodge valley to close the Anaconda smelters of the Amalgamated Copper company. The smelter is the largest in the world, and the farmers assert that sulphur and arsenic in the smoke from the stacks is destroying vegetation and killing livestock. Damages of several million dollars are sought.

Practically all the farmers in the historic valley are plaintiffs. The matter was referred to a referee who, for fourteen months, heard testimony, but whose findings were objected to by both sides. The first decision favored the farmers, but a revision advised against closing down the plant, which cost $8,000,000.

Each side has twenty days for argument, and leading legal talent of the Northwest is engaged.

EMPTY CARS CATCH FIRE IN A TUNNEL.

Evreux, France, May 27. — Two empty first class passenger cars attached to the White Star line special, bound from Paris to Cherbourg with passengers for the steamer Teutonic on board, caught fire this afternoon while the train was passing through a tunnel near Evreux. All the passengers for the steamer were seated in the third car, which did not take fire.

The burning cars were detached from the train as soon as it had emerged from the tunnel. The coolness of the railroad men prevented any serious outcome.

CLAY COUNTY CONVENTION.

Call Issued by Chairman Johnston for June 25.

Moorhead, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—County Chairman Julius C. Johnson and Secretary W. E. Ebling have issued the call for the Republican county convention to elect delegates to the state convention. The county convention is set for Thursday, June 25, and this body will name thirteen delegates to attend the state convention, which will convene at the auditorium at St. Paul on Wednesday, July 1, and which will place in nomination a candidate for governor as well as candidates for other state offices.

The primaries for the election of delegates to the county convention will be held on Monday evening, June 22, and the polls will be open from 8 to 9 o'clock.

At this primary election one member of the county committee from each voting precinct will be elected.

JEROME FILLED WITH EMOTION

Continues His Answer to Charges Made by Attorney Pierce.

Elizabethtown, N. Y., May 28.—With an apology, which was also a defense of his having treated somewhat flippantly the charges against his administration of the district attorneyship of New York county, William T. Jerome finished his argument, in his own behalf, here, yesterday, before Commissioner Richard T. Hand. This concluded the hearing, the last day of which opened with the argument of Franklin Pierce, counsel for the complainants. Final adjournment will be taken after Mr. Jerome's closing plea. The commissioner announced that the attorneys might have until June 10 to file supplemental briefs.

Mr. Jerome's plea was an emotional one. Abandoning the air of ridicule, he earnestly went over his own record, in private and political life, and adduced circumstances which he considered explained the animus of the charges against him.

Mr. Pierce argued that Mr. Jerome did not show proper zeal in following up information given the district attorney's office regarding alleged bribery of jurors, and devoted his efforts to protecting the Metropolitan Street railway.

Pierce contended that Jerome's action in the case of George W. Perkins, who was accused of making unlawful contributions from the New York Life company's treasury to the national Republican committee, was sufficient cause for removal. He also argued that Jerome should be removed from office for suggesting to E. R. Thomas that he discharge one attorney and employ another.

Eyes Filled With Tears.

Jerome had announced that he would make no reply, but he changed his mind at the last moment. With his voice trembling and his eyes filled with tears, he said:

"By making a defense I consider that I have demeaned myself personally. Perhaps the bitterest thing that has come to me in my whole life has been to stand up and make a defense to such materials, to such charges, after the life I have lived and the work I have done, and I have only done it because of those who worked for me and voted for me and placed me there, and whose love and respect I have today. This is what prompted me to make my defense, and if I have treated this matter flippantly, it has been because my own keen sense of honor has shown me the humorous side of it, and it has not been because I have lacked respect for you, but it has been because I have hardly dared to treat, from any other standpoint, because, had I done so, I would not have been able to retain my self-possession."

MARQUETTE'S NEW ORDINANCE.

Marquette, Mich., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ordinance providing for the licensing by the city of the saloons, to the tune of $250 a saloon, is drawn in such a way that the saloonmen must meet the issue without much further delay. The ordinance provides that the license fee must be paid June 1, or that on that date each saloon man must give a satisfactory bond that it will be paid by Jan. 1 of the succeeding year.

SLASHES SELF WITH RAZOR.

Plummer, Red Lake County Man, Tries to Take His Life.

Plummer, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lars Enstrom of this place attempted to take his life Wednesday by slashing his throat and wrists with a razor. He is in a very low condition and the gravest doubts are entertained for his recovery.

Enstrom has been quite ill for some time and it is thought that he became disheartened and decided to take his own life. He was seen while attempting the deed, and every effort was made to prevent him, but he succeeded in inflicting wounds from which it is hardly expected that he will recover.

Enstrom has a brother, John Enstrom, living in Crookston, and a sister employed in a millinery store there. They have ben notified of the deed.

SHE ENTERTAINED ROYALLY.

Now She is Confined in a Wisconsin Madhouse.

Madison, Wis., May 28.—Mrs. Hedwig Presber, aged 45 years, wife of a German army officer, said to be military adviser to the emperor of Germany, has been committed from this city to the state hospital for the insane at Mendota. The other day she tried to kill her 12-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Presber came here several years ago. It was said that she was divorced from her husband. She set up a luxuriant establishment here and entertained all the local professors who had gone to school in Germany as well as many notables from that country. She also visited the state house periodically. Her entertainments were the talk of the town because of the extravagance.

Mrs. S. Joyce, 180 Sullivan Street, Claremont, N. H., writes: "About a year ago I bought two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It cured me of a severe case of Kidney trouble of several years' standing. It certainly is a grand, good medicine, and I heartily recommend it." At all druggists.

VERDICT NOT LARGE ENOUGH

William Pinkerton Wants More Than $2,100 for Crushed Hand.

William Pinkerton does not consider $2,100 a sufficient recompense for having his hand crushed.

The jury in the district court returned a sealed verdict in the case of Pinkerton against the Wisconsin Steel company last evening. Pinkerton sued for $20,000 for injuries sustained in the Hawkins mine. The suit was brought through his father as guardian, Theodore Hollister acting as attorney.

The jury returned a verdict for $2,000 for the injuries and $100 for loss of wages. As soon as the verdict was read in court this morning, however, Mr. Hollister made a motion for a new trial on the ground that the damages were inadequate.

UNITARIANS ARE BUSY.

Boston, May 28.—The seventh annual meeting of the Unitarian Historical society, a public meeting of the Massachusetts convention of Congregational ministers, a conference of postoffice mission workers, and the annual meeting of the Meadville Alumni association were held during the forenoon today as part of the program of the fourth day of the American Unitarian association's anniversary week meetings.

ON THE IRON RANGES

VIRGINIA MAY HAVE FAIR TOO

Commercial Club Considers Matter, Appointing Committee.

Virginia, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prompted by a suggestion from L. B. Arnold, land commissioner of the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company, in a letter written to Secretary Hughes, which was read at the meeting of the Commercial club last evening, there is a probability that an agricultural fair association will be organized in St. Louis county with the purpose of holding an annual fair in Virginia. Mr. Arnold stated that he considered the opportunity exceptional because of the fact that Virginia is so favorably situated as the railroad and geographical center of the county as well as lying in close proximity to the best agricultural lands. The idea met with favor from all present at the meeting, and a committee was appointed, consisting of Ransom Metcalfe, Frank Hughes and W. E. Hannaford to confer with Messrs. Arnold and Hostetter and report as soon as possible.

A letter was received from the St. Paul Commercial club extending the courtesies of the club to members of the Virginia organization.

Messrs. R. C. Pickering, A. N. Thompson and D. W. Freeman were appointed as a committee to confer with a committee of the Eveleth Business Men's association regarding a better roadway between the two cities.

The secretary was instructed to prepare a resolution to be forwarded to County Commissioner Mellanis stating that it is the sense of the club that an agricultural school should be established by the county and that the same should be located in easy reach of the range towns.

The question arising whether it would be advisable to have a committee to transact the business pertaining to public affairs, in order to obtain the sentiment of the members, the secretary was instructed to present the question by mail to each member of the club with return postal for reply.

Sites for the proposed federal building were discussed, and the general sentiment seemed to be in facor of the block opposite the Roosevelt school. The committee, formerly appointed on this matter, was instructed to find out whether this property can be purchased and the prices asked by owners.

STOP ORE LOADING.

Shipping Season Seems Further Off Than Was Expected.

Eveleth, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The real opening of the shipping season seems to have been put off a little, as orders were received Tuesday evening at the Fayal and Adams-Spruce offices to stop the loading of ore.

As the result of a defect in the track, an engine at the Adams mine turned completely over Tuesday afternoon and much trouble has been found in getting the locomotive back on the track. Fortunately no one was injured by the turning over of the engine.

John Fabish, craner in the open pit at the McKinley mine, was caught by a hoisting chain a few days ago and injured a couple of fingers. George Nicola, through the falling of a big piece of timber, injured his hand. While working underground at the La Belle mine Albert Kalnula suffered the fracture of his left leg. His case was attended to at the hospital.

New sidewalks are being put in at the McKinley location.

ALDERMAN'S MOTHER DEAD.

Other Deaths and Funerals of Interest to Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alderman Johnson was not present at Tuesday night's council meeting, as he was called away to Tower to attend the funeral of his mother, who died there a few days ago. The deceased was 65 years old and besides her son living here she is survived by her husband, another son and two daughters, Anton E. Johnson, E. Johnson of Tower, Mrs. August Bjorklund of Duluth and Mrs. E. V. Swanson of Wausa, Neb. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon.

The funeral of Mrs. Erick Lund of the Fayal location, who committed suicide by hanging, was held yesterday afternoon from a local church, the interment being at Virginia. A number of Mrs. Lund's friends attended the funeral. She was a sister of John Palm, a local saloonkeeper. She is survived by her husband, a miner, and six small children.

The burial of little Eli, the 6-year-old son of A. Talback of the Spruce location took place yesterday afternoon. The boy died Tuesday afternoon from tuberculosis. Interment was at Virginia.

MOVING OF SPARTA.

Seems to be Conceded Town Will Move Over to Gilbert.

Eveleth, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Business men of Eveleth who have lots and buildings in Gilbert are very glad that the Sparta people will in all probability locate on the forty adjoining the present village. Through some changes at the Iron Range depot at Sparta it has come out that D. M. Mouser until recently the agent, will act as representative for the Steel corporation in trying to get the Sparta property for mining purposes.

The business men of Sparta are very favorable to making the change so as to join with Gilbert as they see that the site proposed some time ago for them by the mining people would be of little value now compared with the Gilbert site. At present the section under consideration is outside the limits of Gilbert, but no doubt will be included if the Sparta people wish it. The section 26 is now being subdivided by a party of surveyors.

The present town of Sparta will not go out of existence entirely as there will be a sufficient number of people near it, to warrant a postoffice and a few stores.

STATE DITCH WORK.

Progress Being Made on Enterprise Near Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The work on the three ditches being dug by the state near here is going on fairly well. The force of men now at work are building a scow sixteen feet wide and seventy feet long that will be used to carry the dredge. Supplies and materials are being brought up the Miller Trunk road, to the place where the digging will begin. A house boat will also be built that will follow the scow in its work. The land through which the ditches are to be dug is almost all swampy and a couple of the ditches which will empty into the White Face river will drain land, which can be used by people, who will do their trading here, as this is the nearest large town.

The dredge will arrive in a short while and the foreman of the work expects to start the real digging about July 20. A good road will be built alongside of the ditch and this will be much appreciated by the adjoining farmers. The ditch work is being done by Ward Bros., of Audubon, Iowa, who also hold the contracts for digging the ditch west of Kelsey and the one near Floodwood.

HIBBING MEMORIAL PLANS.

Hon. Martin Hughes Will Deliver Address of the Day.

Hibbing, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hon. Martin Hughes of this city will deliver the Memorial day address, at the public exercises to be held Saturday, when the people of this city will pay tribute to the soldier dead.

The committee on arrangements consisting of Mrs. Cuppies, Miles Gandsey and J. A. Hazelcamp has secured an appropriation of $50 from the village council to defray the expenses of the day. The band has been secured and there will be a parade beginning at the township hall at 2 o'clock. It is hoped and expected that all the fraternal organizations as well as the various civic bodies of the village will take part in this parade. The school children will gather at the Central school and will join the parade there.

LIBRARY COMMITTEES.

Those Who Will Have Charge of the Hibbing Institution.

Hibbing, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The library board announces the following committees: Book committee, J. H. Nelson, Martin Hughes and Mrs. C. F. Corey; house committee, Mrs. F. C. Jewett, C. E. Young and C. M. Atkinson; finance committee, C. E. Young, Mrs. C. F. Corey and J. H. Nelson.

The board is grading the grounds at the library building. A part of the furniture has arrived and the rest will be here very shortly. It is understood that a librarian will be secured and that the building will probably be opened some time in July.

DULUTH FIRM ENGAGED.

Radcliffe & Price Will Design Hibbing City Hall.

Hibbing, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council last night engaged Radcliffe & Price of Duluth as the architects who will design the new city hall to be built this year. Bids will be invited for the work as soon as the plans and specifications can be prepared and the usual advertisements made.

The proposed building will be three stories in height, covering 75x110 feet on Second avenue and Center street. The first and second floors will be used by the city officials, the fire department, council, municipal court, city jail, etc., and the third floor will be devoted exclusively to the militia company recently organized. The estimated cost of the structure will be nearly $100,000.

COMPANY M. UNIFORMS.

Hibbing Militia to Give Full Dress Parade Thursday Evening.

Hibbing, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The uniforms for Company M have arrived and were distributed last evening among the boys by Capt. Sullivan. The regulation army guns for both out and indoor target practice have also arrived. The first dress parade will be held this evening in order to get ready for the Memorial day parade.

MEMORIAL DAY PLANS IN EVELETH ARE ELABORATE.

Eveleth, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Memorial day plans here are being made on a scale quite elaborate and in keeping with the day that is dedicated to the memory of the nation's heroic dead. It is planned to have a parade that promises to be very fine.

It will be headed by the police department, followed by the Finnish brass band, the veterans of the G. A. R., coming next and behind them Company F of the Minnesota national guard in full uniform, the fire department boys bringing up the rear. The line of march will begin at the city hall and end at the high school, where in the auditorium an elaborately program will be rendered. The program is as follows:

Song, "The Star Spangled Banner;" recitation, "Barbara Frietche," by third grade pupil; song, (selected) by seventh grade pupils; male quartet, (selected) by Messrs. Irwin, Ellsworth, Jenkins and Dungan; address by Martin Hughes of Hibbing; song, "America;" selection by the band.

HIBBING COUPLE WED.

Hibbing, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Mary Breen and John Chine were married yesterday morning in the Catholic church by Rev. Father Gamache. After a honeymoon trip to Chicago the young couple will return and make Hibbing their future home.

RAIN PREVENTS GAME.

Hibbing, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The game scheduled yesterday with Virginia was called off on account of wet grounds. Today's game will be played, weather permitting.

Another crew of men was started on the excavating now being done on the Miles Hotel building this morning in order to start on the actual work as soon as possible. It is hoped to have the building ready for occupancy by Aug. 1.

HIBBING I. O. O. F. ELECTION.

Hibbing, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hibbing Lodge No. 245, Independent Order of Odd Fellows has elected the following officers for the ensuing six months: Edward Polkinghorn, noble grand; M. Rogalsky, vice grand; S. Lekve, secretary; Sani Harris, trustee eighteen months; E. C. Booth, trustee twelve month. The installation of these officers will take place on the first Monday in July.

EIGHTH DISTRICT BANKERS MEETING AT COLERAINE.

Coleraine, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Incoming trains about noon today brought quite a delegation of bankers to attend the meeting of the bankers' group of the Eighth district, to be held here this afternoon. A ball and a banquet at the high school auditorium will wind up the meeting tonight.

UPHOLDS VILLAGE COUNCIL.

Aurora Commercial Club Likes Action on Blind Pigs.

Aurora, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club proposes to stand by the village councila in its warfare upon blind pigs and to that end, last night, adopted the following resolution:

"To the Village Council—Gentlemen: Whereas, the resolution in reference to the blind pig situation and the stand which your honorable body has taken against various brewing companies haa come to the notice of this organization; therefore, be it resolved, that the Commercial club of Aurora, in regular session, expresses its appreciation of your action, and pledges its support to you in future work along this line. We suggest that you stand by your resolution and feel sure that you will have the support of all good citizens."

The club also went on record in advocacy of a splendid Fourth of July celebration, and appointed the following committee to prepare for it: C. W. Corwin, August Knuti, Charles Olson, Carl Erickson, W. J. Rashleigh, P. J. Nicholas, Capt. Hudson, J. T. Vickers and Capt. Sedgewick was appointed to solicit subscriptions to provide a fund to pay the expenses of the proposed celebration. The committee will report in two weeks.

SUPERINTENDENT OF SEWERS

Aurora, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the meeting of the village council, last night, W. J. Rashleigh, superintendent of the St. James' mine, was appointed superintendent of sewer construction. About $20,000 will be expended in this work, the material for which is expected in a few days.

BOOKS AT SEA ARE WELL READ

Library Just Returned After Forty-Two Years Service.

New York, May 28.—No trace of the ship's library, which President Roosevelt presented for the American Seamen's Friend society, in his maiden speech, forty years ago, has been discovered by the officers of that organization today. That this chest of books, which was launched on the clipper ship Rival, by the president in his tenth year, may still be tossing on the high seas, was possible by the return, this week, of a similar library, which was sent on its travels Oct. 17, 1866, two years before the "Roosevelt Athletic Class" sent out theirs. Records of the 25,742 book chests circulated by the society since 1859 show, however, that a life of forty-two years for these volumes in the forecastle is exceptional.

Whether Capt. Uriel Doane, who set sail for San Francisco on Dec. 12, 1868, with the books presented by young Roosevelt, is still alive, or whether ship or crew survive to tell the tale of their fate, cannot be determined here today, because of a fire, years ago, which destroyed all shipping records. Only one report, however, was received by the society on the corresponding library shipped two years before for Galveston, and just now finally returned. On Dec. 16, 1873, this book chest was reported transferred to the Piscataqua, a Gloucester fishing craft. Its return by express from its forty-two years of service, by Capt. Israel Bartlett of this vessel, brings the first tidings of it for thirty-five years.

From 2,000 captains, mates and seamen the American Seamen's Friend society has today exact records of its loan libraries now known to be afloat. These records show that 618,400 volumes have been read by 442,230 seamen, while 129,315 jackies of Uncle Sam's service have read 39,415 books especially sent out in navy bottoms. More than 150 of these chests of books have been reported as in use in the United States Life Saving stations, where 1,327 keepers and surfmen have read their 6,336 volumes. Each library is numbered and registered, and reports of its voyagings made to anyone who may launch and keep it afloat by paying $20.

A weather-beaten case of these books is today awaiting reshipment at the society's headquarters, after having served for two years on board the Peary Arctic club's steamer Roosevelt, in quest of the North Pole. During the long Arctic night, from Oct. 12 to March 6, Lieut. Peary declared every book was read and reread by every member of his crew. These libraries, of which almost 300 have been sent to sea this year, contain forty-three volumes of travel and adventure, biography, reference and religion. A Bible, dictionary, atlas and Pilgrim's Progress are included, with many of the latest and most suitable works of poetry and fiction. Half a dozen of these books are in the Swedish, German and Norwegian tongues. Records of the 100 libraries sent through the society as a memorial to the heir of Aberdeen by the dowager duchess of Aberdeen, in 1870, show that many of the books dedicated to the wandering "George Gordon," who left a dukedom to follow the sea and be swept overboard, still travel the seas, thumbed hard in the fo'castle.

WIND CAUSED WRECK.

Circus Special Wrecked in Rather Peculiar Manner.

Jackson, Minn., May 28.—A special circus train, carrying twenty-six cars and pulled by two engines, was wrecked in an extraordinary manner two miles west of Alpha on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road yesterday. At this time five empty box cars on a siding were started in motion by a terrific wind, and, running into an open switch, struck squarely upon the main track. The empty cars then rushed down the steep hill with the speed of a passenger train and crashed into the approaching circus special. The empty cars were smashed to pieces and the circus train was wrecked and thrown into the ditch.

The engine crews jumped just in time and the circus performers, who were in the last car, were badly shaken up, but none seriously injured. Traffic was badly tied up for the balance of the day.

HOTEL AT LA POINTE.

Chicago Parties Are to Put Up a Summer Establishment.

Ashland, Wis., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two Chicago parties, one of whom is named Fredericks, have purchased about seven acres of land at La Pointe, and will erect a hotel thereon, and a number of cottages. Their land lies on the slope directly opposite the landing, and is beautifully located for the purpose for which it was bought. The backers of the new enterprise, will move up here with their families, and will build this summer. They thoroughly understand the conditions, and realize that summer resorts do not do business twelve months in the year, but propose to make the running of their hotel, and their cottages, only a part of their year's business.

Those who have observed the great demand for suitable places for summer homes, are beginning to wake up to the fact that it will not be long before Madeline Island property will be in great demand. Mackinac Island, in the straits of Mackinaw, is peopled so thickly with resorters during the summer months, that it is no longer a pleasure to go there and prices are being held up so high, that it takes rich men to summer there.

DID NOT HAVE RABIES.

Scare Over Boy Having Hydrophobia Was Rather Premature.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Samuel Kern, 7 years old, who died in Emergency hospital on May 6, supposedly of rabies, was not affected with the disease. Health Commissioner G. A. Bading said that published reports at that time of death by hydrophobia were unfounded.

Allen Ellingston, 75 years old, and a girl named Rupert, since moved to Minnesota, said to have been bitten by the same dog which attacked young Kern on March 22, are in good health.

A quiet investigation of the cases has been conducted by the department. A rabbit inoculated with the serum from the dog still is in good spirits in the health department laboratory. Dr. Bading said that spinal fluid from the spine of the dead boy resulted in a negative culture, showing no indication of the dread germs.

The Rupert girl was traced to Stillwater, Minn., and word has been received that she suffered no ill effects from the bite.

VERDICT FOR $600.

Moorhead, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury in the case of W. A. Wadham against the Fargo & Moorhead Street Railway company, which was on trial here, brought in a verdict for $600 in favor of the plaintiff. This suit grew out of a collision between a street car and Mr. Wadham's milk wagon on Fourth avenue in Fargo, Aug. 1, 1907.

TRAIN RUN BY DEAD ENGINEER

Milwaukee Limited Runs for Miles Without Controlling Hand.

Chicago, May 28.—The overland limited, fastest train of the Milwaukee railroad system, ran Monday night at full speed of nearly sixty miles an hour over interlocking switches and past signals near Byron, Ill., with Engineer Albert Gauvins lying dead on the cab floor and no controlling hand on the throttle. The train, with 100 passengers aboard, narrowly missed a smashup.

Officials of the railroad Tuesday afternoon heard the story as told by Fireman Michael Nash, and discovered that a frightful tragedy had been averted as by a miracle.

The train left Chicago on the journey to San Francisco with Gauvins at the throttle, in apparent good health. The limited makes but two stops between Chicago and the Mississippi river. The first stop at Elgin was made as usual. Near Davis Junction, at Byron, where the train slows down to cross the right of way of another road, Fireman Nash, from his position between the cab and tender, noticed that the train was flying across switches and tracks at top speed, unmindful of adverse set signals.

Just as the limited cleared the tracks of the other road a heavy train thundered across in the rear. Nash leaped back into the engine cab and discovered Gauvins' body lying on the floor. The train was stopped and help called. An examination showed the engineer was stone dead as the result of a hemorrhage of the brain.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

SHERIFF IS IN BAD WAY

Wisconsin Officer is Unnerved by Privation, Loses His Mind.

Arrested in St. Paul in Blue Jeans, Flourishing a Gun.

St. Paul, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sheriff B. J. Beartchue of Lincoln county, Wisconsin, is in the custody of Sheriff Gerber of this, Ramsey county, on a charge of insanity. The Wisconsin sheriff was caught last night while he was dressed in a suit of blue jeans and flourishing a revolver.

Sheriff Beartchue was seen promenading the avenues with a pistol in his hand. The Prior avenue station was notified and an officer was sent out to get him.

The sheriff's condition is supposed to be due to exhaustion while prowling the woods in search of a man wanted for murder. For three days he was lost, and finally he boarded a train. The officer was starved and exhausted, and the conductor refused to let him get off the train. The conductor intended to place him in charge of the police at St. Paul.

BUILDING DROPS, ONE IS KILLED

Eau Claire House Up on Jackscrews Comes Down With Crash.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ira J. Swartz is dead, C. R. Johnson lies seriously injured at the Sacred Heart hospital, with three broken ribs, a bruised kidney and a badly cut and crushed foot and leg; John Monarski and his son, Frank, are quite painfully bruised, as the result of the collapse, yesterday, of George Williams' house, corner of Washington and State streets, under which they were preparing to lay a foundation. Mr. Williams, the owner of the house, was standing beside Mr. Swartz when the house went down, but he escaped injury entirely.

Just what was the immediate cause of the accident is not known for certain, but it is claimed that the supports under the building were not sufficiently stable.

C. R. Johnson, who lies badly injured at the hospital, as a result of the accident, stated that he had been afraid all along that the building would collapse, as, in his opinion, the supports were not strong enough. He said that he was in mortal fear all the time that he worked underneath the building, and that he had told Mr. Williams that it was unsafe to work under the building, but that Mr. Williams replied that he thought it was all right.

SPLIT DRAG HAS SHOWN ITS VALUE

Its Work Has Proved Benefit to Red River Roads.

Thief River Falls, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The heavy rains that the Red River valley and the northern part of Minnesota have experienced during the past three weeks proves the efficacy of the famous splitlog drag. The streets of Thief River Falls and many of the rural highways leading into the city have been consistently worked by these drags for two years.

The results were most apparent and striking this week, just following the heavy rains. Despite the amount of traffic that the streets of this city carries adily, they are in excellent condition, nicely graded and as hard as the average paved street. The country roads that have been dragged for two years are as passable as during the dry summer season, while the roads that have not known the drags are almost impassable. County Commissioner Daniel Shaw, a resident of this city, two years ago induced the city council to manufacture several drags and to donate some of them to adjoining towns on condition that they would use them on their highways. These splitlog drags have been in use ever since and their praises and wisdom of their promoter have been on the tongue of everyone of late. Mr. Shaw, father of the improvement in this part of the valley, still continues his agitation in their favor. Many towns are making them, and the results of their use prove the wisdom of those who first advocated them as road builders in the soft soil of this part of the state.

FARMER MUST BE GOOD.

Put Under Bonds and Promises to Take Jag Cure.

Grand Forks, N. D.—(Special to The Herald.)—As a guarantee against further infractions against the public peace, Thomas Smith, a farmer residing west of Grand Forks was yesterday afternoon placed under a bond of $1,000 by Police Magistrate Church. It is also understood that the defendant is to take a cure for the liquor habit, which seems to be the cause of his troubles.

Smith was arrested Tuesday morning upon the complaint of C. C. Arnold, his son-in-law. It is claimed that Smith had threatened to do bodily injury.

PROMISES ANOTHER DIOCESE.

Bishop Edsall Favors Another Episcopal Bishop in Minnesota.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bishop Edsall of the Episcopal church last night gave his consent to the formation of another diocese of the church in Minnesota with the Episcopal see in St. Paul, on condition that the necessary endowment be secured for the maintenance of the additional bishop.

It will be at least three years before the matter can be finally settled. The matter must be brought before the diocesan council next week. This will be done in a resolution recommending the division of the diocese. This will be referred to a committee and probably will not be acted upon until next year.

BARKIS IS WILLIN'.

Governor Davidson Ready to Serve People Another Term.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 28.—James O. Davidson has declared himself a candidate for re-election to the governorship of Wisconsin. He says: "Should the people elect me for another term, it will be my endeavor to serve with fidelity. If elected it shall be my purpose to safeguard the rights of every citizen, to enforce economy in public affairs and to execute the laws of the state without prejudice or partiality."

SOO ROAD WINS OUT.

Wisconsin Commission Holds It Can Enter Superior on Grade.

Madison, Wis., May 28.—The Soo line and its subsidiary company, the Wisconsin & Minnesota Northern, will enter Superior at grade, according to a thirty-page opinion made by the railroad rate commission yesterday. The entire expense of the construction of crossings is placed upon the road seeking the crossings, and the subsequent expense of maintaining and operating crossings will be divided equally between the roads.

Some time ago the two roads made an application to build into the city of Superior. The project was bitterly opposed by the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Omaha roads, which sought to have the Soo enter by a subway.

The decision today is a big victory for the Soo and insures its immediate construction into Superior. The commission added that it tried to find a way to place all roads in that vicinity underground, but that the topography of the country prevented.

TORNADO DOES DAMAGE.

Brewery, Depot and Church Among Buildings Injured.

Ellsworth, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—A tornado struck Ellsworth at midnight Tuesday, which destroyed the Eagle Brewing company's barn, removed the roof of the Rock Island roundhouse, tore down the steeple of the Congregational church, broke shade trees and windows and overthrew many small buildings. The large farm barns of Robert Hickman, Matt Grady and Peter Martin were completely wrecked and struck therein was injured. The storm appears to have been general and many farmers have suffered minor losses. It is impossible as yet to state the extent of damage to growing crops.

INDIAN'S GRAVE OPENED.

Two North Dakota Youths Interfere With Brave's Rest.

Macroon, N. D., May 28.—J. Godding and George Gipson exhumed an Indian who had evidently been buried some years. The grave was marked by a slight mound of stones, and the peculiar shape of it caused the boys to surmise that poor Lo had found his last resting place there. After digging three or four feet they found the skeleton, hedged in between two stakes and surrounded by a pelt similar to that of a deer or moose. Among the articles buried with the cadaver were a bitless bridle, a huge knife, steel arrow heads and countless beads, of various colors. The symbolism would indicate that he was a brave of high rank, as it would be an insult to bury a chief with a bridle having a bit attached. The absence of the bit and the presence of the two stakes clearly mark the grave as that of a chief of the Gontats, a little band who segregated themselves from the Owatonnas many years ago and came to this part of the West.

HE FOUGHT WITH RENO.

Member of Famous Indian Expedition Visits Old Scenes.

Bismarck, N. D., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gen. E. S. Godfrey, retired, well known to many old-timers here as one of the gallant officers of the Seventh cavalry, who in 1876 left old Fort Abraham Lincoln with the Custer expedition, that resulted in the massacre of a portion of the command on the Little Big Horn, is visiting the scenes of those early days. He was the guest of Maj. Steadman yesterday and visited the site of old Fort Lincoln, across the Missouri, five miles below Bismarck. Quite a number of the members of the old Seventh cavalry are still residents of Bismarck and Mandan and will be glad to meet their old officer. Gen. Godfrey was with Reno's division at the time of the Custer massacre, and to his bravery, possibly more than any one else, is due the credit for saving Reno's command. Gen. Godfrey enlisted in an Ohio regiment in 1861, served in the Civil war, went to West Point, and until last year, when he retired, was in active and continuous service from 1864. The general is well preserved and has the appearance of a man in the fifties, instead of the sixties.

AUTO CAUSES RUNAWAY.

Two People Thrown From Conveyance and Injured.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a runaway accident which occurred at St. Augusta, Mrs. Theodore Ritter of Avon and Frank Beumer of St. Augusta were seriously injured Monday afternoon.

The horses were frightened by an automobile. Mrs. Ritter sustained a badly injured limb besides body bruises. Frank Beumer is laid up at his home with his kneecap badly wrenched.

The occupants of the automobile were Harold Vance, E. J. O'Brien, S. G. Harris, W. F. Winchester and Paul Davis. The machine came to this city to make arrangements for the endurance run which is to be made to St. Cloud next week. The number of the machine is 1030.

The residents of St. Augusta are very much incensed over the accident and are prepared to make the owner of the machine settle the case. If this is not done the probabilities are that an action will be brought.

SALOONKEEPERS HARD HIT.

Fines Aggregating $41,000 Imposed by Houghton County Judge.

Houghton, Mich., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Streeter has imposed fines aggregating $41,000 on various saloonkeepers who pleaded guilty to violating the liquor laws.

The most severe fine was administered John Steinbach, who sold liquor on a farm of his in Adams township, without the formality of securing a red card from the county treasurer. He was fined $200 or the alternative of going to jail for ninety days.

Disposition was made of the following cases: Nikolai Tyynismaa, assault with intent to murder, continued until next term of court; Edward Dolan changed plea of not guilty of burglary to guilty of larceny under $25. The court took the case under advisement until next Tuesday; Elcho Ero pleaded guilty to the charge of concealing the death of a child and sentence was suspended until the end of the term; Dominick Picchiottino, who pleaded guilty to keeping his saloon open on Sunday, had his sentence suspended until the September term.

For keeping their saloons open on Sunday Steve Kasun, Henry Wiolle and John Dapperi were sentenced $50 each and Joseph Stukel $50 and $10 costs on one similar offense and $150 and $25 costs for a second offense. Gust de Vecchio was fined $50 and costs of $10 for keeping his saloon open on Sunday, and John Torreano $50 and costs of $10 for keeping his saloon open after hours, had his sentence suspended. Edward Dunn, saloon open on Sunday, paid a fine of $50 while Dominick Picchiottino, a second offense, was sentenced to pay $50 and costs of $20.

MILWAUKEE'S EXTENSION GROWS IN POPULARITY.

Aberdeen, S. D., May 28.—On account of the immense amount of traffic on the Milwaukee extension, plans have been practically completed for the establishment in this city of hadquarters for the road's dining car service. Inspector Wanner of Chicago made a trip over the extension and has recommended that there be no delay in building the necessary quarters, which will include a large building for cars and another for the storage of supplies.

Travel over the new road, which is now being operated on a fast schedule as far as Miles City, Mont., is increasing every day and the Milwaukee finds it necessary to operate dining cars on all trains to and from the Twin Cities to the West. The advent of the railroad is rapidly changing the appearance of the country west of the Missouri from prairie and ranges to settled communities.

HART SUSPENSION STANDS, REHEARING HAS BEEN DENIED

St. Paul, Minn., May 28.—The special supreme court, which decided the disbarment case against Capt. F. B. Hart of Minneapolis, has denied the application of Capt. Hart and the State Bar association for a rehearing. Both sides were dissatisfied with the disbarment of Capt. Hart for six months.

HOOSIER TAKEN IN.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. N. Saul, a transient on his way from Indiana to Aberdeen, S. D., loaned a stranger $22 yesterday to help him pay an imaginary freight bill. Saul liked the looks of the stranger and thought he was honest. Now he and the police are looking for the stranger and the money.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D.—Clarence S. Cooper, the man charged with forgery of a check at Wheatland in 1904, after a preliminary hearing was bound over to the district court with bail fixed at $3,000. The case will not come up for trial until this fall and this bail was believed to be necessary under the circumstances.

Dickinson, N. D.—Many here are for Capt. J. L. Osborn as a candidate for railroad commissioner on the Republican ticket. Capt. Osborne, a Philippine veteran and still a prominent member of the state militia, with a large acquaintance over the state, being at the head of Company K, was among the first in the field for the office mentioned.

Fargo, N. D.—Word to friends in the city from Mrs. Greer, from Seattle, Nev., conveys the information of the death of Col. Levi Greer at that place, May 29. Col. Greer will be remembered by old timers here as the superintendent of the Southwestern railway in the early days, and he and Mrs. Greer have many friends in Fargo who will regret to hear of his demise.

Bismarck, N. D.—Frank Kunz is contemplating the erection of two houses on his lot at the corner of Second street and Avenue A for renting purposes.

Fargo, N. D.—At a meeting of the Phosterion Literary society of the high school the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Paul Ware; vice president, Homer Dixon; secretary, Margaret Rusch; treasurer, Will Magill; program committee, Harriett Hunt, Erva Burdick, Margaret Hollister and Margaret Rusch.

Grand Forks, N. D.—S. S. Titus was successful in landing a seventeen-pound muskallonge while at Bemidji. The fish was captured with an ordinary hook and line, the Grand Forks banker-fisherman bringing the fish out after a hard fight.

Grafton, N. D.—A. G. Jackson, one of the pioneer settlers of Grafton, died in the home for incurables at Portage La Prairie, Man. The deceased had been ailing for a number of years with a complication of diseases, and death only came as a relief to his sufferings. He was born in Sweden and was about 65 years old.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

St. Cloud—After rejecting all the bids but one for the work of building the two Stearns county state roads, the board of county commissioners decided to take a road building outfit on trial from the Austin-Western company of Chicago. The outfit includes a ten-ton motor roller, a grader and six dump wagons.

Aitkin—Alfred Delborg, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Delborg, died at the home of his parents Thursday and was buried in the Mud Lake cemetery Sunday. He was the young man who was at the Walker sanitorium some time ago for treatment for tuberculosis.

St. Paul—The Omaha railway has given notice of appeal to the United States supreme court from the decision of the United States circuit court of appeals in sustaining the infliction of a $20,000 fine for rebating upon the railway company.

Winona—Word was received here Tuesday of the death at Athens, Pa., of L. C. Porter, for a third of a century one of the leading business and financial men of this city. He drove overland from New York to Winona in 1856 and soon after engaged in the lumber business and was then engaged in various enterprises, and was the first president of the First National bank here.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet—Capt. James Hoatson returned to Calumet Tuesday from Europe where he and his wife have been traveling for the past year. He intended to visit Bisbee before his return but subsequently made other plans.

Lake Linden—Ransom J. Taylor has purchased the Lake Linden hotel, and will run it as an up-to-date hostelry. The property was formerly owned by E. R. Cox and later by Frank Kaiser. Mr. Taylor will remodel the premises.

Calumet—Rees LaRoy, manager of the Bijou theater, was married Monday afternoon to Miss Sigma Larson, head waitress at the Unique restaurant. The wedding was solemnized in the Swedish M. E. parsonage, Rev. K. Selin officiating.

Houghton—Most of the Houghton merchants have reached a decision whereby they will remain closed all day Saturday in observance of Memorial day. It is believed the observance will be a general one.

Calumet—The funeral of the late Mrs. Isaac Isaacson, who died Saturday at Oskar, was held Wednesday afternoon, at the Calumet Norwegian church with interment in the Calumet cemetery.

Red Jacket—President F. H. Shumaker of the village of Red Jacket will call a day at the home of Jane 1, at which time plans for the Fourth of July celebration will be outlined. Committees will be named to solicit funds.

Munising—The death of Johanes Kenney, aged 6 years, 4 months and 18 days, child of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kenney, occurred here last Sunday. The death was due to diphtheria.

Marquette—John Gingras of this city and Miss Lucy Clement of Michigamme, both popular French young peole were united in marriage at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning. The ceremony was performed at St. Agnes' church at Michigamme, Rev. Father Hasenberg officiating, and was witnessed by a large company of the friends of the happy couple.

Menominie—William Holmes, the pioneer logger, has returned after a winter in the South. Mr. Holmes has recovered almost completely from his illness of last year and is able to attend to his business affairs. The Holmes residence and grounds have been greatly improved during the last several months.

Negaunee—Vegetation has been given an excellent start as a result of the showers the past few days. Most of the farmers have their grain crops in and a number of them have already planted a portion of their potatoes.

Ishpeming—Mrs. Catherine Nugent, one of the city's pioneer residents died Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary McGrath. Although the deceased had not been in the best of health and had been feeble of late her death came rather unexpectedly. Mrs. Nugent came to Ishpeming thirty-six years ago. She was about 80 years of age and is survived by five sons and daughters.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Milwaukee—The sixtieth anniversary of the admission of Wisconsin into the Union will be celebrated Friday evening at the hotel Pfister. The occasion will be marked by an address by Hempstead Washburn, nephew of Former Governor C. C. Washburn. The dinner will be given by the Wisconsin society, Sons of the American Revolution.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

WILL BURN GASOLINE

Baseball Diamond Will be Dried for the Opening Game.

Teams Arrive in City—Last Brandon Game Protested.

The Duluth and Winnipeg baseball teams, accompanied by President J. M. Lamb of the Northern league, arrived from the North this morning and this afternoon they go on for the first game at Athletic park. The rain let up yesterday afternoon and this morning the sun came out through the clouds and gave promise of a fine day. Fifty gallons of gasoline were sent to the ball park this morning and the infield will be literally burned up, so that it should be dry and firm by the time the game goes on this afternoon.

Manager Morrow was nothing, if not optimistic. He is well satisfied with the record of his team in the north. It has won more than one-third of its games, which is considered a fair record for a team on its first trip away from home. The pitchers are working well, the infield is lightning fast and, with a slight improvement in the hitting, the team will win a majority of its games.

It develops that the last game of the series at Brandon was protested and it will very likely be thrown out, or awarded to Duluth. The protest has been taken up with President Lamb and it will be decided within a week or so. The protest is on an error of rules by the umpire and not on an error of judgment, so that it will probably stick.

In the sixth inning Koepping was on second and Brandt on first base, when Voss hit over first base. Koepping scooted for home and Brandt for second, Voss going to first base. Umpire Sweeney declared the ball an infield fly, although it was back of the infield and nobody was near it. That, however, was an error of judgment and the protest could not be made on that score. To top it off, however, he chased Koepping back to second base and Brandt to first.

The infield fly rule is designed to protect base runners. Infielders, in the old days, made a practice of dropping infield flies when men were on bases, and doubling them up, as they could not leave their bases while the ball was in the air. Under the infield fly rule, they are not forced as was the case formerly. They are not compelled, however, to hold their bags, and if, on a clean hit, they run the bases and score, the rules give the umpire no authority to send them back. The game went to Brandon by a 4 to 3 score, but the Canadians are not likely to hold it.

Eddie Herr claims to have filled in the places of his stars of last season very well. His pitching staff is strong and his men have been hitting the ball nicely. He is out for another penant and thinks that the team he has at present, with the possible addition of First Baseman Luderus, will go through the season.

NO FALL IN TWO HOURS

Young Miller and Otto Sutter in Grueling Wrestling Match.

Neither Has Advantage and Referee Calls Bout a Draw.

At the Temple roller rink last night, Young Miller of St. Paul and Otto Sutter of Cleveland, Ohio, went two hours and ten minutes without a fall. At the end of that time, Referee Tom Madden, with the approval of the crowd, called it a draw. The match was for the welterweight championship of the United States, of which Sutter was claimant, and he continues to hold his title.

The men might have wrestled all night without a fall. Certainly the game in this section of the country has never seen two more evenly matched men. After over two hours of wrestling, nobobdy could give either man any advantage. In strength, science and knowledge of the game, they appeared to be about as equal as any two men could be. On their feet or on the mat, they were about equal in every respect and with such a combination only accidents could bring falls.

The men were perfectly willing to mix it. They weren't on their feet any more than fifteen minutes during the whole match. They squirmed around on the mat, first one on top and then the other, and the offensive work of both was ineffective. When Miller took the aggressive, Sutter went on the defensive and when Sutter was on top, Miller defied all efforts to get shoulder-pinning holds.

There were some pretty exhibitions of speed and mat trickery, but the earmarks of the usual wrestling match the fancy breaking of hammerlocks, half-nelsons scissors around the body, and other tricks of the exhibition game, were missing. It was work from start to finish, and each man played the game for the best results he could obtain.

Sutter undoubtedly has had more experience on the mat than the St. Paul boy. He has a few little tricks of worrying, that, while they weren't particularly rough for the mat game, are annoying to his opponent and likely to wear him down. While Miller worked almost altogether on Sutter's legs, using his arms, Sutter had a double end action that was good. He worked on Miller's upper body with his arms and at the same time kept Miller busy taking care of his legs, which were likely to get worked into a scissors.

There was only one near-fall in the entire match, Sutter throwing Miller into a bridge after about an hour and forty-five minutes of wrestling. It was off the mat, however, and he couldn't complete it.

At the end of two hours, Referee Madden asked the crowd if he should call it a draw and there were objections. After going nearly fifteen minutes longer, the crowd seemed satisfied and both men were tired, so the match was called a draw. Only about 250 people attended the match, but it was only a beginner, and the enthusiasm showed promises well for the future.

DULUTH vs. WINNIPEG

Ladies Free Tomorrow, Ladies' Day

Today is the big day for the baseball bug. The Maroons and White Sox are tearing into each other out at Athletic park, the bleacherite is smiling contentedly as he tugs at his burning rope and the small boy with the student's lamp is in the ecstacies of ethereal bliss. For there's nothing like baseball to tone up drooping spirits—providing the home team wins.

The fan might do well to observe a couple of rules of conduct at the games. Don't knock the players or the umpire. It might be boiled down to one rule—Don't knock. The hammering fan is the biggest pest with which the true lover of baseball must endure, if he is to attend the games at all. The man, who, in rancuous voice, greets every misplay by jeers and tries to show more knowledge of baseball than the rule makers ever attempted to know, is a bore forever. The true fan knows that no man is infallible. Ball players will make errors and umpires will display faulty judgment just as long as baseball endures. If they didn't, nobody would care a rap for the game.

The knocking fan doesn't take that into consideration. He wants perfect play and he, himself, doesn't know what perfect play is. If every man, who stepped to the plate made a hit, nobody would ever be put out and if every fielder were perfect, there would be no hits. The true fan loves the game for itself alone, enjoys the situations created by misplays as well as by perfect plays and when it's all over is glad that the best team won.

Catcher Sheehan of the Fargo Brownies had an experience in the last game of Saturday's double-header at Winnipeg that he will not forget when the batting averages come out. In the first half of the eighth inning, with the bases thickly populated, Sheehan clouted one far out of the lot and merrily skipped around the bases. But as he crossed the plate, the game was called on account of an agreement setting 8 o'clock as the quitting time. The score reverted to the last half of the seventh inning and Mr. Sheehan's home run was wiped from the slate. Crool, crool fate.

The announcements of the intentions of of a group of Houghton baseball magnates to blacklist the Northern league is treated seriously in the Copper country press. One paper says that Duluth, Winnipeg and Brandon will lose all claim to the players they signed this season on account of having taken Fargo into the fold. Excuse Duluth fans while they chase around a corner and audibly smile.

FARGO WILL SETTLE UP

Copper Country People Cannot Make Trouble, Says Lamb.

President of League Optimistic for the Present Season.

There is no likelihood of the Copper country ex-baseball magnates making trouble for the Northern league on account of the claim against Fargo for mileage and other matters, dating from two years ago, according to President Lamb, who is in Duluth to attend the opening of the season. Lamb expects that the matter will be amicably adjusted and the claim will be satisfied.

"It is all up to the national commission," he said this morning. "The claim of the Copper country people is exorbitant and Fargo protests the greater portion of it. They are willing to settle the $200 claim for about $72 and have written the facts to Secretary Farrell and put it up to him. The Copper country people demand the full amount and they have no right to it. I have notified Secretary Farrell that Fargo is willing to abide by his decision and settle as he dictates, so there is no danger of the matter going farther than that."

As for the present season, Mr. Lamb sees nothing but the greatest success for the Northern league. He says it will be the best season in the history of the organization.

"The attendance at Winnipeg this year has been from 25 to 30 per cent greater than in any season since the game was introduced there," he said. "Of course, we were knocked out of the Victoria day receipts and that was pretty had on Fargo, but the enthusiasm is such that, on the whole season, we will certainly not suffer.

"The league this year is infinitely superior to that of last season. Compare Brandon and Houghton, from a baseball viewpoint, and the Copper country town certainly suffers. The paid admissions at Brandon this year have been greater to date, with but ten games, than Houghton's attendance for the entire season last year. Brandon will support its team handsomely and Winnipeg will do the same.

"From the game to date, I should say the teams are pretty evenly matched and the race will be no runaway affair. In the two games at Winnipeg, Fargo showed much greater strength than at Brandon and the possibility that it will be the weak sister has vanished."

INTERNATIONAL AUTO RACE.

Automobile Club of America Will Hold Annual Event.

New York, May 28.—The Board of governors of the Automobile club of America yesterday decided to hold an international road race next fall for a cup, to be known as the "Grand Prize of the Automobile Club of America" to be competed for annually under the auspices of the Automobile Club of America. The contest will be governed by the rules of the international association of recognized automobile clubs adopted in Ostend last July. The governors further decided to hold each year an international stock car race for the Briar Cliff trophy, a long distance touring car contest, and a hill climbing contest.

The action of the board of governors of the Automobile Club of America in organizing racing events to be run under their own direction followed hard on the decision of the American Automobile association Tuesday that hereafter all racing events must be held under the auspices of the organization. The Automobile Club of America, recently withdrew from membership in the American Automobile association.

ANNUAL MEETING OF BOAT CLUB

Election of Officers Will be Followed by a Smoker.

The annual meeting of the Duluth Boat club will be held this evening at the clubhouse on Park Point, and the clubhouse will be formally opened for the season.

The business session will be of but brief duration. The annual election of officers will be held and the reports of the work done during the preceding year submitted. If the present officers will accept a reelection, it is not likely that any changes will be made. The members of the club are delighted with the growth of the last two years, and at the many improvements that have been made. The officers have plans for another branch at Pike lake, and the extensive improvements at the main house are not yet completed. The members are anxious that these plans should be carried out in full, and no talk of any opposition to the present officers has been heard.

Following the business session, there will be a smoker and a program.

The annual meeting was postponed until this time in order that the attendance might be larger. It is usually held in midwinter when there is little interest in boat club affairs, but this year the directors were anxious for a full attendance of the members, and they therefore postponed the meeting and the election until the opening of the clubhouse.

TEN KILLED BY TORNADO

Alfalfa County, Okla., Visited by Terrible Wind Storm.

Wichita, Kas., May 28.—Ten dead, twelve injured, several fatally, hundreds of cattle killed, a vast acreage of crops destroyed, ruin and desolation are the result of a series of tornadoes that visited Alfalfa county, Okla., Tuesday night.

The dead: Guy Hutchinson and baby; Peter Rudy, wife and two children; Mrs. Elliott; Mrs. Parker and baby, R. C. Atchison.

The injured: Fred Parker, fatally; R. F. Cox, fatally; Mrs. Frank Ice and baby, fatally; William S. McDonald, Della W. McDonald, Mrs. Waters, Edith Cox, Ethel Cox and Ada Cox.

The McDonald family, living near Ingersoll, sought safety in a cyclone cellar. This was unroofed and the occupants buried under debris. The baby of Mrs. Hutchinson has not been found. It is believed the wind carried it some distance or that it is buried in the ruins of the home.

SAPOLIO

IS ACCUSED OF MURDER

William Schreiber is Bound Over for Killing Massapust.

Defendant is Already Under Indictment for Forgery.

William Schreiber, who was indicted by the last grand jury for forgery, will have to face a more serious charge, that of the murder of Frank Massapust, a settler residing on a homestead near Tower.

Schreiber, who has been held in the county jail awaiting trial on the forgery charge, was taken before the municipal court this morning on the warrant charging him with murder. He waived examination and was bound over to the September grand jury on the charge of murder in the first degree.

According to the information in the hands of the state, Schreiber is alleged to have stolen a $300 certificate of deposit from Massapust about the first of the month, and then killed the homesteader and set fire to the shack in the attempt to conceal evidence of the theft and murder.

Schreiber is alleged to have attempted to collect on the certificate of deposit at Ashland, where he was apprehended and brought back.

When the last grand jury met, it is claimed, the state did not have its evidence ready to present relative to the murder charge, but had sufficient information as to the forgery charge to warrant the grand jury in presenting an indictment that would hold Schreiber in custody long enough for the authorities to collect evidence as to the suspected murder.

SEVERAL ROADS ARE DAMAGED

Reports of Washouts Received by Board of Public Works.

Several reports were received by the board of public works yesterday and today of damage done to roadways by the recent heavy rains. The road to Fond du Lac was washed out in several places and will need extensive repairs in spots.

Eleventh avenue east was damaged by a torrent of water flowing down the middle of the street. There is no storm sewer on Eleventh avenue, but property owners will soon petition for one, it is understood. Such a sewer is badly needed. There was talk of turning the water through the storm sewer in Courtland park, but it was found the sewer there was not large enough for the purpose.

Washouts were also reported on the Snively road. Several other roads, streets and avenues were damaged by the water in a lesser degree.

LOOK FOR LOST SON.

Carlton H. Green Mysteriously Disappears From Home at Detroit.

Carlton H. Green, son of E. C. Greene of 97 Pallister avenue, Detroit, Mich., left home Oct. 14 last for the Central high school, and since then nothing has been heard of him. It is thought that possibly he came to Duluth, and an effort is being made to locate him here. He is described as being 18 years of age, 5 feet 9 inches in height and weighing about 118 pounds, with sandy hair, light complexion, blue eyes, slightly dimpled chin and a slight muscular twitch of the eyes and face. He is of slender build. Three hundred dollars reward is offered for information which will lead to his return home.

OFFICERS FOUND NOTHING TO RAID

Gamblers at French Lick Were Warned of Their Coming.

French Lick, Ind., May 28.—Gambling places here were raided last night by officers, acting under orders of Governor Hanly and Attorney General Bingham. A number of police in plain clothes accompanied by several well-known citizens, appeared at the Casino and other places where gambling has flourished and were allowed to enter, after threatening to break down the doors. A warning had been wired from Indianapolis that the officers were coming, and yesterday afternoon it was announced at the gambling places that all business would cease. The paraphernalia was hauled away from the buildings in wagons, and when the raid was made last night nothing was found.

BODY OF GEN. CLINTON IS LYING IN STATE.

New York, May 28.—Escorted by 2,000 soldiers, sailors and police, the body of Maj. Gen. Clinton of the Continental army, first governor of the state of New York and twice vice president of the United States, which arrived in this city today, was taken in funeral procession up Broadway and placed in state in the rotunda of the city hall. On Friday the body will be escorted, with more honors, to Kingston, N. Y., where, in 1777, Gen. Clinton took his oath of office of governor, and on Memorial day it will be buried in the first Dutch cemetery.

FORMER MANITOWOC MAN.

Theory About Condition of Lincoln County Sheriff.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 28.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Manitowoc, Wis., says:

Sheriff Joseph S. Bartelme of Lincoln county, Wis., who was arrested in St. Paul last night on a charge of insanity, is a former Manitowoc man. He was elected sheriff of Lincoln county a year ago. Last Thursday he was called to Tomahawk from Merrill by a message stating that a man wanted by the Merrill authorities for murder had been arrested in that city. Upon arriving at Tomahawk the prisoner was turned over to the officer and he left the jail to return by train. Since that time nothing had been heard from him. It is thought that Bartelme's prisoner made his escape from the officer from the train between Tomahawk and Merrill in the night and that in giving chase Bartelme was led into the woods and could not find his way out for several days.

FEIGNED ILLNESS.

West Duluth Man Did Not Want to Serve Jail Sentence.

Appeals to his wife for forgiveness failing, Hiski Ritinen attempted to escape a jail sentence by feigning illness, and crying out that he was dying, he forced the West Duluth police officers to summon a physician during the early morning hours.

Ritinen was arrested yesterday on the charge of threatening to kill his wife. She claimed that he demanded money with which to purchase whisky and when she refused to turn over part of the income from the boarding house she kept, he threatened her life.

He was tried before Justice Flack last evening and failing to give a bond of $50 to keep the peace, was sentenced to jail for sixty days.

At the West Duluth police station he begged his wife for forgiveness, and tried to embrace her. She refused to become reconciled, however. During the night he began weeping and moaning and told the officers he was dying. The physician who was summoned examined him and stated that he was feigning illness. He was sent to the county jail this morning, to begin his sentence.

SOCIALISM SPREADING

Russia Saturated With the Doctrine, Says Duluth Visitor.

Country is Awake Although Conservatives Are Now in Power.

"Russia is saturated with socialism," said William Sarwe, a Swedish missionary stationed at Tiflis, who is in Duluth today, a guest of F. O. Kling of the First Swedish Mission church.

Mr. Sarwe has been a missionary in Russia for twenty-six years, and is visiting America for the first time, during a short leave of absence. He cannot speak English, but converses fluently in German and Russian.

"The socialistic sentiment has grown rapidly since the czar's last proclamation," he said this morning, speaking in German. "Apparently the people have just got a taste of freedom and they want more.

"Russia is awake. The conservatives are now in power, but that is a good thing. The people were becoming too turbulent, and a reaction was necessary. The czar's influence at the present time is being asserted for the good of Russia, and the country needs a firm hand at the helm. The socialistic movement is spreading with great rapidity. It is furthered by the students from the colleges who go out among the people and preach the doctrines. The peasants are extremely ignorant, as a rule, although generous and kind hearted, but they seem to pick up the rudiments of the socialistic doctrine, and are able to discuss it freely.

"Russia is an immensely wealthy country, very rich in natural resources, but it has been kept down by the government. The recent war and the late revolution have pauperized the people.

"But the country is awake. I do not believe that it will go backward. The reactionary movement is temporary, and a good thing, and I think it is the beginning of a sane and conservative movement toward better things."

Mr. Sarwe is a friend of Tolstoi, having visited the great novelist in his home. "Tolstoi has left his stamp upon Russia," he said.

STEENERSON AWAITS

Confirmation of Report That Body of Son Has Been Found.

Washington, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—No official confirmation of the finding of the body of young Steenerson has been received at the navy department. A naval tug has been sent to the point where the body, thought to be that of Steenerson, was found, and the remains will be brought to the naval station at Newport for identification. Meanwhile Representative Steenerson remains in Washington, awaiting confirmation of the report that his son's body has actually been recovered.

MURDER AND SUICIDE OCCURS IN MAINE CITY.

Bangor, Me., May 28.—The bodies of R. G. Keith and Mrs. Lizzie Ready were found today in the woman's home here today. It is thought Keith shot and killed the woman and himself some time last night.

Keith and Mrs. Ready were each about 45 years of age and each leaves several children. It is believed that the tragedy was due to Mrs. Ready's refusal to marry Keith, a difference in religious faith proving a barrier.

SAY MURDER WAS BRUTAL

Witnesses in Mattich Trial Claim Death Was Planned.

Allege Defendant Shot Victim as He Was Running Away.

The trial of Eli Mattich for the murder of Rodi Donjonovich, in a boarding house fight near the Croxton mine about six weeks ago, is proceeding somewhat slowly in Judge Ensign's room for the reason that all the testimony is being taken through an interpreter.

The jury was completed yesterday afternoon and a little of the state's evidence was introduced before the court adjourned last evening. Two witnesses were heard this morning.

The testimony, thus far introduced by the state, tends to show that Eli Mattich and David Mattich, who is also held on the murder charge, were friends and that they had some sort of a grudge toward Donjonovich. Witnesses claimed that on the night of shooting they heard Eli and David make threats as to what they were going to do to Donjonovich and saw the two men flourishing revolvers. The witnesses claimed that after Donjonovich entered the boarding house he was assaulted by Eli and David, that David hit Donjonovich on the side of the head with a revolver, after which Eli commanded him to throw up his hands, pointing a revolver at him to enforce the demand.

Donjonovich, according to the testimony, put up his hands and then turned around and started to get away. It was testified that Donjonovich had gone but a few steps when Eli Mattich took deliberate aim and fired at him, the bullet striking Donjonovich near the base of the spine and perforating his intestines. The injured man was taken to the hospital at Hibbing, where he died a few days after the shooting affray.

Some of the witnesses in the case, Montenegrins in nationality, have been held at the county jail for several days, as they threatened to leave the country before the trial.

Capt. C. C. Teare is defending Eli Mattich.

The penalty for murder in the first degree is death by hanging in case of conviction, unless the trial judge certifies that there were extenuating circumstances and commutes the sentence to life imprisonment.

Following are the jurors in the Mattich trial: William H. Burris, Fred E. Colby, William Dunn, Jr., D. A. McLeod, A. W. Clark, Sr., S. M. Lester, A. E. Hathaway, G. F. Amborn, W. R. Edwards, W. D. Newcomb, Charles Bork, Christian Mickelson.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

A special feature of the summer term of the Duluth Art school will be the children's classes, which have been greatly appreciated during the spring term, but through lack of time during the school months, many children were not sent for the opening weeks. Many mothers have been planning to have their children attend the summer classes, and arrangements have been made for two classes a week. Miss Jessie Case, who has recently returned to Duluth after completing a two-years' course at Pratt Institute, has been engaged as assistant in the children's work, and this department promises to be one of the most interesting of the school.

An out-of-door sketching class is another feature which will find favor with many. Duluth is rich in scenery that makes a great appeal to the artist, and with the wealth of natural material close at hand, this class will doubtless be one of the most popular of the summer.

The academic work will be continued and classes in the theory and practice of design will be organized for work in basketry, leather and metal work, stenciling and wood block printing.

In order that classes may be organized as soon as possible, those who are planning to enroll for the summer term are requested to send their names to the school, or to Miss Poirier, at the library as soon as possible.

REDECORATED ROOMS

Will Be Scene of Reception to Boat Club Members.

The Boat club members, who will be entertained at a smoker this evening, at the main clubhouse, will be received in the newly-decorated main rooms. The reception room and the women's reception rooms have been remodeled and redecorated. The emblem of the club, a design in which a pennant and sea gull are combined, has been used with most pleasing effect throughout the decorations. The curtains of linen bear the conventionalized design, stenciled in the Boat club blue. Japanese prints of landscape views are the only pictures hung in the reception rooms. Miss Gertrude Carey has designed the decorations and furnishings for the rooms and the effect is delightful.

The first public inspection will be held this evening, when the members will enjoy the opening smoker of the year.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Y. W. C. A. Gymnasium Class Entertain for Miss Pullar.

Miss Frances Pullar, physical director of the Young Women's Christian association, was the guest of honor at a delightful surprise party last evening at the home of Miss Charlotte Robinson. The guests were the members of the evening gymnasium class for young business women. The rooms were prettily decorated in tea rose and tulips and ferns. Miss Pullar was presented with a ring by the guests and a boquet of roses was given Miss Millie Olderk, who has been pianist for the department during the year. Games and music were enjoyed by the following guests:

Mesdames—
Wesley Feetham, Charles Haid.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Duluth Gymnasium Club Members Elect Officers.

The second annual meeting of the Duluth Gymnasium club was held last evening at the club rooms. The reports of the officers were read and the work has proved most successful. The election of officers took place and those who will serve during the ensuing year are: President, Miss Mary McFadden; vice president, Miss Adelaide Kliehli; treasurer, Miss Alice Osborn; secretary, Miss Marie Cameron; auditor, Miss Katherine O'Donnell; chairman of finance committee, Miss Emily McLaughlin; chairman of entertainment committee, Miss Mary McDonald; chairman of the membership committee, Miss Mame Nagle.

Miss Ruth Roberts has been re-engaged as physical director for the ensuing year.

Informal Reception.

An informal reception was held last evening at the home of Mrs. J. D. Titcomb of 1729 East Fourth street, at which the guests of honor were Rev. and Mrs. S. L. Mitchell. A delightful informal evening was enjoyed by the members of congregation. Mr. Mitchell's resignation as pastor of the First Baptist church goes into effect next Sunday evening and he will leave soon with his family for Sauk Center.

Dancing Party.

The members of the Dy-Wyk club will entertain at an informal dancing party next Wednesday evening at the club rooms in the Winthrop block.

Talk So Little.

"Why do American women talk so little?" asks George Harvey, in Harper's Bazar. "Have they suddenly become so religious that they consider it advisable to heed even the dicta of Solomon and the injunctions of Paul? We can hardly believe this to be the case, even in the Lenton period. As we have advised frequently, neither the wise king nor the eloquent apostle was suitably equipped by experience and association for the guiding of womankind; one had too many wives, the other had none; wherefore the viewpoint of each, though varying widely from that of the other, was prejudiced and untrustworthy. The very petulance of Solomon's language in expressing preference for life in a 'corner of the housetop' rather 'than with a brawling woman in a wide house' suggests the likelihood of an annoying experience still fresh in mind, else he would not have dwelt with so much particularity upon the size of the mansion."

STAGE TALK.

Much to Learn From Careful Pronunciation of Words.

It is not the manner in which we pronounce unusual words which stamps us cultured or uncultured. Many persons who are perfectly familiar with the meaning of some imposing words which they frequently meet in print, seldom get them out in ordinary conversation. Consequently, when they do, their pronunciation is apt to be faulty.

On the other hand, a person who makes a practice of looking up every new word which he meets and who has therefore acquired a correct pronunciation of unfamiliar words, is very likely to mispronounce small words. As has been said, this is a great deal more damning than the failure to be correct in large words. For it is from the purity of our accent in using the words heard every day that a person's early breeding and environment must be inferred.

For this reason, do not neglect to investigate your treatment of ordinary words. Observe the stage pronunciation of numerous small words, notice the speech of the most cultured persons with whom you talk and you will find how many seemingly unimportant words you have mispronounced.

WEARY YOUTH.

Many of Generation Prematurely Sad and Cynical.

Probably there has never been a period when it has not been said that young persons are "not what they were." The maiden of each generation is told that she behaves as her mother and grandmother would never have dared to do. The girl of the period is always depicted as inferior to the damsel who has passed into the category of the "has beens," says the New York Sun.

Such has been the refrain of a song chanted throughout the ages, and to the end of time it will increase in volume. There are so many more of us. One cannot help feeling that, after all, the difference between the boy and girl of today and the youth of yesterday is not so great. It's a difference 'twixt tweedledee and tweedledum.

They all have the same phases of silliness and superiority to go through. They all grow pert and consequential at certain stages; they are all perfectly sure they are much better than their elders, and each and every one is thoroughly convinced that he or she is born to set the universe right in certain matters.

But in each generation or two there are, undoubtedly, certain characteristics to be observed, the outcome of modern surroundings, schools of thought and methods of education, which have not belonged to the youth of a previous age, at least not so far back as one can trace. Take the matrimonial point of view of the modern girl, for example. It is wholly at variance with that held by her mother and grandmother, who not only regarded marriage as their bounden duty, but deemed it essential that they should enter upon it at the earliest opportunity.

Still more marked is the tendency of the present-day youth to view the present as a most degenerate age. The joy, gayety and sweet carelessness that characterizes juvenility seem to be lacking. They speak sadly of the condition of things. It is the person of tender years who laments the follies of the period, who mourns over the decadence of literature, who finds the affairs of state honeycombed with abuses and who is convinced that we are tottering to our fall.

These young folk are prematurely sad, cynical and pessimistic. One feels that they need to be figuratively slapped on the back and urged to cheer up.

Sometimes the thought will obtrude itself that it might be better for everybody if we could go back to the period when girls were just pretty and foolish, empty headed and romantic, and when young men were more susceptible and equally silly. At all events they bore the hall-mark of youth and possessed all the freshness, enthusiasm and lightheartedness of that fleeting stage of existence.

Nowadays, boys and girls who should be overflowing with ideals and should believe there never was a time when the world went better or any one was half so clever are sighing and moping and finding flaws in every system.

Our novels are full of sermons, our plays are problems; we are taught that this is literally the age of those who have arrived at middle life; when no woman begins to be attractive or clever until she is 30 or 40, and when early marriages are a mistake.

It is, then, the middle aged who are gay and frivolous, while the young take life seriously and are making daily discoveries that the times are out of joint and reform is needed everywhere.

The Most Common Cause of Suffering

Rheumatism causes more pain and suffering than any other disease, for the reason that it is the most common of all ills, and it is certainly gratifying to sufferers to know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm will afford relief, and make rest and sleep possible. In many cases the relief from pain, which is at first temporary, has become permanent, while in old people subject to chronic rheumatism, often brought on by dampness or changes in the weather, a permanent cure cannot be expected; the relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. 25 and 50-cent sizes. For sale by all druggists.

CONVENTION CONCLUDED

Big Gains Shown by Church—Bishop's Cabinet Chosen.

Episcopal clerical and lay delegates concluded the most successful convention in the history of the district this afternoon, when the annual gathering of the diocese of Duluth was brought to end at Trinity pro-Cathedral. The delegates will spend the rest of their time, while in the city, in having a good time.

"This has been the most successful gathering the church has had in this part of the country," said Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele, dean of Trinity pro-Cathedral, today. "Big gains were shown in every report. The number of confirmations show an increase. Good strides have been made in the Sunday schools and all the auxiliary organizations."

The following were elected to the standing committee: Rev. F. C. Coolbaugh of Cloquet, Rev. E. Spencer Murphy of Grand Rapids, Rev. A. T. Young of Moorhead, Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele of Duluth, George H. Crosby and W. D. Magner of Duluth, Dr. Beatty of St. Cloud and James A. Brown of Fergus Falls.

The following deans yere appointed by Bishop Morrison; Red River deanery, Rev. A. T. Young of Moorhead; Mississippi deanery, Rev. T. C. Hudson of Paynesville; Duluth deanery, Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele.

Reports of the Sunday school commission were heard this morning. The beautiful banner made by Mrs. L. E. LeQuesne of Duluth for the Sunday school making the largest contribution to the mission fund during the year, was awarded to Paynesville parish. The contest was very close, Paynesville winning over the Fergus Falls Sunday school by an average of only 1 cent.

More than $1,000 was contributed to the mission fund during the past year by the Sunday schools of the diocese. Something like $90 was raised by the Duluth Sunday schools during the year.

Committee reports occupied most of the time at the morning session. The standing committee made a complete report, as did the Sunday school commission. Yesterday afternoon, the committee on cannons made its report, resulting in the adoption of cannons, which are practically the same as those in force in the Minnesota diocese. Only minor changes were made in them for this diocese.

The bishop presided at the session today and those of yesterday.

Rev. J. Johnson, an Indian missionary from the White Earth reservation delivered a strong sermon at the session of the Women's auxiliary in Trinity chapel during the morning. He had for his text, "I Will Look Up to the Hills Whence Cometh My Help."

Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele delivered a short address and conducted prayers at the women's meeting.

The Sunday school supper was held last evening in Trinity hall and was attended not only by the delegates to the convention, but many local churchmen and Sunday school teachers.

Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele was toastmaster and responses were made by the following: Rev. Ed Kah-O-Sed, Rev. James Ward, Rev. G. E. Platt, W. E. Cowden, Rev. R. J. Mooney, Bishop Morrison, Page Morris—who presented the Sunday school banner to the Paynesville delegates—Rev. A. T. Young, F. B. Millard, Dr. Beaty, Archdeacon Parshall, Rev. F. C. Coolbaugh and W. E. Magner.

George Suffel, Mr. Voight, Miss Morris and Miss Everington sang.

This afternoon the clergy and laymen are enjoying the opening game of the local baseball season, the guests of Manager Kuehnow. This evening they will be the guests of the Boat club.

The following clerkymen were present at the convention: Rev. J. R. Siten of Brainerd, Rev. R. Atwill of St. Cloud, Rev. Albert Carswell of Virginia, Rev. F. C. Coolbaugh of Cloquet, Rev. Frank Durant of Hibbing, Rev. T. C. Hudson of Paynesville, Rev. E. Kah-O-Sed of White Earth, Rev. R. J. Mooney of Duluth, Rev. H. F. Parshall of Cass Lake, Rev. A. W. Ryan, Rev. R. S. Read, Rev. R. J Mooney, Rev A. H. Wurtele of Duluth, Rev. George Smith of White Earth, Rev James G. Ward of Fergus Falls, Rev. Charles Wright of Staples, Rev. A. T. Young of Moorhead, Rev. H. E. Schniewind of Ortonville, Rev. E. W. Smith of White Earth, Rev. Charles T. Wright of Cass Lake, Rev. C. E. Platt of Little Falls, Rev. Arthur Bruce of Detroit and Revs. Cox, Houlgate and Johnson of the missions.

STONE RE-ELECTED.

Columbus, Ohio, May 28.—Balloting on the officers of the International Brotherhood of Engineers began today. Grand Chief W. S. Stone of Cleveland was re-elected without opposition.

GEN. WRIGHT KNOWS NOTHING ABOUT RUMOR.

Memphis, Tenn., May 28.—Gen. Luke E. Wright of this city, whose name has been suggested for the appointment of secretary of war, to succeed Secretary Taft, in the event of his resignation from the cabinet, stated to an Associated Press representative today that he had no information on the subject whatever, and that it was highly improbable that his name would be considered for a position of which he knew absolutely nothing.

CROWDS OF IDLE MEN DECREASING

About 150 Laborers Were Shipped During Last Twenty-Four Hours.

The number of idle laboring men about the city is rapidly decreasing. Today more than 150 men were shipped from here to nearby points in Minnesota and Wisconsin to work on extra railroad gangs, repairing roadbeds and working about the yards.

A gang of about seventy-five men was sent to work on the Northern Pacific line between here and Carlton. Free transportation has been given in every case and only English speaking men have been employed.

The local railroad work and the Western railroad construction have been gradually making holes in the crowds of men that for months have been walking back and forth between employment bureaus looking for jobs.

Open Friday Evening till 10:30 Closed All Day Saturday.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Wilmington, Del., May 28.—Gen. James Parke Postles, one of the successful manufacturers of Morocco leather, died in a hospital here yesterday from injuries received from a fall down a flight of stairs in the Masonic temple two weeks ago. Gen. Postles was a Civil war veteran and received a special medal from congress for bravery at the battle of Gettysburg.

Chicago, May 28.—George Collins, 32 years old, of Milwaukee, Wis., died early today at the Wesley hospital of unknown causes. He was taken to the hospital on May 18.

FIVE DROWNED AT PORT ARTHUR

Canadian Pacific Freight Train Plunges Into a Washout.

Winnipeg, May 28.—A Canadian Pacific railroad freight train plunged into a washout, caused by overflow from the Current river, near Port Arthur, during the darkness, early this morning. The engineer and fireman and one of the train crew were killed.

The dead are:
ENGINEER SAVARD.
FIREMAN McBRIDE.
ENGINEER INMAN.

Two tramps, who were stealing a ride on the train were drowned also.

The locomotive and five cars plunged into the Current river. The loss by the washout to Port Arthur and the Canadian Pacific railroad will be about $500,000.

SIXTH DISTRICT BANKERS AT SAUK CENTER IN 1909.

Brainerd, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald)—The bankers of the Sixth district, who have been in session here this week, have adjourned to meet next year in Saux Center. M. T. Dunn of Brainerd was elected president, C. E. Okley of Buffalo, vice president and C. M. Sprague of Sauk Center, secretary and treasurer.

There were about seventy bankers and others in attendance upon the meeting which was voted a success in every way, the papers presented andthe subsequent discussions being of a high order.

The annual report of W. W. Smith cashier of the First National bank of St. Cloud was considered a strong and ably prepared paper. He favored a central bank, saying that it, "Stands in the light of history as the balance wheel of older countries than ours, and by that virtue, and its proved worth and ability to meet every exigency, demands careful study."

Of the postal savings banks he said: "There is so much of good in this proposition that any opposition must be handled with care. These banks will be beneficial, in part, and will encourage savings. However, there are disadvantages to the rural districts which should lead us to their careful consideration. I believe postal savings banks would put out of commission many existing banks now operating under state and national supervision. The business in certain districts will not warrant a division of deposits.

APPEAL IS DISMISSED

Cooke's Charges Against Chancellor Day Contain No Evidence.

Question of Discipline Likely to Cause Much Discussion.

Baltimore, Md., May 28.—Rev. George A. Cooke's appeal against the ruling of Bishop David H. Moore, in the matter of Mr. Cooke's charges that Chancellor Day of Syracuse university had spoken disrespectfully of President Roosevelt, has been dismissed by the judiciary committee of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. The committee reported that the records of appeal contained no statements, decuments or evidence upon which it could act.

A vast deal of argument marked yesterday's session of the conference, and not a great deal of business was accomplished when the large number of important questions to be considered is taken into consideration. Final adjournment is fixed for next Monday night.

Perhaps the most important question yet to be passed upon is whether the wording of Paragraph 248 of the book of discipline, which relates to amusements, shall remain as it is at present.

This is sure to be warmly discussed and it seems to have in a measure resolved itself into a sectional issue advocacy of a change by elimination of dancing, card playing, theater going and a few others from the list of prohibited amusements coming almost entirely from the North, while the South and West are practically solidly against any change.

The committee on boundaries held its final regular meeting today, during which it fixed the boundaries of the American-Italian mission as embracing all the present Italian missions east of Indianapolis, and of the Pacific coast Chinese mission as embracing all of the present missions, except that now in existence at Portland, Or., which will remain independent for the present. The committee on Episcopacy decided to report exonerating Bishop Thomas B. Neely of Buenos Ayres of the charges of maladministration. From an authoritative source comes the information that Bishop Neeley will not be returned to South America, but that he will be given some other important post instead.

The same committee appointed a sub-committee of nine to investigate charges of injustice and misjudgment laid against Bishop William Burt by Rev. P. Ferroini of Italy.

SPECIAL COURSES
SPECIAL RATES

For the accommodation of Eighth Grade students, High School students and teachers who may wish to spend a part of their vacation in the pursuit of practical knowledge, special classes will be organized, special courses will be given, and special rates will be allowed at the Duluth Business University during the summer months. The College will be open all summer and students may begin with equal advantage at any time. Location, 105-107 West Superior street, Third floor.

GRAY-TALLANT WILL CLOSE

Furniture, Clothing and Shoe Stores Also Observe Holiday.

It was inadvertently stated in the Herald last evening that all the larger dry goods stores along Superior street would remain open Saturday, although it had been previously announced that the Gray-Tallant store would close.

The Gray-Tallant company was one of the first to announce that it would observe Memorial day, and the store will be closed all day, although it will remain open until 10 o'clock on Friday evening to accommodate shoppers.

The four large furniture stores, all of the clothing stores, and the majority of the shoe stores will close all day Saturday, remaining open until 10 o'clock Friday evening, however.

BALL TEAMS PARADE.

Northern League Baseball Season is Opened in Duluth.

With a parade of the two ball teams, headed by the Third Regiment band, and accompanied by officials of the Duluth Baseball club and city officials, the baseball season of 1908 was inaugurated in Duluth today.

The sun came out this morning and gave some little aid to the men engaged in drying up the diamond at Athletic park.

The sky clounded over again at noon, however, but rain did not appear imminent. The prospects were for a fair opening day crowd, despite the chill in the atmosphere.

Josie Krick was Manager Morrow's selection to pitch the opening game, and Eddie Herr had settled on Giencke, the little southpaw, who shut out the Sox in two games at Winnipeg. Otherwise the teams will be made up substantially as they have been since the season opened. Umpire Sweeney came from Brandon with the team and he will handle the indicator during the series with Winnipeg and Fargo here.

Gets Six New Cars.
The street railway company received yesterday the remaining six new double truck cars that were ordered from the Twin City shops some time ago. The cars arrived on flatcars and are being unloaded at the spur track at Thirty-ninth avenuee west and Oneota street. The cars are of the very latest type and all have the devices known in modern street car business. As fast as they are unloaded the cars will be run to the company's shops at Twenty-sixth avenue and will be prepared for service this summer. As soon as the Interstate bridge is in operation again, it is expected that all the new double truck cars will be running regularly in the service.

Ascension Day Services.
Services will be held at the Swedish Lutheran church, corner of Sixth avenue east and Third street, this evening at 8 p. m., in observance of Ascension day.

Memorial Day Sermon.
"The story of American Liberty" will be the subject of a Memorial day sermon by Rabbi Lefkovits at Temple Emanuel tomorrow evening.

Saloonkeeper Fined.
Malcolm D. McIntyre, the Lake avenue saloonkeeper arrested Monday on the charge of selling liquor without a license, pleaded guilty when arraigned in police court yesterday afternoon. He was fined $65 and costs. It is claimed he sold intoxicants Sunday in a room above his saloon.

Is Enlarging Its Plant.
The Duluth Telephone company has received a carload of new apparatus for its exchange office and the same is now being installed. When the work is completed that company will have twelve additional positions installed on the subscribers' switchboard, allowing the addition of 1,200 new subscribers' lines. The installation is said to require about 75,000 connections for subscribers lines and 25,000 for the toll board. The installation of the new apparatus requires a remodeling of the office of the company. Two sections were added to the toll board recently and an extra chief operator was employed.

Delegates Chosen.
Mrs. May Bailey and I. W. Gilleland were elected as delegates from Court Central of the United Order of Foresters to the grand court to be held at Spooner, Wis., in June. The meeting of the court was held last evening at Columbia hall. The high ranger, John McMurchy of Iron River was present and the initiatory work was performed in a most creditable manner by Court Eestern Star team under the direction of Mrs. N. H. Wilson.

Library Will Close.
The circulation department of the public library will be closed all day Memorial day. If the weather is pleasant the reading rooms will also be closed but will be opened at 6 o'clock in the evening. If the weather is unpleasant the reading rooms will be open from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until the regular closing hours.

UNITED PRESBYTERIANS BEGIN THEIR CONFERENCE.

Pittsburg, May 28.—With the election last night of the new moderator, Rev. Dr. James G. Carson of the Xenia, Ohio, Theological seminary, and the announcement that $1,280,000 had been raised during the year as a freewill offering, the first business session of the general conference and semi-centennial celebration of the United Presbyterian church began here today.

KILLED IN ARIZONA.

Calumet, Mich., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Kerr, a well known young man of this city, was killed at Ray Ariz., Tuesday, according to a brief message just received. He was run over by a train and died soon after. The deceased was 28, unmarried, and the son of Alex Kerr, a Calumet & Hecla night watchman. He went to Arizona last August to accept a position with the Ray Consolidated Mining company.

SUPERIOR NEWS

BEGIN WORK AT ONCE.

Soo Road Will Start Operations on Superior Extension.

C. E. Wills of the Soo Line, who is in Superior, said this morning that as a result of the decision of the Wisconsin railroad commission which allows the Soo road to enter Superior at grade, work will be started immediately on the line and considerable work done this summer.

Waitress is Fined.

Sadie Miller, a waitress in the Tower hotel pleaded guilty yesterday afternoon to the charge of abusing William Stark, a guest of the place. She was fined $10 with the alternative of ten days in jail. Up to last evening the young woman had not been able to raise the money to pay her fine. She claims she will "get even" with the man who caused her arrest if it takes her years to do it.

Will Use Plain Macadam.

Third street and Grand avenue will be paved with plain macadam, as the result of the decision made yesterday by the board of public works. Third street will be paved between Banks and Lamborn avenues and Grand avenue between Belknap and Eighteenth streets. Each lot on Grand avenue, which has a width of 60 feet, will be assessed at $160 while the property owners on Third street will be assessed at about $130.

Court Had No Jurisdiction.

The three minor children of O. Fredrickson of Central park have been returned from the state school at Sparta on the order of Judge Smith who has set aside the order for their commitment on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction in the case, the authorities having failed to notify the father of the proceedings that had been instituted to take them away from him. The neighbors claimed that Fredrickson neglected the children and the authorities acted mainly on such information.

New Society Elects Officers.

At a meeting of the directors of the Superior Humane society last evening, Thomas B. Mills was elected president, Bishop Schinner and Rev. F. W. Court were elected vice presidents, Mrs. C. P. White secretary, and C. A. Chase treasurer.

President Mills will appoint a committee to arrange for the selection of an agent for the society.

ABSORBS THE WHITE CITY

Traction Company Gets for a Song Property Costing Thousands.

The White City enterprise, which cost the stockholders of the Duluth Amusement company thousands of dollars, has been absorbed by the Interstate Traction company, the corporation operating the street railway on Minnesota Point, for $1,000 cash.

The sale of the apparatus and fixtures of the defunct amusement company were sold by E. P. Towne, the assignee, to the traction company at auction the other day, and Judge Cant, yesterday, confirmed the sale. In making the purchase, the traction company is said to have turned in for payment claims against the amusement company, amounting to $13,000, and $1,000 cash. A bill of sale of the White City property will be executed to the traction company immediately, by order of the court.

The Ferris wheel, one of the amusement attractions, was not included in the sale. It will be turned over to the Ell Bridge company, the manufacturers, who are said to have a prior claim on the device.

HEAVY PENALTY FOR BANKER ROSS

Sentenced to Five Years Imprisonment and Fine of $576,094.

Salem, Or., May 28.—Judge Burnett, in the circuit court today sentenced J. Thorburn Ross, the Portland banker, to five years imprisonment and to pay a fine of $576,094. Ross recently was convicted of wrongful conversion of state school funds in his capacity as president of the Title Guarantee & Trust company.

WOMEN DELEGATES

May be Sent to National Democratic Convention From Colorado.

Colorado Springs, Colo., May 28.—Colorado may emphasize the franchise for women in the state by sending two women delegates to the national Democratic convention. Following the movement on foot in Denver to seat Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt, there is a strong undercurrent among the Democrats of El Paso county to tender the honor of delegate to the convention to Mrs. Margaret Howell Jefferson Davis Hayes of this city, the only living daughter of Jefferson Davis.

CORN MAKES ANOTHER JUMP AT CHICAGO.

Chicago, May 28.—May corn continued its advance today, selling up to 83¾c. It closed strong and 2½c higher at 82½c.

As soon as the market opened a number of shorts commenced to bid, and as the pit was bare of offerings the price advanced steadily. It mounted to 84½c when 50,000 bushels were thrown on the market, and taken in a second by the eager shorts. After this trading was hard to follow, as it was scattered, and in small lots. The situation prevailing at the opening was, however, continued to the close, and prices were advanced on the demand of shorts and scanty offerings from holders.

SENOR LEGUIA ELECTED AS PRESIDENT OF PERU.

Lima, Peru, May 28.—Senor Don Augusto B. Legula has been elected to succeed Dr. Pardo as president of Peru.

Senor Legula is 45 years old and for a long time was engaged in the life insurance business. He later became managing dicector of the British Sugar Estates, Ltd., a corporation which has many million dollars invested in Peru. In 1903 he was minister of finance in Peru. When Dr. Pardo became president, Senor Legula was appointed premier.

Do You Saturday Shopping on Friday

We think if all the stores had agreed to close as usual and had they entered into the matter with the proper spirit, it would have been easy to crowd two days' business into one.

With a little extra advertising to inform the people, they would have been more than willing to help make a big "Saturday" of Friday.

We dislike to do different from other stores, but the arguments advanced against closing on Decoration day are not convincing to us, and therefore we refuse to subscribe to them.

WHEAT HAS OFF DAY

Markets Decline as Result of Better Weather in Southwest.

Flax is Little Easier at the Close in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 28.—Wheat soft during the session in the American markets today, due to better weather in the Southwest.

There were some bullish influences, one of which was a big bulge in Chicago May wheat, although this was largely manipulation. But the bulls were unable to give much support to the market in the face of the bearish Southwestern intelligence and prices went off until at the close, which was at the low level of the day.

Liverpool closed unchanged. It was a holiday in some of the other markets.

The July option closed ¾c lower in Duluth, 1⅝-1½c lower in Chicago, 3¼-3⅝c lower in Minneapolis, ⅝c lower in New York and 1c lower in Winnipeg. The closing prices in the Southwestern markets were not received. The September option closed 1⅝c lower in Duluth, 1c lower in Chicago, 1-1½c lower in Minneapolis and ⅝c lower in New York. The October option closed 1½c lower in Winnipeg.

July corn closed ⅞-1c lower in Chicago and unchanged in Liverpool. July oats closed ⅝c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—The market for wheat was extremely dull with early values unchanged. The undertone was steady, with offerings light, stimulated by a further reduction in the bank rate and the talk of light exports from Argentine for the week. Reports from Roumania were still bearish as received by a private house, and there were fewer American offerings. Later, the market showed a disposition to sell off, due largely to dullness and helped by the brilliant weather in the United Kingdom. At mid-day, the market was quiet and unchanged to ½d lower than Wednesday.

"The corn market was purely a nominal one. There were no quotations cabled this morning in this cereal."

Car receipts at Duluth were 15, against 71 last year, and at Minneapolis, 89, against none last year, making a total for the Northwest of 104, against 71 last year. Chicago received 45. Winnipeg received 70, against 269 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 319,000 bushels. Shipments, 2,000,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 287,000 bushels.

Argentine shipments of wheat were 2,224,000 bushels, against 3,552,000 bushels last week and 2,376,000 bushels a year ago.

Primary receipts of corn were 651,000 bushels. Shipments, 284,000 bushels. Clearances of corn were 8,975 bushels.

Argentine shipments of corn were 2,876,000 bushels, against 2,722,000 bushels last week and 805,000 bushels a year ago.

Wheat was rather quiet during the session in Duluth. July wheat opened ⅝c higher at $1.07⅞, declined to $1.07¼, rallied to $1.07⅝, went off to $1.06½ and closed there, a loss of ¾c from yesterday. May wheat was inactive and closed 1¼c lower than yesterday at $1.06¾. September wheat was inactive and closed 1½c lower at 92¼c.

Durum wheat closed 1¼c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 1c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was fairly active and closed a little softer. July flax opened unchanged at $1.24, declined to $1.23½ and closed at $1.23⅜, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. September flax opened late at $1.23 and closed at $1.22¼, a loss of ¾c from yesterday. October flax opened ¾c lower, at $1.21¾, declined to $1.20¾, rallied to $1.21½, a loss of ½c from yesterday. May flax closed ¾c lower, at $1.23½.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard on track, $1.11. To arrive: No. 1 northern, $1.07½; No. 2 northern, $1.04½; on track, No. 1, northern, $1.06; No. 2 northern, $1.04⅝; May, $1.06¾; July, $1.06⅝; September, 92¼c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

May Option in Wheat Strong, But Distant Deliveries Show Weakness.

Chicago, May 28.—The wheat market was active and irregular at the opening today, the May option being strong, while the distant deliveries were weak. Good weather in the Southwest was a depressing factor. May wheat opened ½c higher at $1.07, and sold at $1.06½. July wheat opened ¼c to ⅜c lower, at 91⅞c to 91¾c, sold at 91⅞@92c and then declined to 90¾c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 153 cars, against 149 cars last week and a holiday a year ago.

The market continued as it opened. May being strong and the other deliveries weak. During the session May sold up to $1.06⅝ and July to 92c. The close was firm for May and weak for July, with May 2½c higher, at $1.09 and July 1⅝@1½c lower at 90½@⅝c.

May corn was strong and active, while the distant deliveries were weak. Realizing sales were the chief bearish influence in all options other than May. July corn opened a shade to ¼c to ¼c lower, at 68⅛c to 68¼c, and sold at 67¾c. May corn opened unchanged to 1c higher, at 80c to 81c, sold up to 81½c and then declined to 81c. Local receipts were 596 cars, with 400 of contract grade.

The high mark for May corn was 82¾c, and it closed strong and 2½c higher at 82½c. July closed weak and ⅝@¾c lower at 67⅝c.

The oats market was dull and weak, chiefly because of profit-taking sales in July and September. July oats opened unchanged to ⅜c higher, at 48⅛c to 48¼c, and sold at 47⅞c. Local receipts were 149 cars.

The provision market was easy, in sympathy with grain. July pork opened 2½c lower, at $13.75. Lard was unchanged at 2½c higher, at $8.57½ to $8.60. Ribs were unchanged at $7.45.

Close—Wheat: May, $1.09; July, 90½@⅝c; September, 88⅛c; December, 88⅝c. Corn—May, 82½c; July, 67⅜c; September, 65¼c; December, 56⅜c. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Trading in Wheat Dull and Easy in Spite of Bullish News.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 28.—Much bull news appeared in wheat, yet the early market was dull and easy. Rain fell again, and too much moisture is reported in the Red River valley in Iowa and in Southern Minnesota. Locally the elevator stocks decreased 425,000 bushels for five days. Minneapolis got 89 cars, against a holiday a year ago, and Duluth, 15 cars, against 71. The market was underselling pressure from the start, and after the noon hour it weakened and was off to $1.06¾@⅞ for July. One of the big local milling companies sold September wheat. July opened $1.07¼, high, $1.07½; low, $1.06; close, $1.06⅞. September closed 91⅞@92c. May closed $1.08.

Cash wheat was steady at 3½c over for No. 1 northern, and 1½c to 2c over July for No. 2. Millers refrained from openly bidding for it, because of light offerings and the firm undertone.

Cash close—No. 1 northern, $1.06⅜ spot, $1.08⅞ to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.07⅜@1.07⅝ spot, $1.06⅞ to arrive; No. 3 $1.02@1.05⅞; No. 3 yellow corn, 69½@69¾c. No. 3 white oats, 49⅞@50⅝c.

No. 2 rye, 75⅞@77¾c.

The barley market was still weak and the figure 50 cents appeared again for low grade stuff. Sellers quoted it unchanged. Close, 50@62c.

Flax in strong demand, buyers bidding 1½c over Duluth July and some sellers holding out for 2 cents over. Close, $1.25.

Bran in bulk, steady at yesterday's reduction; quoted at $21.25@21.50.

The flour market was without change of importance and demand was moderate. Shipments, 48,294 barrels. First patents, $5.45@5.60; second patents, $5.30@5.45; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, $3.55@3.65.

OFFICES CLOSED SATURDAY.

Railroads Will Receive Perishable Freight During the Morning.

All of the local freight houses and railroad offices will be closed Decoration day. Perishable freight will be received at the freight house during the morning, but other freight will not be handled. The passenger men will be given a half holiday, closing their offices at noon.

The question of closing the railroad offices Saturday afternoons during the summer months has not been decided as yet. It was the custom last summer and will probably be followed this summer.

Fact-hunters find all days "open season" in The Herald advertising columns.

STOCKS ARE UNSETTLED

Owing to Several Contending Influences in the Market.

Prices Fluctuated All Day and Close Was Irregular.

New York, May 28.—Prices of stocks opened higher, and the value of the trading was moderate. A reduction in the official discount rate of the Bank of England contributed a favorable influence from abroad. Union Pacific, St. Paul, Reading and National Lead rose 1, and Southern Pacific, the Hill stocks, American Smelting, Colorado Fuel & Iron and American Ice large fractions. Wheeling & Lake Erie fell 1.

After prices went slightly higher, realizations became effective, but there was a subsequent recovery, which placed all stocks at the highest.

Renewed selling of the Gould stocks undermined the market and there was a generous outpouring which forced some of the active stocks below yesterday's closing. Missouri Pacific broke 6½; Wheeling & Erie second preferred, 3¼; Wabash preferred, 3.

The pressure against the market culminated about 1 o'clock, and there was a strong rally, but belated selling orders depressed individual stocks. Missouri Pacific recovered nearly 3 points, and some other active stocks 1 to 1½. Iowa Central preferred yielded 3½, and Western Union 2.

The market closed unsettled and irregular. Northern Pacific's 3-point rise and the bad breaks in the Gould stocks constituted contending influences in the market. Prices fluctuated irregularly in response. Missouri Pacific dropped back to its previous low point.

Copper Gossip.

Boston, to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was very dull and erractic all day. North Butte, Copper Range and Atlantic showed especial strength during the session while balance of the market showed weakness. A couple of hard drives were made at the New York market during the day with special weakness in Missouri Pacific and the Gould stocks accompanied by several unfavorable rumors from that quarter. Northern Pacific was a strong feature on rumors of a stock dividend soon after the adjournment of congress. The public is taking very little interest in the market and it is in the hands of big manipulators who can switch it a few points either way whenever they see fit.

New York Money.

New York, May 28.—Close: Money on call, easy, 1¼@1¾ per cent; ruling rate, 1¾; closing bid, 1½; offered at 1¾ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 3½@4 per cent; sterling exchange, steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.87.10@4.87.20 for demand and at $4.85.25@4.85@50 for 60-day bills; commercial bills, $4.84¾; bar silver, 52¾c; Mexican dollars, 41c; government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, irregular.

Treasury Balances.

Washington, May 28.—Today's treasury statement: Available cash balance, $230,883,659; gold coin and bullion, $16,531,373; gold certificates, $45,642,173.

NORTH BUTTE DIRECTORS MEET

Are in Session at the Company's Offices Here.

Directors of North Butte are in session this afternoon in the company's offices in the Lyceum Theater building. Up to the hour of going to press the secretary was unable to give out any particulars of the meeting, which was still in session.

The dividend is under consideration.

RAIN IN IOWA.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 28.—With heavy rains last night and up the state, the Des Moines river today rose at the rate of one-tenth of a foot every twenty minutes. Many families in the lowlands of the city were forced to move out. When the up-river floods reach Des Moines it is believed the river will be forced to fourteen feet.

TORNADO IN KANSAS.

Salina, Kan., May 28.—A tornado is reported to have passed ten miles north of Beloit, near here, early today. One person is said to have been killed, eleven seriously injured and many buildings demolished. The storm cut a path 150 feet wide, causing heavy property damage.

THE MERCENARY WILLIE.

Craig Wadsworth, the best cotillion leader in America, admitted at a dinner in New York that men were colder and more mercenary than women. "It is born in us," said Mr. Wadsworth sadly. "Even as children. When I was a boy," he said, "I had a little friend named Willie. Willie appeared one day with a fine apple.

"'I'll give you this apple,' he said to a little girl, 'for twenty kisses.'

"The little girl was amazed. That was not at all like Willie. Nevertheless she consented.

"'Shut your eyes,' said Willie. 'Sit down here and shut your eyes. And mind, if you open them, the bargain is off.'

"The little girl obeyed, and slowly, very slowly, the kisses began to fall upon her lips. One, two, three, four—a long pause—five, six—another long pause—seven—pause—eigh, nine, ten—intolerable pause.

"'Oh, Willie, hurry!'

"'I'm not Willie.'

"The little girl opened her eyes in astonishment, and drew back her pretty mouth from the advancing lips of a strange boy, a very common, shabby sort of boy, whom she had never seen before.

"'Why, where's Willie?' she cried.

"'He's down the street,' was the reply, 'selling yer kisses for two apples apiece. Better shet yer eyes agin. The next three boys is terrible ugly.'"

STREET CARS.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

This company operates a street railway line in the city of Duluth between Third avenue east and the end of Rice's Point, and another street railway line in the city of Superior between Twenty-first street and the end of Connor's Point. These lines are separated by the waters of St. Louis bay, and are operated as two distinct and separate lines.

The fare for a continuous ride in one direction between any two points on either one of these lines is 5c.

The public is hereby notified that this company does not, by undertaking to carry any passenger, or by accepting fare for such carriage, assume any responsibility beyond that of carrying such passenger safely between points on the above mentioned lines.

This company is not responsible for close connections, nor safe transportation, between the above mentioned lines by any ferryboat or other means of transportation. While the employes of this company have been instructed to keep themselves posted and give upon request all the information they can as to the probability of connections being made with other transportation lines, the company has no better means of foreseeing unexpected interruptions in the service of such lines, nor of telling how long such interruptions will continue, than the public has, and, therefore, cannot be responsible for notice of such interruptions.

PROPROSALS FOR WORK ON THE MILLER TRUNK ROAD.

Sealed bids will be received by the County Auditor at his office in the City of Duluth, Minnesota, up to 9:30 o'clock in the forenoon of Friday, the 5th day of June, 1908, on behalf of the Board of County Commissioners of St. Louis County, Minnesota, as follows:

For the ditching, grading and graveling of the Miller Trunk road Northerly from a point beginning at the Southeast corner of Section 15, Township 54, Range 17. Such grading to make a roadway not less than 24 feet wide between the ditches and not less than 3 feet higher in the center than the bottom of the ditches. All ditches to be so dug as to carry off all surface water from the roadbed. All necessary culverts to be built or repaired and the roadbed properly graveled to the width of 12 feet and a depth of 6 inches, and all work to be done under the direction and to the satisfaction of an engineer furnished by the County and an inspector and a committee of the County Board, and such bids to be for the complete construction and finishing aforesaid of as many rods or miles of said road as the bidder will so undertake for the full amount of $11,100.00.

The Board of County Commissioners reserves the right to reject any and all bids and parts of bids.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners.

O. HALDEN,
County Auditor.
By J. O. WALKER,
Deputy.

TOO BUSY ELECTIONEERING.

Mrs. Boorman Wells, the famous suffragette, said at a ladies' luncheon in New York:

"You may ridicule us as you please, but when we get the suffrage in London we shan't abuse it as some of your Colorado women do. I heard two Denver men talking at dinner the other night.

"'Hello,' said the first, 'here's a Philadelphia genius has invented buttonless underwear.'

"'Oh, that's nothing,' said the second. 'I've worn it ever since my wife got a vote.'"

HOW WHEN WHERE TO PURCHASE BY MAIL

HOW — Watch the advertisements in The Herald each day. Write your order plainly and make clear the goods you want. Give the date of the issue in which the advertisement appeared.

WHEN — Write to the advertiser at once. Prompt response will give you as good a chance to "pick up" bargains as the shopper who lives in Duluth. Do not wait.

WHERE — Buy of the merchants who advertise—they are reliable—there is no risk. They have departments whose entire attention is given to mail orders. Experts make the selections and oversee the packing of the goods. Delivery is prompt and sure.

CHICAGO PRIEST GETS A NOTE WRITTEN IN BLOOD THREATENING HIS DEATH

Father O'Callaghan is Marked for Slaughter by Unknown Men.

Attorney Frank Hinckley is Also Included in the Threat.

Men Were Active in Efforts to Secure Pardon of Billek.

Chicago, May 29.—Father J. O'Callaghan, head of the Paulist order in Chicago, and Attorney Francis E. Hinckley have been informed through an anonymous letter, written in blood and wrapped in crepe, that they have been marked for death by mysterious enemies, and St. Mary's church, Wabash avenue and Hubbard court, has been doomed to be blown up by dynamite.

The threatening letter had been dropped by an unknown hand into the poor box of St. Mary's church of which Father O'Callaghan is pastor. It was unsigned and unaddressed. On one side was a crudely drawn picture of a skull and cross bones.

Death to the priest and the lawyer was threatened, it is believed, as the result of their efforts to obtain a pardon for Herman Billek, under sentence to hang on June 12 in the Cook county jail, on a charge of murdering by poison six members of the Vrzal family.

A chemical analysis proved that the red fluid in which the letter was written was blood and not red ink.

Father O'Callaghan declared last night that he would lay the letter before Governor Deneen in the hope that it would induce the governor to pardon Billek.

Father O'Callaghan and Mr. Hinckley drew a confession from Jerry Vzral, a few months ago, that he had given perjured testimony against Billek at the trial. By this means they succeeded in bringing Billek's case before the pardon board.

The board sat with Governor Deneen in extraordinary session in State's Attorney Healy's office and examined the evidence.

The investigation led the governor to reprieve Billek and to advance the date of his execution to June 12.

THEODORE BURTON,
Congressman From Ohio, Who Will Present the Name of Secretary Taft to the Republican National Convention.

HALF CENTURY IN MINING BUSINESS

Capt. John McEncroe of Ishpeming Holds Lake Superior Record.

Ishpeming, Mich., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fifty years ago Capt. John McEncroe, who has supervision of the Oliver Iron Mining company's hard ore properties in this city, entered the employ of the Lake Superior Iron company. He is still vigorous, enjoys good health and is giving the duties of his position the same careful attention that he did a half century ago. Capt. McEncroe is the only man in the upper peninsula, so far as known here, who has been continuously in the employ of one company for a similar period.

The captain's term of service with the Lake Superior Iron company dates from April 1, 1858. He was one of a crew of ten men working under Supt. Gilbert D. Johntson. Mr. McEncroe's first work was that of a miner, he having been employed in the open pit where ore was originally discovered at the Lake Superior property. His pay at the start was 75 cents per day. After working two years he was promoted to the foremanship of one of the open pits, which was operated during the season of navigation. During the winter months he worked in the Cavanaugh pit, which is now known as No. 1, receiving foreman's wages, although doing the work of a miner. In August, 1858, he was promoted to the position of general foreman of the open pits and surface work, which place he filled with credit until April, 1873, when he was made captain of all the hard ore mines.

FRENCH PRESIDENT FINISHES HIS VISIT.

London, May 29.—M. Fallieres, president of the French republic, brought his four days' visit to London to a close today, when he left here by train for Dover. King Edward, the prince of Wales and other members of the royal family, the members of the cabinet and a party of diplomats gathered at the railroad station to bid M. Fallieres farewell. The crowds around the station gave the president a rousing farewell cheer.

The original plan of returning from Dover to France by the French cruiser Leon Gambetta, was abandoned on account of the roughness of the water, and M. Fallieres made the passage in one of the French channel steamers. The British ships at Dover and the forts fired royal salutes as the president's vessel steamed out of the harbor.

RAILROAD SETTLING FOR LOSS FROM PRAIRIE FIRE.

Crookston, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Claim Agent C. S. Flannery of the Great Northern railroad, is busy making a settlement with the farmers who suffered losses in the prairie fires, which raged near Shirley, seven miles north of this city, about a month ago, during which a schoolhouse and several farm buildings were destroyed.

CANNON SAYS GOODBY.

Washington, May 29.—Speaker Cannon bade goodby to the president this morning and said that if congress adjourned today he would leave Washington tomorrow morning for his home.

JAPANESE ARE ACTIVE

Are Building Almost Impregnable Fortifications at Port Arthur.

"Open Door" Policy in Manchuria Has Been Practically Reversed.

Vancouver, B. C., May 29.—G. C. Druce, former mayor of Oxford, Eng., secretary of the Botanical Society of Great Britain and curator of the Herbarium of the University of Oxford who has just arrived here from the Orient, after an extensive tour of China, Korea and Japan, gives a highly interesting but somewhat pessimistic account of Japan's military and political activity in the Far East and the effect of the visit of the American battleship fleet to that part of the world.

"While the official classes are reserved, the Japanese people are not the least perturbed over the dispatch of the American battleships to the Orient," said Mr. Druce. "Of course everybody in the Far East, except the diplomats, associates the demonstration of America's naval power with the Manchurian trade question. The famous 'open door' policy advocated by all the white race is in reality a nullity."

Japan, declares Mr. Druce, has completely reversed the "open door" policy

CARBOLIC ACID FOR A "CHASER"

Minneapolis Man Nearly Dies From Mistake He Made.

Minneapolis, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Albert Schoben, an Asyrian, employed at 1321 Nicollet avenue, Minneapolis, went into a drug store to get a drink of whiskey late yesterday. The clerk served him and then left. Schoben drank his whiskey, and, looking around for a wash, spied a bottle which looked like lithia water. He poured himself a glass of it and quaffed it up. The liquid proved to be diluted carbolic acid, and Schoben fell to the floor in agony. The clerk heard him fall and ran to his assistance.

A glance at the bottle told the tale, and the antidotes were soon administered. Schoben will recover, but he had a narrow escape.

LOST HIS WATCH.

Sneak Thief Snatches Timepiece From Minneapolis Man's Hands.

Minneapolis, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Reinhold Anderson, coachman for W. G. Crocker, 1821 Colfax avenue, south Minneapolis, has learned that it is a foolish thing to take out your watch in Minneapolis to tell a stranger the time unless you have a tight hold on the timepiece. He was standing at the corner of Washington and Fifth avenues last night when a mild little man asked him what time it was. Anderson obligingly pulled out his watch and as he did so the stranger seized it and fled down the street, and the owner was soon distanced. He gave up the chase and went to police headquarters, where he reported his loss. Pawnshop Inspector Scallen went to work on the case immediately, but the stranger was even more prompt. He had pawned the watch for $5. It was turned over to Anderson in less than half an hour after it was taken.

CHURCH FLOOR GIVES WAY.

Chicago, May 29.—The cemented vestibule floor of the Lithuanian Church of Our Lady of Vilna gave way last night as a large congregation was leaving. Thirty persons were thrown into the basement and a panic resulted. None, however, suffered worse injuries than cuts and bruises.

COMMITTEE ON MISSIONS

Some Changes Are Made by Methodist General Conference.

Chances Are Amusement Question Will Not be Taken Up.

Baltimore, May 29.—The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church today continued discussion of a constitution for the board of church extension and home missions, organized during the last quadrennium. Among the important features agreed to were the following:

The general conference committee on home missions and church extension was ordered to be composed of seventy-one members, who will include the entire board of bishops, a corresponding secretary and his assistants, president, treasurer and recording secretary of the board of managers, two representatives—one lay and one clerical from each general conference district, elected by this conference—and fifteen representatives, elected by the board of managers, no

JAIL SENTENCE FOR UNION MEN

Three Carpenters Punished for Violating Injunction of Court.

Chicago, May 29.—Judge Carpenter today ordered three members of the local district of the Carpenters and Joiners' Union of America sent to jail for thirty days for violation of an injunction restraining them and other members of their union from injuring the business of the Mears, Slayton Lumber company of this city. The men are John J. Britain, who is also treasurer of the Chicago Federation of Labor; Charles G. Grassel and George H. Lakey.

RECESS APPOINTMENT.

How Purdy May be Made Judge and Draw Salary.

Washington, May 29.—It is understood that the president has had some advice during the last few days which puts a new face on the matter of giving M. D. Purdy a recess appointment as federal judge in Minnesota, and which will enable Mr. Purdy to draw pay from the time of his appointment. Attorney General Bonaparte has advised the president that there is as yet no vacancy on the federal bench in Minnesota, as Judge Lochren's resignation does not take effect until "his successor is appointed and qualifies." Thus the president will be free to appoint Mr. Purdy after congress adjourns, and he can draw pay until the senate acts or fails to act in the short session next winter. The president is still considering the question of giving Mr. Purdy a recess appointment, and is pleased to find that the way is open for him to do so.

FILIBUSTER BEING MADE BY SENATOR LA FOLLETTE AGAINST CURRENCY BILL

His Appeal From Ruling of the Chair Was Tabled.

Vice President Decided That There Was Quorum Present.

Wisconsin Senator Then Proceeded With Speech Against Bill

Washington, May 29.—It was made evident soon after the senate convened today that Senator LaFollette would do all in his power to obstruct the passing of the compromise currency bill, and there was ground for the report that he had succeeded in obtaining assurance of help from Senator Stone of Missouri, who had but just returned from his home.

Before 12 o'clock Mr. La Follette had made two demands for a quorum, and when upon the third demand the vice president refused to recognize him, because Senator Culberson had the floor and declined to yield, he raised a point of order to the effect that the presiding officer should have the roll called when there was a demand for a quorum, even in the face of a declination by the senator occupying the floor to yield for that purpose. The vice president held against the Wisconsin senator, and the latter announced his intention to appeal from the chair's decision. He then entered upon an argument in support of his contention, and it was evident that the filibuster, small though it be in numbers, was on.

Appeal Is Tabled.

Showing the greatest indignation, he re-

DENVER GETS THE PRESBYTERIANS

New Year's General Assembly Will Meet in Colorado City.

Kansas City, May 29.—Important matters of a routine nature were taken up by the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America today.

The report of the committee on bills and overtures was presented at the morning session.

Denver was selected as the city for next year's general assembly. But one ballot was taken.

The invitation to Denver to entertain the great gathering in 1909 was accomplished with a promise of a bonus of $35,000 offered by that city to entertain the delegates and guests. A saving in railroad fares, the big bonus offered, and the fact that the general assembly had never yet convened in the Rockies were arguments in favor of the selection of Denver.

A rule was passed providing that the annual assembly hereafter shall always convene on the third Thursday in May.

Church government, temperance and marriage and divorce were important subjects before the assembly yesterday. By far the most important action of the session was the adoption of a resolution which makes it impossible for any paid agent or member of the church boards or permanent officer of the general assembly except the moderator to serve on the executive commission. This action means that all church boards will report to the executive committee of fifteen members, when it has of the church will devolve on men who have not heretofore served on executive committees.

The church reaffirmed its position that divorce should be granted only upon biblical grounds.

ACCIDENTAL DROWNING.

Medical Examiners Return Verdict on Death of Young Steenerson.

Newport, R. I., May 29.—A verdict of accidental drowning was returned last night by Medical Examiners Steel of Portsmouth and Stewart of Newport, who held an autopsy on the body of Benjamin G. Steenerson, a private in the United States Marine corps, who was drowned on Feb. 16. The body was recovered Wednesday.

The result of the autopsy is in accord with the findings of the naval board, which investigated rumors that Steenerson's death was due to violence. Congressman Halvor Steenerson of Minnesota is expected here to take charge of his son's body.

SUSPICION AROUSED.

Princeton, N. J., May 29.—Developments of the past few days have led Prosecutor George Berdine to suspect that the death of Miss Bertha Vanderbilt, an assistant in the Princeton university library, was not the result of an accident and he has begun an investigation. It is said her conduct on the afternoon of her death indicated that she had an appointment with some one near where her body was found.

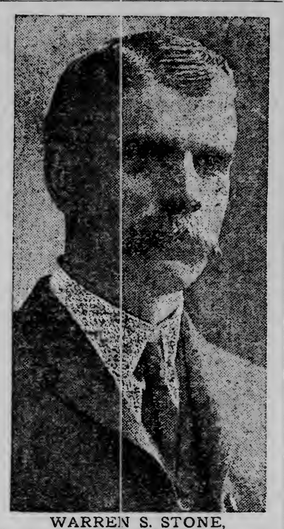
ESCHLE GETS A LIFE SENTENCE

Judge Hallam Sends Murderer of Smolensky to Stillwater.

St. Paul, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Hallam, this morning, sentenced Fred Eschle to state prison for life for the self-confessed murder of John Smolensky, on March 22, 1908, while the two lived together in a miserable little shack on the "upper flats." Eschle received the terrible sentence with what seemed to be an animal indifference shocking to behold.

He is now 47 years old, and "if by reason of strength" he lives to be 70 years of age, "The three score and ten," he has twenty-seven years to spend in the isolation of the prison.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT TO OBSERVATION CAR ON BALTIMORE & OHIO ROAD



WARREN S. STONE,
Re-elected as Grand Chief by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Coach Filled With Passengers Plunges Over an Embankment.

Occupants Hurled in All Directions and Many Hurt.

Car Leaves the Rails While Rounding a Sharp Curve.

Connellsville, Pa., May 29.—The observation parlor car on the Royal Blue flyer, on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, bound for New York, plunged over an embankment today at Garrett, fifty-three miles east of here. The car was crowded and all the passengers were injured. The number of killed is not known at this hour. Calls for physicians were sent to Connellsville, Cumberland, Rockwood and all surrounding towns. A special train was made up at Connellsville and departed at noon for the scene of the wreck. Hasty reports received by the railroad officials indicate that the accident is one of the most distressing on the Pittsburg division since the wreck of the Dequesne limited at Dawson, five years ago.

The train was running on schedule time, when the observation car, which was attached to the rear of the train of eight cars, left the rails at a sharp curve, plunged along the tracks and heaved its whole length over the steep embankment.

The car is one of the most popular on the train and on account of this the platform in the rear was crowded with passengers who were sitting in camp chairs under a wide spreading awning.

With the first crash of the trucks when they left the rails the passengers were scattered pell mell over the platform and through the glass observation windows on the rear of the coach.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 29.—At the offices of the Baltimore & Ohio in this city it is said none of the passengers had been killed. The number of injured is not known. All are being hurried to Cumberland, Md., on a special train due there at 1:16 p. m.

OPERATIONS OF EMPLOYE

Cause Retirement of Big Wisconsin Grain Company.

Northern Grain Company of Manitowoc to Close Out.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 29.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Manitowoc says: General Manager C. W. Esplin of the Northern Grain company stated today that his company would close its business and retire. Unauthorized speculation and mismanagement were given as causes for the losses which have caused the closing of the business, and Esplin said that all property was now on the market for sale. Reports has it that the company lost upwards of $200,000 on the Chicago board of trade, through operations of an employe, six months ago, which is the real cause of its retirement.

The company operates two large elevators here, the capacity being over 3,600,000 bushels and it also operated a large cold storage plant and a sheep ranch and wool shipping venture, all of which are closed. Until recently J. G. Martin of this city was president, but was succeeded a month ago by E. McCormick of Seattle, Wash., with Mr. Esplin of Chicago as manager. It is said that a number of wealthy lumbermen are interested in the company which owned elevators in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota. The general offices of the company are located here. The closing of the elevators will probably be temporary as the property is too valuable to long remain idle, but the Northern Grain company will not be re-organized.

TO SHOW THE FRENCHMEN

Aeronaut Wright to Demonstrate His Flying Machine in Paris.

Paris, May 29.—Wilbur Wright, the aeronaut, one of the Wright brothers of Dayton, Ohio, arrived here today from America. The European representative of the Wrights, M. Hart O. Berg, of Philadelphia, says the purpose of Mr. Wright's visit here is to demonstrate in Europe the capabilities of their machine. The preliminary arrangements for the demonstrations are complete, a suitable enclosure, two miles square, having been secured in Western France. Parts of the aeroplane shipped here from America last year will be put together at the location selected, and the model to be used has been constructed here after the same model used by the Wright brothers in their experiments in the United States.

The important features of the invention have now been protected by European patents. If certain tests are fulfilled at the coming experiments, it is understood a company will be formed for the purpose of exploiting the machine in Europe.

The French government, it is stated, has offered to buy the exclusive European rights for three years, provided the machine, carrying the weight of two men, flies thirty miles, returning to the point of departure.

Dallas, Tex., May 29.—Normal conditions are gradually returning to the city. In a few days through traffic on all lines will be resumed.

TO INVESTIGATE DEATH OF HOLMES

Wealthy Boston Merchant Dies Mysteriously in New York.

New York, May 29.—An investigation was begun today into the circumstances surrounding t he mysterious death of Charles M. Holmes, a wealthy Boston leather merchant, last night. Mr. Holmes died in the lobby of the Hoffman house, where he had been a guest, immediately after his return there in a taxicab from a visit to a house in West Forty-seventh street. He became suddenly ill during his visit and was hurried back to the hotel before a physician was summoned. After his death the police took into custody Hugh Fitzsimmons, the driver of the taxicab; Mrs. Clara Moore, in whose apartment Mr. Holmes was stricken; Josephine Wells, Mrs. Moore's maid, and Frederick Moorehead, elevatorman in the apartment house in which Mrs. Moore lives. Moorehead and Miss Wells assisted Holmes to the cab which had been called to take him to the hotel. Holmes was 65 years old. In his pocket was found a small Bible, well thumbed. Besides there was a gold watch and chain, a lot of business papers and $24.70.

BURTON IS TO NOMINATE TAFT

Ohio Congressman to Present Secretary's Name to Convention.

Washington, May 29.—While no formal announcement yet has been made, it may be stated definitely that Representative Theodore Burton of Ohio, will present the name of Secretary Taft to the Chicago convention.

Representative Burton, since the institution of Secretary Taft's preliminary campaign, has been one of the closest friends and advisers, and is regarded as one of the best representatives of all that Secretary Taft stands for in the United States.

Mr. Burton will leave Washington soon for Hot Springs, Va., to take a rest. While there he probably will prepare his nominating address.

JURY SETS ASIDE COL. SNELL'S WILL.

Clinton, Ill., May 29.—At 1 o'clock this mornign the jury in the Snell case, after having been out six hours, brought in a verdict setting aside the will. The jury was unanimous in declaring its belief that Col. Snell was of unsound mind.

GETS $1,800 FOR FRACTURED LEG

Erick Nyman Settles His Case With Mining Company.

Erick Nyman will secure $1,800 from the Crete Mining company for a fractured leg.

Nyman was injured in the Troy mine near Eveleth, a car running over his leg. He claims that the limb will always be shorter than the other one.

Nyman sued for $15,720, but this afternoon by consent of both parties, judgment was entered for $1,800 without costs.

LUTHERANS DIVIDE DISTRICTS IN IOWA.

New Hampton, Iowa, May 29.—The annual meeting of the northern district of the German Lutheran synod of Iowa closed a week's session at New Hampton yesterday, and was one of the most successful ever held in the history of the synod.

One of the most important matters disposed of was the division of the Northern Iowa district and the Iowa district, a move that was deemed advisable on account of the growth of the church in the territory originally covered by the district.

DISORDERLY ON THE CAR

Other Passengers Claim Sander Johnson Acted Like a Rowdy.

Trend of Testimony Not Favorable for $2,500 Damage Claim.

Sander Johnson's damage case against the street railway company for alleged insults on a car and for alleged false imprisonment on the charge of disorderly conduct, was heard before a jury in Judge Can't room this morning.

The plaintiff finished putting in his evidence yesterday afternoon and the company moved for a dismissal on the ground that there was not sufficient evidence to form a cause of action. This motion, however, was denied, and the defendant began to introduce testimony in its favor this morning.

W. H. Bennett, door-walker at the 10-cent store, testified that about 10 o'clock of the evening that Johnson had trouble on a car Johnson and some companions were in the store in an intoxicated condition and created such a disturbance that he, Bennett, requested them to keep still or get out. The witness said that Johnson became agressive and talked back until it was necessary to tell the plaintiff and his friends to leave the store.

Johnson and his friends had previously testified that there was no trouble in the store and that they were not ordered out.

Andrew Hanson, conductor on the car, testified that Johnson and his party got on the car at First avenue west, opposite the 10-cent store. He said there were about fifty passengers on at the time. Hanson testified that when he attempted to collect fares from Johnson at Seventh avenue west the plaintiff claimed he had already paid and, when his claim was disputed, he became angry, called the conductor names and slapped him. Hanson said he did not attempt to collect another fare from Johnson after that and that he did not lay a hand on Johnson. The witness said that he told Johnson he would have to get off the car for making a disturbance when Johnson's friends interfered and made threats of what they would do if the plaintiff was ejected. Hanson testified that Johnson threw his hat on the floor, swung his arms and used vile language, frightening a number of women passengers and some girls who were on their way to their homes. The conductor stated that he made no attempt to put Johnson off, but that when the party got off at Twentieth avenue west he asked a policeman to arrest Johnson for disorderly conduct.

The conductor's testimony was corroborated by Henry Gonyea of West Duluth, a passenger. Gonyea stated that as soon as the conductor was told that Johnson had already paid his fare he turned away, when Johnson struck him. The witness said that Johnson became abusive and seemed to be "after the conductor" all the time, being prevented from striking again by his friends who held on to him. Gonyea said Johnson created such a disturbance in the car that many of the passengers, particularly the young girls, were frightened and wanted to get off, but he did all he could to pacify them while other passengers pushed Johnson out toward the rear of the car. During the melee somebody struck Gonyea on the head and knocked his hat out in the vestibule.

Charles Thompson, a young man residing in the West end, corroborated the testimony of the other witnesses as to the trouble created by Johnson. The witness said he saw Johnson strike Gonyea on the head and saw other passengers push Johnson back to the door. The witness said the conductor made no attempt to eject Johnson and that the motorman counseled the other passengers to drop the matter until a policeman could be found. The witness heard Johnson use bad language.

The witnesses said that when Johnson and his crowd got off the car at the West end several passengers shouted to the policemen to arrest Johnson and the "whole bunch" for creating a disturbance.

The company has subpoenaed a large number of girls who were on the car and who will testify about Johnson's actions.

AN AMATEUR VENTRILOQUIST

Passengers on East End Car Frightened by Strange Noises.

East enders who came down to the city on the street car that left the East end at about 8 o'clock this morning, were surprised to hear a strange sound, apparently coming from the inside of an old grip that reposed on the rear platform of the car.

A young insurance man, whose office is in the Palladio building, gave the grip a gentle kick, and the sound was repeated. The noise brought some of the female passengers to their feet. The sounds resembled the noise of some wild beast held in unwilling captivity. Some one suggested that a wild cat was imprisoned in the grip.

Speculation among the passengers as to what was in the grip grew intense. The curiosity of those with courage was very great, while those harboring a fear of beasts of any description devoutly wished that the owner of the grip and the noise-making animal inside would take the thing from the car.

Finally the curiosity of some men on the back platform became irresistible. The young insurance man volunteered to ascertain what was in the inside of the grip. Encouraged by his fellow passengers, he bent down and began to unfasten the catches of the old traveling bag.

With determination written on his features, he threw back the opening of the grip. Eagerly the passengers of the rear platform bent forward to have a look at the caged noise maker. Nothing but some tools met the expectant gaze of the peering passengers.

Finally a fat man in the middle of the car burst into an unsuppressed burst of gleeful laughter. The more the passengers gazed at him the more his mirth increased. Suddenly he arose and made his way to the rear platform.

He rang the signal bell and stood on the lower step. Just before the car came to a stop he exclaimed:

"Gentlemen, I see you are all curious to know what was making that noise in that grip. That grip and those tools belong to the street railway company. I am an amateur ventriloquist, and I am the party that has been imitating a wildcat that has been robbed of his last friend. I hope I have afforded you some amusement."

With that he swung off the car. Someone stated that a foot narrowly grazed the fat contour of his back, but this is not vouched for. But the mystery of the traveling bag was out, the insurance man was robbed of the chance of becoming a hero, in a small way, at least, and the fellows on the rear platform looked sheepish as the words of the fat amateur ventriloquist sank in.

Y. M. C. A. BANQUET.

Representatives From Many Cities of State Gather in Duluth.

The banquet which will be given this evening in connection with the opening of the new Y. M. C. A. building will not be a large affair, as it is merely a fraternal dinner, given by the Duluth Y. M. C. A. board to the state executive committee. There will probably be about thirty guests present.

The members of the Duluth board and the state executive committee will dine at the St. Louis hotel at 6 o'clock, following a meeting of the board, which will be held at the Y. M. C. A.'s new home at 5 o'clock.

The following members of the state committee have arrived in the city: Walter M. Carrow of Minneapolis, W. B. Mitchell of St. Cloud, Dr. A. E. Haynes of Minneapolis, Thomas Owens of Two Harbors, Edward Grace of St. Paul, G. P. Lyman of St. Paul, G. M. Palmer of Mankato, Albert Nason of St. Paul, and W. D. Willard of Mankato. Besides these, several other out-of-town guests are expected.

Frank H. Burt of Chicago, president of the Y. M. C. A. training school of Chicago, is in the city, and will address a meeting that will be held in the gymnasium of the new building this evening. The meeting will be one of exchanged greetings between the Duluth Y. M. C. A. and the representatives of the different associations of the state. This will be the feature of this evening's reception.

CRASHED INTO THE CITY DOCK

Steamer Newsboy Ran Into Wharf at Full Speed.

A crowd of people waiting for the ferry at the foot of Fifth avenue, at about 5:30 last evening, were surprised and horrified to see the steamer Newsboy making straight for the dock under a full head of steam. The steamer didn't slacken its speed in the least. On it came. Someone on the boat yelled hoarsely at the engineer, but it was too late. With the report like the crack of a heavy caliber revolver, the steamer crashed into the dock, tearing away the heavy supports as if they were thin lathing, and crashing fully five feet into the wooden framework of the dock.

The force of the collision threw the steamer back several feet. By that time the engineer was well aware that something had happened and had reversed his engines. The boat backed away and the men on it had an opportunity to view the wreckage to the dock.

When about 100 feet from the dock the captain says he gave the check signal to the engineer. The engineer stated that the check bell failed to ring. Not until it crashed into the dock was the speed decreased in the least. Had the steamer been heavier it is probable that the dock and office would have been wrecked.

SCHWAB OPTIMISTIC.

Says Nothing Can Retard Prosperity of the United States.

Detroit, Mich., May 29.—Charles M. Schwab, former president of the United States corporation, in an address last night, predicted that in ten years the annual productions of steel in this country would be 40,000,000 tons, as against 25,000,000 tons in 1907. Mr. Schwab said that while there existed today the greatest depression ever known in the history of the steel trade, conditions were steadily improving. Nothing, he said, could retard the progress and prosperity of the United States.

FINES ARE INCREASED

Disorderly Resorts Will in Future Pay $100 a Month.

The Former Fine of $50 a Month is Doubled.

The monthly fines imposed upon the keepers of disorderly resorts in Duluth will in future be $100 a month, in place of $50 a month.

In the past it has been the custom to arrest and fine all keepers of disorderly resorts once a month, the regulation fine being $50 and costs, or $52. The keepers of these resorts appeared on the last Friday in the month and paid these fines, which amounted practically to a license.

Today when they appeared they were fined $100 apiece, or double the former fine.

Owing to the fact that intoxicating liquors were sold in the resorts, it is claimed that they were getting what amounted to a saloon license for $600 a year, whereas the regular license fee is $1,000 a year. The increased fine will amount to $1,200 a year.

PATTEN CLEANED UP $2,000,000

Before the Bears Succeeded in Breaking Corner in Corn.

Chicago, May 29.—The bears in the grain pits on the board of trade today scored a decisive victory in the early trading and forced down prices on the May delivery of wheat, corn and oats from 2½c to 5c per bushel. The greatest loss was recorded in May corn, the bull campaign in which has been led by James A. Patten. The price of that grain broke from 82½c, the opening quotation, to 77½c within the first hour of trading. May oats was a close second and dropped from 56¾c to 51½c. Wheat declined from $1.09⅛ to $1.07 in the same space of time. Trading was light in the May deliveries of all the grain pits and prices declined from ½c to ¾c at a jump.

Before noon May wheat reacted to $1.10⅛, May corn to 82c, and May oats to 53c. Later May wheat advanced to $1.11 and May corn to 82½c. Wheat held steady, but May corn dropped heavily the last two minutes of trading, going down from 80c to 80¼c, where it closed.

Desperate efforts were made today to fill the local elevators with corn and oats, it being estimated that more than 1,000,000 bushels would be placed in them before 1 p. m. While definite figures were lacking, it was thought that James A. Patten and his followers have cleaned up at least $2,000,000 through their manipulation of May corn. Mr. Patten himself declared today, at the conclusion of trading, that he had no idea how much money he had made.

A. H. W. Eckstein has received a letter rfrom the mine superintendent of the Mazatzal Copper company, at Jerome, Ariz., in which he says: "We have driven sixty feet on the vein in values running from 5 to 15 per cent. At present we are in carbonite ore assaying 4 per cent, with ribbons or stringers of siliclous ore assaying up to 20 per cent. I am now quite well satisfied that we are on the apex of a large body of good ore which I expect will widen out very materially, as the footwall lies at an angle of 60 degs. and the hanging wall at an angle of 45 degs. I have just ordered a station to be cut to the footwall and a shaft or winze to be sunk. Our new 30-horse power boiler is now in commission and should make good headway. Last week we drifted twenty feet. We are certainly going to show up a big mine very shortly."

POLITICAL WHISPERS

Candidates for County Offices Beginning to Show Up.

Would-be Legislators Also Making Their Appearance.

Political whispering have begun to be heard. The names of prospective candidates for county offices are beginning to be spoken by those who are well informed of the political happenings of this district, and rumor has it that quite a goodly crowd of candidates will come boldly to the front and announce their candidacy, in the near future.

Rumor has connected the name of Chester A. Congdon with an ambition to become a member of the next legislature. He has been quite freely mentioned as a possible candidate from the Fifty-first district.

If Mr. Congdon did decide to make the race it would be at the sacrifice of his private business. He has always taken an active interest in public affairs, however, and in spite of his large business interests has found time to devote considerable attention to matters pertaining to the wefare of the city and the state.

C. B. Miller, of course, will not be a candidate for re-election in the Fifty-first district. N. F. Hugo, who also represented the Fifty-first district in the last house, will be a candidate for re-election. Mr. Hugo so stated yesterday. James A. Wharton, Samuel F. Staples, John H. Hilliard, a well known contractor, and M. E. Gleason of Ely, are mentioned as candidates. There will be plenty of competition in this district.

In the Fiftieth John R. Randall and Andrew Miller, the present representatives, will be candidates for re-election. J. H. McGillivray has filed, while rumor says that H. A. Wing will also be a candidate, and there will probably be others.

In the Forty-ninth there is a good list of prospective candidates.

John Saari of Sparta, and Joseph E. Austin of Chisholm, will be candidates for re-election, while political gossip has credited David Graham with having ambitions to again become a member of the house.

West Duluth people want representation in the next house and they will probably unite on some candidate. Dr. Graham represented that end of the city four years ago and made an excellent record.

It is also known that several candidates from the range will file for nomination. The range voters are of the opinion that they have not had quite their share of the offices and they are going to make an effort this year to secure a better representation.

It is probable that all of the present county officers will be candidates for re-election In addition to these candidates, the name of Samuel Owens of Tower has been mentioned as a probable candidate for the office of county sheriff, and that of A. E. Pfremer of Hibbing as a candidate for judge of probate.

At present the only county officer from the range is M. C. Palmer, register of deeds.

Interest in the political battle between J. Adam Bede and Clarence B. Miller has been reawakened during the past week. It seems to be the opinion that Congressman Bede has hurt his cause in Duluth by his failure to do many things that were expected of him. One local Republican stated that Mr. Bede's eulogies of the speaker of the house had not helped his cause any.

The primary elections for the county convention, to elect delegates to the state convention, to be held the first of July, will be held June 23. There will be no particular fight on in this county, as there are no candidates for places upon the state ticket. It is not expected that much preference will be shown, or any instructions given for any one of the candidates now in the field for governor.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A house bill increasing the compensation of inspectors in the customs service to $6 per diem and fixing the salary of the treasurer of the United States at $8 000 per annum, was passed by the senate Thursday.

Fred J. Trumper, a young civil engineer of Cleveland, was Thursday acquitted of a charge of murder at the Clinton, B. C., assizes. Trumper killed James Coleman in the northern wilds of British Columbia early this year. Trumper's plea was self-defense.

Governor Haskell of Oklahoma has signed the famous hotel inspection bill, commonly known as the nine-foot sheet bill, because of the provision that the upper sheet on all beds must be long enough to turn back two and a half feet over the other covers.

Mrs. Eva Jevernicka, the young Polish woman who last Monday frustrated an attempt by three men to rob messengers of the Jefferson bank in New York of $43,000, received a reward of $500 from the officers of the bank. She said that she and her husband will at once return to Poland.

In a game of baseball in Poughkeepsie last Thursday Charles Lempke, aged 14 years, was struck under the heart by a pitched ball and was killed.

Two persons are dead and a score were prostrated from the heat at Pittsburg Thursday. The mercury reached 88 at noon.

The apostolic delegate, Mgr. Falconio, and Father A. P. Doyle of the Catholic university, left Washington Thursday for St. Paul, Minn., where on Sunday next they will participate in the ceremonies incident to the laying of the cornerstone of the new cathedral in Minneapolis.

Mrs. Sherman Morris will in a few days appeal to Governor Cummins of Iowa to aid her in securing the freedom of her husband, who is better known as Frank Shercliffe, the once notorious diamond robber. Shercliffe is under arrest in Michigan charged with a murder committed in Colorado many years ago.

Joseph Altonio Maceo, a Cuban student at Syracuse university, and Alice Isabel Mackley, procured a marriage license Thursday. The groom gave his birthplace as Jamaica, West Indies. He says that he is the son of the Cuban insurgent, Gen. Atonio Maceo. The family of Miss Mackley strongly opposes the marriage.

ON THE IRON RANGES

ASK GOVERNOR TO ELY AFFAIR

Minnesota Executive Invited to Address School Commencement.

Ely, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The high school commencement exercises will be held n the auditorium of the high school on Thursday evening, June 11. The three students averaging the highest for the four years will deliver orations, and the high school chorus will furnish vocal music.

Governor Johnson and United States Senator Moses E. Clapp have been invited to address the class, and citizens at this time also. The present class is the largest ever graduated from the high school, and numbers thirteen in all. The annual exhibit of work in drawing, penmanship, sewing, cooking, commercial studies and manual training classes will be exhibited on Thursday, June 4, in the afternoon, in all the buildings except the high school. The high school exhibit will be at night, from 8 to 10. The year's work has been very successful in these departments, and the work shown will be very interesting.

The senior class of the high school are rehearsing "The Princess," dramatized from Tennyson's famous poem, and expect to give it in the auditorium on Tuesday of next week. The following is the cast of characters: "Princess Ida," Myrtle Holmes; "Lady Psyche" and "Lady Blanche," instructors in the university, Myrtle Hedloff and Ethel Prisk, "Melissa," daughter of "Lady Blanche," Edith Trezona; "Violet," daughter of "Ipse," Annie Mitchell; "The Prince," Clarence Williams; "Florian," his friend and brother of "Psyche," Emor Ellefsen; "Cyril," friend to the "Prince" and "Florian," Will Trezona; "Gama," king, and father to "Ida," Earl Anderson; "Ipse," nobleman at "King Gama's" court, Elmer Johnson; pupils of "Lady Blanche" and "Lady Pysche," Edith Trezona, Gladys Ellis, Helena Horovitz, Anna Knutson, Rose Blumenson, Edith Ellefsen, Ruth Prout, Annie Mitchell and Emma Hansen.

SHIPPING DAYS ON AT HIBBING

Seven Steam Shovels and Thirty-Five Train Crews Ordered.

Hibbing, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ore shipping season, which has been in rather a comatose state, can be said to have started today. Orders have been received to place seven steam shovels at work in the more important of the Oliver Mining company's properties, while thirty-five train crews are said to have been ordered to report for duty forthwith. This is interpreted to mean that from now on large consignments of ore will be sent from this section daily as long as navigation lasts.

VIRGINIA IS PATRIOTIC.

Already Preparing for Proper Celebration of Fourth.

Virginia, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—A mass meeting of business men has been called for this evening at the city hall by the officers of the Commercial club for the purpose of arranging for a proper celebration of the Fourth of July. No celebration was held here last year and there appears to be general desire for a rousing time this year.

It is believed that a good celebration and advertised in advance will be attended by many people up the line of the Rainy Lake road as well as from the surrounding range towns.

DR. POWELL TO SPEAK.

Duluth Man Will Address Virginia Pupils Memorial Day.

Virginia, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Superintendent Bliss announces that he is especially desirous that the parents of the public school pupils and the general public shall be present at the Memorial day exercises to be held in the Roosevelt Auditorium tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Arrangements have been made to seat the adults who come first and only a sufficient number of the higher grade pupils will be permitted in the room to fill the remaining seats.

Thepupils will assemble at 9 o'clock as usual and brief exercises will be held in the yard in front of the Roosevelt building. The parade will then be formed and will be participated in by all the pupils of the city. After the parade the exercises will be held in the auditorium. These will be brief. Rev. Dr. Powell of Duluth will deliver the address.

During the day a committee of teachers and pupils will decorate the graves of the soldier dead in Greenwood cemetery.

GRAND RAPIDS WRECK.

Through Freight Train in Collision With Work Train.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—A head-on collision on the Great Northern occurred here about 9 o'clock last night, when a through westbound freight train struck the engine of a work train at the water tank, derailing the work train and tearing up seventy-five feet of track, which delayed traffic for several hours. The pilot of the freight engine was smashed, but the engine was not damaged otherwise. The fireman on the work train engine caught his leg between the firebox and the tender and injured it, but not seriously.

NOTES FROM EVELETH.

Eveleth, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Besides the Memorial exercises that will be given at the high school tomorrow, similar services will be given in honor of the Civil war veterans in the several churches in the city.

The dance that will be given tonight at the Vail hall by a number of young people, calling themselves the "Merry Widowers," is attracting much attention in and around Eveleth, as it will be a unique affair from reports. An orchestra has been engaged to furnish music for the evening.

GRAND RAPIDS BRIEFS.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ladies of the M. E. church entertained with a lawn fete at the residence of Will Nesbit on Thursday afternoon and evening.

Mrs. C. H. Marr and Mrs. C. E. Aitken and daughter, Jessie, left Wednesday for a month's visit with friends and relatives in Watertown and Jamestown, N. D.

There will be no services in the Episcopal church next Sunday. In the morning, Rev. E. Spencer Murphy will preach at Bovey and in the evening the services at the high school auditorium will be the attraction.

J. J. Decker has sold his residence to Mrs. Holmes, who has rented the newly acquired property to Mr. and Mrs. Shipman.

OFFICER WIELDS BIG STOVE POKER

Belabors Prisoner and Now He is Out of a Job.

Virginia, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Leander Oman was arraigned before Judge Fleming in municipal court yesterday, on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree, and was bound over to the grand jury, bail being fixed at $300. He was taken to Duluth this morning by Deputy Sheriff Gately. Oman is charged with breaking into the store of R. Steinberg and stealing goods to the value of $300. When arrested, in the new village of Gilbert, he had two of the Steinberg suits on his person. He claimed they were given to him by his friend, Henry Pelto, who was with him at the time of the arrest, but who run and got away.

Deputy Sheriff Gately also took to Duluth with him, Mike Kornonen, who was sent up for ten days on a charge of disorderly conduct. It is believed that the man is not right mentally and the trip to Duluth will give the authorities opportunity to determine as to his sanity. While in jail Monday evening, Korhonen became engaged in a scuffle with another jail inmate and got the latter down. Officer John Pertulla endeavored to pull him off, when he resisted the officer, who used his club on Korhonen's head. Failing to bring him to time with this, the officer is said to have gone down in the basement and procured an iron stove shaker, which he used on the man's head, with telling effect. Korhonen had to be taken to the hospital to have his head attended to. As soon as he heard of the affair, Chief of Police Walsh removed Pertulla from the force, and later swore out a warrant for his arrest. He was released on $100 bail and will have a hearing next Tuesday.

C. N. Hunt was charged with purloining an overcoat from William B. Martin, a guest at the New England hotel. Hunt was wearing the coat. Hunt claims to be a railroad man. The case against Hunt was dismissed, the charge being withdrawn, as he claimed to have taken the coat by mistake, and there was nothing to disprove his statement.

MEMORIAL DAY AT TWO HARBORS

Parade and Public Exercises to Make Up Well Selected Program.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—If the weather permits tomorrow the observance of Memorial day here will be very fine. All of the business houses and public offices will be closed for the entire day. The program for the day calls for a parade starting at 9:45 a. m. from First avenue and Poplar street as follows:

First, drum corps; second, firing squad; third, fraternal orders; fourth, citizens; fifth, decorating committee; sixth, old soldiers in carriages. Mooney of Duluth; song, "America," quartet and audience; benediction, Rev. S. A. Johnson.

Then comes the parade. Form line of march. First, drum corps; second, firing suad; third, fraternal orders; fourth, citizens; fifth, school children with teachers; sixth, decorating committee and speaker; seventh, old soldiers; march to passenger dock, where program of decoration of water, prayer and salute to marine heroes will be given.

GEORGE SPEAR TO SPEAK.

Will Deliver Address at Grand Rapids Memorial Day.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The members of B. F. Huson post, G. A. R. and their friends expect, if the weather is favorable tomorrow to make a splendid showing during the Memorial day exercises.

All veterans will meet at the courthouse at 9:30 o'clock in the morning and march to the city hall, where the procession will form at 10 o'clock, headed by the Grand Rapids cornet band, followed by B. F. Huson post, ladies of the G. A. R., teachers and pupils of public schools, civic and fraternal societies and citizens on foot and in carriages.

The procession will march south on Lelaney avenue and cross the bridge to the South side cemetery where services will be held and George H. Spear will deliver a short address. Sons of Veterans and Spanish war soldiers are specially invitted to attend.

CHISHOLM NOTES.

Chisholm, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The opening of the Bank Buffet will take place Saturday night. The Chisholm National band will furnish the music.

Henry Kelly of St. Paul spent the fore part of the week looking over his property interests in Chisholm and Virginia. He left this morning for his home in St. Paul.

A dance was given Wednesday night in Central avenue hall by the Temperance society and was fairly well attended. A very enjoyable time was had by those attending. Music was furnished by the City band

Carl York transacted business in Duluth Wednesday, returning the same night.

TO OPERATE ON BOY.

Aurora, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Humane Officer T. E. Grae was in St. Paul recently and he called at the State Hospital for Cripples to see little John Ryouk, who was taken from the local kindergarten to that institution about March 1, where he is to be operated on so as to remedy a bad case of bow-legs. The operation has not yet been performed as it was necessary to get his system in good condition before doing it.

BANKERS AT COLERAINE.

About Fifty Attended District Meeting Thursday.

Coleraine, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. I. Prince, cashier of the City National Bank of Duluth, the president of the Eighth District Bankers' association, presided at the annual meeting held here yesterday afternoon. There were about fifty bankers and others present and the session was taken up with a discussion of papers upon banking topics. Last evening there was a reception and ball at the Auditorium which was attended by many citizens from Coleraine, Bovey, Grand Rapids and other points. The rain disarranged some of the plans for the entertainment of the visitors, but on the whole the session was voted a success.

CHISHOLM BALL GAMES ALREADY ARRANGED FOR.

Chisholm, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Colored Keystones of Minneapolis will play here Tuesday afternoon, June 2. The Chisholm team will have a strong line-up against the Keystones.

The Chisholm Blues will play the Burt-Sellers of the Oliver league Sunday afternoon, on the Chisholm grounds. It will be a good game, as both teams have a strong battery, and also the teams are stickers. The batteries for the Blues will be Humbol and Masterson, while Cobb will do the flinging for the Burt-Sellers and Kelly the receiving.

CIRCUS AT EVELETH.

Eveleth, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Campbell Bros.' circus exhibited here yesterday afternoon and evening and drew large crowds at both performances. A number of out of town people came in to witness the show, which arrived here early in the morning from Virginia. From here the show goes to Biwabik and then to Ely.

EXHIBIT PUPILS' WORK.

Hibbing, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday and today the exhibits of the pupils of the schools in special work has been on exhibition at the Central school and admired by hundreds.

The exhibit is an unusually excellent one and shows unmistakably the good work accomplished during the past school year. This is the last school of the city to exhibit its work, the other schools having held similar exhibitions recently.

WILL SUE AUTOMOBILISTS.

Avon Man Proposes to Make Reckless Speeders Pay for Injury.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Theodore Ritter, the Avon man whose wife was seriously injured in an automobile accident, is making arrangements to bring an action against the driver of the machine which caused the runaway at St. Augusta Monday afternoon. Mr. Ritter called on Attorney J. B. Mimsi here and asked that proceedings be begun unless some settlement is made by the Minneapolis parties. Ritter believes that he has a clear case against the men and is entitled to damages.

Harold Vance, the driver of the machine, has been written and asked to come to this city to meet the local parties.

The condition of Mrs. Ritter is about the same. The physician in attendance states that she was hurt internally and it will take a few days to determine the extent of the injuries. The injuries to her hip, right side and limb are more serious than at first supposed and it will be some time before Mrs. Ritter will be able to be out.

Silberstein & Bondy Company

QUALITY PIONEERS.

The Silberstein & Bondy Co. Will Close During Memorial Services, Saturday, Decoration Day.

$14.75 for Tailored Suits

Here's a suit selling occasion for tomorrow afternoon that will pay you well for your investment. All broken lines are now hurrying out simply on account of the interestingly low figure at which they are being offered. We're giving these reduced figures now when you are anxious to buy—some of these suits were $25, others were $30 and $35, a few even more—choose at $14.75 tomorrow.

$25.00 for $35.00 Suits

A bigger and better lot of smart models in lines that are a little nearer complete in sizes. There's a splendid variety of up-to-date styles from which to select your suit. You cannot improve on their perfection at any price; you cannot duplicate them elsewhere at $25. You'll be pleased when you see them if you have a suit to buy.

The Summer Models

Are beautiful in their graceful, tailored lines and fresh, crispy materials. In summer frocks the superiority of our styles is still more pronounced and observable. There is just as much demand for perfect fit and jauntiness in appearance in these as in heavier fabrics. Such an extraordinary variety; such a broad range in materials, yet withal so inexpensive. For instance in outing and vacation suits we suggest a choice from a line of pretty Jumper Frocks in serviceable blue Percale, waist piped with white, full pleated skirt with two rows of neat braid, at $4.25.

Then again there is a beautiful line of Linen and Repp Suits made with semi-fitting coat and full gored skirt. A complete choice of colors, natural, champagne, tan, new blue, oyster white, etc.—$7.50.

Smart Jumper Dresses in imported Scotch plaid gingham, in new and exclusive patterns, trimmed with bias bands piped with white—$8.75.

Another jaunty Outing or Summer Suit is in either Repp or Linen, 30-inch Prince Chap coat style, full pleated skirt or gored with a fold, choice selection of colors—only $8.50.

From this price the lines go up gradually—$16.50 and $19.50 for tailored Suits in the best linen or French linen canvas

Summer Frocks for Girls

Never have we shown such a variety; you will recognize the fact that this means something when you make comparisons. A dress for every occasion from the neat frock as low as $1.50, to the beautifully tailored creations at $7.50, $10 and $12.50.

But you will enjoy looking at these and we invite you to see for yourself. Bring the girls tomorrow afternoon.

Early Summer Millinery

The millinery displays for tomorrow afternoon are reinforced by some entirely new lots direct from our own workrooms. We want you to see these new creations, as they comprise many clever and attractive ideas that are entirely original—pretty conceits in natural colored English straw, Jap and Milan braids, new Leghorns, new Corday effects, Panama hats in new shapes, jaunty straw Turbans and chic Street Hats, all very smart and popular. In all, a wonderful display of early summer novelties absolutey unequaled hereabouts. And the prices are so very reasonable, commencing as low as $3.50, then $5.00, $6.00 and $7.50.

"Corali" Jewelry

Something entirely new in jewelry—an exact imitation of real coral at about one-tenth the cost of the genuine article. "Corali" is the cleverest imitation ever produced and made by a secret process which required many years of hard study to perfect. Classical heads cut out in bold relief, with fancy chased edge mountings in rose and antique finish—Brooches, Veil Pins, Scarf Pins, La Vallieres and Hat Pins. For sale exclusively at our jewelry counter—50c.

HE APPEALS FROM AWARD

Capt. McDougall Says $46,606 is Grossly Inadequate Amount.

Asks for $70,000 Damages for Taking of His Property.

Capt. Alexander McDougall, whose property at the southeast corner of Fifth avenue west and Second street was acquired by the county under condemnation proceedings, for courthouse purposes, has filed in the district court notice of an appeal from the award of the appraisers appointed by the court to fix a valuation on his premises.

In the notice, which was filed yesterday afternoon, Capt. McDougall claims that the award of $46,606.99 is grossly inadequate, and that by reason of the county taking his property he has been damaged in the amount of $70,000. S. E. and William Harrison are his attorneys.

The appeal by Capt. McDougall is not a surprise, as he has stated to friends since the award that he would take the matter into court. His appeal, however, is the first to be filed by any of the former owners of property about the intersection of the street and avenue, that the county acquired for a courthouse site.

Deeds to the Spalding, the Levine and the Cash properties are already in the county's possession and warrants have been drawn on the county treasurer for the payments.

All the property owners and the county had thirty days from the date of the award in which to take an appeal and there are several days yet before the time limit expires.

Capt. McDougall's appeal is likely to come on for an early hearing in the district court, and the questions of fact will be determined by a jury, after testimony is presented by the appellant and the county as to the value of the property taken. The jury may increase, decrease or leave the award at the figures set by the appraisers, who were T. W. Hoopes, R. B. Knox and George R. Laybourn.

French & Bassett's great furniture and house furnishing store will be open this evening until 10 o'clock.

MEN TOUCHED FOR THEIR CASH

Say Lottie Thomas Abstracted $35 From Their Pockets.

Lottie Thomas appeared in police court this morning charged with being an inmate of a house of ill fame. Back of this was a charge made by two men that she had robbed them of $25 and $10, respectively. John Isaccson was the heavier loser.

Lottie pleaded not guilty to the first charge, but later changed her mind and asked to be taken back to court again. Her request was granted, and she pleaded guilty. Judge Windom said he did not want to impose sentence until he had heard the story of the men involved, and set the hearing for this afternoon. The men say she took the money two or three weeks ago, during the course of a conversation. They did not see her take the cash, but missed it immediately after leaving.

BIG WOODMEN PICNIC.

Cambridge, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Modern Woodmen of America in Isanti county will hold a monster demonstration at Cambridge on Friday, June 26. There are six Woodmen camps in the county and the members of each camp are invited to attend in a body.

HOTEL ST. REGIS, NEW YORK

The Recognized Leader and the Standard for Comparison.

First of the twentieth century type of hotels to be built and now the recognized standard for comparison of all that is best and most desirable, not only in construction and equipment but in management, the St. Regis, New York, occupies a proud position among the greatest hotels of the world. It embodies the mature ideas of one of America's most noted hotel builders and is under a management which is satisfied with nothing short of perfection.

Under such conditions it is not to be wondered at that the St. Regis has become a favorite with travelers on both sides of the Atlantic who make it their home repeatedly. The rooms and suites are unusually large and well-furnished and have a charming outlook in all directions, and its restaurant ranks at the head of New York's famous dining establishments. Whether you visit New York often or seldom, the St. Regis is the hotel above all others where you will always get the best value for your expenditure and where you will always find congenial surroundings and meet the most desirable people. The restaurant charges being on the samo standard scale, it costs no more to stay at the St. Regis than at other high-grade hotels. The price for a large, light and well-furnished room is but $4 a day, or with bath connected $5 ($6 for two people), or a suite of parlor, bedroom and bath for $12.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The bi-monthly meeting of the Woman's Council will be held Friday morning of next week at the club room of the library. The meeting which will be the last before the regular summer work of the council in undertaken, will be an important one. The final reports of the various committees for these enterprises will be heard and final action taken.

The domestic science school, which has been maintained for three years at the Adams school at the West end, will have Mrs. Emily McCurdy again as the teacher. The women who have been closely identified with this work are delighted that Mrs. McCurdy was available for this year. Last season 129 young girls from the vicinity of the school and other parts of the town were enrolled at the school and each received two lessons a week. It is probable that a like number will be accommodated this year. The work has been most successful and teachers and mothers of the girls who have been attendants are most enthusiastic in their praise of the school. The chairman of the committee of the council in charge of this work is Mrs. William White.

The final report of the committee for manual training summer school will be heard. The school will be maintained for boys from 9 to 14 years of age in the manual training department of the high school. G. A. Gregory has been engaged as instructor and from the eager applicants already asking for admission this school will be taxed to its capacity. This work will be undertaken for the first time this year and it is hoped by many of the council and others interested in such work that it will be the beginning of vacation schools for this city on a much larger scale. Mrs. J. F. Killorin is chairman of this committee.

It is probable the Duluth Art school, which was started under the auspices of the council will be launched as an individual organization. The work was begun in the council, but during the few months of its existence it has been established firmly enough to warrant its existence as a separate institution. The final action on this matter will be taken at the meeting next Friday morning.

RECEIVE CLERGY.

Bishop and Mrs. J. D. Morrison Entertain Visitors.

Bishop and Mrs. J. D. Morrison were hosts last evening at a reception at their home, 2131 East Superior street, in honor of the visiting clergymen and their wives who were in attendance at the annual Episcopal convention of the Duluth diocese. This reception has come to be an annual affair and is a charming social function to close the work of the convention. Among the Episcopalian clergy are many full blooded Indians, who are doing earnest work among their own people, and their presence at the convention and reception always adds interest. Receiving with Bishop and Mrs. Morrison was Dean Arthur H. Wurtele. Assisting about the parlors were Miss Hobbs and Miss Cunningham. In the dining room Mrs. S. L. Frazer presided. An informal musical program was given by Mrs. Percy Gough, Miss Munsey, Miss Elizabeth Morton and Charles Applehagen. There was a reading by Miss Mae Wylie. Nearly 300 guests called during the evening.

LEAVE FOR HOME.

Duluth Teachers Will Depart at Close of School.

The exodus of teachers from the city will take place the latter part of next week, many leaving on afternoon trains Friday of next week. Others will delay their departure until the following day, and some others will remain in the city until the next week. Several will go abroad, others will study in this country, many will visit at their homes for the vacation and a great many will remain in Duluth for the season.

Three of the members of the high school faculty will go abroad for the summer. Miss Agnes Wells will spend the summer in England. Miss Ethel McEwen will go to Norway, and Miss Woodbridge will spend the season in Italy. Miss Anna Carey of the English department of the normal school will also spend the summer abroad.

PIANO RECITAL.

Leo Schmeid to Be Heard in Fine Program.

One of the most interesting musical events of the spring season will be the piano recital by Leo Schmeid, which will be given at Pilgrim Congregational church this evening. This young musician has prepared a program of excellent numbers, one in fact of which an experienced concert performer might well be proud, and in his formal debut there is widespread interest. Mr. Schmied is the honor pupil of this year's high school graduating class and this evening's concert is the first effort to provide funds for a college course.

Dancing Party.

Dr. and Mrs. G. Herbert Jones will be hosts at a dancing party this evening at the Boat clubhouse, in compliment to Lou Smallwood and Frank Eugene Brooks, whose wedding will take place next week.

Informal Afternoon.

Mrs. James Mishler entertained informally this afternoon at her home on London road in honor of Miss Mary Richards who will be one of the June brides. The rooms were simply decorated in bride's roses and the hostess was assisted by Miss Zelma Kaiser. A delightful afternoon was enjoyed by a few of the intimate friends of the guest of honor.

Art School Notes.

There will be no meeting of the children's class of the Art school tomorrow because of the observance of Memorial day.

Meeting of the board of managers of the Art school will be held Wednesday morning of next week at 10 o'clock at the club room of the library. Plans for the summer course will be completed.

Personal Mention.

KEEP SMILING.

Directions on How to Accompish It Charmingly.

Good teeth are so attractive that the advantage of possessing them is beyond discussion. But it is a fact, and a sad one, that there are few sets of good teeth in America. The Irish girl has lovely teeth; the teeth of the British woman are hard and sound, but she does not keep them white; the teeth of the Russian woman are small and regular and perfect in their shape. And so, with the teeth of most of the European woman. But when it comes to the American girl, it is not once in a thousand times that her teeth are good.

The American girl does not know how to use her lips. That is one of the tricks of having a pretty mouth, namely, the knowing how to show the teeth. The proper method is by wrinkling the upper lip. The average girl, when she smiles, draws down her upper lip in a grimace. She should practice lifting the upper lip and wrinkling it. This may sound difficult, but it is really quite easy. Take a hand glass and practice wrinkling the lip, and see for yourself.

The Irish girl smiles when she talks. The mouth is very important in a woman's makeup. The French woman believe in making the mouth prominent. They like to have the lips a bright red and the teeth like pearls.

Study your mouth, if your lips are red wear a red rose in your hat or in your hair. If your lips are pink, gladden them into a deeper color by a touch of strawberry in your attire. Don't forget to put color into your lips. Remember that they should be like ripe cherries. Your mouth should be your best feature.

ART OF LEAVING.

Long Delayed Departures Are Annoyingly Ill-Bred.

Never say you are going until you are ready to start, advises an exchange. Do not rise to make your adieu and then remember something you want to talk about and keep your hostess standing indefinitely. Once you decide to go, go! Say good afternoon or good evening to others in the room, go directly to the hall, gather up any wraps you may have left there, and depart at once. Do not expect your hostess to accompany you into the hall and stand and chat interminably with you, leaving other guests in the parlor. Once you have said "good bye," her place is with those who are still her guests.

If you stumble upon a dinner party, when you are making a late Sunday afternoon call, do not apologize. Simply make a very formal call of ten minutes or fifteen at the most and depart, as if you had never intended to stop longer. A formal call should never run less than ten minutes, or more than thirty.

If other guests arrive just as you meant to depart, do not embarrass your hostess by going with her to the door as she starts to receive the newcomers. Give her time to receive them and introduce you, then after a few conventional remarks, you can take departure and leave the newcomers to the attention of your hostess. Never try to outsit a new arrival. It looks as if you were afraid you might miss something!

The tactful man or woman always recognizes when the call is made at an inopportune moment and times her departure accordingly. However gracious a hostess may be, a new arrival can detect in the very atmosphere that her call should be shortened.

Modern Society.

Selfish, greedy, superficial and insincere—so has modern society been labeled by some of the leading women of fashion in the court, and among them Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish and Mrs. Potter Palmer. "The members of fashionable society," so says one of these critics, "are engaged in a mad race to get ahead of each other in the possession of worldly goods. Years ago we had really good times, good friends and we lived well. Nowadays we dash from one place to another. We get a smattering of this and a smattering of that and we never have a taste of the real joys of life.

"The young woman cultivates her physical attractions to the exclusion of her mental ones—she has no real friends, because she has no mind for them. I am fond of girls, perhaps, because of my own happy girlhood—and I often try to make them see what they are missing by living so rapidly. The lavish display they make of clothes is enough to frighten any man.

"And the servant problem! Formerly the servants may have felt they owned the houses we lived in, but we were willing that they should, so long as it kept them interested in their work. Their unrest in the old days seemed to lie in the effort to excel each other."

Pregnant remarks, these, in days of hotel life, dashes across the briny, divorces, reconciliations, discontent and all.

BURNING COUCH INJURES TWO

Mr. and Mrs. G. Harkness Receive Burns Saving Home.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Harkness of 401 East First street were both quite badly burned about the face and hands while extinguishing a fire in their home about 11 o'clock last evening. The property damage was slight.

In some mysterious manner a couch in one of the front rooms caught fire. In closing up the house prior to retiring for the night, Mr. Harkness went into the kitchen. He remained there a few minutes, and when he re-entered the front rooms on his way upstairs, the couch was all ablaze. The excelsior stuffing was burning fiercely, and the pillows and surrounding carpet were also on fire.

Mr. Harkness grabbed the piece of furniture, calling for help, and started for the door. He was joined by Mrs. Harkness and a roomer in the house. The two men carried the sofa into the outer air, while Mrs. Harkness fought down the blaze in the room. They succeeded in extinguishing the flames, but all three were burned, though Mr. and Mrs. Harkness were the worst sufferers.

TWO DULUTH GRADUATES.

Miss Gertrude Earhart and Allen Whipple Graduate at Columbia.

Two Duluth students were among the graduates of Columbia university at the annual commencement which was held at New York Wednesday of this week.

Miss Gertrude Earhart, who is a sister of Mrs. Fred White and Miss Frances Earhart of this city was graduated from the Teachers college with the degree of bachelor of science in education. From the school of physicians and surgeons, Allen Oldfather Whipple, B. S., also of this city was graduated with the degree of doctor of medicine. Mr. Whipple is the oldest son of Mrs. Mary Whipple of Duluth and is well known here.

TWO BECOME BANKRUPT.

Fargo, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two bankruptcy petitions have been received in the clerk of court's office here. Jacob Nesvig of Buxton, a live stock shipper, places his liabilities at $1,462.55 and his assets at $1,405.

Frederick A. Barnard, a Grand Forks railway conductor, says that his liabilities are $1,901.25 and his assets are $850.

FIRM TONE TO PRODUCE

Wet Weather Throughout Country Causes Strong Market.

Shipments of Green Stuff From the South Retarded.

Wet weather throughout the country has resulted in a stiffer undertone to the local produce markets. While there have been no marked advances in price, the market is considerably stronger than it was a week ago.

The wet weather is most reflected in the market for green stuff. There has been much rain in the South, so that shipments from that section of the country of the fresh vegetables that the local market affords, have been rather light. Arkansas has been sending fewer strawberries and the quality has not been so good as those which came a little earlier. Prices have shown no change to speak of, however.

Illinois is shipping strawberries more freely than it was, although unfavorable climatic conditions in that state have been retarding shipments for the past week.

The effect of the dampness on the berries that are shipped is not good. They become rather mealy and lose much of their flavor and original tartness.

The Tennessee berries are practically out of the market now as the season of shipping for that state has come to an end. It was a good season for Tennessee. That state has shipped a great number of berries this season and the quality and flavor were excellent.

Oranges are about unchanged, as to price, but the quality is hardly the same as during the winter months, when they say that Duluth had the best oranges ever shipped here, and at the most reasonable prices. The best of California's crop has been consumed and the oranges which are coming now are of poorer grade.

Grape fruit is still in the market but its days are numbered as the season for it is about over. It is selling at $5.50 to $5.75 a case.

Lemons are quite plentiful, around $3.50 and $3.75 a case.

Stocks of apples are running low but the demand for them is not so keen as a while ago, so that prices have not been doing much vaulting. The New England apples have seen their last days here, for this season.

Prices for nuts are unchanged. The market for them is very slack, as it is "between crops." The present stocks are old nuts, and they have begun to show the ravages of time. At any rate, it is a good deal of a gamble when you crack one just now. It is either very bad, bad or indifferent. The peanuts seem to be putting up the best front.

Bananas are becoming more plentiful every day, although the price still remains at 4 cents a pound. Receipts have been rather light for the past few days, but this stringency is only temporary.

The cold weather has made prices for green vegetables very steady. Had it not been for this, the week would probably have seen some declines, as the season for green stuff is getting well under way. Next week receipts are expected to show a considerable increase, and there will likely be an easier tone to the quotations.

Tomatoes are still high, at 60 cents, as receipts continue light. Lettuce is easier, selling at $1 a box, and further reductions are expected in the market for this vegetable. Radishes are unchanged in price and are showing an improved flavor right along.

In the staple vegetable market, stocks of old potatoes are beginning to show unmistakeable signs of wear and tear, and are being supplanted in a measure by new potatoes from the Southwest. Quite a few new potatoes have been received from Texas, and Oklahoma is now sending some. They are still expensive, the new spuds wholesaling at $4.75 a barrel. Old potatoes are unchanged from last week in price.

The season for sauerkraut is about over, and it has practically disappeared from Michigan street.

California cabbages are being offered here at $3 per hundredweight.

Butter remains on the same easy basis it dropped into last week, although there is a slightly firmer feeling, owing to the unfavorable weather. Creamery prints are 22 to 26 cents and the other grades unchanged.

Fresh eggs are 15 to 16 cents and are quite plentiful at those prices.

Fish, poultry and meats are unchanged from a week ago, although the market for the better grades of meat is firmer.

BIG SUM FOR SCHOOLS.

Nearly Half Million Spent in Building in Six Months.

Bismarck, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—One thing that shows the rapid increase in population of North Dakota and of the steps that are being taken to provide the children of the state with an education, is the fact that within the last four months nearly $500,000 have been expended in the building or contracting for the building of school houses and eductional institutions.

Among the most notable buildings are the school and convent school at Devils Lake, the former at $30,000 and the latter at $40,000; a school building at Casselton, $8,685; Knox, $11,799; Rolette, $18,000; Ryder, $8,371; Binford, $7,357; Glen Ullin, $12,780; Lansford, $11,000; Inkster, $15,690; Hatton, $22,638, and Redfield, $22,000.

Besides these there have been city and district schools ranging from $7,000 to $10,000 at Metford, Edmore, Overly, Donnybrook, Taylor, District 15, Temple, Mandan, Spring Valley district 3, Sanders, District 47, Belfield, District 13, Langedahl, Norway District No. 40, Grafton high school, Dickey, additional story to school building; Oriska, Oakdale, McVille, Ellendale district, Goodrich, Grennell; Garrison, two district houses; Forman, Dogden, Douglas, Milton, two-story addition; Bismarck, Linden district, Ashland and several others.

NORTH DAKOTA ELKS OWNED VALLEY CITY.

Valley City, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Elks have certainly owned this town for two days in connection with the institution of a new lodge of the order, which has brought large delegations of antler-wearers here from all over the state by special trains. About 300 members have been participating in the festivities connected with the institution of the lodge. The street parade and the fire works were notable features that the public witnessed.

Valley City Lodge, No. 1110, was properly instituted with the following officers:

Exalted ruler, Darby O'Malley; esteemed leading knight, Arthur Peake; esteemed loyal knight, C. F. Mudgett; esteemed lecturing knight, F. W. Chandler; esquire, E. R. Apt; chaplain, L. G. Moltre; tyler, W. E. Blakeslee; trustees, L. B. Hervie, Lee Combs, Dr. J. W. McDonald, George A. Day and John D. Gray.

What Retail Markets Offer.

White Bermuda onions, 5 cents a lb.
Spinach, 25 cents a peck.
Strawberries, 12½ cents a box.
Pie plant, 3 lbs for 10 cents.
Tomatoes, 12½ cents a lb.
Beef stew, 8 cents a lb.
Lamb stew, 12½ cents a lb.
Spring lamb, 35 cents a lb.

The strawberries still continue to be the most delightful fruit that the market has to offer and the variety that is now to be had shows berries of large lusciousness. The pineapples are cheap and good, and rhubarb pie, with strawberry shortcake, alternates in delightful frequency on the bill of fare—that is, some bill-of-fare. Another alternation that is very popular with housewives interested in keeping the month household expenses down to what it was month before last is lamb roast and beef stew. It is, however, a change of fare that is not welcomed with nearly the hilarity as rhubarb pie and strawberry shortcake.

Marketing should be done early.

BLOOD-MAKING TONIC TREATMENT

A Cure for Anaemic Conditions That is Showing Remarkable Proofs of Cures in Stubborn Cases.

When the body becomes run down, either as a result of over-work, worry or a severe illness, an examination of the blood would show it to be weak and watery. This condition is called anaemic, which is the medical term for "bloodless." The common symptoms are paleness of the lips, gums and cheeks, shortness of breath and palpitation of the heart after the slightest exertion, dull eyes and loss of appetite. Anaemia itself is a dangerous disease and it may gradually pass into consumption. It must be cured by treating its cause, which is the poor condition of the blood. The vital fluid must be made strong and healthy, thereby enabling it to carry the necessary nourishment to every tissue of the body.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the greatest builder of rich, new blood, and they have been curing anaemia and other blood diseases for nearly a generation, during which time they have come to be recognized as an invaluable household remedy.

Mrs. J. F. Hayden of 241 Decatur street, Corning, N. Y., whose husband is a foreman in the Symington Bridge shops, was cured by this treatment. She says:

"When I was about 18 years old I began to be troubled with anaemia and suffered from it for years. About three years ago I had the measles and after that the anaemia was worse. I couldn't walk any distance without being ill, was dizzy nearly all the time and would often faint away after the least exertion. I was very pale and thin, black specks floated before my eyes and I had sick headaches, poor digestion and no strength or ambition.

"I took treatment from our family doctor and two other physicians, but with no relief. Then I tried several different medicines, giving each a fair trial, but was not cured. My husband then suggested that I try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"Six years ago he had become so nervous and run-down from his confining work that he had been obliged to give it up. He was sick for a year, when he gave up all other medicine and tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and was cured.

"I bought several boxes of the pills and they benefited me almost from the first, and in time cured me. For a year and a half I have been perfectly well, am strong, have a good appetite and can sleep well."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured diseases due to impure or watery blood that have baffled the best medical skill. They are able to do this, because they contain the elements necessary to make new and pure blood. Rheumatism, chlorosis, after-effects of the grip and fevers, are some of the blood diseases cured by these pills and, as the health of the nerves depends upon the purity of the blood, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are useful in such nerve diseases as neuralgia, nervous debility, sleeplessness, dizziness and even locomotor ataxia.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

WANTS ADDITIONAL CARRIERS.

Crookston, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—A move has been made to secure two additional mail carriers for the business district of Crookston. To this end many of the leading business houses have cancelled their lease for the large mail boxes at the postoffice and in the future will demand that their mail be delivered. This will make it impossible for the present force to handle the mail, as at the present time all the larger business houses have been calling for their own mail.

CURE BY CUTICURA AT CITY MISSION

Young Woman Found in Awful Condition with Scabies—Body a Mass of Sores from Scratching—Tried Many Remedies for Seven Weeks—Result Was Discouraging, But

ITCHING TORTURES YIELDED TO CUTICURA

"While I was doing missionary work in the lower portion of several cities I found it necessary to know a little of the efficacy of a few medicines and after a while I found that a little knowledge of Cuticura was about all I needed. One of the very bad cases I had to deal with was that of a young woman who had come to us not only broken in spirit but in a most awful condition physically. Our doctor examined her and told us that she had scabies (the itch), incipient paresis, rheumatism, etc., brought on from exposure and the effects of her ragged-edged life. Her poor body was a mass of sores from scratching and she was not able to retain solid food. We tried many things, a good tonic was prescribed and baths with a rubbing of lard and sulphur. We worked hard for seven weeks and you can imagine how discouraged we were when, after all that time, we could see so little improvement. One day I happened to see a Cuticura advertisement telling how a little baby had been cured of a bad case of skin eruption, and although I had but ninety-seven cents with me, I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. When I reached home I was like a child with a new toy, and we bathed our patient well and gave her a full dose of the Resolvent. She slept that night better than she had since she had been with us and the next day I located the price of a box of Cuticura Ointment. I am not exaggerating when I say that in exactly five weeks this young woman was able to look for a position, being strong enough to work and full of ambition. In another month she left the home, and now has a good position in a nice family where she is respected and is strong and well. You may refer any one you wish to me, personally. RELIGIOUS SERVICES

First Are Held in the New Y. M. C. A. Building.

Several Local Ministers Take Part in the Exercises.

A platform meeting was held last evening in the assembly room at the new Y. M. C. A. building. This is the first religious service held in the structure. About 300 people were in attendance.

Invitations had been extended to all the churches of the city to join in the services, and the affair was in the nature of a union prayer meeting. A number of local pastors took part, giving short talks on the association and its work, its relation to the church, and its opportunities for aiding young men. The meeting was presided over by General Secretary Phil Bevis.

Dr. M. S. Rice of the First M. E. church characterized the association as an institutional church and showed how thoroughly it does much of the denomination church work. Mrs. W. C. Agnew, president of the Young Women's Christian association, spoke of the cordial relations between the two associations, and expressed her pleasure at the fact that soon the Young Women's association will also have a new home only one block from the Y. M. C. A.

A general talk on the work and benefits of the association was given by Rev. John W. Powell, Jr., and Mrs. Wesley Feetham, secretary of the Y. W. C. A., spoke of the work of the two associations. Rev. J. A. McGaughey, formerly pastor of the Two Harbors Presbyterian church, who has accepted a call to the position of religious work director of the Duluth association, spoke of the great work the association is doing, and what he hopes to do in connection with it.

Dr. Campbell Coyle of the First Presbyterian church, spoke of the association as the quiet resting place by the wayside for the young men. He talked of the deeper and larger work the association had to accomplish, and of the prospects of success in this direction. The services were closed by general remarks on the part of Secretary Bevis, who warmly thanked the public for the beautiful new home of the association.

During the afternoon and evening thousand of people viewed the building. Today is state day at the building. Members of the state executive committee and many secretaries of associations throughout the state are here to take part in the exercises. Among them are Edward Grace and S. Wirt Weiley of Minneapolis; E. C. Davis of Proctor, N. W. Benning of Two Harbors and J. C. Manville of Brainerd. Frank H. Burt of Chicago will speak at the meeting tomorrow evening. There will be orchestra music.

KIDNAPER IS KILLED

William Patterson, an Indiana Man, Shot by Brother-in-Law.

Ligonier, Ind., May 29.—William Patterson kidnaped a Mrs. Sargent, yesterday afternoon, and was shot dead by a posse which went in pursuit. The fatal shot was fired by Patterson's brother-in-law, after he himself had been wounded by the abductor. The Pattersons live at Lake Wawase, and Mrs. Sargent also lived there, being a warm friend of Mrs. Patterson. Recently Patterson and his wife separated, and Patterson blamed Mrs. Sargent for causing the trouble.

Yesterday afternoon Patterson secured an automobile and came here. He compelled a local hotel man, named Hoover, to go with him to the home of Dr. Franks, the father of Mrs. Patterson, where Mrs. Sargent was said to be stopping. On the way they met a carriage, containing Dr. Franks and Mrs. Sargent. Patterson drew a revolver and forced Mrs. Sargent to get into the automobile with him. Then he headed for Millersburg at full speed. The news of the abduction spread rapidly and a posse, headed by Ernest Franks, Mrs. Patterson's brother, started in pursuit in a big touring car. Patterson's automobile was overtaken near Millersburg. Patterson opened fire and the shot struck his brother-in-law in the thigh. Franks returned the fire and Patterson fell dead at almost the first shot. Mrs. Sargent was not injured.

HIS MORNING DOUGHNUT.

Irish Setter Visits Bakery Every Morning for "Eye Opener."

An Irish setter, belonging to John Adams, who rooms at the Metropole hotel, has the unique habit of going to a Superior street bakery every morning for an after-breakfast doughnut. After he has had his morning meal at the hotel, he trots across the street to the bakery, where he makes himself very much in evidence until he is given his regular doughnut. The dog has been doing this same stunt for months, so the clerks always know what he is after.

Some days his doughnut appetite is not appeased by the single fried cake, so he returns several times during the day. He has never been known to eat his delicacy at the store, but always carries it back across the street to the hotel, where he can enjoy it alone.

INSTRUCTED FOR BRYAN.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 29.—At the Democratic state convention here, yesterday, four delegates-at-large were selected for the Denver convention. They are George A. Neal, Cabell county; C. W. Olson, Fayette county; L. F. Reimen, Clark county; Clyde B. Jonson, Westmount county. Resolutions were adopted instructing delegates for Bryan.

MARRIED UNDER DIFFICULTIES

Leading Soprano of Pittsburg Wedded to Rich Denver Man.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 29.—News of a marriage under difficulties of one of the leading sopranos of Pittsburg leaked out here when it became known that Miss Lucille H. Roessing had been married to Claude E. Griffey, a wealthy young man of Denver, Colo.

Miss Roessing is a singer of great ability and the idol of the wealthy of Pittsburg. She is the beautiful daughter of W. P. Roessing, a wealthy oil man of Butler, Pa. She was rehearsing to take the leading part in Pittsburg's coming opera for charity, "The Pirates of Penzance," which will be put on by the wealthy young women of the city soon. At the same time Miss Roessing was under top salary as soprano in the First Presbyterian church of Pittsburg, a congregation of strictly rich, whose pastor, Dr. Maitland Alexander, never takes a cent of his $10,000 salary, but turns it over to charity.

When Griffey, like Lochinvar, came out of the West, Dr. Alexander refused to marry him to the sweet singer. The First church needed her. Dr. Alexander and others of the church are said to have got Miss Roessing's parents to object to the marriage, but the lovers slipped away, hired a touring car, fled ten miles into the country, were married and telephoned word home.

Mrs. Griffey said over the phone she would come back from her wedding tour and sing the opera for charity if the people were good. If not, no. She was implored to return and will.

SCARED BY A GHOST.

Negro Settlement on the Missouri is Nearly Depopulated.

St. Louis, Mo., May 29.—A ghostly figure, headless and clad in long white robes, which rides a snow-white horse along the bluffs overlooking the Missouri river at Miller's Landing, below St. Charles, has practcially depopulated the place.

Miller's Landing is a settlement of prosperous negroes who run truck farms. Never a sound of hoofs is heard as the apparition rides along the bluff, and disappears as suddenly as it comes.

"Ah knows a ghost when Ah sees one, and this here boy is ginooine," declared Samuel Brooks, one of the fleeing residents, who has appealed to the "white folks" to solve the mystery.

The World's Best Climate is not entirely free from disease, on the high elevations fevers prevail, while on the lower levels malaria is encountered to a greater or less extent, according to altitude. To overcome climate affections lassitude, malaria, jaundice, biliousness, fever and ague, and general debility, the most effective remedy is Electric Bitters, the great alterative and blood purifier; the antidote for every form of bodily weakness, nervousness, and insomnia. SAID "THAT'S RICH!"

When Asked If She Will be Vanderbilt's Bride.

New York, May 29.—Mrs. Rulz, alleged by Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt to have been the cause of her divorce, was asked outright if she intended to marry Vanderbilt.

"Oh, that is rich," she laughed. "What a funny idea!"

"You know Mr. Vanderbilt?" she was asked.

"Why, of course, I know him," she answered. "I never denied it. But the use of my name with his is unwarranted. And I protest against it. My affairs are my own."

Vanderbilt is in England now, and when Mrs. Rulz was asked if the report that she was going to Europe was true, she replied:

"I will go if I want to. Why shouldn't I.

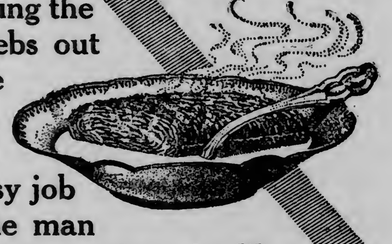
HEAVY FINE FOR PUBLISHER.

Portland, Me., May 29.—A fine of $10,000, the maximum amount provided by law, will be imposed upon George Fred Terrey, the proprietor of the Waterville Mail Order Publishing house, who was convicted in March for conspiracy to defraud the government of postage, according to an announcement by Judge Hale in the United States district court. This case was the first to be prosecuted under the new ruling on the postoffice department, defining second-class mail matter.

PETER IS FLOATED.

St. Petersburg, May 29.—The Russian battleship Peter the Great, which ran on the rocks Wednesday night in the Gulf of Finland, was re-floated last night without assistance. The battleship made her way in safety to Reval. The extent of the damage to her hull has not yet been ascertained.



Sweeping Out the Cob-webs.

Sweeping the cob-webs out of the brain is not an easy job for the man who eats anything he likes. Clear thinking and clean living go with a simple diet that does not clog the system or tax the digestive machinery. Every particle of is easily and quickly digested by the most delicate stomach. Try it for breakfast for a week and notice the results.

For breakfast heat the Biscuit in oven, pour milk over it (hot milk in winter) and a little cream. If you like the Biscuit for breakfast you will like toasted TRISCUIT (the Shredded Wheat wafer) for luncheon or any meal with butter, cheese or marmalade. At your grocers.

GOSSIP OF CAPITAL

Two Ohio Old Timers Have Lively Tilt in Congress.

Gen. Sherwood Causes Gen. Keifer to Snort With Rage.

Washington, May 29.—Gen. Keifer, who for years has represented his district in the house, is nursing a plan of revenge upon Gen. Sherwood, also of Ohio. The aged statesmen had a tilt on the floor of the house and the members are still tickled with the recollection of it.

Gen. Sherwood is a Democrat. Gen. Keifer is a Republican. The latter was once speaker of the house, but it was so many years ago that only a few members remember the time.

Gen. Sherwood is chuckling yet over the manner in which he flayed Gen. Keifer. Both aged statesmen had been eyeing one another for some time—sort of anticipating—but the storm did not break until Gen. Sherwood, who was protesting that a pension bill he was advancing did not get the proper consideration, took umbrage at several remarks made by Gen. Keifer.

The old-timers looked at one another for some time, then Gen. Sherwood took the floor and began to flay Gen. Keifer. He said that if Keifer would compaign his (Sherwood's) district, he would pay him $50 a night, because Keifer would do the Republican cause so much damage that the Democrats would have no trouble in accomplishing anything they desired.

Gen. Keifer did not like this. He is a Republican and he did not want to be considered an injury to the cause of his party. He snorted with rage.

But Gen. Sherwood was not finished. He began to touch on the sartorial eccentricities of Gen. Keifer, and his remarks convulsed the house.

"Why," said Gen. Sherwood, "the distinguished gentleman hasn't worn anything this side of a dress suit for forty years! How can he be expected to know what the soldiers want? A dress suit for forty years!"

Gen. Keifer was plainly nettled. The house laughed at him and his dignity was offended. He refrained from making a reply at the time, but there is little doubt that he some day will take the opportunity of making known to the Democratic congressman from this state just what he thought of the reference to his devotion to the Republican cause, and—to his dress suit, worn for forty years.

During the conference of governors, William Jennings Bryan was probably the busiest man in Washington. He had to keep an eye on his political fences; he religiously attended the conference; he had many conferences, and he was busy with his reportorial duties.

Every time a speaker of prominence finished speaking, Col. Bryan was at his side immediately afterward, asking if the speech was in printed form.

Unlike the ordinary reporter, he was not handicapped by time, or lack of opportunity.

"I want it for my paper, the Commoner," he would say.

His pockets were bulging with manuscript and copy paper on which he jotted down memoranda, either for editorials or for future political use.

The gong established to relieve the speaker of the embarrassment of interrupting a speaker is not much to the liking of statesmen, who, when about to climax their speeches, are flabbergasted by the gong.

This automatic arrangement cuts short the remarks of speakers after they have had the privilege of the floor for seventeen minutes. The gong is set when they begin to speak and registers the time perfectly.

When it rings after seventeen minutes, it signals that there are three minutes left and the speaker had better begin to sum up. As a rule, the speakers pause at the end of seventeen minutes, gaze in mute protest at the rear of the platform, where the gong is located, then continue. When the gong rings three times, the signal to cease, they walk to their seats, crestfallen.

The isthmian canal commission, according to reports made public, is having a serious time with the pie question. The men working on the canal like pie. They want it, too. Whether it is the climate, the nature of the work or the isolation of the construction camps is a matter of conjecture. Suffice it that those fellows down in Panama want pie, and plenty of it. They so notified the commission.

At present there are produced about 600 pies every day. This is supplemented by about 400 pounds of cake. The pies are of seven varieties—one for each day of the week. They bring 10 cents apiece, and the cakes are valued at 10 cents a pound.

To cap the climax, the men are becoming particular about the kind of pies they are eating. They now want strawberry pies. Strawberries don't grow in the Canal zone, which makes it worse.

The commission tried to ship fresh strawberries by way of New Orleans and the experiment failed. Now the members are thinking of mince pie as a good substitute.

TOLD PITIFUL TALE

Of Failure to "Make Good" in Land of Prosperity.

New York, May 29.—Holding hands, and with all their worldly belongings in a satchel, two emigrants sat in the barge office and told the sad story of their experiences of a year and a half in this country.

The man was Max Heinke, big and strong, and his wife, Ernestine, a frail little woman. He was a butcher in Hainau, in Germany, and they decided to come to America, the land of promise.

They reached here in August, 1906, and were married by an alderman at the city hall. Max had saved about $300 and traveled to Chicago, where their troubles began.

They went to a lodging house in South Clark street, where some one stole their savings, leaving them penniless.

Heinke got work at $4 per week, on which they nearly starved for eight months. Then they tried farm work. Last August, discouraged, they walked to Pittsburg, 494 miles. In a Pittsburg hospital a child was born. Later a friend paid their way to this city, but as the child was born here it could not be deported.

The child soon died of scarlet fever. Then Heinke and his wife got work on a farm at Clinton, but were unable to collect their wages.

Heinke received still another setback at the island, where he was told he could not be deported, as he had not arrived there under arrest.

He went to the German consulate and was referred to the German Immigrants' Aid society, where he was told that as he had been in this country a year he must get out and hustle for himself.

To newspaper men who collected some money for him he said he was willing to work at anything to get $30 or $40—enough to take him and his wife back to Germany.

FAMED IN HISTORY

Romantic Spot to be Made a River Pleasure Resort.

Blennerhasset's Island Where Aaron Burr Hatched Treachery Plot.

Blennerhassett Island, W. Va., May 29.—This famous island is soon to be made a river pleasure resort that will be the most notable between Pittsburg and the gulf. The historic old resort will occupy a place where the memories of its early days will become more noted. The island lies like an emerald from the mines of the Golconda, just at the southwestern gates of Parkersburg, the second in size and importance in the little "Mountain State." Embalmed in song and famous in history, it will soon be a part of the city of Parkersburg, and then it will be converted into a park and will bear some of the most notable amusement enterprises of the country. Because of the romantic story that surrounds the memorable old place, it is now regarded as separate and distinct from the city. The new move is to bring it into the city limits and the municipality to establish a first-class park. As it is the island is visited every summer by thousands.

It is rather strange that outside of the immediate community, Blennerhasset island is seldom mentioned in connection with Parkersburg. It is always spoken of as being twelve miles below the city of Marietta. Hence, naturally, most travelers connect Blennerhasset's island with Marietta, rather than with Parkersburg. Leading citizens of Parkersburg want the city more closely identified with the famous island, and this new move is taken to give Parkersburg more publicity.

Somewhat different from Wheeling island, which is populated by hundreds of the leading citizens and business men of the first city of the state, Blennerhassett island has never been a residential district.

The Exiles' Home.

Blennerhassett island has been called locally the "Exiles' Home." At one time the isle came near being the capital of Mexico and the whole of the southwestern portion of the United States. Had Aaron Burr, who lacked but one vote of being president of this republic, been more successful, with the aid of Herrman Blennerhassett, this big project would have been carried out and the history of our country would have been different.

The scheme, though, was knocked into smithereens, simply because of Uncle Sam's way of knocking off the base such conspiracies against the national municipality. Mrs. Blennerhassett, too, figured in the big scheme. As is generally the case when women mix up in such affairs, she got the worst of it. To make it more romantic, it must be said that Mrs. Blennerhassett was beautiful. But this is not putting it too strong. She was beautiful. The young English bride, hardly aware of the full meaning of the big plan of her young husband to overthrow the government, lent her aid in the project—and suffered.

Herrmann Blennerhassett, over a hundred years ago, was exiled from Ireland. He married the sweetheart of his boyhood, brought her with him to America, sailed down the beautiful Ohio river and selected the island at Parkersburg for his abode. It was made a garden of Eden, a veritable heaven, but the serpent entered and destroyed the supreme happiness that reigned thereon.

Burr's Plot.

This serpent was Aaron Burr, the murderer of Alexander Hamilton. He was vice president of the United States and lacked but one vote of being president. Conceiving a plan whereby he could establish an empire of his own, Aaron Burr sought to repair his falling fortunes by one great coup—that of erecting into one republic the territory from the Ohio river to the Rio Grande. The school boy's history tells the rest. Burr got Blennerhassett into the scheme, established headquarters on the little island, and then his plan was exposed. The home was burned in the cold winter and Mrs. Blennerhassett forced to leave on the verge of starving and freezing. The beautiful surroundings, flower gardens, lawns and buildings were destroyed. After the unhappy owners of the beautiful place had been away for years relics of their once happy existence were found. There is not much now of the ancient Blennerhassetts left to tell the tale. The old well is still there and some of the ancient trees still stand.

Backus, which was indeed not the most poetical appellation, was the original name of the island. It may have sounded sweet in the Indian language, in which it received that name. There are many things of rare interest on the island, including the largest tree in the Ohio valley, which has stood for over a century.

A scene of beauty greets the traveler as he looks down upon the island from the hilltops above the river. Waving corn fields are seen in summer. The meadows are luxuriant in clover bloom and blue grass, and the woods are sweet and shady in their cool retreats. To the northwest may be seen looming out Fort Boreman. The spires of Parkersburg churches are seen at the north, while looking up in the west are the fair cities of Cedarville and Belpre.

AFGHAN OUTBREAK DUE TO FANATICISM AND GREED.

Calcutta, May 29.—The latest outbreak on the Afghan-Indo frontier was probably caused by fanaticism and greed. The latter motive must have been greatly strengthened by the truly extraordinary success of the Zakka raid into Peshowar three months ago. On the occasion the raiders, after killing or maiming a number of the police guards and chowkidars, carried off from the heart of the greatest city and the largest military cantonment in the extreme north of India $35,000 in sovereigns and gold jewelry, and not a particle of this loot appears to have been recovered by all the king's horses and king's men that swept through Bazar. Smaller raids of the same character were carried out last year in the Shabkadr district by the notorious Kakim Khan, and the loot obtained was openly sold in the bazaars of Laipura and Jalalamad, where also the leading bandits of the Zakka raids are now one of the 300,000 fighting men on the Afghan border kho has not heard the tale about the loot.

A HARD CASE

Imagine a man so low with kidney disease that he had to sit up night and day. He even had to sleep sitting up, being unable to lay in his bed or stand on his feet. Yet such was the final condition of W. R. Marquis, the well known business man of Bartow, Fla.

He went to a sanitarium in Memphis, where he was attended by three physicians. They gave up the case and advised that he go home.

On his return he heard of and sent for the new emollient treatment.

The fourth week the heart and dropsy began to mend, and the fourth month he was walking all over the town without cane or crutches, and he permits this reference.

No matter what kidney disease is called—whether kidney trouble, Nephritis or Bright's Disease—it is inflammation of the kidneys, and as the old-time futile kidney medicines are kidney excitants, you can see why they failed in his case as they have in yours.

Fulton's Renal Compound is the first successful Renal emollient thus reducing Renal inflammation, and kidney disease is now curable for the first time. Even serious supposed incurable forms yield as above.

WANTS $375 FOR MUSTACHE.

German Cut It Off for Kiss, Then Was Denied Sweet.

Berlin, May 29.—The importance of the mustache question in Germany will shortly be manifested in a trial in the Rhine province, in which a wealthy silk manufacturer is suing an actress for damages in connection with the loss of his luxuriant facial adornment. The manufacturer made the acquaintance of the actress, a young and beautiful comedy artiste, socially. Meeting her at a dinner party a few weeks later, he extracted from her a promise to give him a kiss. She said that she would if he promised to shave off his mustache. That was a heavy forfeit, as his mustache was locally famous and gave its possessor a reputation for masculine beauty, of which he was exceedingly proud. Eventually he brought himself, however, to visit the barber and had his musatche shaved off. He informed the actress that her condition had been fulfilled, and that he was ready for the kiss; but to his consternation he was notfied that the lady had meantime become engaged and could not, therefore, keep the bargain. The disappointed cavalier has taken his case to court and demands that the actress either be compelled to kiss him, or be ordered to pay $375 for breach of contract.

INDIA'S RELIEF FUND.

Present Distress to Continue Until Monsoon Rains Come.

London, May 29.—A fund has been inaugurated in India, under the patronage of his majesty the king-emperor, for the collection and distribution of contributions to the relief of the distress occasioned by the widespread failure of the rains of 1907. In British India, the government undertakes to provide relief under prescribed conditions and tests for the distressed classes, and similar arrangements exist in native states. The state scheme of relief is already supplemented in many places by local relief funds, and by the generous efforts of the chiefs, the nobles and the great landlords, but, in addition, there is still ample scope for a general relief fund, which would receive contributions from all subjects of his majesty, and would be applied to supplement existing forms of relief in British India or in native territory, as the necessity arises. The value of such a fund has been proved in previous famines.

No material change in the conditions which have occasioned the distress will take place before the advent of the monsoon rains in June or July next. The area affected by drought, crop failure and high prices cover approximately 150,000 square miles, with a population of about 50,000,000, and includes practically the whole of the united provinces of Agra and Oudh, some of the native states of Central India and Rajputana and parts of the Puniab, Bengal the central provinces and Bombay. The number of persons in receipt of state relief lately reached 1,500,000.

The fund is managed by a committee under the presidency of Sir Francis W. Maclean, chief justice of the Calcutta High Court. Subscriptions are earnestly invited, and may be paid to the account of the Indian famine charitable relief fund at the Bank of England.

UPTON SKIPPED.

Whacked With Brooms and Clubs by His Stepdaughter.

Carmi, Ill., May 29.—Angered because their mother had married within a few weeks after she had obtained a divorce, Misses Ora and Blanche Kirk drove away their stepfather.

The mother of the girls sat by and screamed as her daughters pelted Upton over the head with brooms and clubs.

Mrs. Kirk and George Upton eloped to Mount Vernon, Ind., and were married, the state law forbidding divorced persons to marry in Illinois within a year after the granting of the decree.

When they returned they went to the Kirk home, in this city, and the two girls opened war on the groom. He ran, the girls following, until he had rounded a corner. Nothing has been heard from Upton since.

A LAZY LIVER

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over-work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver complaint," or torpid liver, by its wonderful control over the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system of poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

Symptoms. If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, bitter or sour "risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, or billousness, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver, or billousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

Of Golden Seal root, which is one of the prominent ingredients of "Golden Medical Discovery," Dr. Roberts Bartholow, of Jefferson Medical College, says: "Very useful as a stomachic (stomach) tonic and in atonic dyspepsia. Cures gastric (stomach) catarrh and headaches accompanying same."

Dr. Grover Coe, of New York, says: "Hydrastis (Golden Seal root) exercises an especial influence over mucous surfaces. Upon the liver it acts with equal certainty and efficacy. As a cholagogue (liver invigorator) it has few equals." Dr. Coe also advises it for affections of the spleen and other abdominal viscera generally, and for scrofulous and glandular diseases, cutaneous eruptions, indigestion, debility, chronic diarrhea, constipation, also in several affections peculiar to women, and in all chronic derangements of the liver, also for chronic inflammation of bladder, for which Dr. Coe says "it is one of the most reliable agents of cure."

Prof. John King, M D, late of Cincinnati, author of the AMERICAN DISPENSATORY, gives it a prominent place among medicinal agents, reiterates all the foregoing writers have said about it, as does also Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati. Dr. Scudder says: "It stimulates the digestive processes and increases the assimilation of food. By these means the blood is enriched. * * * * the consequent improvement on the glandular and nervous systems are natural results." Dr. Scudder further says, "in relation to its general effect upon the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic, useful in all debilitated states * * *."

Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says of Golden Seal root: "It is a most superior remedy in catarrhal gastritis (inflammation of the stomach), chronic constipation, general debility, in convalescence from protracted fevers, in prostrating night-sweats. It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb." (This agent, Golden Seal root, is an important ingredient of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for woman's weaknesses, as well as of the "Golden Medical Discovery.") Dr. Ellingwood continues, "in all catarrhal conditions it is useful."

Much more, did space permit, could be quoted from prominent authorities as to the wonderful curative properties possessed by Golden Seal root.

We want to assure the reader that "Golden Medical Discovery" can be relied upon to do all that is claimed for Golden Seal root in the cure of all the various diseases as set forth in the above brief extracts, for its most prominent and important ingredient is Golden Seal root. This agent is, however, strongly reinforced, and its curative action greatly enhanced by the addition, in just the right proportion of Queen's root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot, Mandrake root and chemically pure glycerine. All of these are happily and harmonlously blended into a most perfect pharmaceutical compound, now favorably known throughout most of the civillzed countries of the world. Bear in mind that each and every ingredient entering into the "Discovery" has received the endorsement of the leading medical men of our land, who extol each article named above in the highest terms. What other medicine put up for sale through druggists can show any such professional endorsement? For dyspepsia, liver troubles, all chronic catarrhal affections of whatever name or nature, lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, the "Discovery" can be relied upon as a sovereign remedy.

A little book of extracts treating of all the several ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines, being extracts from standard medical works, of the different schools of practice will be mailed free to any one asking (by postal card or letter), for the same, addressed to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and giving the writer's full post-office address plainly written.

Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.

TELEPHONE CUT-OFFS.

Invention That Will Stop Practice of "Butting in."

Rochester, Minn., May 29.—Dr. Joseph A. Gates of Kenyon, and his uncle, R. C. Livingstone of Spring Valley, have been in the city for several days, making arrangements with the Conley Camera company to manufacture the first telephone cut-offs. This invention is one which the telephone companies have been looking for for many years. It does away with all "rubbering" on party lines. It consists of a few pieces of brass in a small wooden box which may be easily attached to any telephone between the receiver and transmitter. There are two buttons on the outside of the box. By pressing the upper, the party using the 'phone calls central or any one between him and central. When he gets his party, he presses the lower button and every one between those two is cut off. If any of those between take down the receiver, he must press one of those buttons, or his telephone will not work. If he does press one of them, he cuts off one of the other parties, and puts himself in the place. By pressing the lower button first, the telephone in the opposite direction are rung and then when the upper button is pressed, the conversation can be carried on to the exclusion of all those in the direction of central. This arrangement also enables different parties on the same line to talk at the same time. The contrivance is extremely simple and cannot get out of order.

GOV. BURKE TO SPEAK.

North Dakota Executive Will Address Minot Graduates.

Minot, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fifth annual commencement exercises of the local high school will take place next Monday evening at Jacobson's opera house. There will be three or four speakers, the usual music and orations and the address to the class will be given by Governor Burke, who comes here in his capacity as a member of the state high school board, of which he is a member. A fine program is in preparation and a large crowd will be present to hear the class and the governor.

The baccalaureate services will be held at Jacobson's opera house Sunday evening, May 31, at 8 o'clock.

NEW TELEPHONE LINE.

Bemidji, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new telephone system which is being installed between Bemidji, on the Jester farm at Lake Plantagent, will be ready for operation by Saturday night, according to A. H. Jester, president of the newly-organized company which is putting in the line. A company of local people, assisted by some outside capital, was recently organized for the purpose of placing a 'phone line from Bemidji to Lake Plantagenet, for the convenience of those living at the Jester farm and other intermediate points, and the company at once ordered the necessary paraphernalia, including poles, wires, etc., and began the "planting" of the poles. The stringing of the wires and the setting of the poles will be entirely completed Saturday.

LABOR IN POLITICS.

American Federation to Have Something to Say This Year.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 29.—George B. Howley, president of the Minnesota Federation of Labor, announced while here that the federation proposed to take an active part in politics in North Dakota and will pay particular attention to the election of members of congress. This declaration is in line with the announcement made by President Gompers of the American Federation some time ago. Mr. Howley says there are many members of unions in North Dakota, and, united, they can exert a strong influence. He will look up the situation while in Grand Forks this week.

The annual convention of the Minnesota Federation, which includes Grand Forks and Fargo, will be held in Winona, beginning June 8. Fargo will make a determined effort to land the convention for next year.

President Howley is investigating the labor situation here. The Builders' Exchange recently declared for the open shop, and the East Grand Forks boss barbers also announced open shop. President Howley may organize the musicians and clerks while here.

ACCIDENT VICTIM OUT.

Negaunee, Mich., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Samuel Stephens, one of the victims of the Rolling Mill mine disaster of last September, has left the Negaunee hospital and is now at the home of his brother. He is able to be around on crutches, but it will be some time before he will have the use of his injured limb.

SOLD LIQUOR TO MINORS.

Anoka, Minn., May 29.—S. H. Swanson, H. W. Lischness and Ben Martin paid fines of $25 each for selling liquor to a minor named Ace McKenney, Frank Linn, a fourth saloonkeeper, will have his hearing next Wednesday. The saloonkeepers allege that Mr. Kenney said he was of age.

HAND DECORATED MENU & PLACE CARDS

All that remains of our stationery stock placed on sale yesterday are a number of exquisitely colored place and menu cards. These have been hand-tinted in water colors. For favors at dinners, luncheons and other social occasions, nothing could be more appropriate. These cards will vanish as quickly as did the stationery. So we advise a selection early tomorrow morning.

Prices half and less than half of original cost.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

OLD CHARGE IS REVIVED

B. F. Boyd Must Serve Time for That Old Offense.

Convicted Three Years Ago, He Did Not Pay Penalty.

Bemidji, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—B. F. Boyd, a resident of Brainerd who was, in 1905, convicted of having killed a cow moose and sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs, has been taken into custody at Brainerd by Deputy Sheriff Fish of Grand Rapids, and will be compelled to either pay the $50 and costs, in all amounting to $175, or serve a term of sixty days in the county jail of Itasca county.

Boyd hunted during the fall of 1905 in the vicinity of Northome acting as a guide to several hunting parties. He was later arrested charged with having killed a cow moose, and his trial was held in Grand Rapids in December, 1906.

The case was a hard fought one, but the proof was overwhelming against Boyd and the Grand Rapids jury brought in a verdict of guilty.

He was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs, about $175, or to serve a sentence of sixty days in the county jail.

For some reason Boyd has been allowed to enjoy his liberty most of the time at Brainerd instead of paying his fine or serving sixty days in jail.

While E. E. McDonald of this city was trying a case at Brainerd for the state game and fish commission he found that Boyd had been drawn to serve on the jury at the term of the district court at Brainerd.

DESPERADO GETS DESERTS.

Shoots Up Town and is Killed for His Antics.

Ambrose, N. D., May 29.—A desperado known as "Dutch" rode his pony into a blind pig here and shot up the place after which he ran his horse through the streets, at the same time firing into buildings and wounding J. A. Lipphardt, an editor, in the hand. He also attempted the life of L. S. Todd, an attorney. A citizen's posse armed themselves with rifles and shot guns and a pitched battle with the outlaw followed. He was killed.

HAS BODY DUG UP.

Woman Claims It is That of Husband—Authorities Deny Claim.

Marinette, Wis., May 29.—A body was exhumed at Forest Home cemetery which is claimed by Mrs. C. C. Fraim of Milwaukee to be that of her husband, who mysteriously disappeared in the fall of 1901. It is said by the authorities, however, that the body is that of Henry Albert, a Frenchman, and that it in no way answers the description of the missing man at one time given by the woman.

It is reported that life insurance is involved in the case, and that the insurance company refuses to pay until there is proof of Fraim's death. Mrs. Fraim says the only insurance is $350, which will come from the cigarmakers' union. She claims that Secretary Schroeder of the local union has identified the body as being that of her husband.

Albert was found at Niagara, in a dying condition, and brought to Marinette, bleeding to death in the county jail from wounds received in a mysterious manner at that place.

A few years ago, Mrs. Fraim says she received word that her husband had died at Eureka, Cal., but she ascertained, she states, after investigation, that it was not her husband, although the men went by the same name. She gives it as her theory that her husband met with foul play near Niagara, as when he was last seen at Marinette he had a large roll of bills.

SLEEPS BETWEEN RAILS; HIS HEAD IS CRUSHED.

Stephen, Minn., May 29.—Jack McDonald, a farm hand in the employ of John H. Dammann, was killed by a Great Northern freight train, two miles north of town. McDonald evidently went to sleep between the tracks, with his head on the rail, the back of his head being entirely cut off.

CLAY COUNTY PIONEER.

Denis Morin of Viding Township Goes to His Reward.

Moorhead, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral was held at Georgetown, in Viding township, at 10 a. m. today, of Oenis Morin, one of the pioneers of Clay county, who died at his home Wednesday, following a stroke of apoplexy, recently sustained.

eDnis Morin has resided in Clay county for nearly thirty-five years, being among its earliest settlers. He had always taken an active interest in the affairs of the county, and generally in politics had affiliated with the Republican party. He was uniformly prosperous in his farming operations, and his genial, kindly nature had made for him a host of friends through all portions of the county. He was highly respected by all who knew him, and his death will be genuinely regretted.

Deceased leaves a wife, one daughter, Mrs. R. Kuehling, and three adopted children.

HONESTY NOT ALL GONE.

Milwaukee Woman Recovers Lost Money and Jewelry.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—A handbag containing money and jewelry to the value of over $400 was returned to Mrs. A. G. Rose, 479½ Cramer street, after she had given the missing bag up for lost. She had lost the bag near St. Hedwig's church and, after all search had been fruitless, a friend advised her to have the pastor tell his congregation of the loss. After the Sunday morning services, one of the congregation brought the bag and contents to the pastor's house without a word. Nothing was missing, and Mrs. Rose is the happiest woman in town.

BEMIDJI BALL NINE TO PLAY COLERAINE SATURDAY.

Bemidji, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Owing to the expressed wish of the members of the Bemidji G. A. R. post that there be no sports in this city while the Memorial exercises were being conducted on Memorial day, the Bemidji ball team will not play in this city tomorrow, but will go to another town for two games.

The team will go to Coleraine, where they will play Memorial day. Koch, who has been in the city for several days waiting for a try-out with the locals, will be taken to Coleraine and placed on the firing line for Bemidji in Saturday's game against the strong Coleraine bunch. Koch claims to have played with the Fargo team of the Northern league and also with prominent teams in New York.

On Sunday Bemidji will play again at Coleraine. It is more than likely that Brumgartner will pitch Sunday's game for Bemidji.

SCANDIA BANK LOOT.

Believed One of Accused Robbers Has Told Where It Is.

Crookston, Minn., May 29.—In an unknown place southeast of Greenbush, seventy miles northeast of here, the loot of the Scandia State bank of Stephen, Minn., robbed April 29 last, is believed to be concealed, and Sheriff Fossberg and County Attorney Brown of Marshall county, with two assistants, arrived at Greenbush at noon yesterday from Warren to prosecute a search, believing that hope gone, Zalinsky, held as a suspect of the bank robbery, is understood to have tipped off the hiding place to the officers. The exact hiding place is uncertain, except as described by natural surroundings.

TO ENTERTAIN GOVERNOR.

Copper Country Press Club Will Greet Governor Warner.

Calumet, Mich., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—President Homer. A Guck of the Copper Country Press club has named the following reception committee to act in conjunction with the officers of the organization in arranging the plans for the reception and luncheon to be tendered Governor Fred M. Warner and the members of his party upon their visit here on Tuesday next: C. E. Smook, H. C. Rowell, J. H. Wilson, Horace J. Stevens, John R. Pimlott, William Lyon and W. E. Smith This committee will meet with the officers of the Press club within the next day or so and the final arrangements for the luncheon at the Douglass house will be arranged.

BRIDEGROOM ARRESTED.

Connubial Bliss is Given Jar by Young Woman.

Valley City, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Harry Marten, a switchman employed on the Northern Pacific, was married this week to a prominent young woman of Valley City and Wednesday night he was arrested on complaint of Anna Monck, a Fargo girl, who claims that Marten is guilty of a statutory crime. The arrest was made at Valley City by Deputy Sheriff Bingham, who brought his man back to Fargo, and he was arraigned before Judge Miller. He was bound over to the district court and his bonds fixed at $750, which were put up by his wife's father.

PAVING PRELIMINARIES SLOW IN GRAND FORKS.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—It will be about July 1 before a contract can be let for the repaving of twenty-five blocks in the business section of Grand Forks. The resolution declaring paving necessary and accepting the plans and specifications must be well grounded, bids will be called for. These bids must be advertised for a couple of weeks. The council may take a few days to consider these bids and so it will probably be about July 1 before the contract is let.

The fact that the sidewalks are to be widened from twelve to thirteen feet in the business district will make some difference in the cost of paving. Six feet will be taken off the width of the street to be paved.

HAM KILLED TROUT.

It Was Thrown Into Fountain in City of Ashland.

Ashland, Wis., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two dozen trout, out of 100, placed in the city fountain two days ago, died this week, apparently poisoned by boiled ham, which someone placed in the fountain, last evening. In addition, Custodian Stubbs scooped out of the fountain a quantity of cigar stubbs and other rubbish, which had been thrown into the water. Brook trout thrive in pure water. They cannot stand cigars, boiled ham and other delicacies so much coveted by mankind. These fish are city property, and Mr. Stubbs has been instructed to swear out a warrant for the arrest of parties feeding fish in the public fountains. Throwing tobacco and other substances in the water means sure death to the fish.

PLAN HANCOCK RACES.

Hancock, Mich., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The incorporators of the Hancock Driving Park association are to be Dr. W. J. Patterson of Houghton, Ed Siller of Painesdale and Charles B. Saxby, J. E. O'Neil and Charles Kenerson of Hancock. Articles will be filed within a short time. It is stated that about $2,500 worth of stock has been pledged. Negotiations to affiliate with the American Trotting association are already under way. Another meeting will be held next Monday evening.

Says She "Tried It" With Grand Benefit.

Dear Sir: Thank you; I thank you time and again each day for publishing the prescription of the great Battle Creek specialist on stomach disorders. We, in our family, are great pie and cake eaters, and, naturally, I guess we are, or have been, "all dyspeptics," more or less. My family consists of husband, two daughters and a son. Scarcely a day passed but some of us were ill with headache, stomach distress after eating, billousness, irritability, etc., and I frequently with heart trouble, due to wind and gas on stomach. From a "family of blues" we've been changed to a "family of pinks," as we are all in the pink of health and eat more than ever. We got the prescription filled several times. Experienced some difficulty in getting all the ingredients, but the right ones are worth the trouble. For the benefit of others, I want to give this simple formula: Get in a half-pint bottle two ounces syrup of Ginger, two ounces essence of Pepsin mixed. Then get in separate package one ounce Comp. essence of Cardiol. Take home and mix with the other two ingredients. Shake well and take one or two teaspoonfuls after each meal. One before eating will excite a good appetite. This will digest anything you eat and give strength and health. Hoping this will be published and do much good, I am, respectfully,

MRS. A. K. McP.

GRADING INTERURBAN LINE.

Work Commences on System Between Marquette and Negaunee.

Marquette, Mich., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—A force of men and teams began work this week on the grading of the proposed interurban line to be built by the Lake Superior Construction company between Marquette and Negaunee. The first work is being done at Bancroft, near the town hall, where Engineer Cummings has completed the survey. The work will be pushed without cessation, and Mr. Barber reports that he now has the financial matters incident to seeing the project through framed up in a satisfactory manner.

BAGLEY MAN DROWNS.

Bagley, Minn., May 29.—Mrs. B. F. Brown of this place, formerly Mrs. Anna Swartz, received a telegram yesterday that her son, Franklin E. Swartz, was drowned at Jennings, La., where he had been working in the oil fields. He was 23 years old and had not been home for about seven years. His body will be brought to Bagley for burial.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Ashland—Nicholas Nelson, who has been visiting in the city with relatives, left Monday for Duluth and Superior and points in Canada, where he will also visit relatives before returning to his home in Seattle. Mrs. Nelson will remain in Ashland for some time before returning home.

Madison—Former United States Senator John C. Spooner has been retained by the Columbia National Life Insurance company of Boston to represent it with Kemper, Bloodgood & Kemper of Milwaukee in the suit brought against it by the state to compel it to file reports and pay taxes notwithstanding it has withdrawn from business in Wisconsin.

Neenah—The marriage of Miss Grace Kerwin, daughter of Justice J. C. Kerwin of the Wisconsin supreme court to John Sensenbrenner, son of a millionaire paper manufacturer both of Neenah, was solemnized Wednesday. The newly wedded pair left on a trip to Chicago and other eastern points.

Viroqua—Charles Peters of Viroqua, the fattest boy in Wisconsin, is glad that June is near. Contrary to the belief of most people, Charles does not suffer from torrid weather, and he now declares that he is preparing to enjoy the summer. He is 17 years old, and weighs 400 pounds.

Milwaukee—Robert Gersch, the striking molder charged with the murder of Valentine Boschke, was bound over for trial. He protested that he was overcome with sorrow for the shooting and jail officials say that he eost barely nothing and sits for hours with his head in his hands gazing sadly out of the window.

Neenah—Charles Foxgrover, who was drawned at the Neenah dam last week, was of a family of fourteen children, ten of whom are now living. The report that all but four had met with violent deaths was unfounded and untrue.

Janesville—W. F. Parker, a wealthy fountain pen manufacturer, broke his right arm and was otherwise seriously injured in an automobile accident.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Brainerd—Miss Kathleen Loftus, daughter of Mrs. Ann Loftus of Staples, died Tuesday night at St. Joseph's hospital of heart trouble. Miss Loftus who was but 16 years old, had been ill for some time but only recently was her case considered hopeless. Funeral services were held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

Moorhead—An insanity board, composed of Dr. Humphrey and Winberg, the latter of Lake Park, County Attorney Dosland and Judge of Probate Sharp conducted a hearing into the mental condition of Christina Larson of Winnipeg Junction. After a hearing the patient was adjudged insane and was committed to the asylum at Fergus Falls.

New York Mills—Hilda and Aale Pickarinen, aged 13 and 16 years respectively, arrived from Finland Thursday, having made the trip by themselves. They are the children of Mrs. Mary Pickarinen, who lived here a number of yaers ago. Their mother and shep father were left in Finland and expect to return in the fall.

Perham—There were nearly 100 fishermen in Perham over Sunday, they coming from the East and West. On account of the rain, very few braved the storm, but remained indoors. Those that did go out fishing, had the proverbial fisherman's luck, in addition to a nice string of fish.

Bemidji—Buttons "boosting" Bemidji are being circulated all about the state of Minnesota, and the designe on the buttons are of such striking nature that they are attracting attention everywhere.

Fergus Falls—A large section of the lower dam in this city has been washed away as the result of a sudden rise in the river caused by soaking rains. The dam furnished power for one or two factories which will be compelled to close down temporarily.

St. Cloud—Mrs. Mary Bowers died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Brooks of Clear Lake, May 26, of complications and old age. Mrs. Bowers was born in Utica, N. Y., Oct. 21, 1821, being nearly 87 years of age. She came to Clear Lake with her family in 1885, where she resided up to the time of her death.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet—A new Copper Range time table, which will go into effect about June 1, will make connections with the Keweenaw Central's new line at Calumet. The new schedule will provide three Sunday trains for Freda park from Calumet, Hancock and Houghton and a fourth from Painesdale to Freda.

Negaunee—John Solquist, who had his right arm badly fractured at the Negaunee mine several weeks ago, has suffered greatly since receiving the injury, a second operation having been necessary. He is now getting along well, but it is feared that his arm will be stiff.

Ishpeming—The La Union Canadienne Francaise society of this city has accepted an invitation from the Lafayette society of Negaunee to attend its picnic on mid-summer day. The Ishpeming branch will not be accompanied by a band, but the Negaunee band has been engaged to head the parade.

Marquette—The jury in the case of the Standard Diamond Drill company vs. Benjamin Neely of Negaunee, after wrestling with the case, which had been on trial for two days, for several hours yesterday, found Benjamin Neely entitled to a judgment for $305.

Houghton—The annual influx of bums to Houghton started Monday night. There were no less than six beggars of various kinds located by the police Monday night. They were in various degrees of wreckage.

Calumet—Another party left Calumet Wednesday for European points. Among those in the party are Paul Dahl and wife, Mrs. Yerenberg and son, A. E. Warren and daughter of Pine street, and Miss M. Mattson of Laurium. They will sail from Quebec this week via the Empress of Ireland over the Canadian Pacific route.

Hancock—Chief of Police Andrew is advised that Michael J. Walsh, the fugitive arrested by him on Monday at the instance of the North Britain Connecticut, police authorities, is charged with embezzlement, and that one of the young man's bondsmen is enroute to Hancock with the papers necessary to take Walsh back East.

Houghton—Justice Charles Little of Hurontown, who has been circulating the petition praying for the establishment of a rural free mail delivery service for the hill district secured upwards of 230 signatures, and turned the petition over to Postmaster R. B. Langdon, of Houghton.

Laurium—The Citizens' league of Laurium sent another batch of members to the county seat this week for the purpose of declaring their intention to become citizens of this country. The party numbered more than fifty. Other parties will be arranged for in the near future.

Calumet—The Maccabees of Calumet and Laurium are beginning to make extensive preparations for their big picnic to be held at Tamarack park the afternoon and evening of June 20. The committee in charge is doing everything in its power to stir up the interest in the affair.

Houghton—The eighth grade commencement exercises of the Houghton Central school will be held in the assembly room of the Central building on Tuesday morning, June 19. The program includes an address by Superintendent F. A. Jeffers of the Adams township schools. There are seventy in the class.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Grand Forks, N. D.—The flag staff donated by the Willis A. Gorman post of the G. A. R., was erected Wednesday at the Memorial park cemetery. The staff is fifty feet high and the flag that now floats can be distinguished from the city.

Leeds, N. D.—The Woodmen picnic and field day at Leeds on June 10 promises to be the biggest event ever pulled off in this part of the state. It is all the talk everywhere and the committee is arranging a very fine program.

Jamestown, N. D.—A heavy hail storm did a large amount of damage in the southwestern portion of Stutsman county. Field crops were damaged and gardens devastated. In the vicinity of Sharlow the hail pounded the grain into the ground so that the fields looked as if they had never been seeded.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Shriners from the northern half of North Dakota are making plans for a big excursion train to be run from Grand Forks to St. Paul on July 13, as on that date the Imperial Shrine meeting will be opened. A delegation of between 300 and 400 Shriners will leave this city on the day above named, this delegation to meet with a similar crowd of Shriners which will leave Fargo.

Devils Lake, N. D.—Another wholesale grocery house is planning to establish a distributing house at Devils Lake. Park, Grant & Morris of Fargo and Grand Forks are looking around for a suitable location for a warehouse and the matter has been presented to the Commercial club for action. Several sites are under consideration.

Minot, N. D.—William Dunnell was elected alderman from the Second ward against Mr. Evarts by a vote of 121 to 6. Mr. Dunnell had been unanimously indorsed for alderman from the ward. The other candidates spoken of were F. H. Slatke and Mr. Evarts, who ran against Alderman Hendrickson.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Spriggs Bros. of Grand Forks were the lowest bidders on the plumbing and heating contract of the new convent school at Devils Lake and will undoubtedly be awarded the contract, although the matter was taken under advisement.

Fargo, N. D.—Youthful vandals broke into the Northern Transfer warehouse near the Northern Pacific roundhouse, on West Front street, this week and carried off a large amount of brass fixtures from automobiles which were stored there. Four machines were simply stripped and the loss amounts to over $100.

Tower City, N. D.—The Old Settlers' association of eastern Barnes county and western Cass county will hold its annual picnic at Tower City on Friday, June 26, and the association is planning the best time it ever had.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS.

It become quite clear long ago that congress did not intend to do anything with the measure demanded by the president requiring full publicity of campaign contributions. This in spite of the hilarious bluff of the house in passing the bill with an amendment guaranteed to kill it in the senate.

This failure will return to plague the party in power during the campaign, and it will return again and again until the measure is passed—if it ever is passed.

Some measure laying bare the sources of campaign funds is so acute a necessity that if the people put their thoughts to it long enough they will regard it as the most important proposal pending before congress.

The object, of course, is to prevent contributions from the great corporations. It must be evident to everybody that the financing of the great parties by the "interests" is a very bad thing for the people. Corporations do not contribute to campaign funds because of patriotism; they haven't patriotism or the capacity for it Their contributions are investments, and they see to it that they return big dividends.

The chief reason why the machinery of government has worked for the corporations instead of for the people is because the corporations supplied the campaign funds that kept the parties going, and the people did not.

Not having supported their parties with funds, the people had no right to expect that the parties would work for them. If they did expect it, they were disappointed, because the parties, as a rule, have worked for those that paid them.

It is so simple that there should be no possibility of dispute about it. Parties will not work for the people so long as they are forced to draw their funds from those who profit at the expense of the people through the special privileges that their campaign investments buy for them. When a party begins to work for the people, its revenue from the corporations ceases automatically.

Because the people have been awakened, and because a Roosevelt here or a Johnson there has really acted as the servant of the people instead of as the boughten serf of the corporations, don't think for a moment that the fight is over.

The corporations are finding great comfort in the fact that Mr. Roosevelt is shortly to be out of the way. They don't care particularly about Taft, but they would much rather have him than Roosevelt. They are taking steps to see that they control as of yore the machinery of the Republican party. They are selecting their own men as officers of the national convention, and they will, if they can, pick its permanent officers and draft its platform. Present indications are that they will do these things, and that no matter how good the Taft intentions may be, he will go into the campaign as the candidate of a party that is bound hand and foot to the wheels of the plutocratic chariot. This relationship is cemented only by campaign funds, and the refusal of the Republican majority in congress to enact a law against such contributions is conclusive proof that the machinery of the party is going to be controlled by the vendors of corporation money.

THE GROSS EARNINGS TAX LAW.

H. H. Phelps, judging by the incomplete reports that have come of the decision of the United States supreme court declaring the Texas gross earnings law unconstitutional, stated to The Herald last evening that he believed the point on which the court based its decision applies also to the law under which Minnesota taxes its railroads upon their gross earnings.

The Texas law was declared invalid because it taxes interstate commerce. There can be little question that the Minnesota law taxes interstate commerce; it specifically provides for taxing it, and the Texas law did not.

This matter should be taken up by the Duluth Commercial club or the Real Estate exchange and thoroughly investigated. From every viewpoint it is desirable to overthrow the Minnesota gross earnings tax law if it is possible. The railroads do not pay their proper share of taxes under it, and the tax that it does yield goes entirely to the state, thus depriving the cities of taxes whose loss is seriously felt.

SOME AWKWARD NAMES.

Having time at their disposal because of the prevailing dullness brought on by the panic, it is related that the people of Los Angeles, Cal., are becoming very much worked up over the proper pronunciation of the name of their city.

We don't wonder. Certainly the outside world always has been mixed up about it, and it is not surprising to find a difference of opinion among the natives. The mayor, to whom the matter was referred, took expert advice upon it and reported that the proper pronunciation is "Loce Ang-gel-ees." This is after the Spanish, of course, and as the words are Spanish Castilian rules ought to have some weight. Yet probably nine out of ten residents of the city, while accepting the hard "g" in the latter part of the name, makes the first syllable sound like "loss." Away from Los Angeles, most people call it "Loss Anjelees," which is about as far from the purist's pronunciation as it is possible to get.

This is but one of many confusions that arise in this country because of the difference between the phonetic pronunciation of the outsider, the local habit, often purely arbitrary, of the natives, and the pure French, Spanish or German of the tongue from which the name was borrowed.

For instance, if a Northerner speaks of New Orleans, he is pretty certain to give all the syllables their full value, and to put his accent on the last syllable, while the native slurs it into something like "N'orleens," with the accent on the middle syllable.

Some of the smaller towns are even worse. Terre Haute becomes "Terry Hut;" Lafayette, Ind., becomes 'Layfayette" upon the tongues of the natives; West Baden becomes "West Bayden," Pierre, S. D., becomes plain "Peer." Sometimes, apparently, the original European pronunciation is adopted in full, sometimes it is accepted in part, and sometimes it is flatly disregarded for the plainest sort of anglicization.

An instance of partial adoption of native pronunciation is a Colorado village where the Santa Fe railroad branches, named La Junta. People passing that way become accustomed to the Spanish custom of making "j" sound like "h," but not one, apparently, has learned to adopt the Spanish long sound of "u." If Spanish rules are to govern it should be "Lah Hoontah," and if it is to be anglicized it ought to be made "La Junta" with the short "u."

In short, the confusion of pronunciation is at least as bad as the confusion of spelling, and there is quite as much room for a propaganda of simplified pronunciation as there is for simplified spelling. The latter, as a definite movement, has a quick rise and great prominence because of the eminent American statesmen who gave it his countenance. Now, however, it is forgotten, and very likely the same fate would await a movement for simplified pronunciation. Nevertheless, in view of the difficulties which many foreign tongues offer to those that know only English, it would be very much better if we would anglicise all our borrowed names and terms.

THE FARCE IS ENDED.

The report of the special committee appointed by Speaker Cannon to investigate the paper-making industry furnished no surprises. The majority of the committee did just what it was expected to do and what it was appointed for: it solemnly evaded making any sort of recommendation except that it be permitted to delay action by continuing its investigations during the summer. The minority report, however, meets the issue squarely by recommending the abolition of the tariff schedules at once.

The majority report says the evidence fails to prove a combination of papermakers, though it does not deny that there is such a combination; the minority report calls attention to the uniformity of price and of action that clearly shows the existence of such a combination.

The majority report "views with alarm" the dire results of removing the tariff, and says that it might result in higher prices and in the immediate destruction of the American forests. This is so absurd as to be childish. The effect would be just the opposite. The removal of the duty is necessary in order to deprive the paper trust of the club with which it maintains high prices, and in order to prevent the destruction of the American forests which must come if the tariff shuts out foreign timber. The minority report, on the other hand, finds that the existing duties have enabled the paper trust to maintain exorbitant prices, and that therefore paper and pulp should be placed on the free list.

The majority, obedient to the wishes of Cannon and the paper trust, dodges the issue of arbitrary high prices, fixed at uniform rates by a secret combination; while the minority report finds that the paper trust claim that the high prices are due to increased cost of labor and pulpwood is not justified by the facts.

In short, the minority seems to have been free to see clearly and to tell what it saw, and the majority seems to have been determined to twist the facts to fit its prejudged intention to prevent any action being taken. The fiasco is on a par with other shameful failures of the Aldrich-Cannon do-nothing congress.

THE COST OF EMPIRE.

Spain lost her colonies, slowly at first by incompetent rule and suddenly at the last because of the sudden apparition of the United States in the Spanish melon patch. Having lost its empire, Spain, curiously enough, promptly began to prosper.

This country got the colonies that Spain lost—or some of them—and this country, too, prospered; but not because of these dubious acquisitions. Indeed, they have been a source of tremendous expense and, in the opinion of many, of considerable demoralization. We paid Spain $20,000,000 for her Philippines, after againing them in fair fight. Then we spent $200,000,000 or so in suppressing the Philippine aspirations for the freedom we ourselves love so well. Now, being a world power by virtue of these faraway possessions, we are spending $120,000,000 a year on our navy alone, and our congress, at this session, appropriated more than a billion dollars which the people must pay in direct or indirect taxes. Not all of this expense came from the acquisition of the Philippines, of course, but a good deal of it was the natural outgrowth of the sudden accession to the condition of world power that we bought with the Philippines.

Spain was made poor by her empire. Her people, burdened with taxation to support the empire, and drained of their young men to fight the empire's battles, lost courage and hope, and sank to a very low state. As soon as fortune removed the empire, Spain and her people became prosperous again, and they have been flourishing ever since.

Surely there is something to think about here. Spain was poverty-stricken and hopeless so long as it was an empire, and prospered again when the costs and drains of empire were eliminated. The United States has gained her empire, assumed the costs and drains going with it, and her people are paying the taxes—paying more, because we do things on a grander scale than Spain could hope to do them.

It does not follow that we are going to change places with Spain. We are of different stock than the Spanish, and our people are not going to lose hope and energy, no matter how much empire costs us. Some of us, probably, even enjoy the glory of being part of an empire, and are willing to let the costs go hang.

But if Spain wilted under the burdens of empire, and revived when they were removed; if the United States finds itself paying enormous taxes to support an empire that brings little profit and much hazard: if these things are true—and there can be no doubt that they are true—doesn't our tendency toward empire suggest a fruitful subject for sober thought on the part of far-seeing citizens?

Surely the average citizen cares little for empire. Our continental empire is great enough for him without going into distant seas and acquiring territory that brings with it problems strange and new and menacing. Without these distant possessions there would be no need for large navies and billion-dollar congresses and the taxes they involve. Without making any comparison between the Spanish people and the American people, isn't the experience of the former a little significant and suggestive, in the light of our new grandeur of empire and glory of high taxation?

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Baseball and prosperity!

From the remarks dropped by J. M. Lamb, president of the Northern league, at the St. Louis hotel yesterday, the attendance up in the Canadian end of the league will be greater this year than last simply because the wheat is fully ten inches out of the ground, while last year at this period many of the farmers had not completed their spring seeding.

It isn't exactly that the farmers up in Manitoba compose a major part of the attendance at the ball games; it is, as Mr. Lamb explains, because the fine start of the wheat has given the baseball fanatic confidence in his business or profession and makes him think that he can afford to spend the money necessary to become a regular patron of the great national game.

At least this is the view Mr. Lamb takes of the situation. Baseball and the crop conditions have been seldom linked together. Yet up in Manitoba they depend in a great measure for their prosperity upon the condition of the crop. Wheat is the great crop up there, so it doesn't seem so improbable after all that the fact that the good appearance of the growing wheat should swell the baseball coffers. The attendance in the Canadian cities this year has been unprecedented, according to Mr. Lamb, who attributes in no small part the large attendance and the enthusiasm of the fans to the fact that the wheat is peeping from the verdant soil in a manner that promises a bumper crop.

Mr. Lamb says that both the Brandon and the Winnipeg teams have played to record-breaking attendance. He even ventures the prediction that the receipts of the Brandon games thus far this season will total more than the entire proceeds of the teams of the Copper country during the playing season of 1907.

Further, Mr. Lamb says that Duluth has a fine baseball team. He says they are a better team than their playing thus far this season would indicate.

W. J. Wallace of this city, who makes his home at the St. Louis hotel, has returned from a trip to Washington with the information that the politicians in the capital city are out to give the long dirk to Theodore Roosevelt should that strenuous person decide that after all he is violating no historic traditions by accepting a nomination for the third term.

Mr. Wallace says that the sentiment in Washington seems to be that Taft will secure the Republican nomination. For the Democratic nomination both Bryan and Johnson have their allies.

He says that Taft is well liked by the politicians, while President Roosevelt is little beloved by the men who are not in politics for the laurels that go with a public career. That is the opinion Mr. Wallace found in Washington. He speaks only of the opinion he found in that city, as he had little opportunity to gather political sentiment in any other place during his trip.

A traveling man at the McKay yesterday was telling of the time he received a setback from a member of the opposite sex. To be sure, the one who dealt the sentimental solar plexus was only a wee tot of tender years, but her answer goes to show the manner in which some persons regard the gay knight of the road.

"There was a cute little miss in a hotel down in Iowa," said the commercial man. "I asked her to come and let me kiss her. She reminded me of my little girl back at home.

"'Oh, no,' came her reply; 'mama never lets me kiss traveling men.'"

A combined misery parade and indignation jaunt was given by an inebriated and travel worn man yesterday afternoon between the Spalding hotel and a restaurant that is opposite the hotel. Between the fact that he had back in not having overmuch of the world's wealth, the sad-eyed wayfarer vigorously shook his fist first at the big structure and then turned and shook an equally mendacious fist at the restraunt. Duluth, Superior and vicinity.

The trouble started in the Spalding. Hearing of the responsiveness of the citizens of Duluth the tramp attempted to run the gauntlet of the porter who is stationed at the front door of the hotel. He could give no explanation of his business and was asked to leave. He refused and began to get ugly. Pedestrians were astonished to see a human form come flying through the air and light in a heap clear of the sidewalk. That was the man who had refused to leave the hotel when asked.

After receiving the rebuff at the hotel the down at the heel one crossed over to the restaurant. Here he fished out a well worn nickel and paid for a cup of coffee. He then took some remnants of food from his pocket and began an impromptu lunch. Finishing this he became covetous of the good things spread before the adjoining diner at the lunch counter, and when that individual was not looking, sneaked a grimy hand over and took liberally of the contents of his plate.

The proprietor, however, happened to see the act and the little exit act of the Spalding was repeated. It was then that the sad-eyed one vented his rage on the two places where his reception had been so chilly. First he walked over to the Spalding and shook his fist, then crossing the street and standing in front of the restaurant he again wielded the fist, in the meantime uttering adjectives that would have shocked the hardened ear of the proverbial fishwife.

THE WEATHER.

By way of a change, the morning broke with a northeaster in full swing. The rain fell plentifully, and it was driven against the windows by a sharp breeze from the lake. At intervals the rain slackened, or ceased altogether only to start in again with fresh vigor. The weather man expects the showers to continue tonight, but hopes for fair and warmer though partly cloudy weather tomorrow. Last night's lowest temperature was 41 degs. and yesterday's highest was 62 degs.

A year ago today there was a thick fog, and it was cool.

The sun rose this morning at 4:18 and sets tonight at 7:52, making 15 hours and 34 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The storm central Thursday morning over Western Iowa remained about stationary, its center advancing only to Southern Minnesota. During the past twenty-four hours this barometric depression caused continued showery weather throughout Central and Northern states, and high temperature in Atlantic states and southward from the Ohio valley to the Gulf of Mexico. The barometer is also low over Alberta, attended by showers over Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon. Cooler weather prevails in the Lake Superior region, Kansas and Oklahoma. Barometric pressures are high over Western Ontario and off the Oregon-Washington coast. Conditions favor a continuance of showery weather tonight, followed by fair Saturday."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures:

Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth, May 29.—Local forecast for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Saturday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermilian iron ranges—Probably showers tonight; Saturday party cloudy; warmer; brisk northeast winds shifting to northwest tonight.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, May 29.—Forecasts until 7 p. m. Saturday: Upper Michigan—Rain tonight and Saturday.

Wisconsin—Showers and thunder storms tonight and possibly Saturday; cooler in west portion tonight.

Minnesota—Showers tonight with cooler in southeast portion; Saturday partly cloudy.

North Dakota—Partly cloudy tonight and Saturday.

Upper Lakes—Brisk southerly winds on Michigan and Huron and northeast on Superior, possibly shifting to northwest on all lakes Saturday. Showers and squalls.

SAID IN FUN.

Philadelphia Ledger: "Scientists say the supply of coal is nearly gone. Then what'll we do?"

"Oh, burn coke, I suppose."

Chicago Record-Herald: "Goodness gracious! What a lot of rats the bride has in her hair."

"That's all right. The bridegroom has quite as many in his belfry."

Houston Post: "The bachelor is worse off than the married man."

"How can you make that out?"

"The married man is afraid of only one woman; the bachelor is afraid of all of them."

Chicago Tribune: First Politician—Well, I'm feeling a good deal better. I've been down in Indiana, taking the baths.

Second Politician—I see. Been getting Licked into shape.

Washington Star: "I put myself into my playing," remarked the ardent musician.

"That," replied Miss Cayenne, "may explain why it is sometimes difficult to recognize the composer."

Baltimore American: Wrathy Constituent—What do you mean by betraying our interests this way and voting for the corporations all the time? You said on the stump, before you were elected, that you would fight predatory wealth.

Wise Legislator—Yes, I did then, but I've got some of it now.

Success: "What's you name, sir?"
"Wood."
"What's your wife's name?"
"Wood, of course."
"H'm; both wood. A-ah, any kindling?"

Chicago Tribune: "You noticed, did you, that the Mercuria sailed for Europe yesterday with $20,000,000 in gold aboard?"

"No, and I don't believe it. There wasn't a word in the financial columns of the papers about any such shipment of gold as that."

"Maybe not, but there was in the society columns. Didn't you see the statement that Miss Muntoburn was one of the passengers?"

Nature Provides, Congress Spends.

Philadelphia Record: The movement to conserve the natural resources of the country might be made more immediately hopeful by conserving some of the acquired resources already in hand as a result of industry. The congress now about ready to adjourn will have appropriated approximately the vast sum of $1,028,000,000.

A Maine Conversation.

Harper's Weekly: The stranger in town enters the postoffice and sits down on a barrel. After a twenty-minute wait he addresses a native.

"Any huntin' around here?"
"Some."
"Rabbits?"
"Ain't seen none."
"Any tracks?"
"Plenty."
"Deer?"
"Nope."
"Fox?"
"Nope."
"Wildcat?"
"Nope."
"What kind?"
"Trolley."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of the Herald of This Date, 1888.

Patrick McManus has been appointed poundmaster for the West end, with the powers of a special policeman. Theodore Macoy is poundmaster for the East end.

At the city council meeting last evening, The Herald was, by a unanimous vote, made the official paper for the coming year. Salaries of the board of public works were fixed as follows: M. Bunnell, $1,200; F. B. Edwards, $600; Philip Westaway, $800; F. Mandeville, $900. The health inspectors will receive $75 a month and the overseers of the street gang $60 per month. A resolution, lowering wages of city laborers from $2 to $1.75 per day, and of teams from $4.50 to $4 was laid on the table.

J. B. Geggie returned last night from Tower, bringing with him a bear cub, with which he proposes to ward off burglars.

Herman Hohn of London, Iowa, will become a permanent citizen of Duluth and is for the present engaged with David Buchanan.

The partnership of August Lundgreen and Richard Parker, under the firm name of Lundgreen & Parker, has been dissolved.

Lord Stanley of Preston has been appointed governor general of Canada, to succeed Lord Lansdowne.

Vesselmen are growling at the shortages in wheat cargoes loaded at Duluth elevators and discharged at Buffalo and they claim that they are being constantly defrauded somewhere. State officials claim that the fault cannot be here, that the vessels never make any fuss where there is an overrun, and that in cases where grain becomes damp, the vesselmen pocket the injured grain and shout about a shortage.

The contract for track laying on the whole line of the Eastern Railway of Minnesota has been let to P. Brennan of St. Paul.

The cedar tie business continues brisk and the receipts for the season are now estimated at 500,000. About 100,000 ties have already been landed here, nearly all from the Sault river.

The committee of the Grand Army has decided on the program and line of march to Forest Hill cemetery on Memorial day. There will be four divisions, headed by a platoon of police, and Marshal T. H. Pressnell and Aide A. S. Morgan, with the colonel of the Second regiment, M. N. G., and the state inspector general.

Judge Thurman has consented to become a candidate for the vice presidency on the ticket with Grover Cleveland.

Hutch Bevier is building a model of the first house ever erected on Rice's Point. Joe Posey owned and built it.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: It would be some to the point if the Republican newspapers of Minnesota would devote more time and attention to their own party affairs and less to the Democratic. Ours is a paper that is in need of careful attention just at the present time.

Willmar Journal: If the delegates to the Republican national convention are given an opportunity to vote for the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt, they will be perfectly safe in disregarding their instructions to vote for Billy Taft. Nothing the convention could do would so pleasing to the people as to renominate President Roosevelt for the second term.

Minneota Mascot: If Minneapolis really wants to make good and show the country that she is right let her send a Jacobson delegation to the state convention. If Minneapolis will do that we will begin to believe that there is something in this "Make good" talk that we are now hearing so much about. But we know of no other way for her to live up to the new motto in political matters. If she does not send a Jacobson delegation to the state convention she does not make good.

Fairmont Sentinel: The majority party may be able to stand the diversion of a split or a bolt, but minority never. Democrats were wise and proved to be made of the right stuff at the Democratic state convention.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: After all the acrimony and bitterness between the Johnson and Bryan forces in the primary campaign, the Democratic situation is more promising than might be expected. The Bryanites took their defeat gracefully, and whatever the result may be, however, the party can give the candidate for president united and hearty support. Somehow Democrats have formed the habit of laying aside their quarrels after the state convention has taken action.

Hendrum Review The saloons are the breeding places for corrupt politics and usually furnish the votes for corporation legislators. That is one of the reasons why so many people who are not strictly-speaking prohibitionists or even temperance men are working against them.

Sauk Center Herald: The man who is always on the side of the people is the kind of man who should be put into office. Too many public officers prostitute their positions for the benefit of a political party.

Anoka Union: A stampede for Roosevelt at the Republican national convention would be hailed with shouts of delight on the front and back seats, and the middle ones too.

Willmar Journal: Now that the smoke of the battle has cleared away one thing in the Democratic party looms up big. Bryan is handicapped with a lot of fool friends in this state.

Fergus Falls Free Press: The Democrats of Wadena county are going to put a full ticket in the field this year. "Hope springs eternal," etc.

This Congress and the Next.

Kansas City Star: Not in more than thirty years have the majority members of the house of representatives gone before the country for re-election with such a bad bill of claims as the present majority will have to present to the people. The coming campaign will be one of explanations, and it will be mighty hard explaining. No good excuse can be offered to the country for the complete failure of constructive legislation. No line of reasoning that will appeal to the voters can be followed for the disregard of those measures that have been shown by the president and others to be necessary at this time. Even the dissenting wing of the Republican membership is not in a fortunate position, for it consented to failure rather than unite with the Democratic side to secure the enactment of urgent measures recommended by the president.

Fortunately the failures of congress cannot be charged to President Roosevelt, nor to Secretary Taft, who has stood for the Roosevelt policies and will represent these policies as the Republican nominee for the presidency. The voters who are in sympathy with the present administration and desire its policies continued will seek, and should seek, to send to congress men who will support those policies, whether they be Republicans or Democrats. And in the close districts, at least, there will be many changes of representation as a result of the coming election.

The next president, whether he be a Republican or a Democrat, should have a progressive congress, and a progressive congress means one substantially in harmony with the Roosevelt administration. The minority in the house, taken as a whole, has been much more closely in accord with Mr. Roosevelt than the majority has been. This fact cannot be belittled.

Sunshine.

"Let us alone!" the cry sounds loud,
From some chaps who make up the crowd,
And each time in a louder tone
They join that cry, 'Let us alone!"

The In-Bad club lifts up its voice
To tell how it would much rejoice
If seeds of trouble were not sown.
One boon is asked: "Let us alone!"

Likewise there's Predatory Wealth,
Which is not in it for its health;
It, too, demands, 'twould have it known,
The safer way: "Let us alone!"

And Undesirables, who walk
In other paths, are for such talk.
The butter-in brings forth the groan;
Hence they repeat: "Let us alone!"

And there may be some other gents
Whose business to all intents
Is ruined by those who are prone
To block the graft. "Let us alone!"

"Let us alone, for life is gay,
There's nothing like the good old way.
On us let sunsalne e'er be thrown,
The searchlight? Nix! Let us alone."
—Indianapolis News.

CANNON AND HIS SATELLITES.

Cannon Falls Beacon: The people who do the voting are becoming suspicious that the party in power as represented by the congress are indifferent to the public interest, and should the suspicion be confirmed by a do-nothing session, or rather, the continuance of a do-nothing session, the party will suffer a disaster in November that will shame even the self-contained Mr. Cannon and the self satisfied Mr. Foraker.

Kansas City Star: Even Speaker Cannon is not above trying to "square" his constituents at the expense of the government. The little town of Danville, Ill., gets $275,000 for a postoffice.

Perham Enterprise: An exchange expresses surprise at the statement that Speaker Cannon is reported to be worth two millions. A man who has served the trusts as faithfully as "Uncle Joe" ought to be worth billions instead of millions.

Wadena Pioneer Journal: Even though this is the first term, Congressman Lindbergh has attracted considerable favorable attention all over the country by reason of his courage in opposing the dictatorship of Speaker Cannon and two or three of his lieutenants. Under the present system, four or five members rule the national house of representatives. It didn't take Mr. Lindbergh long to find this out, and he at once filed a vigorous protest. In a few years congress will have more members like Mr. Lindbergh, and less like Cannon, Sherman, Payne, Tawney, etc. Then we will be all be happier.

Hibbing Tribune: The congressmen who are supporting Speaker Cannon in his do-nothing policy should be left at home next November. Don't you think so?

Warren Register: Most of this continued knocking of Speaker Cannon is not only foolish, but it is without warrant. He has no power but such as congress has given to him, and what power it has given it can take away whenever it sees fit. The idea that nearly 500 able-bodied men are powerless to cope with one lone man who has passed his three score and ten, is too silly to require discussion.

Sandstone Courier: A bill has been introduced into the house of representatives at Washington, to take away some of the speaker's authority, but it will probably stand less show than the free-pulp bill, as the house is still in the hands of the big machine.

International Falls Press: Once upon a time, to "stand pat," speaking politically, merely meant to refrain from tinkering with the tariff. Later, it was expanded to mean "let well enough alone" in all matters where the special interests were concerned. Now, as illustrated by Cannon, it means aggressive obstruction, the systematic hindrance of every measure designed to insure the rights of the people as against the exactions of the interests.

Hibbing Tribune: Honestly now, don't you think the best use we could put Joe Cannon to, would be to make pulp wood out of him?

Pine Tree Blaze: The lower house of congress is getting lower every year. It is actually base now, and if Cannon isn't fired soon, it will no doubt dwindle down to nothing but a basement at last.

more than five of whom shall be from any one annual conference.

A motion was also passed limiting the number of field agents to two, there being a general sentiment in favor of retrenchment.

The conference did away with the district boards of home missions and church extension.

Adverse action yesterday by the conference on an apparently unimportant measure is said to have back of it a determination on the part of a large number of the delegates to bury the whole question of whether or not Paragraph 248 of the book of discipline, which deals with amusements, shall be changed. The motion in question was that a time be set for the consideration of the report of the committee which has the question under consideration. The motion was lost by a decisive vote.

Will Not Discuss Amusements.

Nothing was said in explanation other than that the report should be given preference over other important matters. Now, however, it is said, there is a determined purpose not to permit the amusements to be discussed on the floor of the conference at all if it is possible to prevent it. The assignment of bishops to the various Episcopal residences was reported to the committee on the Episcopacy last night by a special committee of nineteen and adopted by the full committee during a meeting that lasted until nearly midnight.

The assignments were as follows: Boston, Mass., John W. Hamilton; Buenos Ayres, Argentina, F. M. Bristol; Buffalo, N. Y., John W. Berry; Chattanooga, Tenn., William F. Anderson; Chicago, William F. McDowell; Cincinnati, David H. Moore; Denver, Colo., Henry W. Warren; Foochow, China, W. S. Lewis; New Orleans, La., Thomas B. Keeley; New York, Daniel A. Goodell; Oklahoma City, William A. Quayle; Omaha, John L. Nuelsen; Pekin, China, James W. Bashford; Philadelphia, Luther B. Wilson; Portland, Or., Charles W. Smith; St. Louis, Henry Spellmeyer; St. Paul, Minn., Robert McIntyre; San Francisco, Edwin H. Hughes; Washington, D. C., Earl C. Cranston; Zurich, Switzerland, William Burt.

OF BENEFIT TO DULUTH

Knocking Out of Gross Earnings Tax Would Help City.

Would Add Nearly $5,000,000 to Taxable Property Values.

The article in The Herald last evening, telling how the supreme court decision in regard to the gross earnings tax law in Texas might ultimately result in the Minnesota law being declared unconstitutional, attracted a good deal of attention and caused considerable discussion last night and today.

City Assessor Jackson says that if the law could be knocked out in Minnesota it would mean the adding of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 worth of taxable property to the rolls in Duluth alone, which, of course, would be of vast benefit to the city, for the railroad tax money would be paid into the city treasury, instead of to the state, as under the present system.

Duluth would probably be benefited more than any other city in the state, proportionately, for a large part of the lake and bay front is owned by the railroads, amounting in value to millions of dollars and, under existing conditions, this property cannot be taxed or assessed for street, sidewalk and other improvements. The whole expense of such improvement has to be borne by the city and private property holders in the district affected. There are so few of these private owners that the burden is a very heavy one. The city's share of the expense falls on all the taxpayers of Duluth.

The lands of the railroads extend all the way from Fond du Lac to Lakeside, and abut on streets which must be kept in good condition because of the large amount of traffic over them.

The gross earnings tax has been an excessively heavy burden to Duluth ever since it became a law, but, struggle as they would, local business interests were unable to devise any method of getting around the law, in attempting to make the roads pay taxes directly to the city, instead of into the treasury of the state.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL WINS

Victors in Potato Race Disqualified, Changing Result of Meet.

The judges of track events in the interscholastic field meet, held last Saturday at the West end driving park, have made a decision whereby the Washington school, which stood second with 47 points on the first count, wins the meet with 46 points and secures possession of The Herald cup for one year.

Perreault of the Jefferson school and Lawrence of the Washington school, who won second and third places, respectively, in the potato race, have been disqualified on account of their not having the full number of potatoes in the basket at the end of the race. Three points are thus taken from the Jefferson's total of 48 and one from the Washington's 47, giving Washington the lead.

The banquet and presentation of prizes will take place at the boys' department the latter part of next week. All contestants, whether winners or not, will be invited and a good program will be prepared for their entertainment.

SAW MATTICH DO THE SHOOTING

Drago Donjonovich Says His Efforts as Peacemaker Were Fruitless.

Drago Donjonovich, a witness for the state in the murder trial of Eli Mattich, was on the witness stand a portion of yesterday afternoon and all of the morning session of the court.

The witness, while he bears the same name as the alleged victim of Mattich's bullet, is no relation.

Donjonovich was questioned at considerable length as to details connected with the alleged murder. He claims to have witnessed the trouble between Eli Mattich, David Mattich and Rodi Donjonovich, and attempted to act as peacemaker. The witness claims to have witnessed the shooting, and says he saw Eli Mattich fire the fatal shot as Dodi Donjonovich was in the act of running away.

Although Eli Mattich's life is at stake in the trial now under way, the case does not attract much interest. Outside the court officials, the attorneys and the jurors, there were scarcely any spectators yesterday or today. The proceedings are somewhat tedious, owing to the fact that all the testimony is taken through an interpreter.

FILIBUSTER BEING MADE

sorted to every expedient to carry his point by various motions, but was obliged to abide by a vote of 32 to 14 to lay his appeal on the table.

Mr. Gore insisted that the vote showed one less than a quorum and the vice president announced that a quorum was present in spite of the vote.

"Does the presiding officer intend to establish a precedent of counting a quorum?" inquired Mr. La Follette, suggesting that that action might come back "to plague the senate."

Vice President Fairbanks in the chair read from a decision by Allen G. Thurman, June 19, 1879, when he announced that there was a quorum present although not shown by the vote.

During the colloquy, Mr. Aldrich was on his feet approving the ruling and a large number of senators were present on the Republican side.

Mr. Culberson then continued his speech: The expenditures for the military establishment for the last six years exceeded those of the preceding six years, he said, to the extent of $416,212,732, or over 137 per cent, and for the naval establishment to the extent of $423,000,000, or over 235 per cent. He concluded by declaring that these figures should startle the people of the country and indicate that the nation was pursuing a course of militarism.

During a short interval after the conclusion of Mr. Culberson's remarks and before Mr. La Follette took the floor, there was a demand that the question of adopting the report be put to the senate.

The Wisconsin senator, after securing recognition, walked deliberately from the rear of the chamber where he was standing to his seat.

Mr. Kean of New Jersey called for a vote.

Demands Another Roll Call.

"Is the senator from New Jersey in a hurry?" inquired Mr. La Follette, and then adding that, having the floor he presumed he had a right to call for a quorum, he forthwith demanded that the roll be called.

After fifty-seven senators had responded to the roll call Mr. La Follette, shortly before 1 o'clock, proceeded with his remarks on the currency bills reported by the conferees, saying that he would conserve his strength as much as possible, as he was just recovering from a protracted illness. He had a small pile of documents and several books on the desk before him. Folding his arms and supporting his weight on the arm of his chair he spoke slowly.

The railroad bond feature of the bill, as brought back in the conference report, was the chief object of his remarks. On the Democratic side a score of senators remained in their places and gave careful attention to his remarks. On the Republican side most of the senators who remained in the chamber occupied themselves in various ways, not more than half a dozen of them appearing to pay much attention to the words of the senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. La Follette, in mild terms and great show of politeness, suggested that he would like to have the senator from Rhode Island hear what he had to say and that if he could not hear him he could "draw nigh."

Before he had spoken half an hour, Mr. La Follette had made two demands for a roll call. Senator Stone, upon whom the Wisconsin senator depended as his only assistant in the filibuster, was present in the chamber for only a few minutes during the early part of the session, and it was understood that he was absent preparing a speech against the bill.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON

Impressed With Growth and Activity of Some Southern Cities.

St. Paul, Minn., May 29.—Governor John A. Johnson, returned yesterday from his trip to Virginia and Alabama, and will be at the capitol for several days. He speaks in Chicago, June 4, at the commencement exercises of Armour institute, and June 10 delivers the address for the University of Kansas commencement.

He was much impressed with the growth and activity of some Southern cities. "I found Norfolk, Atlanta and Birmingham particularly alive," he said, "and in every way like Northern cities. Birmingham is a new town with a fine future, as the center of the Southern iron district."

The governor did not discuss the general political situation, except to say: "I got 38 per cent of the Democratic vote of Alabama in the primaries, which was quite a satisfaction to me. I carried nine counties, and in spite of the talk about steel-trust support, my majorities did not come from the iron district. Mr. Bryan carried those counties."

MILLER TO BE SPEAKER

Exceptional Interest in Banquet Among Alumni of Irving School.

Good Program of Toasts Arranged for the Annual Event.

The fact that Clarance B. Miller will speak at the Irving school alumni banquet this evening has created more than the usual lively interest that attends the affair. For this reason it is expected that between 250 and 300 graduates will be on hand.

The banquet, which will be in charge of the Ladies' Aid society of the Asbury M. E. church, will be served at Wade's hall. The hall will be decorated with the association's colors, apple green and pink. Following the feast there will be dancing.

Rev. Thomas Grice will pronounce the invocation and S. A. Foster, principal of the school, will act as toastmaster.

The following is the banquet's program of speeches and music: Address of welcome, President Ray W. Abbott; "The Graduating Class," Miss Alma Gross; piano selection, Leon Iltis; "The Girls of the Alumni," John Quinn; "The Alumni," Miss Eva Ketchum; "The Irving Teachers and Principals," E. George Kriedler; "The Boys of the Alumni," Miss Vera Rockwell; piano selection, Miss Maud Gilbert; address, "The Relation of Education to Citizenship," Clarence B. Miller.

INTEREST IN TRIAL.

Henry Wilson's Fate to be Decided at Present Trial.

Much interest is being taken in West Duluth in the coming trial of Henry Wilson for murder in the first degree, on which charge he was indicted by the grand jury about the middle of May. His trial is set for this term, but the exact date has not been determined, as yet.

Mrs. Mary C. Wilson, the mother of the man held for murdering his wife, is at the home of Mrs. S. E. Freed, 418 North Fifty-second street, awaiting the trial of her son, and consulting with his attorneys regarding testimony which is to be obtained from Saginaw, Mich., Wilson's birthplace and former home. With this evidence they will endeavor to prove that Wilson was insane at the time he committed the deed and has been mentally deranged since childhood.

Exercises at Schools.

Memorial day exercises are being held this afternoon in the West Duluth schools. The programs started at 2 o'clock, and consist of music, recitations, calisthenic drills by the pupils and speeches by members of the G. A. R., two or three of whom are visiting each school in the city. It was expected that all the schools would be well attended by the children's parents, as they have made a special effort in observance of the day.

Will Open Memorial Day.

Memorial day will not be observed as a holiday by the merchants and barbers of West Duluth. All will continue open as usual all tomorrow. At first there was some discussion among the barbers as to closing, and at a meeting of the union it was even voted to close for the day, but later it was decided to keep open, as most of the stores had decided that way.

West Duluth Briefs.

The members of Modern Hive, L. O. T. M., were entertained last evening at the home of Mrs. Alice Pickard, 103 Forty-eighth avenue west.

George Frazer, who has been the guest of his sister, Mrs. Henry Hewitt, 518 North Fifty-eighth avenue west, returned yesterday to his home in Winnipeg.

Rev. Roderick J. Mooney has gone to Tower, Minn., where he will address the members of the Tower high school's graduating class.

Free—At Murray Bros.' store, sweet skimmed milk and sour milk. Bring your pails Saturday morning.

L. A. Barnes represented the Western State bank at the first annual meeting of the Eighth District Bankers' association, held at Coleraine.

Use Sherwin-Williams paint, the best. Nygren's drug store.

Charles Fancett has returned from a trip to several points in Michigan and Wisconsin.

Miss Bessie Campbell of Winona, Minn., is the guest of her cousin, Miss Lottie Lowe.

Levi Brult of Two Harbors was in West Duluth yesterday.

Charles Carey and William Meanger of Lincoln, Neb., are in West Duluth visiting friends and relatives.

The Oak Hall baseball team is scheduled to play the Spalding hotel team tomorrow on the grounds of Fifty-second avenue west and Elinor stareet, if the weather permits. Bert Talbert will pitch for the Oak Hall team. Sunday the team will go to Scanlon to play. Theodore Friedell will be on the hill for the West Duluth boys there.

WIDOW SAVES MINE

From Foreclosure With Only Ten Minutes to Spare.

Denver, Colo., May 29.—Mrs. Elizabeth Tabor, widow of Senator H. A. W. Tabor of Colorado, who has repeatedly refused offers for the famous Matchless mining property, near Leadville, the only remnant of her late husband's fortune, saved the property from foreclosure on Wednesday with but 10 minutes' time to spare.

For sentimental reasons, because the mine is all that remained of the senator's wealth, Mrs. Tabor has time after time faced creditors who threatened to sweep the property away from her. Ever since the senator died, Mrs. Tabor and her daughters have lived in a crude hut near the shaft opening of the mine, and have persistently refused to permit any one to enter the premises.

George Douglas of Chicago, who held the last remnant of an original $39,000 mortage on the Matchless, threatened foreclosure. Ten minutes before the mortgage was due Mrs. Tabor appeared and paid $7,500, once more saving the mine from being lost to the Tabor family. Friends in Denver have aided Mrs. Tabor in her plucky fight to save the mine and she now proposes to operate it.

Men's Clothing Sale.

D. Rothschild, president of the Chicago Stock Disposing company, has purchased the entire stock of merchandise of Cook's clothing house, 400 West Superior street, at 39c on the dollar.

This establishment has enjoyed the reputation of handling only dependable goods, and the stock consists of men's and boys' clothing, furnishings, shoes, hats, caps, traveling bags etc. Just as the stock was bought will it be sold, at 39c on the dollar—everything marked in plain figures.

Mrs. Maggie Carlson of the Kennedy block, flat 5, Twenty-third avenue west and Michigan street, was awarded the suit of clothes yesterday, she being the first person to enter the store at the commencement of the sale, Thursday morning.

MORGAN SURE OF TAFT.

Declares Financial Troubles Will Cease When He is President.

London, May 29.—Secretary Taft will be the next president of the United States, and the financial troubles in America will soon be over. So said J. Pierpont Morgan in his dual role of political and financial prophet, and he said it emphatically. Mr. Morgan has just arrived from Vienna.

W. S. STONE RE-ELECTED CHIEF OF ENGINEERS.

Columbus, Ohio, May 29.—Grand Chief Warren S. Stone and Assistant Grand Chiefs F. A. Bugess and E. W. Hurley, all of Cleveland, were re-elected yesterday by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Ash Kennedy of Winnipeg, Man., was chosen assistant grand chief to fill one of the new offices. He will represent Canada.

G. O. Barnhard of Portland, Or., general chairman of the Soo line, and J. E. Ryan of St. Cloud, Minn., general chairman of the Great Northern railroad, are among the leading candidates for the other newly created positions of assistant grand chief for a two-year term.

SALOONMAN SHOOTS SELF.

Perspiration and Fat— A Way Out

This year fat folks who want to move about a bit in comfort and dry undergarments are going to reduce. This does not mean, however, lots of exercise and rivers of perspiration. Nowadays the well-informed fat person gets rid of his or her fat with an almost mathematical certainty—not through muscular exertion or punishing fasts—but by means of a teaspoonful only, after meals and at bedtime, of a harmless inexpensive mixture, to wit, ½ ounce Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3½ ounces Sirup Simplex, which any druggist can and will put up for a small sum.

This pleasant home receipt takes the fat off at the rate of 12 to 16 ounces a day without causing wrinkles or interfering with one's pleasure or even one's meals, and it has proved a nugget of knowledge of incalculable comfort value to thousands.

STORE OPEN ALL DAY TOMORROW

The Big Cash Purchase

Of Cook's Clothing House, 400 West Superior street, by R. Rothschild, president of the Chicago Stock Disposing Co., has created a sensation among the buying public of Duluth and vicinity. Mr. Rothschild's cash offer of 39c on the dollar was accepted, and the entire stock was placed on sale Thursday morning just as it was advertised, at 39c on the dollar. From the time the sale opened the store was continually crowded with eager buyers. The price on the goods did not take long to convince the people that such real bargains were never offered in your city before. Owing to the limited time to sell the stock the store will be open all day tomorrow.

CHEERFUL PHILOSOPHY.

"Yours Merrily," John R. Rogers Has the Secret of Youth.

This is the secret of how to retain one's youth, as given by "Yours Merrily," John R. Rogers, the advance manager of "The Ham Tree," who is known from Maine to California:

"It is just as easy to be cheerful and happy when things go wrong and sorrows and disappointments multiply as to be moody and depressed. Pray, think, order, control, boss yourself and you will overcome adversity and smile at disaster.

"There is always a sunny side if one will but look for it, however dark the shadows in which one may be walking. There are tender sympathies as well as harsh criticisms in this wonderful world, and the cheerful are the envy of the hypochondriacs.

"There is a 'new thought' sect teaching the theory that mind is superior to matter; that people are sick only when they think they are sick, and are only well when they think they are well. You may not agree to that theory entirely, but indisputably the power of mind will exert a great influence in the matter of ills which are largely imaginary. Some of us are prone to exaggerate our physical infirmities, as well as to worry over trifles which should be dismissed as unwelcome visitors not to be indulged. Visit the hospitals and compare your troubles with the thousands who are worse.

"Train yourself to be cheerful, even though there be sorrow in your heart. A long face is always disagreeable, while a smiling face is welcomed everywhere. You may have troubles—every body has—but do not nurse them and, above all, do not exploit them. No one cares to be bored with your troubles, however sympathetic one may appear to be. Remember that other people have troubles of their own.

"Do not frown at pleasure or regard light-heartedness as frivolity. Do not imagine that everything that is pleasant is sinful. Sin is something that is disagreeable, if not a crime. It is a sin to wear a long face and mope about in such a way as to disagreeably affect those around you. Be cheerful and help to spread cheerfulness wherever you go. Sunlight is preferable to shadow, and more conducive to health and happiness. Have consideration for others.

"Think no evil, and avoid all appearance of evil. Have pleasure, unstinted pleasure, but let it be of a sort that leaves no sting behind. Study your neighbor. There is something good in him or her, as you will find out if you take the trouble to look, however much that is bad and may appear on the surface.

"Never hurry, never worry, thus unnecessarily wearing out your God-given vitality. Believe in God:

"Never eat white bread, as it forms a paste and causes rhematism; never drink water, as it creates lime, gravel, cement and stone.

"Join in the big laugh at the Lyceum theater, Wednesday, June 3."

"Toodles in Holland."

The final rehearsal for "Toodles in Holland," the Modern Samaritan's big show to be given at the Lyceum theater tonight, was held in the theater last evening, and the big production is in fine shape for its initial performance tonight. The finishing touches have been added to the big singing and dancing numbers and the local boys and girls perform with a snap that professionals lack after two or three tedious months on the road. One of the comedy numbers, "Yankee Tars," is sure to be a hit. Little Jessie Beatty, Joe Schwartz, Margaret Nordal, Arthur Cameron and Tommy Getz will do this funny song and dance number. Miss Nordal will also be seen in a "Sis Hopkins'" impersonation, and she does this in a quaint droll manner that makes it very laughable.

Walter Smith, a local singer of note, will be heard in some very good selections. Dainty Clara Collier sings "I've a Million Reasons, Dear, Why I Love You," assisted by a large chorus of boys and girls. Donnie Clark does an imitation of Harry Lander, the great Scotch comedian. There will be a ladies' and children's matinee Saturday afternoon.

Big Crowds at Bijou.

The Bijou is hardly able to accommodate the crowds that are filling the theater at each performance this week. Last night the shipping clerk for the Panton & White company nailed Sirrojnl, the "Lady Raffles," in a shipping case, it taking him nineteen minutes to do the work, while Sirronji freed herself in sixteen minutes, much to his astonishment.

MARINE NEWS

FEW BOATS IN HARBOR

First Full Cargo of Grain in Ten Days Being Loaded.

Corey and Lynch to Take Ore at the Missabe Dock.

The gale on the lake today had little effect on the boats, for there are but few of them moving. The steamers Northern Queen and Superior headed out into it and the Mahoning arrived.

The Allouez ore docks continues to be the busiest place in the harbor and there is very little doing there. At the Missabe dock, there are prospects for a few shipments next week. The Corsica took ore out yesterday and the steamer William E. Corey of the Pittsburg fleet arrived to take a cargo. The Thomas Lynch is at the dock ready to load and may sail Saturday.

The first boat to arrive for a full grain cargo in the last ten days is the George C. Howe, which arrived yesterday and is loading at Elevator K. The line boats have been taking care of the grain shipments, which are light and few full cargoes are in sight. In the lumber trade, the same quietness prevails and boats that cannot secure return cargoes of ore at the Allouez docks will not be sent up with coal.

The vessel owners will meet in Cleveland Monday and some agreement may be reached as to the time for starting the general movement. There is nothing in sight, however, for the next two weeks and marine men have become resigned to the quietness.

EVERY DAY A HOLIDAY.

No Improvement in Situation Looked for Before July 1.

Cleveland, May 29.—There is no change in the freight situation here, and there will not be much improvement until the latter part of June. Last year at this time vessel owners were hustling to get their boats out before Decoration day in order to dodge the holiday, but this year every day is a holiday and there is no hustling to get out the boats.

No Coal Charters.

Buffalo, May 29.—Nothing was done in the coal market yesterday, not a single charter being reported. In ore circles it is predicted that the ore fleet will not start before July.

Season Opens Soon.

The excursion steamer Mascotte will take up her regular excursion trips up the river and moonlight rides around the horn soon. The Mascotte has been thoroughly overhauled this spring, two new engines installed and the speed increased. The owners have leased Peterson's Island at Fond du Lac and it will be featured on the excursion trips and for picnic parties by charter. More than $8,000 has been expended on the boat this spring and the owners expect a successful season.

BOY SHOOTS HIMSELF.

Deadly Toy Pistol is Already Getting in Its Work.

Moorhead, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The deadly toy pistol, of the 15-cent kind that fires a .22 caliber blank cartridge, in the hands of Willie Diemert, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Diemert, was fired into his mouth by the boy Tuesday, and although he is alive, his parents are fearing tetanus or lockjaw. He had been playing about with a number of boys, and a moment before he was injured he held the barrel of the pistol between his teeth. Taking it from his mouth he placed the muzzle near his throat and pulled the trigger. The powder in the cartridge was held in place by a wax wadding, and the powder and wax were blown through the walls of the throat into the mouth. Medical aid was quickly summoned, and the wound was given an antiseptic dressing, to guard against blood poisoning.

The danger from blood poisoning is the only serious one to be apprehended. As far as the wound itself is concerned it is but little as far as seriousness goes. But danger of lockjaw is ever present where powder is blown into the flesh, and this will be guarded against by every possible means.

THEY FAVOR BONDING.

Tax Payers of Cass Lake Want Place on Cash Basis.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—An enthusiastic meeting of tax payers of the village was held here last night for the purpose of determining whether or not it is the desire of the tax payers to bond the village for the amount of its outstanding indebtedness and again put it on a cash basis. It was the unanimous vote of the meeting to bond the village. It was also the desire of the tax payers to have a sinking fund and pay yearly a certain amount until the debt is cleared.

The village council will within a very short time hold an election and thus give every tax payer and voter in the village an opportunity to express his desire. There is little doubt but that the vote will be unanimous in favor of bonding the village.

PLAN BIG ADDITION.

F. D. Day & Co. Will Have Finest Jewelry Store in Northwest.

That Duluth is taking the initiative in building operations is being amply proven by the large amount of new buildings now in the course of erection.

Work was started this week on the building at 315 West Superior street, occupied by F. D. Day & Co. Sixty feet will be added to the structure which, when completed, will give the building a depth of 140 feet. After the addition has been completed the interior will be completely remodeled.

The stairway leading to the upper floor will be removed and the front remodeled. The interior of the store will be finished in solid mahogany. Fixtures will be of the same wood and built according to especially prepared specifications. Lighting effects have been planned by experts and it is claimed that selections can be made under this system with as great satisfaction as if made by daylight.

A pleasing and radical departure from the usual jewelry store interior will be the series of rooms. There will be a plated silver room, a solid silver room and a Tiffany and crystal room as well as several private selection rooms where patrons may be seated and select jewelry at their leisure. At the front of the store to the left of the entrance the diamond room will be situated. Facilities for an extraordinary amount of pure light will be installed, as well as every conceivable feature to add to the patron's comfort while making the selection.

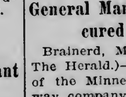
A most unique feature will be the vestibule between the front entrance and the door leading into the store. Heavy plate glass will be used on every side.

Regarding the alterations, Cassius H. Bagley said:

"We have given the foremost jewelry store architects in the country carte blanche to provide us with the finest jewelry store in the Northwest without exception. They have viewed the store and its possibilities. Their plans have been examined by many architects and the consensus of opinion indicates that they have done their work with the spirit of artists. We will spare no expense in carrying out their plans exactly as they have prepared them and I confidently believe that the result will be most gratifying to myself and my associates. And I also believe that we will give Duluth a jewelry store that they may well be proud of. The work will require about three months to complete but we will continue our business until the workmen strike the interior. We have formed no plans beyond that point."

Mr. John Riha of Vining, Iowa, says, "I have been selling DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills for about a year and they give better satisfaction than any pill I ever sold." Sold by all druggists.

COMPANY C ATTENTION



All members of Company C are ordered to report at Armory Saturday, May 30, 8:15 a. m., for parade. By order of F. D. KNOWLTON, Captain.

NEW INSPECTION CAR.

General Manager Gemmell Has Secured Gasoline Affair.

Brainerd, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—General Manager Gemmell of the Minnesota & International Railway company has just received a Fairbanks, Morse & Co. gasoline inspection car. It is what is called a four-passenger machine and has a canopy top and side curtains, with a glass front for protection in bad weather.

This car is the first gasoline inspection car installed on the Northern Pacific system, though there have been several gasoline section cars ordered for use in the West. The machine is guaranteed to run twenty-five miles an hour and negotiate all grades on modern railroads. It is said that the machine will easily run forty miles per hour if pressed.

D. C. Shepard, a St. Paul millionaire, went up over the Minnesota & International Thursday afternoon in his private car Great Northern S. 10, and will spend some time fishing in the northern part of the state.

Rock Island, Ill., May 29.—In connection with the commencement of Augustana Theological seminary, Augustana college conferred the degree of Sacred Theology on Rev. J. A. Engwall of research work. Yesterday the college conferred the LL.D. degree on Governor C. S. Deneen and Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota.

HEARST STILL GAINING.

New York, May 29.—When yesterday's session of the McClellan-Hearst recount trial was concluded, a total of forty-one votes had been added to William R. Hearst's vote in the 1905 mayoralty election.

Doctors Agree

that much of the illness of children can be traced directly to unsanitary refrigerators, and many cases of typhoid fever can also be traced to an ill smelling, foul, zinc-lined ice box.

A good refrigerator is the best "health insurance" you can have, as it safeguards the health of your family and keps your food clean, fresh and pure.

McCray Refrigerators

are endorsed by physicians, hygienists and sanitary experts, and are not only better than ordinary refrigerators, but are much more economical, as they require only one-half as much ice as an ordinary refrigerator. They are so perfectly insulated that they are as nearly as possible cold and heat proof, and therefore have an active circulation of absolutely dry, cold, pure air with the minimum amount of ice.

Let Us Tell You Why

McCray Refrigerators are superior. Come in and see them for yourself, and let us give you the names of some of the people who are using McCray Refrigerators. Then call some of them up on the 'phone and ask them if they are satisfied with the McCray. Don't take our word—ask someone who is actually using a McCray.

Proclamation. Memorial Day

Whereas: The legislatures of our state, recognizing the significance of Memorial Day, have in their wisdom, at various times enacted laws providing for its observance as a Legal Holiday, prohibiting its desecration and providing for punishment thereof, having in mind to keep it sacred in the hearts of the people of this generation and those to follow, and

Whereas: No law can operate to its greatest good without the support of the people;

Now Therefore: I appeal to Patriotism, and most earnestly request that all places of business close on Saturday, the 30th day of May, 1908, and that work of all kinds cease.

It Is Hereby Ordered that all departments of the City Government observe this request, as far as possible.

It Is Further Ordered that all saloons and other places where intoxicating liquors are sold shall be closed on said day between the hours of 10 o'clock in the forenoon and 3 o'clock in the afternoon, according to Chapter 25 of Sessions Laws of 1907, enacted by the Legisature of the State of Minnesota.

The provisions of this Act will be strictly enforced.

ROLAND D. HAVEN,
Mayor.

WILL NOT CLOSE.

Grocers and Butchers Will Keep Stores Open Memorial Day.

Owing to the perishable nature of the commodity which they handle, the grocers and meat markets of the city will break the usual custom of closing their stores on Memorial day.

Memorial day this year falls on Saturday, and followed by Sunday, there would be two days if both were observed as usual on which nothing would be sold, necessitating the storing of delicate eatables for a long enough time to endanger their saleability.

How's your steam-gauge? You can't get up a full head of steam for the human engine by putting poor "fuel" under the boiler. "FORCE" is the best energy-producing fuel, because it contains all the strength-giving material in the whole wheat, made digestible by steam cooking, malting, flaking and baking. Every particle of it is converted into muscle, bone and brain.

"FORCE" is made of the best white wheat, steam-cooked, rolled into thin flakes, combined with the purest barley-malt and baked. Always "crisp" it before serving it by pouring into a pan and warming it in oven. Then serve in large dish with cream, piling the flakes in one side of the dish and pouring the cream in the other side, dipping the flakes as eaten.

Your Grocer sells it. No other Flaked Food is "Just as Good."

HUDNACK CASE IS ON TRIAL

Plaintiff Struck by Train Asks for $30,000 Damages.

The $30,000 damage case of Frank Hudnack against the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific Railway companies is being tried in Judge Dibell's room in the district court, a jury having been drawn yesterday afternoon.

Hudnack, who was employed at the Webster chair factory at South Superior, claims that while he was crossing the tracks close to one of the buildings of the plant that had burned down the night before, he was struck by a passenger train and hurled about fifty feet, his right arm being fractured and his head cut severely in numerous places. Hudnack claims that no warning was given of the approach of the train, either by whistle or bell.

in Manchuria excepting to her own people.

With the arrival of the American battleship fleet in the Pacific and the talk of trouble with the United States in the future, Japanese statesmen, Mr. Druce believes, are preparing for any emergency. Port Arthur, the former Russian stonghold is being made virtually impregnable while the fortifications at Dalny, a seaport and the railway terminus on the main line, now occupied by the Japanese, are being rushed to completion with haste. Mr. Druce gives it as his opinion that a clash with the powers over a continuance of a discriminatory policy now being carried out in favor of Japanese subjects in the Orient, is inevitable. Even if Japan is compelled to back down he believes her surrender will bring its advantages.

Handicapped Competitors.

"Since Japan took possession of Manchuria," said Mr. Druce, "she has handicapped all her competitors by a system of duties or imposts which do not apply to Japanese citizens. The issue is a live one in the Orient today, and, unless I am misinformed, there will be some developmensts ere long. Every European trader or commercial traveler I met had the same story to relate of the methods adopted by the Japanese to keep European goods out of Manchuria.

"Japan, although poor, is an aggressive nation, which will not surrender her advantages won by a successful war, even against a united front, unless she gets some compensation. Japan is in Manchuria to stay. The coming of the American fleet has not been overlooked by her statesmen, who believe in preparing for any contingency which may arise in the next few years.

"Port Arthur, which withstood a long siege before its downfall, is being made almost impregnable. It is a second Gibraltar. During my visit there I saw evidences of great military activity. New batteries were being built everywhere. If Port Arthur was strong during the Russian occupation, it will soon be rendered doubly strong. Dalny is also being fortified with almost feverish haste. Hitherto it had few defenses and was abandoned by the Russians early in the same war. Dalny is the great port of entry for Manchuria. It is now a Japanese city. In Korea we heard many complaints of the tyrannical oppression of the natives by the Japanese."

GREAT INCREASE

In Number of Shareholders Participating in Pennsylvania's Dividend

Philadelphia, May 29.—Checks for the regular semi-annual dividend of the Pennsylvania Railroad company were mailed yesterday to 59,415 shareholders, the greatest number in the company's history, and representing an increase of 14,000 over the number receiving the dividend a year ago. The checks amounted in value to $9,437,829.50, this being a dividend of 3 per cent on the capitalization of $314,594,600.

Of exceptional interest is the increase in the number of women shareholders from the 21,028 of one year, to 27,757, who will receive the present dividend. Women thus receive more than 46 per cent of the total number of dividend checks sent out.

TWO NEW REAR ADMIRALS.

Washington, May 29.—President Roosevelt signed yesterday and the navy department forwarded to Capt. Richard Wainwright, commanding the Second division, and Capt. Seaton Schroeder, commanding the Fourth division, respectively, of the Atlantic fleet, commissions as acting rear admirals. This will give them rank in consonance with their present duty, permit them to wear the uniform and fly the flag of a rear admiral.

ANOTHER ENDS LIFE.

Washington, May 29.—Mrs. Mary Hinton, formerly of London, Eng., once a frequent contributor to English and American magazines, committed suicide at her home here yesterday by asphyxiation. She was 53 years old. One of her recent statements was that "life is something we have the privilege of ending when we choose. When I think it is time to die, I shall end it all."

WEST END HOLIDAY TO BE OBSERVED

Most of the West End Stores Will be Closed.

Proprietors of Ten Business Houses Agree to Close.

Most of the business house in the West end will observe Memorial day tomorrow by remaining closed during the entire day.

The merchants considered this matter at a meeting held this week and decided not to keep their places of business open tomorrow. The drug stores and a number of the small establishments will probably be open a part of the day but ten of the largest concerns will not open their doors.

The establishments which have agreed to close the entire day are the John J. Moe & Sons company, the Roy M. Pyrtz company, the Fedje Clothing & Shoe company, the Morterud-Koneczny company, Charles Mork & Co., S. W. Hill, L. B. Gisness company, S. Van Wagener, Victor Juten and Alfred Johnson.

They will keep open late this evening.

Owing to the limited time Mrs. Emma Johnson has in which to close out her stock, her store will remain open during the day.

TALKS ON RUSSIA.

Wilhelm Sarwe Lectures at the Swedish Mission Church.

Wilhelm Sarwe, missionary to Russia of the Swedish Mission Covenant, lectured in the Swedish language, at the First Swedish Mission church last evening. Although the weather was disagreeable, a large crowd gathered at the church to hear him and found his account of conditions, religious, political and otherwise in Russia, most interesting.

Mr. Sarwe has been the Swedish Mission Covenant's agent in Russia for the past twenty-five years and he has met all of the notables and is familiar with every side of life in that explosive country.

BAXTERS ARE SURPRISED.

Friends Welcome Them Home After Trip to Scotland.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baxter of 2617 West Fourth street were tendered a surprise party Monday evening, it being the occasion of the tenth anniversary of their wedding and a welcome home from their visit to Scotland. Cards were played, the honors falling to J. B. Dunphey, Mrs. William Marguardt, D. E. Case and Mrs. E. Devaney.

Following a supper, C. E. Dice, on behalf of those present, presented Mr. and Mrs. Baxter with two large statues in bronze. Mr. Baxter responded with remarks of appreciation.

Those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames J. W. Hilllard, D. M. Philbin, R. Philbin, E. B. Nunan, A. J. McCulloch, E. D. Devaney, Alex Anderson, John Linglebach, John Hoar, John Manson, D. E. Case, C. HOUSE PASSES A FEW BILLS OF MINOR INTEREST.

Washington, May 29.—While the senate was wrestling with the currency question the business of the house went merrily on yesterday. The following measures were passed:

To establish two or more fish cultural stations on Puget Sound, Washington; amending the laws of transportation between Hawaii and the United States by removing the penalty for carrying passengers from Hawaii to this country; proving for the entry of agricultural lands in forest reserves; authorizing the Baltimore & Washington Transit Company of Maryland to enter the District of Columbia, incorporating the brotherhood of St. Andrew and incorporating the Congregational club, which is composed of the wives and daughters of senators and members of congress. The work of the house being practically completed and the heat being unusually oppressive, a recess, at 4:40 p. m. was taken until this morning.

THEY MUST TAKE OUT PERMITS

New Instructions Issued to Building Contractors of City.

Building Inspector Kielly has notified every contractor in the city that after June 10 permits will have to be taken out before any building work can be started in the city. Heretofore contractors have been allowed to start work and later on get permits, during the course of construction. This practise has been an inconvenient one and has caused the department considerable annoyance at different times.

When a permit is not taken out before a building is started it forces the inspector to make several trips to the structure to keep the contractor within the requirements of the law. Some of the contractors have taken advantage of the inspector's leniency and much trouble has arisen in consequence. The building inspector is sustained by City Attorney Wilson in the enforcement of this section, and all violations after June 10 will be prosecuted. Following is the notice issued by Mr. Kielly:

"On and after June 10, the provisions of Sec. 1, Part 1, of the building ordinance will be rigidly enforced. That section requires that before work is commenced on the erections, alteration or repairs on any building, wall or structure, application must be made in writing, and a permit issued by this department. You will therefore take notice, and govern yourself accordingly, or it will be my duty to take such steps as will bring about the desired results, without further notice. It has always been my aim to be accommodating and lenient in the enforcement of this particular section of be accommodating and lenient in the office has grown so enormously, the last few years, that we can't find time to run around and locate buildings put up without permits."

HAS BIG WOLF.

Addition to "Little Jake's" Collection Measures 6 Feet 4 Inches.

"Little Jake" Noll claims the distinction of owning the two biggest wolves owned in Duluth and one of them is perhaps the largest ever caught in Northern Minnesota. They have been mounted and he is delightedly showing them to his friends.

The biggest one is 6 feet 4 inches from tip to tip and was caught in a trap nine miles back of Palmer's siding during the past winter by Mike Conley, who gave them to Noll. The taxidermist has just returned the mounted animal and he is surely a vicious looking beast. He is the wolf that was caught by one of the fore feet in a trap and Conley was compelled to kill him by the vigorous use of a cant hook and later a gun, before he was subdued.

The other wolf is a six-footer and a beautiful specimen, but the longer one is the center of attraction on account of his greater size and the fight he put up before captured.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

OPENER IS FIERCE GAME

Josie Krick Pounded Heavily and Sox Are Blanked, 11 to 0.

Usual Festivities and Wierd Baseball Mark Opening of Season.

The rain let up long enough to allow the opening of the Northern league season in Duluth yesterday. Would that it had not ceased. When, after a few short hours, the deluge came again, it fell on a field of carnage, bathing the fevered brows of hundreds of anguished fans who sat in the stands with set teeth and glassy eyes, wishing that one bedraggled pair of White Sox would wallow through the mud to the spot called home.

The preliminaries were great. To gladsome music, the Sox and Maroons marched down Superior street, both throwing on the fronts of sure enough winners. In carriages the mayor, city attorney, members of the council and other city officials did homage to the national game by their presence. At the park, Mayor Haven made one of his prettiest speeches, and, after warming up to recall memories of his own corner lot days, he stepped out to the box and, with the windup of a Mathewson or a Brown, hurled one at Crum, who gracefully swung his bat wildly through the air.

Three thousand loyal fans filled the stand and bleachers when Bill Morrow trotted his bravves out to the sacrifice. Eddie Herr sent his men at them and the red clad demons heaped humiliation on the heads of the boys in blue. Speak it not aloud—11 to 0.

Krick Goes Wrong.

Josie Krick was the first cog to go wrong. The Maroons stood him on his head in the second inning and whirled him around until hits began to come out from all directions and Maroons skipped lightly around the bases while Bill Morrow, not lightly, but with much heat, chased the bounding ball through the very wet ponds in left field. Josie left his footers up in Canada land. The Maroons took to him like a brake rod knight to a four-poster bed and at the end of the second inning the once happy fans were immersed in despair. Crack, crash, crash, crash, biff, boom, they came and the sorely tried Sox chucked in a couple of errors to make it good. With six runs to the good at the end of the inning, it was all over but totaling them up on the Maroon side.

In the third Eddie Wills took up the burden. It was indeed a burden for him to fling in the face of the wierd contortions behind him. Krick's defection had loosened almost every screw in the works and every wheel buzzed and buzzed alone. The Maroons didn't have to hit much more. The Sox played with the ineffectiveness of despair and, when the rain came at the end of the eighth inning, there was no lingering for an exchange of commiserations. Everybody hiked for home to forget the horror in the glories of the ever-roseate future.

Don't let anybody imagine that Eddie Herr has lost a whole lot by the wrecking of his last year's pennant whining machine. He has filled in the places very nicely, thank you. Little Giencke isn't any bigger than the proverbial pint of cider but that left whip of his works is as effectively as though it were swinging from 200 pounds of German beef. In the first inning he was worried, but Baker cut loose from the third sack before a fly to left field struck Henderson's mit. After that Giencke mowed them down like the good little reaper he is and only one man traveled the route as far as the three-quarter station.

Whatever the Maroons may be able to do in the long run, they poked the ball on the nose right plenty yesterday. Henderson alone failed to connect for the swat that goes in the batting average, and, judging from a few he rapped up against the right field fence outside of the fould line, Mr. Henderson isn't a hitless wonder. The infield is just as fast as last year, the outfield is just as dangerous with the stick, and the pitching staff is the same thing over again. Ulrich doesn't measure up to Joe Crisp's standard, but he'll do and when Luderus gets hooked onto the first bag, the Maroons will trot along in a way that'll make somebody travel to catch them.

It wouldn't do to judge Morrow's crowd on yesterday's horrible exhibition. The Maroons fairly broke everybody's heart by taking such a disastrous liking to the Krick product in the second round. The infield is fast enough on fielding, and, working together, should get great results. Wills pitched all right ball, considering that the game was irrevocably lost when he went in the box, and the outfielders swam around very nicely. O'Brien and Kidder managed to hog most of the clouts. Before Giencke, the rest were well nigh helpless.

The game was the first of a series of seven, the second of which will go on this afternoon. The strangle hold is barred and broken boards in the fence will be cheerfully repaired. Murray will probably be Morrow's Maroon checker and Sawyer will be the boy offered for the cheering up activities of the Sox. The detailed score of the acute delirium tremens of yesterday, follows:

BASE BALL TOMORROW

DOUBLE HEADER

Duluth vs. Winnipeg

Games Called at 2:30 and 4:00 o'Clock.

2 Admissions

The best of teams go wrong sometimes. Whether Duluth has the best of teams is a question, but the Sox were certainly off the track and bounding over the ties yesterday. It is unfortunate that the rank exhibition came at such a time. With 3,000 people in the stands, the Sox were in a position to insure patronage and support for themselves for some time to come, but they couldn't accept the opportunity. As it was, they soured a good part of the crowd on them for a correspondingly long time.

It doesn't do to condemn the team on the one game. Baseball is so uncertain that today or tomorrow, the Sox may go out and trim the Maroons to a fare-thee-well. They may clout the ball until every board in the fence is splintered and not make a skip in the field, but the memory of that farce of yesterday will remain with nearly everybody who saw it. The baseball fan is slow to praise and quick to knock.

Yesterday's game was the worst the Sox have played this year. On foreign diamonds, they have played errorless ball, but when they came to their home lot, they were afflicted with stage-fright and the ropes were cut. From a financial viewpoint, it's very bad and viewed from the side of baseball, it's worse.

But forget it. Yesterday's case was exceptional. Every fan, who saw the game, knows that it was an off day for the team. Krick was badly pounded and, losing the game in the second inning, the team was demoralized for the remaining sessions. Krick can pitch good ball, the team can play good ball and, if it can't, the management will get men who can. Give Morrow two men, who can hit .280 or better, and there will be a wonderful change there.

"I didn't see any particularly scientific work there," said one of the crowd after Tuesday night's match at the Temple rink. He saw it but he didn't know it.

The science of Miller and Sutter was the science of square wrestling. The people of Duluth and nearly every other city in the country are accustomed to seeing the science of the framed-up game. In the Sutter-Miller match, there wasn't a hammerlock taken or broken, only one half-nelson was taken, there was nothing doing on the fancy grape-vines and scissors holds. Not seeing what they had been fed by the adept fixer, those, who weren't certain of their knowledge of wrestling, thought they weren't seeing science.

Sutter and Miller showed wrestling as it is. They are both at the top of their class. It is doubtful if there is a welter-weight in the country, Fred Bartl excepted, who can throw either one of them. It is certain that if either one of them went on the defensive, the other couldn't throw him, if the match went all night. There was nothing glittering or glaring about the match. It was wrestling all the way through and, if the promoters can give the same kind of thing at every match and keep out the grafters, the success of the game here is assured.

"I got what I was playing for," said Rorabaugh, the Duluth outfielder, who was released yesterday. Perhaps he was only covering a miserable failure to make good by giving an excuse, but he chose a mighty poor one. "Playing for a release" is one of the most despicable tricks to which a ball player can stoop. He accepts money from the club and fails to deliver the goods, even though he can. He lies down but at the same time accepts the bounty of those, who are depending on him. Rorabaugh says he wanted to sign with Rockford and chose that means of getting away from Duluth. Rockford will not get much good of Rorabaugh, if he is that kind of a man and Duluth is well rid of him.

Trials Are Postponed.

Chicago, May 29.—The trials of the Western athletes for the Olympian gomes, which were to have been held here yesterday, were postponed until today because of rain.

RE-ELECT OFFICERS

Boat Club Members Hear Good News at Annual Meeting.

Organization is Now in a Most Flourishing Condition.

It took the Duluth Boat club members about thirty seconds to elect their officers last evening at the annual meeting held in the main clubhouse on Park Point.

After the roll call had been read and the reports of officers submitted, one of the members submitted a motion that the secretary cast a unanimous ballot for the re-election of the present officers, and the motion carried amid enthusiastic applause.

The members apparently felt that they had good reason for re-electing the old officers, as the reports showed the club to be in a most flourishing condition. The club is not only now self-supporting, but it has an income of about $5,000 above its expenses, which can be used to liquidate the outstanding indebtedness and enlarge the club's property. The club has property valued at approximately $50,000, and an indebtedness of about $15,000.

An interesting feature of the report was the fact that the Spirit Lake branch is self-supporting, and last year paid a net profit of something like $50 into the club treasury. The club is now supporting three houses, and will soon add a fourth at Pike lake.

President Julius H. Barnes, in his report, urged the members to continue an aggressive policy and keep the club moving.

"The club is now in a position,' he said, "where, with careful management, it can rapidly pay for the property it now holds, and at the same time keep its equipment in first class condition. The chief problem now, to my mind, is to teach the members how to enjoy the privileges they now have and get the best results from them. I doubt if there is any club in America which offers such advantages for the same annual fee. We are keeping up three clubs, and will soon have a fourth at Pike lake.

"We have been able to pick our members, and while the directors have not aimed to make the club an exclusive one, they have insisted upon certain standards. Our membership list is now full, and there is a waiting list. With such a large membership roll, however, there are always some lapses from deaths and removals, and we have been able to take care of most of the desirable applications up to the present time."

The report of the secretary, Albert James, on the financial condition of the club showed that the receipts and expenditures for the past year balanced, in spite of the fact that the extensive improvements at Spirit lake were paid for out of the income of the club. The report was greeted with enthusiastic applause, and one facetious member expressed the hope of a quarterly dividend in the near future if the club continues to prosper as it has in the past.

The members gallantly endorsed the action of the directors in receiving the application of two women as members, and by the vote abolished a precedent. There are many women in the city who are anxious to join the club. The directors found nothing to prevent it, and there are now two members of the gentler sex.

Following the business session there was a short program and refreshments were served in the cafe. A male quartet composed of Don Cole, John Koneczny, George Suffel and Louis Dworschak, accompanied by George L. Tyler, sang two numbers which were enthusiastically received. John Irwin gave a reading and John Schultz introduced as the "one string virtuoso of the cigar box" gave several number on his odd instrument which made a tremendous hit. The program was brought to a close with an exhibition of work on the parallel bars by a class from the Y. M. C. A. under the direction of August J. Frey.

DRAWINGS FOR BIG REGATTA

Syracuse and Cornell Get Good Places at Poughkeepsie.

New York, May 29.—Drawings for position in three big events of the intercollegiate regatta at Poughqeepsie on June 27 have been announced as follows:

Freshman eights—Syracuse, 1; Wisconsin, 2; Pennsylvania, 3; Cornell, 4; Columbia, 5.

Varsity fours—Syracuse, 1; Cornell, 2; Columbia, 3; Pennsylvania, 4.

Varsity eights—Wisconsin, 1; Cornell, 2; Pennsylvania, 3; Columbia, 4; Syracuse, 5; Georgetown, 6.

Of these places the Syracuse four-oared and freshman crews are believed to have the most favorable locations in their events, as the ebb tide, which begins about 4:30 o'clock is strong long the shore about 4:30 o'clock when the first two races are rowed. In the race for varsity eights, Pennsylvania and Columbia in courses three and four have the best places provided the weather is fair. Cornell's drawings in the two varsity events are good.

HOLIDAY GAMES.

Fitwells Go to Virginia and Spaldings and Oak Halls Play.

The Spalding baseball team has two busy days ahead, if the weather allows. They will play the Oak Halls at Fifty-second avenue west and Grand avenue tomorrow, and Sunday will go to Two Harbors for a game.

The Fitwells will go to Virginia tomorrow for two games and one Sunday. Cummings will pitch two of the three games and Arsenau the other. The boys have high hopes of hanging a couple of defeats on the Virginia result rack. The regular lineup will make the trip.

OVER HUNDRED ENTERIES.

Great Horses of Northwest to Run at Fargo Next Month.

Fargo, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are 136 entries for the race meet to be held here June 9-12 under the auspices of the Fargo Driving club. Many of the crack Northwestern horses are here. This meeting has nothing to do with the regular state fair races, July 20-25.

KUEHNOW OUT AFTER HITTERS

Rorabaugh is Let Out and Indian Boy Joins the Squad.

Preparations are on for the shakeup in the Sox before many days have gone by. Rorabaugh, who hasn't been hitting the ball, despite the fact that he was touted as a slugger, has been let out and there will probably be some more summary dismissals announced shortly. The management must have a stronger team and is going out to get it before it is too late.

A. G. Starr, an Indian boy from the Odanah reservation, who tried out with Fond du Lac last spring, but couldn't break into a strong outfield, arrived this morning and will be put in the game tomorrow. He claims to be a hitter, and hitters are needed.

Pitcher Dave Williams will arrive from Sioux City, Iowa, in a day or two, and the pitching staff will probably be reorganized. The men have been pitching fairly good ball, and few changes will be necessary, weak hitting being responsible for the loss of most of the games. One or two hard hitting outfielders will fix things up nicely and the management still have hopes of keeping the Sox very far from last place.

VICTORY FOR BARRY.

Chicago Fighter Puts Champion Heavyweight of South Away.

Savannah, Ga., May 29.—Jack Barry of Chicago, outclassing his opponent last night at the Savannah theater, put Al Christiansen, Southern heavyweight champion, out in the third round of a scheduled twenty-round fight. Christiansen was bloody from the waist up from the opening of an old cut on the left ear.

CAFE WILL OPEN.

Launch Will Give Daily Service to Yacht Club Members.

The opening of the season at the Duluth Yacht club will take place tomorrow, with the opening of the cafe, which will be conducted continuously during the summer. To accommodate members, who wish to lunch at the club, the launch will leave the Fifth avenue dock every day at 12:10 and 12:40, returning at the convenience of the members.

Some two weeks will elapse yet before the racing and social events of the club will begin. The first races will probably be held about June 15, and the weekly dances will begin at the same time.

FARGO WINS FIRST GAME

Blackburn Fields Poorly and is Ineffective, Losing 9 to 6.

Fargo, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fargo saw its first profesisonal baseball after the lapse of a year yesterday, when the home team defeated Brandon by a score of 9 to 6. A fine crowd turned out and saw a very loosely played game, in which Brandon erred frequently and seriously.

Clarke did the pitching for Fargo and he was effective all the way through. He held the heavy hitters of the Brandon squad in check, while the Fargo men got to Blackburn successfully with two men on bases. Blackburn was principally responsible for the loss of the game, for he made five of the Brandon errors and was wild and ineffective.

Umpire Deehan's work was freely criticised. Some of his decisions were very bad. He didn't appear partial, but ignorant of the rules, and his ejection of Leighty appeared entirely unwarranted.

Toot Thompson's fielding and batting and Sheehan's batting were features of the game. Score: R. H. E.
Brandon .....0 2 0 0 2 0 2 0 0—6 4 8
Fargo .....3 1 0 2 0 0 3 0 x—9 8 2

Batteries—Blackburn and Custer; Clarke and Sheehan. Umpire—Deehan.

AMERICANS IN TROUBLE.

New York to Paris Racers Narrowly Escape Being Run Down.

Paris, May 29.—A special dispatch to the Matin from Nikolsk, dated May 28, says: The American car, in the New York to Paris automobile race, continued along the tracks of the trans-Siberian railroad, having had a narrow escape from being run down by an express train and falling over a precipice 200 feet in descent. Spies of brigand bands, that have been captured recently, state that the automobilists are in danger of being attacked, as it is believed by the brigands that they are very rich.

The German car signalled that it was sixty miles in the lead at noon yesterday.

Boys Want Games.

The Invincibles are hot after games with boys under 13 years of age. Call 2158-Y. on the new 'phone and the Invincibles will be glad to test their invincibility.

MANY ATHLETES ENTERED.

Big Schools of the Country Represented in Philadelphia Meet.

Philadelphia, May 29.—More than 150 athletes are here for the annual intercollegiate championship track and field meet today and Saturday on Franklin field.

The students from Harvard, Yale, Cornell and Dartmouth arrived yesterday. The Dartmouth, Michigan and Pennsylvania athletes were out yesterday afternoon limbering up on the Pennsylvania grounds. Yale, Cornell and Pennsylvania are favorites for first honors in the meet, though Cornell is looked upon as having a slight advantage. Nineteen colleges will be represented at the meet, including Princeton, Swarthmore, Brown, Columbia, Johns Hopkins and Syracuse. The preliminary will be held this afternoon. The finals will take place on Saturday.

Game Called Off.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 29.—The game scheduled between the baseball teams of Michigan and Syracuse here, yesterday, was called off on account of rain.

Paper Carpets.

They are making paper carpets in Bohemia. One may say truthfully of these carpets that they cannot be beaten. Neither can golden grain belt beer be beaten as a family beverage. It is brewed from the best of nature's products in a better way than other beers and deserves a place on your home table. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing Co.

YOUTH ROBS HIS FATHER.

Tax Collector's Son Then Elopes With Washerwoman.

Paris, May 29.—Maurice Jam, a young man of 16, has been arrested at Brussels for robbing his father, a French tax collector, of $2,500 government money. In January last young Jam made the acquaintance of a pretty 18-year-old washerwoman, named Gabrielle Martin, and he robbed his father to provide a life of luxury for her. The luxury lasted exactly ten days, during which time he spent $2,225 out of the $2,500 he stole.

One evening in April M. Jam, Sr., after a hard day's work, went to sleep in his office. He was awakened by a slight cracking noise, and to his horror saw his son breaking open the drawer in which the tax money was kept. He was too horrified to move or speak, and it was not until after his son's disappearance that the unfortunate father told the police of what had occurred. The lovers fled together to Brussels. The father has been dismissed for negligence, the son and the girl Martin are to be extradited and brought to Paris.

S.S.S. REMOVES BLOOD HUMORS

Itching, disfiguring eruptions, rashes, boils, etc., as well as pimples, black-heads and rough, scaly skin, show the presence of some irritating humor in the blood. These acids and humors with which the blood is infected are being constantly thrown off through the pores and glands of the skin, and the flesh is kept in an inflamed, diseased and unsightly condition. Nothing applied externally can change the condition of the blood or prevent the outflow of these burning acids; only constitutional treatment can do this. Washes, salves, lotions, etc,, cannot reach the humor-laden blood, and are therefore useless, except for the temporary comfort and cleanliness they afford. The acid poison in the blood must be removed before a cure can be effected. S. S. S. is a real blood purifier, possessing all the requirements necessary to neutralize and remove the humors from the circulation. It completely eradicates every trace of impurity and restores this vital fluid to its natural healthy state. S. S. S. cools the acid-heated blood so that instead of pouring out acrid matter on the skin, it feeds and nourishes it with health-sustaining properties, and then the eruptions and diseases of the skin pass away. When the Liver goes Wrong, don't Abuse it

The old way of treating a torpid liver was with salts or cathartics.

They whipped the tired liver to a spurt of action. But this is what else they did:

They irritated the lining of the stomach and bowels, causing an inflammation.

They flooded the bowels with digestive juices, needed to digest your food.

They upset every function.

Thus every habitual user of salts and pills suffers from chronic dyspepsia.

The liver needs gentle treatment. Abuse means injury.

Then the liver grows hard and unresponsive, compelling a larger dose.

Cascarets act naturally. Their effect is the same as the effect of laxative foods.

They bring their results without injury. Without the pain and griping which denote irritation.

Every effect is curative.

When you realize all that harsh physic does, you will never use anything but Cascarets.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The box is marked like this:

Cascarets

The vest-pocket box is 10 cents. The month-treatment box 50 cents. 12,000,000 boxes sold annually.

Don't Say You Can't Make Good Rye Bread

It is easier to make GOOD Rye Bread than to make wheat bread. The trouble may be that you have never tried it the new way with the new, pure flour that contains all the healthful elements Nature so plentifully supplied Rye with.

To Make Good Rye Bread

all you need is to follow the very simple directions on every package of

ZUYDERZ RYE FLOUR

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Health & Strength in Rye Bread

Take a look at the sturdy residents of Northern Europe. They have the glow of rugged health in their cheeks; their eyes sparkle brilliantly; their step is elastic, and their carriage bespeaks strength inwardly and outwardly.

Why Don't YOU Bake Rye Bread

When you go marketing tomorrow, put Zuyder Z Rye Flour on your list. Or if you telephone your grocer, be sure and tell him to send you a package of Zuyder Z. Then, when you receive it, read the simple directions on the package and make Rye Bread according to them. There is no chance for failure.

Your children will appreciate the change from wheat bread to clean, palatable, nutritious Rye Bread. It will make them strong and vigorous.

Physicians recommend pure Rye Bread for dyspeptics. The stomach will retain Rye Bread when it casts off almost everything else. Every particle of Rye Bread made from ZUYDER Z RYE FLOUR is full of nutrition.

ZUYDER Z RYE FLOUR is absolutely pure; packed in dust-proof, air-tight packages. It is the only Rye Flour on the market packed in a sanitary package. Insist on ZUYDER FLOUR, and see that you get it.

COUPLE SURPRISE FRIENDS.

Dr. Frederick and Miss Katherine Walker Quietly Wed.

Brainerd, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—It has been suspected for some time that Dr. J. L. Frederick and Miss Katherine Walker were contemplating matrimony, but when it was learned that they were married Wednesday and left for the Twin Cities it was a genuine surprise to their friends. The wedding occurred at the parsonage of St. Francis Catholic church, Rev. J. H. O'Mahoney officiating. The only witness to the ceremony, it is said, were Mrs. Hannah E. Walker, the bride's mother, and C. Alonzo Walker, a nephew of the bride.

It had been their intention to be married quietly and slip away on the early train, leaving their friends and would-be tormentors in the lurch, but it had leaked out some way and a number were present with the usual liberal offerings of rice. The happy couple will visit in the Twin Cities and perhaps in Chicago before returning. They will be at home after June 8, at the home of Mrs. Hannah Walker, 310 North Seventh street.

WHEAT HAS SOFT TONE

The American Markets Decline on Bearish Crop News.

Flax is Weak at End of the Session Here.

Duluthh Board of Trade, May 29.—More favorable news concerning the Southwestern crops, coupled with a bearish report by the Modern Miller, caused a weak wheat market in America today, although the decline was offset somewhat by the manipulation of the May option in Chicago. May wheat, of which option this was the last day, as tomorrow is a holiday, closed 1½c nigher in Chicago.

July and September wheat was considerably off in all the American markets at the close, however.

Some wheat was worked for export during the session in Duluth.

Broomhall estimates the world's shipments of wheat this week at 3,640,000 bus, exclusive of North America.

The Modern Miller says:

"A little damage is reported in the winter wheat crop which is suffering of excess of moisture, but the outlook for nearly all the soft winter wheat states is for a larger yield than last year. At a meeting of the Indiana Millers' association held last week, it was the consensus of opinion that with the larger acreage and generally excellent crop conditions, a bumper crop will be harvested in that state. Fly and drought damage has cut the Kansas crop below earlier expectations, but the promise is for a yield of 20,000,000 bus or more, above last year. The hard winter country in the extreme West has fine prospects. So has Nebraska, where the outlook is for a large crop."

Liverpool closed ⅜d to ½d lower. Antwerp unchanged to ⅛c lower and Berlin 1⅜c lower.

The July option closed 1c lower in Duluth, ⅜-16c lower in Chicago, ⅝c lower in Minneapolis, ⅞c lower in New York and ⅝c lower in Winnipeg. Comparisons on the Southwestern closing prices are irregular. The September option closed ⅜c lower in Duluth, Chicago and Minneapolis, ⅝c lower in New York and ⅛c lower in Winnipeg.

July corn closed a shade lower in Chicago and July oats were ⅜c lower.

Car receipts at Duluth were 38 against none last year, (holiday), and at Minneapolis, 120 against 290 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 158 against 290 last year. Chicago received 28 against 29 last year. Winnipeg received 54 against 328 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 266,000 bus., last year, 731,000 bus. Shipments 256,000 bus., last year 331,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 282,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 799,000 bus., last year, 1,063,000 bus. Shipments 367,000 bus., last year, 486,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 53,000 bus.

Wheat was rather quiet during the session in Duluth. July wheat opened ¼c lower at $1.05⅜, declined to $1.05⅝-½ and closed at $1.05¼, a loss of 1c from yesterday. May wheat was inactive and closed 1¼c lower than yesterday at $1.05¼. September wheat was inactive and closed ¾c lower than yesterday at 91⅜c.

Durum wheat closed 1¼c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 1¼c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was fairly active, but closed weaker. May flax opened 1c lower at $1.22¼ and closed at $1.22¾, a loss of ¾c from yesterday. July flax opened ¼c lower at $1.23⅛, declined to $1.23⅜, rallied to $1.23⅝ and closed at $1.23, a loss of ¾c from yesterday. September flax opened ¼c higher at $1.22⅝, advanced to $1.22⅝, declined to $1.21⅜ and closed at $1.22, a loss of ¼c from yesterday. October flax sold at $1.21½, declined to $1.19¾ and closed at $1.20½, a loss of 1¼c from yesterday.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Easy on Lower Cables, But Soon Becomes Firm.

Chicago, May 29.—The local wheat market opened easier today because of lower prices at Liverpool, but soon became firm on covering by shorts. July wheat opened 1⅜@⅝c lower to 1⅛@⅛c higher at 90⅝c to 90⅞c sold at 90⅜c and then advanced to 90⅝@⅞c. May wheat was unchanged to ½c higher at $1.09 to $1.09½ and held at $1.09. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 186 cars against 192 cars last week and 490 cars on two days one year ago.

The price of the May option sold up to $1.11 5c above the low point of the day. The close on May was at $1.10½, which was 1½c higher than yesterday. The low point for July was 89⅝c. The close for July was weak and ⅜@½c lower at 90⅝c.

The corn market opened easy, and the May option continued weak while the other months rallied. Wet weather in the corn belt was the chief influence. July corn was unchanged to ⅛c lower at 67¼c to 67⅜c and sold at 67⅜@67⅝c, later advancing to 67⅝c. May corn opened unchanged to 1c lower, at 81½c to 82¼c and sold at 81c. Local receipts were 337 cars with 182 of contract grade.

The low point for May was 77½c and it ranged from there to 82⅛c. The close was at 80c to 80⅛c, which was 2c to 2½c below the close of yesterday. In the last two minutes of trading the price of May dropped from 82⅛c to 80c. July sold off to 66⅛c, but rallied and closed weak and a shade lower at 67¼@67⅜c.

The feature of trading in the oats market was a decline of 4 cents in the May option. The break was caused by the selling out of long oats, trade was light and prices dropped ½c at a time with no transactions. July oats opened ⅛c to ¼c lower, at 47⅛c to 47⅜c and for a time held within that range. May oats opened ½c lower, at 56c and sold off to 52½c. Local receipts were 153 cars.

Provisions market was dull and steady. July pork opened a shade to 2½@5c lower at $13.62½ to $13.65. Lard was a shade lower at $8.45@8.47½. Ribs were unchanged at $7.37½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.10¼; July, 90⅛c; September, 87⅜c; December, 87¾c. Corn—May, 80@80⅛c; July, 67¼@67⅜c; September, 65⅝@⅔c; December, 56⅝c. Oats—May, old, 52¾c; May, 52⅜c; July, old, 46¾c; July, 45¼c; September, 37⅜c. Pork—May, $13.70; July, $13.70; September, $13.95@$7.97½. Lard—May, $8.42½; July, $8.62½; September, $8.70. Ribs—May, $7.27½; July, $7.37½; September, $7.62½. Rye—Cash, $7.89. Barley—Cash, 60@65c. Timothy—September, $4.00. Cash Wheat—No. 2 red, 99c; No. 3 red, 96½c; No. 3 hard, $1.00; No. 3 spring, $1.05; others nothing doing. Corn—No. 3, 69@71c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Weakness in Corn Broke Wheat and Sent July to $105⅜

Minneapolis, May 29.—Weakness in corn and oats and the uncertainty incident to the last delivery day for the May option broke wheat at the opening and sent July here down to $1.05⅜. In the local outlook there was nothing weakening, the news being rather strengthening than otherwise. The Red River valley, Southern Minnesota, South Dakota and Iowa goth more rain where not needed, and crop conditions were somewhat less faborable in consequence. The railroads brought only 120 cars into Minneapolis against 3 0 a yar ago, and Duluth got 38 against 71. Local elevator stocks made a greater decrease than expected and by lostr 350,00 bus for the week, brocght the total down to 3,850,000 bus. The market met heavy selling, due to forced liquidation of long wheat in weak hands. July wheat opened at $1.06; high, $1.06⅞; low, $1.05¼@5⅜; closed, $1.05½. September closed 91¼@¼c; May wheat closed $1.06¾. Cash wheat was in good demand at 3½c over July for No. 1 northern and 1@1½c over for No. 2. Close, No. 1 northern, $1.08¾@1.09¼; spot, $1.09¼ to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.0⅝@1.07¼; spot, to arrive, $1.06¾ to arrive; No. 3 wheat, $1.01¼@1.06¼; No. 3 yellow corn, 68@6¾c.

No. 3 white oats, 48⅞@49¾c.

No. 2 rye, 75¾@77½c.

Barley was weak and quotably lower. The twenty-six cars received were more than expected. Yesterday's closing range of 60@62c was reduced again to 50@60c.

Flax was firm and in good demand at 1½c over Duluth July. Close: $1.24¼.

Bran in bulk, $21.25@21.50.

Not having advanced flour prices on recent strength in wheat millers made no reductions today. Inquiry was reported for July and August shipments and the market undertone seemed better. Shipments, 50,365 barrels. First patents, $5.40@5.60; second patents, $5.30@5.45; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, $3.55@3.65.

Liverpool Grain.

Liverpool, May 29.—Closing: Wheat—Spot market firm; No. 2 red western winter, 7s 6d; No. 1 California, 7s 9½d; futures steady; July, 7s 0⅛d; September, 7s 2¾d; December, 7s 1½d. Corn—Spot market firm; new American kiln dried, 5s 11d; old American mixed, 5s 11½d; futures dull; May nominal.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Moving Van is Hit by Northern Pacific Switch Engine.

The driver of a van of the Duluth Van & Storage company had a miraculous escape this morning in an accident, out of which his horses and wagon came with but slight damages. The van was struck by a Northern Pacific switch engine, at the corner of Seventh avenue west, and dragged for a distance of about 100 feet. One of the wheels of the van was badly smashed, and one of the horses was injured, but the man and the other horse came out unscathed.

SCORES ON THE REGENTS.

Must Show Cause Why Gleason Was Not Permitted to Register.

St. Paul, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—John L. Gleason, a student in the law department of the University of Minnesota, who has been at outs with the faculty for more than a year because of differences over the management of athletics, scored on the regents today when the supreme court handed down a decision ordering the board of regents to show cause why Gleason was refused the privilege of registering as a student in the law department. The faculty disqualified him on the grounds of deficiency in his work, but Gleason claims it was because he did not defer to the faculty in his administration of the affairs of the athletic department.

JUDGE STANTON TO SPEAK AT BRAINERD SATURDAY.

Brainerd, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Elaborate arrangements are being made for the observance of Memorial day in Brainerd, tomorrow. The graves of sixty-nine veterans will be decorated in the morning by their surviving comrades, while in the afternoon Judge C. W. Stanton, the son of a veteran, will deliver the address of the day. Prof. Bartsch's Juvenile band will furnish the music for the occasion.

Steamer Newsboy

Will start its regular trips for the season tomorrow by making one trip to Fond du Lac at 2 p. m., weather permitting. A pleasant way to spend the afternoon in a quiet way away from the hustle and bustle of a busy and noisy metropolis.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Aggressive Strength of Hill Stocks Was Sustaining Force.

Point Rise in Steel Was Feature of Late Trading.

New York, May 29.—Prices of stocks started higher today than last night. The Hill and Gould issues were conspicuous, the latter in rebound from their severe depression of yesterday. Northern Pacific advanced 2, Denver & Rio Grande, 1½; Great Northern preferred and Wabash preferred 1¼, and Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Anaconda large fractions.

The tone of the market became heavy and there were reactions of 1 to 1⅜ in Union Pacific, Reading, Northern Pacific and Missouri Pacific. Prices then moved fitfully, but showed little inclination to harden.

The aggressive strength of the two Hill stocks, which rose over 2 points, was a sustaining force to the market, but dealings were light. Missouri Pacific also rose 2¼, and Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, St. Paul, American Smelting and Consolidated Gas 1. Bonds were irregular.

A further rise in the market made the gains in St. Paul and Union Pacific 1½ and Reading, Interborough-Mtropolitan preferred and Amalgamated Copper 1. Light selling drove prices down later, both Missouri Pacific and Northern Pacific yielding 1.

The market closed firm. The point rise in the United States Steel stocks was a feature in the late trading. A sudden relapse in Northern Pacific to last night's level unsettled the advance, but there were later recoveries.

Copper Gossip.

Boston—To M. W. Lee & Co.: The North Butte dividend was larger than expected. It was paid from surplus, but was justified by earnings on copper sold. These earnings are at the rate of $7 per annum. The stock is still cheap and, as its resumption of dividends restores it as a bank collateral, it should go much higher, and is a purchase on all reactions. Boston Consolidated is still a purchase. The market is entirely artificial. The settlement of the Osceola-Calumet-Hecla suit is anxiously awaited. The best opinion in this city while admitting that still more legal delays are possible, and highly probable, is that the plaintiffs have not a leg to stand on before the courts.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 29.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 11 points to an advance of 4 points, near months being lower on the cables, while the new crop was relatively steady as a result of covering. Business was very quiet and after the opening the market sold 6 to 12 points net higher on a moderate demand, which, however, was followed by a reaction of 4 or 5 points under realizing with the market dull but nervous during the middle of the morning.

The market was quiet late in the forenoon with prices at midday about 2 points lower to 5 points higher, the new crop being relatively steady.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 11.40; middling gulf, 11.65; sales, 100 bales.

New York Money.

New York, May 29.—Close: Money on call, 1¼@1¾; ruling rate, 1¾; closing bid offered at 1½. Time loans dull and steady; 60 days, 2¼@2½ per cent and 90 days, 2¾ per cent; 6 months, 3½ to 3⅝ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 3½@4; sterling exchange steady. Actual business in bankers' bills, $4.87.10@4.87.20 for demand and at $4.75.40@4.85.50 for 60 day bills. Commercial bills, $4.85; bar silver, 48c. Mexican dollars, 47c. Government bonds firm; railroad bonds, irregular.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., May 29.—Barrett & Zimman report: The market was quieter in tone, and indications are that the heaviest volume of the spring trade is over, and that a quieter feeling will pervade the market from now on. Medium weight drafters meet with fair call. Livery stock in moderate demand.

LAND AGENT MISSING; SHORT MANY THOUSANDS.

Cogswell, N. D., May 29.—F. B. Wells, sole and trusted agent for Sargent county of Adams & Freese, a prominent real estate firm of Lisbon, N. D., has disappeared, leaving an alleged shortage of $40,000 in his accounts. He went away three weeks ago, and nothing was thought of it until an agent of the concern came here a few days ago, and is said to have discovered an astounding condition of affairs, every day's investigation adding to Wells' shortage. It is said that when mortgages were paid to him, he made duplicate mortgages with accompanying extension notes, instead of reporting the payment, pocketing the money. He leaves a wife and two children here in almost destitute circumstances.

Will open Saturday evening to the tourist trade. A caterer from Fon du Lac, Wis., will be in charge.

CUT SCHOOL TAX LEVIES.

Tax Commission Orders Reduction of $150,000 in St. Louis County.

St. Paul, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state tax commission today ordered an aggregate cut of $150,000 in the school tax levies of half a dozen towns of St. Louis county.

MORE CYCLONES HIT OKLAHOMA.

Guthrie, Okla., May 30.—A second series of cyclones, tornadoes, waterspouts and heavy rains struck Oklahoma last night. The damage by last night's storm is as great as the floods of last week.

Five persons are reported killed at Duncan and three seriously injured near Cashion.

On Red river a number of lives are believed to have been lost, as a result of sudden rise.

MEMBERS OF GANG SENTENCED.

Pikeville, Ky., May 29.—Five members of a gang were senten cedtoday to five years each in the penitentiary for attacking two Hungarian families, badly wounding five persons. It was reported that two Hungarian families were killed, but this proved erroneous.

LABOR UNIONS LIABLE.

Victoria, B. C., May 29.—That a labor union is liable for damages if it calls its men out because a workman is not a member of the union, is a decision rendered by Judge Lanmann in the county court here.

Lord Hotel, Solon Springs,

Will open Saturday evening to the tourist trade. A caterer from Fon du Lac, Wis., will be in charge.

CROP DAMAGE HEAVY.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 29.—The crop damage in Northwest Missouri, resulting from continued rains, is heavy. Much corn has been washed out or has rotted and must be replenished, and the crop may be late. Strawberries have been ruined and it is feared the wheat will rust.

SOME MAIDEN SPEECHES.

Westminster Gazette: By waiting twenty-four years before making his maiden speech Lord Langford has exercised an oratorical restraint as rare as in some cases it would be commendable.

The earl of Rochester, in the days of Charles II, was not equally modest, for he took an early opportunity of addressing the house of lords, with disastrous results. "My lords," he began, "I rise this time for the first time, the very first time, my lords, and divide my speech into four branches." Here he paused for a few seconds, grew purple and confused, and finally blurted out, "My lords, if ever I rise in this house you may cut me off, root and branches and all, forever."

Lord Bryon was more fortunate, for his maiden effort was declared by Sir P. Burdett to be "the best speech by a lord since the Lord knows when."

Lord Rosebery's maiden speech, after three years of silence, was a model of modest oratery, opening with a plea for that favor and indulgence which the house always shows to those who address it for the first time, "even in a large measure on account of my extreme youth and inexperience."

LAST DAY FOR TAXES

Ten Per Cent Penalty on 1907 Taxes Attaches to Delinquent.

Receipts Have Been Heavy at County Treasurer's Office.

This is the last day for the payment of the first half or all of the 1907 real estate taxes, but the forenoon was not marked by any great rush of taxpayers to the county treasurer's office.

The crowd at the treasurer's office was not as large as it was during the preceding days of the week. The bad weather may have had something to do with it.

In view of the fact that Saturday is a legal holiday, and the treasurer's forces will not be on duty, the office will be kept open a little longer this afternoon to accommodate the belated taxpayers.

The tax receipts have been running quite heavy thus far this week, many thousands of dollars being handed across the counters every day, besides the large and small checks that came through the mail, accompanying the property descriptions.

In the case of the checks sent through the mails it will probably be some days before the treasurer gets through the pile and mails the receipts.

The taxpayers have the option of paying one-half or all of the taxes at this payment. In case one-half is paid now, the other half must be paid at the October settlement.

If any taxpayer is delinquent a 10 per cent penalty attaches to the whole amount after today.

It will be reopened when the invoice is completed for a big sale by the trustees. No statement of resources or liabilities is given out.

NORTH AND SOUTH AT MEMORIAL EXERCISES

Blue and Gray Veterans Talk to High School Students.

Patriotic Programs Given in All the City Schools.

Both the North and the South spoke to the students of the Central High school at the Memorial Day exercises held there this morning under the auspices of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The blue and the gray sat upon the platform in the assembly room of the school, and both voiced notes of patriotism, reverance of the soldier dead and the perpetuity of these glorious United States of America.

T. H. Pressnell, W. P. Strickland and J. H. LaVague, representing the local G. A. R. bodies, were present and gave short Memorial day talks to the pupils, and Col. C. L. Murch, who was a member of Gen. Lee's staff during that famous Confederate commander's campaigns, was also there and delivered a short but inspiring address.

The exercises at the high school began shortly after 9 o'clock and lasted until nearly 11 o'clock. The students and teachers listened intently to the remarks of the speakers, who recalled incidents of that great struggle, and who reminded the young people of the significance of tomorrow, the thirtieth day of May.

Loud applause greeted the Grand Army men when they arose to speak and no less enthusiasm was manifest when the soldier of the Confederacy that was, stood up to address the gathering.

In addition to the talks by the veterans who saw service on both sides of the great conflict of the '60s' there were short speeches by C. E. Lovett of the Citizen's Staff of the G. A. R., and Principal Smith of the high school.

Exercises were also held at the State Normal school this morning also. A delegation of G. A. R. men was present and a patriotic program given. The speakers were W. H. Stultz, J. R. Randall, E. B. Ryan, D. G. Cash and John H. Norton of the Sons of Veterans.

This afternoon exercises are being held in all the public grade schools and the parochial schools of the city. The veterans have been delegated to speak at the different buildings, as follows:

Adams school—A. N. Hopkins, Leonard Keller, S. M. Kieley.

BRIGHT DAY PROMISED

Weather Man Predicts Fair Weather for Memorial Day.

The Order of Exercises and Line of March.

After an assistant had given the signal that all was safe, the weather man poked his head out of the huge steel and concrete vault, and slowly emerged.

"It's only you, is it?" he said in a relieved tone to the reporter.

"That's all," said the reporter. "I just wanted to find out what kind of weather we are going to have tomorrow."

The weather man perked up.

"I hate to say it," he said with an effort to return to his old jocular manner, "but I really think we may get some real sunshine tomorrow. The storm warnings are out today, and the wind is blowing about thirty miles an hour from the northeast." (Here the weather man made a spasmodic movement as if he were dodging a brick). "But it will shift to the northwest tonight, and gradually die down, I think, giving good prospects of warmer weather and a fair day tomorrow."

"Thanks," said the reporter, and left the weather man mopping the cold sweat from his brow, and keeping a furtive eye on the door for the next caller.

The formal exercises in observance of Memorial day will be held tomorrow morning. The parade will form at the Armory about 9 o'clock, and march on First and Superior streets to Eighth avenue west. At the Lyceum on the return, the first and sixth divisions, consisting of the military bodies and citizens' staff, will branch off, and at the theater, exercises will be held with William E. Culkin, Capt. W. H. Smallwood and Bishop J. D. Morrison as the principal speakers.

The school children's sections will march to the high school, where exercises for them will be held in the Assembly hall. D. P. Neff and Judge Page Morris will address the children.

The citizens' staff has been assigned a place in the line of march directly behind the Sons of Veterans in the sixth division. The order of marching is as follows:

RAILROADS

DELAYED BY THE RAINS

Wet Weather Retards the Grading of Wisconsin Central Extension.

Will Begin Erection of New Depot Before Fall.

C. N. Kaik, chief engineer of the Wisconsin Central, was in the city today, inspecting the work on the grading of the extension and the tunnel. The wet weather of the past two weeks has delayed the work on the grading somewhat, but the work on the tunnel approach to the city has not been interrupted in the least.

The work on the grading between South Superior and this city is progressing very satisfactorily. Until the wet weather came the work was being pushed with all possible speed. During the past ten days the officials have found it impossible to make good progress.

The track laying has reached South Superior, and as soon as the grading between here and that point is completed the work of laying tracks will be begun.

Work on the new depot will be begun just as soon as the blasting for the excavation is completed. The bricks of the Metropolitan theater will be used in the rear wall of the station, and work on the demolition of that structure will begin as soon as the excavating has been completed. As soon as the weather clears sufficiently to permit of the resumption of the work of grading, the engineers in charge of the work will push the laying of the rails to this city as fast as possible.

Mr. Kaik states that the work has progressed as rapidly as could be expected under the existing conditions. It is expected that work on the depot will be started before fall, if present plans do not miscarry, and it is expected that the tracks of the road will reach the city before that time.

Arrangements have not been completed as yet for the running of the trains of the Wisconsin Central into the union depot. That will depend upon the progress that is made on the Wisconsin Central station.

Protest Against Decrease.

Lincoln, Neb., May 29.—Representatives of the organized railway men in the state today made emphatic speeches before the state railway commission, protesting against any decrease in freight rates. G. H. Crosby and J. B. Wade asserted that lower wages would follow decreased schedules.

C. B. & Q. Files Mortgage.

Burlington, Iowa, May 29.—The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad company today filed a $300,000,000 mortgage here covering all its property. The mortgagees are the Central Trust Company of New York and Oliver M. Spencer. The purposes of the mortgage are refunding of existing indebtedness, acquisition of other property and financing improvements.

Great Northern Extension.

St. Paul, May 29.—A Winnipeg, Man., dispatch to the Associated Press says that it is announced there that the Crow's Nest portion of the Great Northern system will be extended from Michel, the center of the coal mining district of Western Canada, to Calgary, on the main line of the Canadian Pacific railway. The length of the road is seventy-three miles. Engineers recently surveyed the line and have forwarded the estimated cost to the St. Paul headquarters of the road.

At Great Northern headquarters here it was said by Chief Engineer Hogeland that nothing was known about the plan.

It Reached the Spot.

Mr. E. Humparey, who owns a large general store at Omega, Ohio, and is president of the Adams County Telephone company, as well as of the Home Telephone company of Pike county, Ohio, says of Dr. King's New Discovery: "It saved my life once. At least I think it did. It seemed to reach the spot—the very seat of my cough,—when everything else failed." Dr. King's New Discovery not only reaches the cough spot; it heals the sore spots and the weak spots in throat, lungs and chest. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

REGULAR ENOCH ARDEN.

Peter Exstrom Returns to Find Wife Married to Another.

Spooner, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Charles Bjornson, formerly known as Mrs. Emma Exstrom, was brought to Kenora Wednesday to stand trial before a jury for bigamy, in the county of Assizes at Kenora, Ont., June 3.

In 1901 Mrs. Bjornson was married to Peter Exstrom at Kenora. From there the couple moved to Minnesota, locating on a homestead near the original townsite of Spooner. In August, 1906, Exstrom is said to have deserted his wife, and the following January, 1907, Emma Exstrom commenced divorce action on the ground of desertion. In March, 1907, the report was received of Exstrom's death, and the divorce proceedings were stopped. On April 11 Emma Exstrom married Charles Bjornson at Stratton, Ont., with whom she has been living as her husband. About three weeks ago Peter Exstrom returned, and bigamy is alleged against his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Bjornson were arrested and lodged in the jail at Rainy River.

Charles Bjornson will be tried by Police Magistrate Morson in two weeks at Rainy River.

French & Bassett's great furniture and house furnishing store will be open this evening until 10 o'clock.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Gets Bids on New Depot.

Construction work on the Northern Pacific company's new passenger depot at the East end will begin within a few days. Bids have been submitted for the construction of the building. The depot will be built of red brick and it will have a slate roof. The depot will cost about $4,000.

Gets Plans for New Depot.

According to the plans for the Wisconsin Central Railway company's depot in Superior the structure will be constructed of red brick with Bedford sandstone trimmings. The building will be a one-story structure occupying ground space 165 by 40 feet exclusive of the overhanging roofs. The freight depot, of similar construction, will be 170 feet long by 30 feet wide. The depot will be erected half way between John and Ogden avenues and the freight depot will be erected near Winter street. The passenger depot is to be of attractive, but not elaborate design. The plans and specifications were received in Superior from Chicago, yesterday noon.

Touri Must Stand Trial.

Matt Touri, charged with robbing a woodsman of $150 in a Third street saloon, the other day, failed to establish an alibi before the municipal court and was bound over to the superior court for trial. Touri attempted to show that he was at a doctor's office the time John Hill, the woodsman, is claimed to have been robbed. Witnesses for the defense claimed that Touri urged Hill to leave his money with the

RAIN FAILS TO DAMPEN PATRIOTISM OF DULUTH PEOPLE

JACOBSON AND FACTION TRYING TO FIX THINGS TO SECURE NOMINATION

Believe They Have the Situation Well in Hand.

County Option Plank is the Problem Bothering Them.

Another Fight in Republican Party Means Certain Defeat.

St. Paul, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—This has been a busy week for Republican politicians and many conferences have been held in the capitol and the sister city. J. F. Jacobson and his faction of the party have been busy trying to fix up things and the friends of the other candidates also have been watching the game and wondering where they come in. Jacobson was here two days this week, and while here met a number of his friends from different parts of the state. Bob Dunn dropped in about the same time, and Jake also had some conferences with the local managers. There were a number of politicians from Southern Minnesota who happened in about the time that Jake was here.

The leaders of the Jacobson movement, which now includes the greater part of the professional politicians in the Republican party, are quite confident that they have the situation in hand and that they can nominate Jacobson without much difficulty. The talk that they are not sincere in their support of Jacobson, and that they intend to throw him for some dark horse, is not believed everywhere. The talk of a dark horse has been circulated largely for the purpose of taking away from Jacobson the odium of the support of the professional and machine politicians. If the machine politicians had any intention of supplanting Jake with a dark horse, they have abandoned that idea, for they came to the conclusion that the country would be too strong for them, and if they did not take Jake, they might get Young, which they had been working all the time to prevent. And Jake is not the radical that he once was, so the machine politicians do not hate him as they once did.

So it is not so much the question of nominating him that is worrying them as the question of doing it in such a way that they can elect him. The county option plank is bothering them. They believe that they can defeat that plank in the convention, but they dare

TARGET OF RIDICULE

Alfred Vanderbilt and His Coaching Enterprise Now Criticised.

Servant Question in England Being Solved by Ex-Soldiers.

(Special Cable to The Herald by Richard Abercorn.)

London, May 30.—The tide of public favor seems to be turning against Alfred Vanderbilt and his coaching enterprise. After having been praised to the skies by at least a part of the London press, he is now made the target of sarcasm and ridicule by some of the more serious papers.

In an editorial dealing with Mr. Vanderbilt's fad, a prominent London paper said the other day:

"Master Vanderbilt would undoubtedly soon give up his latest hobby if he were not encouraged by a morbid press. After the first day we began to get tired of his Brighton coaching enterprise. The people of London do not wish to pay 15 shillings even for the privilege of being driven to Brighton in a millionaire's coach, with the added glory of a guard in gold lace tooting on a tin horn.

"The people of London do not care to know that Mr. Vanderbilt was wearing a light coat with a red flower in his buttonhole, and it pains the great majority of us to to think of the British citizens who crowded the streets to see this American traveling show, and afterwards tumble all over one another at the ticket office.

BOXING IS GREAT FAD

All Paris Mad With Enthusiasm Over "The Manly Art."

Sultan of Turkey Did Not Get $400,000 Hope Diamond.

(Special Cable to The Herald by Raoul de Saint Rene.)

Paris, May 30.—There will be no more boxing in Paris if M. Henri Tyret, a member of the municipal council of Paris, has his way, but he will meet with strong opposition, as did the Reines law in New York, for just now all Paris is mad with enthusiasm over "the manly art."

M. Turot has taken the first step by writing a letter to the prefect of police, in which he says that boxing may be all right for the rough and ready Western American and the beefeating Englishman, but ought to be condemned by the more highly cultured Frenchman.

"I know of no more demoralizing sight than these brutal exhibitions, which are becoming more and more popular because people look at them as sport, while nothing could be less sportsmanlike than for two men to hammer each others' bodies and faces into a bloody pulp by blows with their fists, and only degenerate women and blase men could really enjoy such repulsive encounters.

"If you, M. Prefect, will not put an end to these disgraceful contests, you will have to answer charges which I shall prefer against you in the municipal council."

CORN KING IS LIBERAL

James A. Patten Gives Northwestern University $150,000.

Chicago, May 30.—A gift of $150,000 for a gymnasium building at Northwestern university was made last night by James A. Patten, "King" of the corn pit in the Chicago board of trade. The announcement was made by President A. W. Harris at the annual convocation of the students, held in Fisk hall. It was hailed with shouts, and cheers. Evanston may lack its peace and quiet for some days to come, for the students are wild with joy.

Mr. Patten, who is credited with having cleared $2,000,000—more or less—in the corn market within the last two weeks, was in the audience. According to President Harris, he first received the offer of the gymnasium at a luncheon, several days ago.

Northwestern university has been trying for five years to raise funds for a new gymnasium building. The present one was erected in 1872. It is a small and poorly lighted. It was said, last night, that work on the new building would commence as soon as the plans can be drawn and accepted.

BEDE WILL TAKE STEPS

To Extend Mineral Laws to Minnesota, If People Desire.

Ogaard Survey in Koochiching County Has Been Approved.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—It has come to the attention of Representative Bede that a considerable acreage of mineral and agricultural lands have been included in a forest reserve in the northern part of Cook county. The agricultural lands can, under existing law, be settled upon through application to the agricultural department, even though in a forest reserve, but the mineral land laws do not extend to the state of Minnesota. When the last law governing mineral lands was passed, Minnesota was not considered to contain any mineral lands of any consequence, and, further, the people of Minnesota did not press matters so as to include their state in these laws. The idea was, probably, to settle up on supposed agricultural lands, and if mineral was developed, to reap such benefits as might be derived therefrom. Representative Bede today said that before the next session convenes he intends to visit this section of Cook county, and if he finds the people thereabouts desire a law extending the mineral laws over the state of Minnesota, he will introduce a bill to accomplish such extension.

The report of Special Agent Van Antwerp of the interior department, on what is generally known as the Ogaard survey, No. 114, embracing five townships in Koochiching county, Minn., has been approved by the secretary of the interior. As soon as the department draftsmen can prepare plats, these lands will be opened to settlement.

The senate has confirmed the nomination of Frank M. Woodfill to be postmaster at Two Harbors.

Lewis Denfeld of Duulth, who was appointed a cadet at Annapolis by J. Adam Bede, called upon the congressman yesterday. Mr. Denfeld has passed his examinations and will neter the academy June 15.

GUNNESS PROPERTY IS SOLD AT AUCTION.

Laporte, Ind., May 30.—The auction sale of personal property left by Mrs. Bella Gunness yesterday was attended by between four and five thousand persons. Many of the articles brought five and ten times their cost price. It is estimated that the total receipts were more than three times what they would have been at any ordinary sale. The postal card venders and fakirs and refreshment and luncheon stand owners did a thriving business.

CHILDREN IN DANGER

Panic in St. Paul Chapel Due to Burning of Films.

Several Hurt, But All Escape Without Loss of Life.

St. Paul, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The blazing of films used in a stereoptician exhibition created a panic among 200 children who were gathered last evening at Hope chapel, Bradley and Hopkins streets.

Many leaped through windows in their fright and others tore down the stairway pell mell and fell into a promiscuous heap into the street. Several children were scratched and bruised, while the older people were considerably shocked by and unnerved by the explosion and panic.

Forest Morgan, Maria avenue and Plum street, had his right wrist badly cut and his face scratched by jumping through a window, and Ben Tremble, another lad, had his hands cut.

It was half an hour before the excitement subsided and all the children had been able to leave the building. The explosion was not a serious one and after some time some of the children returned to the building. Many of the children, however, did not go back to see the inside of the hall, but continued on a mad rush for home.

The entertainment was given to raise money to give the children an outing this summer. The stereopticon views were given by A. McMillan and Rev. C. A. Arnold. Rev. Arnold said that the explosion did not amount to much and a panic would not have resulted had the audience not been so young.

FOUR INDICTED FOR CONSPIRACY

Washington, May 30.—Almost simultanously in Washington and New York, indictments were yesterday returned against Theodore H. Price, a prominent New York cotton operator, Frederick A. Peckham and Moses Haas, both of New York, and Edwin S. Holmes, Jr., of this city, formerly assistant statistician of the department of agriculture, for alleged participation in government crop report leaks.

Price is charged with having conspired with the other three men to furnish advance information regarding the crop reports of the department of agriculture, and Price, Peckham and Haas are charged with conspiring to bribe Holmes to shape the official reports to suit their interests.

SENATORS ARE TRYING TO KILL THE CURRENCY BILL BY TALKING IT TO DEATH

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE,
Who Talked Over Eighteen Hours In Filibustering Against the Currency Bill In the Senate.

Senator La Follette Spoke Over Eighteen Hours, All Night.

Relieved at 7 O'clock in the Morning by Senator Stone.

Missouri Statesman Expects to Talk About Sixteen Hours.

Washington, May 30.—Whatever else has been accomplished by Senator La Follette in his filibuster in the senate against the adoption of the conference report on the currency bill, he has gained a championship. At 7:30 a. m. today he yielded the floor to Mr. Stone of Missouri, after having spoken almost continuously for eighteen hours and forty-three minutes, and his voice seemed to be almost as fresh as when he began. If Senators Stone and Gore, the latter being accredited with willingness to assist in the filibuster, can do as well, the filibuster is far from an end. This is not taking into the calculation the now apparently erroneous report that Senator Jeff Davis was to take a hand. The Republican leaders apparently have no program other than to try to wear out the filibusters.

The previous record for long speech in the senate was made by Former Senator Allen of Nebraska who opposed the repeal of the silver purchasing clause of the Sherman act, and he was aided by other senators who took much of the strain from his voice by frequently reading extracts from documents. Mr. La Follette had no assistance of that character. In fact his task was made as difficult as possible by placing interpretations on the rules of the senate, which interfered with his demands for the calling of the roll to determine the existence of a quorum. This ruling was made after there had been more than thirty calls of the senate and was based on the fact that there had been no business intervening since the former call, debate being held not to be business. After Mr. La Follette had been twice recognized by the chair an old ruling, invoked a number of years ago at the suggestion of Former Senator David B. Hill of New York to the effect that a senator cannot speak more than twice on a subject in one legislative day, unless other business intervenes, was brought up.

La Follette's Feat Remarkable.

As the senate will continue the currency discussion under the legislative date of May 29, Mr. La Follette realized that he could not get the floor again if he surrendered it. As a result, he gave an unprecedented exhibition of endurance. His exploit is all the more remarkable for the reason that his own party was wholly without sympathy for his effort, and he had but few supporters in the Democratic ranks.

The night was one that will long be remembered by senators. The heat in the chamber was oppressive and the attempts to maintain a quorum prevented the fifty odd senators now in the city from getting rest. Finally the sergeant-at-arms was directed to keep these senators at the capitol, which was an almost impossible task. As soon as some of them were brought in they would answer to their names and depart for their homes. The Republican leaders were particularly anxious that Senators Stone and Gore should not be permitted to get an undisturbed night's rest and they were routed out of bed by the deputy sargeants at

FOUND GUILTY OF SWINDLING

Chicago Promoters Convicted Under Charge of Using U. S. Mail.

Chicago, May 30.—Thomas C. Miller, president of the Marinette Gas Engine company of Chicago Heights, and Frank L. Monroe, general sales manager of the concern, were found guilty, in Judge I. H. Bethea's court, yesterday, of using the United States mails in promoting an alleged fraud in the sale of the company's stock. Sentence is reserved by the court, pending the consideration of a motion for a new trial.

Miller and Monroe are accused of swindling twenty-eight sales agents out of $14,000. The agents, it is charged by the government, were drawn into investments in the company's stock by Miller and Monroe, believing that if they invested their money and failed to make good, they could recover the amount of their investments. When they had invested, however, it is alleged, they were "frozen out."

SMALLPOX ON BATTLESHIP.

Seattle, Wash., May 30.—At Bromerton navy yards the yellow flag floats from the battleship Kentucky, one of the Atlantic fleet, as a result of smallpox being developed aboard. One sailor is confined with the disease and several others, it is said, show signs of it. The Kentucky will be fumigated thoroughly.

LITTLE DAMAGE IN COLLISION

Newsboy Was Running Under Check When it Hit Dock.

Capt. Clow of the excursion steamer Newsboy denied that the boat ran into the dock at the foot of Fifth avenue west under full head of steam Thursday evening. He said the boat was running under check at no more than three miles an hour when it collided with the dock, doing no more than $10 worth of damage altogether. A few timbers were broken, but the boat was not damaged in the least.

The Clow & Nicholson Transportation company, which owns the Newsboy, will put the boat on the regular excursion schedule about June 15. A commodious waiting room has been fitted up at the foot of Fifth avenue, and other improvements will be made in the service. Capt. Clow will again be in command of the steamer and it will be on the river run, with open dates for charters. Chamber's Grove will again be free to patrons of the steamer, and there will be a cafe there in charge of Mrs. Thorpe. No liquors will be allowed on the grounds.

MEMORIAL SERVICES

Big Meetings Held at Lyceum and High School.

Speakers Pay Tribute to Memory of Old Soldiers.

Brave Deeds and Sacrifices of Civil War Recalled.

Dakota played a mean trick on Duluth today. The Western state held on to the good weather that was due here this morning. Yesterday's rain continued over today, and the Memorial day parade, scheduled for 9 o'clock this morning, had to be called off in consequence. Rain fell all the morning, without any sign of a let up or break in the clouds, and those having the parade in charge concluded there was no use trying to pull it off.

The weather man said yesterday that the indications were for warmer weather Saturday, with a much better article in the way of weather than has been prevailing during the past few days. He based his prediction on the fact that the storm center was moving eastward. By all the laws of nature, according to Forecaster Richardson, the center should have gotten past Duluth in the night time, leaving the sun a chance to show its face today. A hitch occurred, however, the storm center evidently liking the Head of the Lakes location, and it is still hanging around. It may resume its eastward journey tonight, but the main point is that North Dakita is today getting the good weather that was promised Duluth for Memorial day.

THE LYCEUM MEETING.

Veterans of Two Duluth Posts Attend Gathering at Theater.

Mayor Haven presided at the meeting held at the Lyceum theater. American flags were draped on the stage, and in the front rows of the auditorium sat the members of the Grand Army of the Republic, to whom this Memorial day has the most significance.

The entire assemblage stood with bowed heads when the invocation was given and when, during the course of the program, "The Star Spangled Banner" and "America" were sung, every man, woman and child in the theater stood up.

Dr. C. M. Wilson read Lincoln's never-to-be-forgotten speech at Gettysburg.

Capt. W. H. Smallwood recalled the battles that have been fought under the American flag from the time the first colonist fell at Lexington to the time the last soldier gave up his life in the Philippines.

He also referred to the designation that is now given to the thirtieth day of May. Formerly most people called it Decoration day. It was originally called Decoration day, he said, because

SITUATION IS SERIOUS

Refuges From Samos Tell Stories of Slaughter by Troops.

Greek Officials Place But Little Confidence in Rumors.

Constantinople, May 30.—According to an official telegram received here from Athens, a mail steamer with 150 women and children refugees from the island of Samos has arrived at Syra, one if the islands of the Cyclades group and report the continuation of a serious situation on Samos. The refugees say that a battalion of Turkish troips recently arrived at Nathy, capital of the island, and at once commenced to fire indiscriminately. Many people were killed or wounded. The story of the refugees is discredited here.

The Greek government is urging the three powers, under whose protection Samos has been since 1832—France, Great Britain and Russia—to send warships to the island.

The porte is anxious for a settlement of the trouble with the least possible bloodshed, and has instructed the officials here to act with the greatest moderation. There is little sympathy here for the Samians, who are thought to have brought on the troubles by their own folly.

EXPERT OPINIONS SEEM TO DIFFER

Physicians Give Contradictory Testimony as to Hudnack's Injuries.

Expert medical testimony of a contradictory nature was introduced yesterday in the personal injury case of Frank Hudnack against the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific Railway companies, now on trial in Judge Dibell's room.

The physician called by Hudnack claimed that the plaintiff's injuries are permanent while the railway company's physician claimed that the injuries were not serious and that Hudnack will be able to work as well as he ever did.

Hudnack is suing for $50,000 damages. He claims that he was struck by a train as he was crossing the tracks close to one of the buildings of the Webster chair factory in South Superior.

EXPLAIN THE BIDS

Chicago Architects Say G. H. Lounsberry's Bid Was Not Lowest.

Claim That Lanquist & Ilsley's Bid Was $7,000 Lower.

Owing to the rumors that seem to have been circulating in the city since the awarding of the courthouse contracts to the firm of Lanquist & Ilsley against George H. Lounsberry, the local contractor, the courthouse commission addressed a letter to D. H. Burnham & Co., the courthouse architects, asking for information as regards the bids that would clear up the situation.

The commission, yesterday received a communication from the architects in which some matters pertaining to the contracts were discussed and the information asked for was given as follows:

"As regards the bid of George H. Lounsberry, we beg to advise you that on the Duluth board of trade building Mr. Lounsberry submitted a figure covering a number of the branches of the work, and among these was a separate figure for the masonry at $15,655, as against other contractors, as follows:

Theodore Nauffts	$20,269.70
Carter-Halls-Aldinger Co., Winnipeg	27,892.00
Nicholson Bros., (masonry and roofing)	33,422.00
Angus Brothers Co., Chicago	35,469.00

"At that time our Mr. White and Mr. Macdonald, secretary of the board of trade, called in Mr. Lounsberry and tendered him the masonry contract at his price, but he refused to take the same, saying that he would not take the masonry contract without the other branches of the work included in his general bid. This is the usual custom among general contractors and has been followed out in so many cases that we did not consider it necessary to even tender Mr. Lounsberry the contract for the masonry on your courthouse at his price, and, even had we done so, we are confident that Mr. Lounsberry would have refused to take the one contract at that price, and we believe that his bids were made out in such form as to permit his refusal.

"You have a parallel case in that of McLeod & Smith, who, although they have made a separate bid and deposited a separate certified check for the grading, refused to take this one contract unless they were awarded the general contract.

"Notwithstanding all this, we beg to advise you that Lanquist & Ilsley's price for the masonry work as included in their general bid was $87,798, so that you are getting your masonry work considerably cheaper than you could have had you closed with Mr. Lounsberry.

"We further beg to advise you that Lanquist & Illsley submitted two bids which were general bids, one for eight branches and the other for sixteen branches of the work. We have called them in and they state that they would not accept any of the work unless the contract includes the masonry. In our judgment, it would be greatly to your disadvantage to divide up those branches of the work which go to inclose the building. This we think you will readily see, for if one contractor controls those branches of the work which go to inclose the building, greater progress can be made."

LYCEUM—"Toodles in Holland."
BIJOU—Vaudeville.

"TOODLES IN HOLLAND."

Amateurs Make a Big Hit in Lively Musical Comedy.

Of course, there are some of the sterner sex in the entertainment, but the girls are the real big hit in "Toodles in Holland," which was given by local talent at the Lyceum last evening, under the auspices of Alpha council, No. 1, Modern Samaritans.

All of the girls are pretty; some have good voices and some have not a little ability as actresses.

Flora McDonald, Clara Collier, Mina Clark, Margaret Nordal, Ollie Capron, Jessie Beatty, Mrs. G. E. Budd and many others who do not have to say any lines of their own, appear.

Flora McDonald plays Toodles, the little girl with the souvenir postal card fad. Her song, "Toodles, the Candy Kid," is well given, and she does some graceful steps, with the assistance of a number of little girls.

When Clara Collier comes out in a nice new blue dress and sings "There Are a Million Reasons Why I Love You," the audience is willing to hear the whole million.

Margaret Nordal is the comedienne of the "Toodles" company and Rose Melville was hardly better than she as Sis Hopkins. Miss Nordal has the Melville drawl, the Melville hesitancy and the Melville postures down to perfection. She is a huge hit in the "Yankee Doodle Tars" quartet.

Ollie Capron has her opportunity when Donnie Clark wants to find the man who wrote "The Merry Widow" waltz. This burlesque was much appreciated last evening.

It is pretty soft for Toodles to have a pretty girl like Mina Clark, dressed in a green dress and a fetching black hat, sing her to sleep. Miss Clark's lullaby comes at the close of the first act.

Mrs. Budd, as the principal of the ladies' seminary, creates a lot of fun and little Jessie Beatty, who was a big favorite in the show T. P. Getz put on here last season, contributes something to the general liveliness whenever opportunity offers.

All the rest of the fair ones in "Toodles in Holland" look very swagger in their costumes.

The little plot which finds its way into the lines of "Toodles in Holland" concerns the efforts of a village postmaster to cure his granddaughter of the postal card fad and particularly of a keen desire to visit Holland and see Dutch kids like those they had in "The Red Mill." He decides to have the rest of the folks and the neighbors give an imitation of a Dutch village on the queen's birthday or some other joy-fest, and this inspiration furnishes the wooden shoe local color for the second act. The first is laid in the yard of grandpa's home and the second on the lawn of a ladies' seminary.

Toodles learns of the plan conceived by her relative and she starts a plan of her own. But it is too hard to follow the thread of the plot through the maze of fetching musical numbers and merry quips. Of course, everything comes out all right.

Donnie Clark and Joe Schwartz have the leading male roles. Mr. Clark appears as a stranded actor, who enters into the postal card plot with much enthusiasm. He and Schwartz have a funny scene in the first act, when the latter berates Mansfield (Mr. Clark) for luring him from a comfortable job in a second-hand store, to elevate the stage. The stunt is a replica of that done by McIntyre and Heath in "The Ham Tree."

Both comedians get many laughs. Mr. Schwartz has a good make-up and a dialect that is as thick as the mud on some of the avenues.

Donnie Clark's imitation of Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian who made such a hit in New York last season, wins him so much applause that when he runs out of verses, he is obliged to recite a Kipling poem, and he does it very well indeed.

Walter Smith's voice is heard to advantage in "When Skies are Clear," and "There Never Was a Girl Like You." Harry Baker has a good song in the second act and Joe McLaughlin sings "Harrigan" very acceptably.

The Merry Widow waltz done by Don Clark and Ollie Capron; the topical song by the Yankee Doodle Tars, in the second act; the Dutch kiddies and a lot more numbers make a giddy whirl of mirth and music and for amateurs, the principals and chorus in last night's performance covered themselves with glory. They deserved a larger house than they got.

Mr. Getz and his big company will give a performance this afternoon and another this evening.

JUNE WEATHER IN PAST YEARS

Summary of Weather Conditions Shows What to Expect.

The following data, covering a period of thirty-eight years, have been compiled from the weather bureau records. They are issued to show the conditions that have prevailed during the month of June for that period of years, but must not be construed as a forecast of the weather conditions for the coming month.

The mean or normal temperature was 66 degs. The warmest month was that of 1894 with an average of 63 degs. The coldest month was that of 1897 with an average of 54 degs. The highest temperature was 92 degs. on June 28, 1883, and the lowest temperature was 33 degs. on June 6, 1897. The average date on which last "killing" frost occurred in spring was May 3. The latest date on which last "killing" frost occurred in spring was June 3, 1885. The average number of clear days was eight; partly cloudy days, thirteen; cloudy days, nine. The prevailing winds are from the northeast. The average hourly velocity of the wind for twenty years was eight miles. The highest velocity of the wind was sixty-three miles from the northeast on June 3, 1904.

NO DAMAGES FOR JOHNSON

Jury Renders Verdict in Favor of Traction Company.

The jury in the damage case of Sander Johnson against the street railway company put its stamp of disapproval of rowdyism on the cars by turning down Johnson's suit. The verdict in favor of the company was returned last evening immediately following the first ballot in the jury room.

Johnson claimed that he was insulted and ejected from a street car in the West end, by the conductor, Saturday evening, March 7 last and that he suffered the indignity of being locked up all night in the city jail on the charge of disorderly conduct. H sued for $2,500 damages.

The company produced a large number of witnesses who testified that Johnson seemed to be intoxicated, that he swore, struck the conductor and acted in a disorderly manner on the car, frightening the passengers. The company claimed that the conductor did not attempt to eject Johnson or his friends, but that as soon as possible a policeman was called to arrest Johnson.

EQUIPMENT ADDITIONS.

Many Connections Necessary in the Work on Telephone Lines.

A staff of telephone engineers from the Western Electric company of Chicago is busy making changes in the arrangement and additions to the equipment of the Duluth Telephone company designed to increase the facilities for handling the toll business.

Four sections or twelve positions are added to the subscribers' board, three sections or six positions to the toll board and one extra connection to the chief operator's desk to facilitate supervision. The additional equipment will take care of 1,120 new subscribers, or 4,480 party line subscribers, giving a total equipment of 3,100 full metallic sub lines, allowing service for 12,400 parties of four-party lines.

The work involved in the additions includes the making of 75,000 connections on the subscribers' line and 25,000 connections on the toll lines. There will also be several changes in the building of the company on First street and those are well under way.

A TRAGEDY OF HIGH ART

Classy Importation From Italy is Shattered in Transit.

Young Lady is Pieced Together, But Name is Mystery.

This is a tale of high art.

It all came about because Charles A. Marshall, manager of the Lyceum theater, is a connoisseur of high art. He once spent a night in Evanston, Ill., which is the most violently artistic community west of the Black Bay district of Boston. He never quite recovered from its effects, and has never been the same since. Occasionally he talks of Rembrant and Whistler, and once bought a set of books that told how to tell a real Persian rug from one put together in New Hampshire.

Edmund Twohy knew of this weakness, and during his trip abroad picked up three choice pieces of statuary in Italy, which were tipped off to him as the real classy articles, and fairly reeking of art. He dug down in his jeans for them, packed them in three cases, and shipped them to Mr. Marshall.

The bill of lading arrived during the early part of the week, and Mr. Marshall beat it for the customs house to gaze upon his treasurers. Two of the cases were unpacked. One disclosed a bronze figure of Narcissus. Narcissus was in fine condition. He came through without laying a hair, and looked as good as new.

The second case disclosed some foreign lady without any too many clothes on, in a posture labeled by Mr. Marshall "languor." The reporter thought she was putting a comb in her back hair.

But the third case disclosed a tragedy. In unpacking the case the inspector pulled out a woman's ankle, followed by a piece of an arm, and then a dismembered trunk. The statue was smashed into a score of pieces.

Mr. Marshall gazed on the young lady and nearly wept.

W. H. Dean, the immigration agent, walked in and gazed at the ruins.

By piecing the fragments together it was seen that the statue was that of a young woman stooping over and reaching for something, probably the first article that is donned in the dressing process. She hadn't quite reached the article in question yet, however.

Mr. Dean wanted to deport the young woman on the ground that she was "broke," but Mr. Marshall wouldn't stand for it. He insisted that there was more real art in the fragments of the unknown young woman than in the other two statues combined, and recalled the fact that even Venus de Milo was shy one arm. Then Mr. Dean offered to tackle the job of putting the young woman together. The fragments were gathered in a basket and carried to the immigration office. That evening after office hours were over, Mr. Dean set about his task. How long he labored nobody knows, but yesterday he produced the foreign young woman as good as new. All she needed was a bath to remove the dirt stains, and she could have entered a free for all competition of the old masters.

Mr. Marshall was delighted, and the three statues were removed to the Kitchi Gammi club, where they are on exhibition. Even the bellhops knew Narcissus, but the two foreign ladies have the members guessing. The languid young lady was guessed as being Diana by an attorney who had studied Greek mythology at high school, but he wouldn't risk a guess on the rejuvenated one. He said he didn't go in much for art anyway.

And so the young woman has become the mystery of the Kitchi Gammi club. Her name may never be known.

Cable Service Began 49 Years Ago.

Forty-nine years ago the laying of the first Atlantic cable was completed and the first messages sent over it were an exchange of sentiments between the queen of England and our president. There are now about sixteen cables across the Atlantic. It was 54 years ago that the public had the first opportunity to test the curative powers of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and as proof of its wonderful success we only need point to the unequalled record of cures of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel complaints to its credit. Today it is more popular than ever, because more people are being convinced that it can cure them of sick headache, bloating, heartburn, vomiting, sour risings, dyspepsia, indigestion, costiveness, biliousness and malaria. Insist on having the genuine Hostetter's.

MEMORIAL DAY; JUDGE LENIENT

Nine Drunks Given Suspended Sentences in Police Court.

This is Memorial day, and Judge Windom was lenient toward the drunks who lined up in municipal court this morning. Nine of them were given suspended sentences, the court remarking that it was a wet day, with little necessity for more drinks, especially so in view of the fact that the saloons were closed.

E. Gillis, giving his occupation as that of a "chicken butcher" in a local hotel, appeared, with his face badly scratched up. The judge asked him if the chickens did it. He smiled sheepishly and answered in the negative. The charge against him was drunkenness, and he was one of the nine allowed to go under suspended sentence.

A. Langs, who said he was only 22 years old and that he worked in a sawmill out in the country, listened to a little lecture delivered by Judge Windom, who advised the young man to look ahead and think what condition a man would be in at 40 years of age who began getting drunk at the age of 22. Langs admitted the picture was not a pretty one, and promised to be good.

Martin Sternberg was fined $10, with an alternative of ten days in jail. The report had it that he was drunk yesterday and driving recklessly on Superior street, just east of Lake avenue. He was viciously whipping the horse, and drove it onto the sidewalk. Sternberg pleaded guilty.

Olaf Lindberg was in on the charge of being drunk. He has been a frequent visitor in court of late, and was given a sentence of sixty days in jail.

EMPLOYES ARE DINED

Engineers, Elevator Men and Janitors, Guests of Whitney Wall.

Good Feeling Promoted by Annual Dinner and Program.

The engineers, elevator operators and janitors of the Palladio, Manhattan and Torrey buildings were entertained at a dinner by Whitney Wall, agent of the three buildings, at the Commercial club last night. The dinner is an annual affair, designed to promote good feeling between employer and employe, and last night's affair was an entirely successful one. The program was arranged to provide entertainment and instruction and every talk was thoroughly enjoyed.

The guests included all of the employes and a number of the tenants of the three buildings. T. W. Hugo, consulting engineer, spoke on "The Management of Plants." W. J. Stepenson, a tenant of the Palladio building, gave an entertaining little talk, discussing the relations between tenants and employes, dealing principally with the elevator service. George Martin, a tenant of the Manhattan building, spoke along similar lines.

C. J. Enger, inspector of boilers for the Hartford Boiler Inspection company, talked on "How to Keep Boilers," and J. W. Daines of the Ocean Guaranty & Accident company spoke on "Inspection of Elevators."

Mayor Haven was also present and delivered a short address on the proper observance of the city's laws and ordinances, dwelling upon the necessity of guarding the safety of the people who use the building.

The dinner was a most enjoyable one and Mr. Wall was the recipient of many complimentary remarks and the object of the dinner to promote a feeling of good fellowship and harmony between tenants, employes and the agent had evidently been already achieved.

The menu was an elaborate one, and the souvenir place cards were in the form of a little booklet containing pictures of the three buildings and the names of the guests.

TWO FLAGS OVER FEDERAL OFFICES

"Old Glory" Tangled, New Flag Goes Up Half Mast.

Two flags fly on the Federal building today. On the staff which usually supports the flag of the customs service, a bright new United States flag flies at half mast in observance of Memorial day. On the top of the old staff, at the highest point on the building, streams of red, white and blue, the tattered remnants of "Old Glory" stream in the wind.

The United States government representatives were in a quandary yesterday. The flag which always floats over the United States government offices had become torn and twisted in the wind and all efforts to run it down proved futile. It was twisted around the rope and couldn't be moved. The old staff, swaying in the thirty-mile wind, defied the efforts of any steeple jack to ascend it and cut the rope. It would never do to have a flag at the top of the staff over a government building on Decoration day, so the problem was vexatious.

The solution of having two flags was hit upon. The customs flag was run down and the new banner of the free run up, so that it floats at half mast. The reason for the innovation is evident in the tattered streamers at the top of the other staff.

When the wind goes down it will be easy to take the old flag down and substitute the new one. But today, or any day when the wind is strong, the top of the federal building is not the most comfortable place in the world, and the double flag system will continue until the weather man changes his tactics.

JACOBSON AND FACTION TRYING TO FIX THINGS

not do it. They know that to turn it down, if it once comes up, will mean defeat at the polls. And equally certain would the defeat be if they adopted the plank. They are trying to dodge, but they fear that they will not be able to prevent the plank being offered in the convention.

Jacobson was an advocate of county option when he was in the legislature. Young and Heatwole have come out on that plank this year. They have tried to force Jacobson to declare himself but so far his counselors have been successful in keeping him from doing so. He has pointed to his record, but has refused to state that he is for the same things now as he was a few years ago.

Now the Republican managers realize the situation they are up against, and it has been the principal talk at the conferences and also at the informal gatherings here this week. The leaders are clearly puzzled. For, though they know that they will have control of the convention, they will not have all the delegates and there is nothing to prevent Heatwole's or Young's friends from offering a county option resolution. The old custom of requiring that all resolutions be referred to the committee has been suggested, but this would not solve the problem. And Heatwole, who was in St. Paul this week, said that the resolutions would surely be offered and he challenges the convention to turn them down.

So the Republican situation is not the most promising. The leaders know that if there is another fight in the Republican party, it will mean that once again a number of Republicans will vote the Democratic ticket. Add to these those who are Democrats all the time, those who are admirers of Governor Johnson and will vote for him this year again, and there will be enough to make another 73,000 majority.

Ripley Brower of St. Cloud has been in the cities the last couple of days. He again denies having any intention of being a candidate for governor, as he says he is for harmony and will be for the man who can best harmonize the party. He said he was in the cities on business and not on any political mission. Brower, by the way, has not only been mentioned for governor, but also for attorney general. There are those who are still hustling for an opponent to George Simpson, and they have hopes of persuading Brower to become a candidate. But Simpson apparently has the field pretty well in hand. He has his own district pretty well lined up, and the Jacobson people are very friendly to him. It is said that Simpson did Bob Dunn a good turn once upon a time, and now Dunn is trying to reciprocate.

The Republicans, who know Johnson's strength and who understand what they have to go up against when they go against him, were happy last Sunday when they read in the telegraph news that Johnson would not be a candidate for another term. But that was nothing new. Johnson has stated before that he was not a candidate for president, and his friends have faith that he will be nominated. But should he fall of this, it will not change his determination. But it has happened before that men who are not candidates have been nominated against their will. There is practically a unanimous demand among the Democrats that Johnson run again. Whether Johnson would accede to that demand is not yet known, but at any rate he will not be a candidate for the nomination. He will not make the least effort toward securing the nomination, but will rather do whatever he can to avoid being nominated another time.

There continue to be evidences of a determination to elect Democratic congressman in a number of districts this fall. In the First district the newspapers are already getting ready for the election of a Democrat, and as soon as J. F. D. Meighen was mentioned a number of them came out with favorable mention and with knocks for Tawney. The people of that district have considerable complaint against their congressman, and a number of others among the Republicans may find angry constitutents awaiting them when they come home and try to explain why they submitted to Cannon's domination and failed to pass some of the legislation which the country was demanding.

Are you strong? Are you virile? Does the red blood course through your veins, show in your face and tingle to your finger tips? Or are you pale, anemic, faltering, the shadow of a man? If disease clutches you—throw it off! But remember magic cannot heal you! Be sane! Be reasonable! Let recognized scientists treat you.

We want to let every man know that he can get a cure in Duluth. No matter how long he may have had it, the Progressive Doctors are the most skilled you can find in this country. They got their experience through years of study in the best universities in the United States and Europe; and have studied for many years the ailments of men just to get proficient in healing chronic men's diseases. They will not accept your case if it is one of typhoid, pneumonia or other contagious disease, as there are many other able physicians to cure them. We stay right here in town and do not travel as many of our patients have to see us every day. No traveling doctor can accomplish lasting results, as he has no scientific devices along like the X-Ray, Utramarine-Violet-Ray. They weigh too much. We are here every day in the week, and our cures are lasting. Every case we accept we give a written guarantee of a cure. Our consultation is free from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m., and Sundays 10 to 1. LOST IN WOODS FOR TWO DAYS

Charles H. Bock Returns to Duluth After Harrowing Experience.

After a harrowing experience in the wilds of Northern Minnesota, Charles H. Bock, a Duluth plumber, who was lost in the woods near Beaver, a station on the Alger-Smith road, last Sunday, returned to the city yesterday. He wandered around in the forest for two days and two nights, without food. It rained a good part of the time. When discovered by two fishermen Tuesday noon he was nearly exhausted.

Bock, who rooms at the Dakotah house, was in the fishing party that left Duluth last Sunday morning. From Beaver station they went up Beaver creek about three miles, and then separated. About 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon Bock hurt his leg by falling against a sharp stump and sat down to attend to the painful injury. It was nearly dark when he was able to walk again. He wandered around for a time and then concluded he would be unable to make his way out of the woods until daylight. He found shelter under a big log, but it rained all night, and he suffered severely from exposure.

He was lost all day Monday, and Monday night slept in an abandoned hut. Tuesday noon two fishermen came along, and he hailed them. They took him to their cabin near Split Rock, where he soon regained his strength. He had not eaten since Sunday afternoon. He remained at Split Rock until Thursday, when a boat came along and he was taken on board and brought to Duluth.

Bock says that while lost in the woods he saw several moose, a bear, and several deer. Monday night the howling of the wolves kept him awake nearly all night.

Lottie Thomas Given Twenty-Four Hours to Leave Town.

Lottie Thomas, from the red light district, was arraigned in police court yesterday afternoon on a statutory charge. She was fined $75 and costs, and was given twenty-four hours to get out of town.

Back of the charge upon which she was arrested, was another charge that she had robbed two men of $35, by picking their pockets while engaged in conversation with them. There was not sufficient proof to convict her on that charge, however.

A previous jury had already given Miss Halness a verdict for $300 for services rendered, and it is alleged that this last verdict settles for the second child born out of wedlock, and it is intimated that another action is to follow.

TO EXAMINE THE MOUNDS

Eastern College Professors Will Study Ancient Indian Relics.

Northern Minnesota Expedition May be of Historic Value.

A party of college professors and students from Columbia university, New York, is due to arrive in Duluth some time during the month of July, on their way to the wilds of Northern Minnesota to make a study of the old Indian mounds, stone carvings, etc.

These relics of the early days of the red men in America offer an interesting field for observation, but up to the present time practically no systematic attention has been paid to them. It is thought a study of the regions in which these signs of an early day are to be found, and a study of the signs themselves, may lead to the unearthing of important and interesting historical facts.

At different points in Northern Minnesota the Indian mounds are to be found, but only in a few spots have old stone carvings been discovered by timber cruisers and hunters. What is thought to be the most important of the curiously disfigured rocks is located in Nett lake, on the Nett Lake Indian reservation. A good deal of superstition attaches to the rock on the part of the Indians themselves, and it is said none of them will ever set foot on the rock, which is large enough to form an island in the middle of the lake.

The surface of the island, which is bare of any covering except for a little soil and two or three trees at one end, is covered with fantastic carvings, that evidently have been there for hundreds of years. Towards one end the rock, which has a water surface area of perhaps a quarter of an acre, has a broad, flat slope into the water, and it is upon this slope that the carved figures are the thickest. One thing leading to the belief that the stone was cut centuries ago is the fact that the carvings extend down the face of the rock as far as can be seen under the clear water of the lake, making it appear that the lake, or a good part of it, has been formed since the cutting was done.

A peculiar fact about the rock itself is that it is the only stone of any kind that is located within a radius of four or five miles. Otherwise the country is of a swampy character, of a sort where stones of any description are usually not in evidence. Those who have seen it, say the stone is of peculiar appearance, and some express the opinion that it is of meteroic origin, for it is said to correspond to the description of stones known to have fallen from the sky.

Some of the largest mounds in the Northwest are located in the valleys of the Big and Little Fork rivers, branches of the Rainy. On the Big Fork there are also old stone walls, showing good workmanship in spite of the ravages of time. The mounds themselves are covered with matured forests, indicating that they have at least been there during the life time of the average large tree. It is believed their age must extend back much farther than that. Curious settlers, trappers and surveyors are about the only ones who ever took the trouble to dig around the mounds, and they never expended enough energy to get into them very deeply.

Their efforts have been rewarded by the finding of scores of old arrow heads and pottery of curious manufacture, as well as copper weapons and tools. It is said that when the white man first came to Minnesota the weapons, tools and utensils of the Indians then here were of entirely different material and manufacture. There are also mounds in different portions of Northern Minnesota's wilderness, but so far as can be learned, there is no case on record where they have been thoroughly investigated, with an eye to learning what connection they may have with the history of the present and past ages.

Indians on the reservation will paddle a white man out to the carved rock, but none of them can be prevailed upon to set foot upon it. They land their passenger, and then paddle quickly back into deep water, remaining there until signaled to approach. It is understood the professors from the East will come prepared to make a very careful investigation, and they hope to unearth some valuable facts in connection with the history of this part of the continent.

A SIX WEEKS' COURSE IN PENMANSHIP FOR FIVE DOLLARS.

An outlay of five dollars and an hour a day for six weeks spent at the Duluth Business University, should give any one of ordinary intelligence the key to the acquirement of a good business hand writing, which is worth hundreds of dollars to those who do not possess it. Writing is not a gift. It may be acquired by all. To those who will attend our classes, put forth the necessary effort and follow the directions of our teachers, who are specialists, we guarantee success.

could give the 'millionaire whip' lessons on 'handling the ribbons.'

"Surely it passes all understanding that the desire for a little newspaper notoriety should induce a man who can command the latent energy of millions to spend his time driving horses between London and Brighton, and still more that it should induce many human beings, especially Englishmen, to spend 15 shillings to sit behind him and see him do it.

"What does a million sterling mean? It is a strange battery charged with the most tremendous energy in the world. It is 'capital,' it gives to its owner the power of concentrating honor, thought and will and effort on any point. It can build railroads, harbors and found universities. Thousands of men may depend upon its wise use and their right to earn a living. Yet millions may be squandered on useless extravagance and vain frivolity. It may be dissipated like water poured on the ground.

"The new rich, especially when they hail from America, seem to vie with one another in devising idiotic means of getting rid of their surplus wealth.

"Perhaps it is well for the liberties of democracy that those who inherit wealth seldom show the same capacity to control it as those who amassed it. The dynasties of plutocracy degenerate entirely in the same manner as the dynasties of political power. A man who, by self-denial and thrift, or by his inventive and organizing genius, accumulates capital, deserves his reward, but those who inherit his wealth and squander it contribute nothing to the national stock."

The servant question seems to be solved by the ex-soldiers, for there is a growing demand in English families for soldier servants to scrub, wash and wait, and the secretary of the National Association for the Employment of Reserve Soldiers has received hundreds of applications from worried housewives for ex-soldier cooks, housemaids and parlor maids during the last week. In fact, the demand for trained men is almost exceeding the supply.

It is the men who have been orderlies or officer servants who are most sought after, since such men have had a good training in waiting at the table and duties of this kind.

If the ex-soldier servant experiment should prove successful, as it promises to be, two very serious problems will be solved at the same time—that of finding employment for many reserve soldiers, and that of finding satisfactory domestic servants to take the places of the girls who no longer seem inclined to take up such an occupation.

The great British military airship, "Nulli Secundus," which was wrecked by a gale last year while at anchor, near the Crystal palace, is now about ready to be tried again, and the first ascension will probably take place in a week.

Military balloon experts expect that with the new motor with which it has been supplied it will make a better showing than any other airship ever seen.

An instrument, which will enable you to see around the world, has been invented by John Wellesley Lynn.

According to the inventor, the lynnscope, as he calls his instrument, is an apparatus with which messages and images can be sent through the air without the aid of electricity.

By using it a man in London may converse with his friends in New York and see what they are doing. Family gatherings could thus be held in far distant countries at the same time.

The invention has already been patented in Great Britain, and the patent is held by the bishop of Bloemfontein, who advanced the inventor small sums of money to develop his ideas, and who is now on his way to England to attend the Pan-Anglican congress.

The bishop met the inventor some years ago, when Mr. Lynn was stranded with a theatrical company in South Africa.

The irreverance and vulgarity of women spectators at weddings is the subject of a bitter remonstrance by the vicar of St. Catherine's, Leytonstone, a London suburban parish. Referring, in the parish magazine, to women who attended a recent wedding, he writes: "Though dressed as ladies they were nothing more than female hooligans. These people amused themselves and disturbed others by standing on chairs and commenting audibly on other women's dresses, and pricing the materials. We had a policeman to restrain the curiosity of children outside, but I thought we might trust the respectability of Leytonstone for decent behavior inside the church."

grange, in making a fine flight in his aeroplane was unable to turn sufficiently short, and appeared to be in great danger of colliding with the spectators, of whom there were about 400 assembled on the edge of the ground.

With admirable coolness the aeronaut endeavored to pass over the heads of the people, but the crowd became panic-stricken, and whilst some threw themselves on the ground, others, shrieking wildly, flew in all directions.

An accident would, however, have been avoided but for a taxicab which got in the way, and the aeroplane, not then being sufficiently high to clear the cab, crashed into it.

Some lady passengers, who were in the cab, escaped without injury, whilst M. Delagrange, who was thrown out of his aeroplane, was fortunate enough to escape with a few scratches.

The governor of Angola, the Portuguese West African colony, has drawn the attention of the government to the presence of a large force of armed Boers in the colony.

It is stated that there are over 500 Boer families, who emigrated there after the Boer war, refusing to accept British rule. The families include 400 men, armed with rifles of the latest pattern.

Hitherto they have lived on good terms with the Portuguese authorities, but latterly they have displayed some restiveness, in consequence of which the governor has reported on the position of affairs. It is felt here that the Boers may become a serious menace and difficult to control.

The government has not yet arrived at any decision, but it appears probable that they will decide that the Boers must either adopt Portuguese nationality or be expelled from the colony.

Summer fashions this years are "too hot," even for Paris, to use a good American expression. At least the advance guard, sent to Long Camp race track by fashionable modistes, nearly caused a riot, and was ejected from the paddock by the police.

It is usual for the leading dressmakers to advertise the coming fashions by sending out their best "mannequins" or models, wearing the gown of ultra-fashionable style, and sure to become the cynosure of all eyes at fashionable gatherings like the Longchamp races.

The gowns which caused some unfortunate mannequins to be mobbed in the paddock were of the latest style, clinging, high waisted, and of skimpy classical cut, a la Direstoire. They were in fact, a revival of those indelicate gowns of the "Merveileuses" who in Directoire days were mobbed for wearing them.

Thinking she was unsufficiently clad, the policeman who escorted one of the models from the paddock, covered her with his cloak. The four mannequins afterwards received summonses to the correctional court for "disturbing public order."

So poor Abdul Hamid of Turkey did not get the $400,000 Hope diamond after all. When it came to producing the cash the sultan's commissioner had to admit that it had not yet arrived from Constantinople and the famous jewel went into the possession of Senor Habid, a wealthy Spanish collector of rare gems who has a small office in Rue Lafitte.

Having never seen the blue bauble which has already passed through so many hands, I called on Senor Habid, who expressed his regrets that he could not show it to me, although the fact that his eyes never left the door of a big safe in his office belied his words.

"The diamond is now in a vault at Credit Lyonnais," he said, "and I really do not know whether I shall sell it or not. I like to have it in my collection, but if the sultan should offer me a big enough price, I suppose I shall let him have it." "But only for spot cash," he added with a smile as he ushered me out of the room, nearly twisting his neck off trying to look at me and the safe at the same time.

SUMMER SESSION AT THE NORMAL

Course of Twelve Weeks Offered to Special Students.

The summer session of the Duluth Normal school will open Tuesday, June 16, for registration and the course will continue until Sept. 3. The course of twelve weeks will be divided into two terms of six weeks each.

The primary purpose of the summer session is to meet the needs of those who teach during the greater part of the year and of regular students of the school who may need the extra time to complete a course or remove entrance deficiencies. At the same time all regular students who may be admitted will be provided for. The summer term is an integral part of the regular school year.

Credit courses will be offered in all subjects required in examinations for state certificates of the first and second grade, and non-credit or review courses will be offered in all of the common branches.

Many out-of-town students, as well as many local teachers, avail themselves of the advantages of the summer session and from the number of inquiries thus far it is expected that the school will have a large attendance this year. The Duluth weather during the summer is an added attraction, as it is seldom too warm to make study an inconvenience.

Washburn hall will remain open during the summer for the accommodation of students. During the winter months the cost of board and room at the hall was $15 a month, and it is expected that it will be slightly less than that amount for the summer months.

President Bohannan will be in charge of the school, and of the regular members of the faculty who will assist during the terms will be Dr. L. W. Kline, Harry C. Strong, J. W. Hubbard, Herbert Blair, Miss Katherine D. Post, Miss Ida E. Van Stone, Miss Florence Pettingill and Mrs. E. R. Lyons.

LIQUOR TRAFFIC KILLING.

Milwaukee Minister Presents Startling Array of Figures.

Neenah, Wis., May 30.—Rev. U. G. Humphrey of Milwaukee, superintendent of the Wisconsin Anti-Saloon league, in addressing the state Sunday school convention here said: "We have worked to such an extent that over one-half of Wisconsin is now without saloons. At the next and following sessions of the legislature the league will fight for a county option law. The liquor dealers are not willing to submit the matter to a popular vote, but will spend much money to defeat the proposed law. But we are prepared. I prophesy that the future saloon interests are not 'rosy.' The greatest evil we have to combat in Wisconsin is the increase in drinking among girls and women. We hope to have the Sunday schools assist us in this fight. Due to the drink traffic, it is estimated, criminals in this country are killing twenty-five persons daily."

COLERAINE DID HONORS

Range Town Royally Entertained Eighth District Bankers.

About Thirty Banks Represented—Aitkin Man Chosen President.

Coleraine, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The convention of the bankers of the Eighth congressional district held here this week was voted a splendid success regardless of the drawback resulting from the disagreeable weather. The officials and representatives of about thirty banks arrived at noon Thursday for the annual convention. They were met at the station by local committees and escorted to the lodge of Col. John C. Greenway, where a lunch was served. A committee of mining officials escorted the visitors on a car to the great Canisteo and Walker pits and to the dump where the overburden is being deposited in an arm of Trout lake.

The convention assembled in a room of the high school especially arranged for the bankers, where the convention was held. W. I. Prince of the City National bank of Duluth, as president, called the convention to order. George E. O'Connor of the First National bank of Coleraine served as secretary. The president addressed the association and the secretary-treasurer read his report.

The first paper was on "The American Bank Clerks' Institute," by Mr. Snyder of the City National bank of Duluth. Charles R. Frost of Minneapolis and the assistant secretary of the Minnesota bankers' association spoke of the Minnesota Bankers' association and its future plans. L. A. Barnes, vice president of the Western State bank of Duluth told of the resources of Minnesota and showed the relation of the raw material to the finished product. He made a strong plea for the need of manufactories to increase the wealth of the state. The last formal paper was read by J. A. Latta of the Swedish American Bank of Minneapolis on "Currency Legislation." He took the position that there should not be an immediate and radical reform, but that any changes should be made only after the most deliberate consideration by the lawmakers. A round table discussion closed the very profitable session. Mr. DeLaitre of Aitkin made a hit with his remarks on advertising Minnesota.

Visits Coleraine Schools.

From the session room the bankers visited the commodious school building of Coleraine, inspecting the school exhibit and were conducted to the banquet tables in the high school auditorium to the strains of music by the local orchestra. The banquet was served under the direction of the domestic science department of the school and in charge of Miss Sweet, the instructor. The menu and the service elicited the highest compliments from the visitors. Few guests ever sat down to a repast in a prettier setting for a dinner by hosts to out-of-town guests.

At the close of the banquet, John C. Greenway, the president of the Coleraine First National bank addressed the bankers. He told in a most interesting manner the history of the Canesteo mining district of Itasca county. It was a revelation to the guests. He also described his recent trip to the Panama canal zone.

At the close of the banquet many of the citizens of Coleraine assembled to do honor to the visiting bankers, and the evening was spent in social conversation and in dancing. The Coleraine Symphony orchestra was highly complimented for the excellent music furnished throughout the evening. The guests were most complimentary in praise of their treatment in Coleraine and expressed a desire to return for another convention.

J. G. Gataranit of Aitkin was elected president.

THEFT OF ENGINE IS ODD CHARGE

Two Hibbing Men Accused of Taking Iron Horse.

Hibbing, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Harden and Herman Clausen, locomotive engineers, employed by Butler Bros., were arrested and brought before Judge Brady yesterday, charged with stealing an engine last Sunday. It is claimed the engine was run from the stripping tracks out to the main line, endangering hundreds of lives.

Attorneys Power, Power & Stratton, for the defendants, today asked for, and obtained a postponement of the examination until Tuesday, June 2 at 2 p. m. The interest of the state will be cared for by Assistant County Attorney Otto Poirier.

RANGE TAX LEVY IS ORDERED OUT

Otherwise Some School Districts Will Have too Much Money.

St. Paul, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state tax commission has ordered a reduction of $150,000 in the tax levy in seven or eight of the iron range school districts in St. Louis county, because of miscalculation on the part of the respective school boards.

If the reduction had not been made, some of the districts would have had so much money on their hands they would have been compelled to appoint a board of investments to look after the funds.

Two factors contributed to this condition. In some places the local officials appear to have forgotten entirely about the 1 mill tax which is levied throughout the state for school purposes, and in other places they failed to take into account the fact that the tax commission has raised the valuation of the iron ore properties over $100,000,000. With a valuation more than double what it was last year in some cases the school district officials based their report on the taxes necessary to be levied this year on the valuation of last year, which under the present valuation would provide funds far in excess of the needs of the district.

The experience in Hibbing is a sample of how the mixup arose. The officials there figured on the 1-mill tax, but they figured it on last year's basis, which would provide about $20,000. They wanted to raise $62,000 for school purposes and reported to the county auditor that the special school tax would have to provide $42,000. This year, however, the 1-mill tax, instead of raising $20,000, will provide $82,000, so that if a school tax of $42,000 were raised in addition to the 1-mill tax the district would have $124,000 instead of $62,000 this year.

The fact was discovered by Odin Halden, auditor of St. Louis county, who visited the range towns and went over the situation with the local officials with the result that they made applications for reductions in the levy. The auditor and county commissioners of St. Louis county approved the request for the reduction and they were then sent down to the tax commission, which, after an investigation, granted the request.

The officials were at once notified, so that they will be able to make the corrections in the tax lists, as the time for paying taxes expires today.

SMALLPOX CASE VERY EXPENSIVE

Lake County Officials Charged With Several Illegal Acts.

St. Paul, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—James E. Ford, deputy public examiner, who has been delving in the records of Lake county, has made some rather startling discoveries respecting the expenditure of public monies in that community. In the town of Crystal Bay he claims to have unearthed evidence to show that $1,300 was expended in an attempt to control a case of smallpox.

This is one of three reports Mr. Ford has just made to Public Examiner Schaefer in each of which he criticises the conduct of affairs by the officials under investigation.

In his report, the examiner states that Dr. W. Goldsworthy received $550 for medical services, the other amounts being expended in various ways in controlling the disease. Fees were paid to several men for watching the man who had it and for various duties in connection with his care. Then one of the caretakers was taken down with the disease, and this led to further expenditures in controlling this case, so that the total cost to the town finally aggregated about $1,300, according to the report.

The report also states that some of the bills paid by the town treasurer, Benjamin Finsted, were verified before William McLaughlan, who was elected justice of the peace, but did not qualify, and all official acts of Mr. McLaughlan, the examiner states, under his present oath and bond are illegal.

Mr. Ford also reports that a large amount of money has been expended for roads and bridges, but there are no roads which are passable and no bridges of any value in the town. On Aug. 6, 1904, he states, a contract was let to William Curly for $700 for the construction of a highway from Crystal bay to Kenney's landing, about two miles, which was to be "passable for all kinds of rigs and loads," and to be completed by Oct. 1, 1904. Payments aggregating $692.72 have been made on this contract, and the report states that there is "no evidence of any work having been done on this piece of road except clearing the right of way. No grubbing or grading was done. The road is even now impassable for almost any kind of a rig."

The report also states that the name of Benjamin Finstad, town treasurer, was forged to two town orders made out in favor of William McLaughlin and that the latter as town clerk has illegally collected from the town between Dec. 27, 1904, to March 1, 1905, $266.63.

The examiner says that an attempt should be made to recover at least a part of the money paid in attempting to control the smallpox and to prosecute the men who were town officials at that time for false auditing and presenting false claims against the town.

William McLaughlan also appears as clerk in the report covering school district No. 5 in Lake county, in which the examiners say that the officials have all drawn illegal fees, the amount paid out illegally for various purposes aggregating several hundred dollars.

The examiner also found that officers had drawn illegal fees in school district No. 1, in the same county, and had hired an attorney at $10 a month. The board has also erected a school building at a cost of $3,000 on land which it does not own, the old school building moved to the rear of the new one and has been occupied as a residence by Jacob Hangartner since about Dec. 12, 1904, without rent or profit to the district.

IS VICTIM OF FEVER.

Chisholm Man Passes Away When His Recovery Was Expected.

Chisholm, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Slopinger, an Austrian laborer, died from fever Thursday. He was sick for a month and showed signs of improving until Wednesday night, when his condition grew rapidly worse, and he died the following day. He was 35 years old and unmarried. His parents reside in the old country, and he was their only son. The funeral will take place Sunday afternoon from St. Joseph's Catholic church and interment will be made at Hibbing. He is a member of two Austrian societies, and the funeral will be given under the auspices of these societies.

ENLARGING SELLERS PIT.

Stripping on Property Northeast of Hibbing, Starts.

Hibbing, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Oliver Mining company has commenced stripping the Sellers min, northeast of town.

The Sellers has been worked as an underground proposition, but in November, 1906, the company began stripping north of Hibbing, close to the business district, and a large pit has been excavated. The pit will extend in a semicircle by reason of the new operations. Two shovels are down to the ore and one shovel is stripping in the new portion. Part of the pit is practically ready to ship.

Although some of the underground mines of the Steel corporation have been shipping yesterday, as stated in The Herald, was really the beginning of the season so far as the corporation is concerned. The Hull-Rust last season broke all records by sending more than 2,000,000 tons to the docks, and the Burt-Pool was in the million-ton class. With the exception of the Mahoning, mining in the Hull-Rust pit is less costly than in any other pit on the Mesaba range.

PLENTY OF DANCES.

Four Were Given in Vicinity of Eveleth Friday Night.

Eveleth, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Four dances were given last night in this vicinity. The Fayal Dancing club gave a dance at the Fayal hall to a select gathering. Blewett's orchestra of Duluth furnished the music. At the "Merry Widowers'" dance in the Vail hall Schoengrath's orchestra played the music for a fair sized crowd. A number of Eveleth people attended the firemen's dance that was given last night in Sparta, while some went over to a dancing party in Virginia.

A. A. Whitman, president of the First National bank, and his wife attended the bankers' convention at Coleraine this week.

S. Sax has returned from a short business trip to Nashwauk, where he went to look over his building operations there. He reports fair business in that town.

Morris Wildes left for a week's trip to Duluth to visit his family, yesterday afternoon.

VIRGINIA TO CELEBRATE.

Much Interest Shown in Observance of the Fourth.

Virginia, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—A very enthusiastic meeting of business men was held last evening at the city hall to arrange for a Fourth of July celebration, and if the spirit manifestated at the meeting is any indicaion, the celebration will be a hummer. Ransom Metcalfe was elected chairman, and L. M. Osborn, secretary. On motion, the chair was instructed to appoint a committee of five on general arrangements, with power to appoint subcommittees. The chair appointed the following: J. A. Kennedy, chairman; A. E. Bickford, James Lavilallette, L. M. Osborn and J. P. Chalmers. Many valuable suggestions were made with the view of making the celebration a success. It is the purpose to advertise extensively, with a view of drawing visitors from the towns along the line of the Rainy Lake railway. The committee went to work at once and drew up a subscription paper with the result that several merchants present made liberal donations.

SOME CAVE-INS RESULT.

Eveleth, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The cave-in near the Missabe depot has settled on account of the recent rains, and a force of men have been put to work filling the place up, and also will fill up under the Missabe warehouse. The platform of the warehouse is being fixed up. Another cave-in is expected near Douglas avenue, as the Spruce mins is working up that way. On this account also, the city council is delaying action on building the sewer along Monroe street and Douglas avenue, as the cave-in would interfere materially with any sewer work that would be done.

ITEMS FROM VIRGINIA.

Personal and Other Events Reported in the Range City.

Virginia, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. T. F. Rodwell, superintendent of the Vermillion lake Indian school, near Tower, was in the city Wednesday, on his way home from the Nett lake reservation, where he installed a new teacher in the Indian school there, D. H. Roubidoux.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman McDonald and sons went to Duluth yesterday, to remain over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. U. Spencer of Two Harbors are visiting this week with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cassady.

Mrs. J. T. Nacey and daughter left yesterday for Superior, called there by the illness of her mother, Mrs. Elgel.

Mrs. George Hastings gave a bridge party Thursday evening for Miss Keeley, who is soon to become a bride. Miss Headsten won the ladies' favor and Dr. Wood the gentlemen's.

Ex-Mayor M. L. Fay is up from his home in Duluth, attending to business matters and visiting with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Schulze. He was accompanied by his grandson.

Mrs. D. C. Stebbins' friends gave her a surprise Wednesday night, the occasion being a birthday anniversary. The party of fourteen presented her with a handsome luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Nathanson entertained a party of young people Tuesday evening for Miss Anna K. Lorenz and Dr. Wood. Bridge was played and the favors were won by Miss Mabel Reid and Dr. Paul Ashley.

Mrs. D. C. Cuppernull left yesterday for Racine, Wis. Mrs. Cuppernull has been visiting at the home of her son, D. E. Cuppernull, the past two and a half months. Mr. Cuppernull accompanied her as far as Duluth.

Mrs. James Cudlip entertained Thursday afternoon at bridge and flinch. Mrs. A. C. Osborn and Mrs. J. L. Kimball won the favors.

Harriette Shanedling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Shanedling, celebrated her eleventh birthday anniversary Thursday. Fifteen of her young friends were entertained.

Mrs. Arthur Riddle of Tampa, Fla., is a guest of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Cassady.

Rev. A. Carswell departs today for England, to be absent several weeks. He is a delegate to the Pan-American conference.

A. P. Jenson of Stevens Point, Wis., spent Wednesday in the city. Mr. Jenson is a contractor and builder and is visiting the range towns, with a view to locating in one of them.

The commencement exercises of the public schools will be held on Friday, June 12.

SOME HIBBING BRIEFS.

Young Cripple Gets Thirty Days for Being Drunk.

Hibbing, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although the night chosen by the high school senior class for their dancing party proved to be a bad one, a large crowd attended and a delightful time was had by all.

Alfred O'Berg, 22 years of age, who had both legs frozen a year ago, necessitating their amputation, has been sentenced by Judge Brady to thirty days for being drunk and disorderly.

Some great games are expected here today, weather permitting, with the colored Keystones of Minneapolis. The fans are perfectly satisfied with the way the Colts trimmed Virginia on Thursday.

EVELETH WILL CONSIDER CELEBRATING THE FOURTH.

Eveleth, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Business Men's association will hold a meeting next Monday night, and among the questions to be brought up will be the one regarding a Fourth of July celebration. It has been the usual custom to have a Fourth of July celebration, and this year will probably be no exception.

ORE SHIPPING STARTS; MANY MEN EMPLOYED.

Hibbing, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Hull-Rust and several other mines opened up here yesterday and started shipping ore. The Missabe road has put on 200 men to handle the shipments.

MATCHED FOR A FIGHT.

Eveleth, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jack McClinche and Hazeltine have been matched to fight a fifteen-round bout in one of the small towns around here. Besides that bout, the promoters are trying to arrange a match between Costello of Duluth and Kid Constantine of Eveleth, who is getting quite a name in these parts. The bouts will be put on at an entertainment to be pulled off in about a month.

FOUND NOT GUILTY.

GAVE PARTY FOR MISS M'KENZIE

Pleasant Proctor Event of Wednesday—Other News From Suburb.

Proctor, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Wednesday evening, Miss Mabel McCurdy entertained at a parcel shower, in honor of Miss Elsie McKenzie, at the home of Mrs. Harry Barncard. The evening was spent in appropriate amusements and a guessing contest, in which Miss Blancho Tipping carried away the prize. Covers were laid for eleven. The house was prettily decorated with pink and green. Those present were: Misses Catherine MacBeth, Ella Talboys, Claire Sullivan, Frances Dailey, Tessie Dolan, Nettie Trolander, Hazel Hopkins, Blanche Tipping and Mary Keating.

The benefit ball, which was to have been given at the village hall last night for Mrs. William L. Miller, was postponed for various reasons. It will be held Monday evening, June 15. A large number of tickets have already been sold and it is expected that a neat sum will be netted.

Fred Stillard and "Curly" Young went on a fishing trip last week. They were gone two days and made a catch of seventy-eight.

Mrs. Ira Belden returned home Wednesday from Hurley, Wis., where she spent three months with her parents.

J. E. Rambo has returned from the western part of Kansas, where he spent the winter.

John Ostman met with a painful accident Friday morning, when, after sharpening an ax, he fell and cut his wrist. Dr. Corson dressed the wound, after taking a few stitches.

A ten-pound son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Emberg Thursday evening, May 28.

Otto Sutter of Cleveland, who has been visiting his brother, Charles, for the past two weeks, returned home Thursday.

Seventeen road crews and seven hill crews have been marked up for Monday.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Simpson of Bay View, Sunday, May 24.

Mrs. John Brown will entertain the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church, Thursday afternoon, June 4.

Harry Olafson, who has been fixing an engine at Hibbing, returned to Proctor Thursday.

A. G. Peterson, who has been confined to his home with diphtheria for a short time, is able to be around again.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Proffit and their son, Harry, expect to leave Monday for a trip to their old home in Missouri. They intend to be gone about two months.

Herbert Sullivan, who works on the boats on the lakes, is spending a few days in Proctor.

James Fulliger of Winnipeg, formerly a conductor on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway is visiting friends here.

Oscar Halverson, a fireman is spending a few days with his parents in Bemidji.

D. D. Coons, a conductor, returned to Proctor, Monday from a month's visit with friends and relatives through the central part of Illinois.

George Jollymore, who has been working in Duluth for the past three months has returned to Proctor to take up his old position at telegrapher in the despatcher's office.

Miss Chiles, Mrs. Argood and Mrs. Luft and two children left Thursday for Brimstone on the Duluth & Iron Range railway, where they will live on their claims this summer.

Gordon Wood, a machinist apprentice, was laid up a few days this week with a badly swollen eye, which he contracted while at work in the shops.

M. M. Lewis has returned to Proctor from Coleraine, where he has been working for the past few days.

Miss Kathryn Buckley is spending a few days in Duluth with friends.

Jim Leslie, formerly a fireman on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway is visiting friends in Proctor. During his absence here Mr. Leslie has been working on the Northern Pacific.

Carl Shapiro of Duluth attended the leap year dance last Friday evening.

T. S. Burke, weighmaster, left Monday for the Twin Cities, where he will spend a few weeks.

Mrs. Charles Connors entertained the Five Hundred club at her home last Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Hillyer and Mrs. Hawkins won the first prizes, and Mrs. Peyton and Mrs. Bouschor the consolation prizes.

Mrs. J. N. Brand is entertaining her brother, Raymond Wareham of Lake Linden, Mich.

The F. O. E. entertained a number of friends at the hall last Tuesday evening. Music and cards furnished the diversion for the evening. Refreshments were served.

A small blaze in the roof of J. E. Code's residence last Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, brought out the fire department. It was extinguished with a chemical soon after being discovered. The loss will be covered by $100.

Pat Connelly was discovered last Friday by Officer Murray on the charge of having stolen a watch and chain from said officer about two years ago. The prisoner was bound over to the grand jury.

School closed yesterday afternoon for the summer vacation of three months. Of the teachers, Misses McKenzie, Trolander and Talboys will not return another year, but Misses Tipping, Darley, Dolan, Hopkins, Sullivan and McBeth will be found at their old places on the reopening of school.

Mrs. Frank Paulu entertained for the teachers last Thursday evening at her home on the West side. Games and music furnished the amusements, and a light luncheon was served. Those present were: Misses Talboys, Trolander, McKenzie, Tipping, Sullivan, McBeth, Dailey, Dolan, Hopkins, Prof. and Mrs. Holbrook, Mrs. McBeth and Mrs. Fred Carlson.

An alarm of fire was given at 3 o'clock this morning, and upon investigation was found to be in the upper yards, where two box cars were burning fiercely.

The leap year dance given by the teachers last Friday evening at the hall, proved to be the greatest social dance given at the hall this year. About thirty-five young couples attended and the young ladies made the night a merry one for the gentlemen. The hall was decorated to perfection. Butterflies and hearts were strung all through the hall and here and there Japanese lanterns dangled among them. The stage was barred in with narrow strips of ribbon. The program of dances was well arranged, and the selections picked with great care. The young folks danced from 8 to 12, to the strains of the music from Flaaten's orchestra.

WE IMPROVE PROPERTY

PROPERTY owners should consider paint value. Like many another thing, paint is not of so much value in itself, but when properly applied, it becomes a good investment.

MR. WANT-TO-SELL, do you realize that your property will be worth a full fourth more if it presents a good appearance? And that the cost is small in comparison with the gain? Here's a chance to clear an extra percentage on the sale—if you are interested in such a proposition, or in the improved appearance of your own home, consult us. We'll be glad to figure the cost for you and plan just how it can be done.

If you have studied this line of work, then you have learned to associate H. A. Hall & Co.'s name with First-Class Decorations, such as Wall Tinting, Paper Hanging, Wood Finishing, Floor Polishing, Frescoeing, etc. If you have never looked into the matter it's high time you inquire of your neighbor and ascertain as to our standing among the people.

A SURGICAL OPERATION

If there is any one thing that a woman dreads more than another it is a surgical operation.

We can state without fear of a contradiction that there are hundreds, yes, thousands, of operations performed upon women in our hospitals which are entirely unnecessary and many have been avoided by

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

For proof of this statement read the following letters.

Mrs. Barbara Base, of Kingman, Kansas, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"For eight years I suffered from the most severe form of female troubles and was told that an operation was my only hope of recovery. I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice, and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has saved my life and made me a well woman."

Mrs. Arthur R. House, of Church Road, Moorestown, N. J., writes:

"I feel it is my duty to let people know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered from female troubles, and last March my physician decided that an operation was necessary. My husband objected, and urged me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and to-day I am well and strong."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, and backache.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

TRIAL POSTPONED.

Case of Charles Korth Will be Heard Monday Afternoon.

Yesterday the case of Charles Korth, who is accused of having sold liquor in his West Duluth saloon to minors, was continued until Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the municipal court. The attempt at suicide by John Olley, a 19-year-old boy, in Korth's saloon, while under the influence of liquor, brought about the investigations that are being made.

Alumni Banquet.

The Irving school alumni's banquet last evening at Wade's hall was very well attended, about 200 being present. It was the thirteenth annual affair that has been given by the association. Clarence B. Miller was the principal speaker, and his address on "The Relation of Education to Citizenship" was much appreciated. The evening's program was a complete success.

ARRESTED IN ESMOND HOTEL

Two men and two women were arrested in the Esmond hotel at 4 o'clock this morning, on a statutory charge. Officers Sass, Mason and Detective Terry made the arrest. It is said information was furnished the police by the cab driver who drove the four to the hotel. They gave their names as Berry Holmes, William Schultz, Maud Tate and Florence Miller. The men were released on $10 bail each, shortly after being taken to the central station. The girls were held until this morning, when they were released on $15 bail each. None appeared in court this morning, and their bail was declared forfeited.

Headache and Sleeplessness

Indigestion.
Muscular weakness.
Restlessness and irritability.
Tendency to worry and anxiety.
Twitching of nerves and muscles.
Discouragement and desponency.

Such symptoms indicate an exhausted condition of the nerves and suggest the necessity of such restorative treatment as Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills, which positively cure nervous disorders in nature's way by actually forming rich, red blood, the substance of which new nerve force is made.

Nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia and partial paralysis are not only prevented, but also cured by use of this extraordinary nerve restorative.

But you must be sure to get the genuine, each box of which bears the portrait and signature of the famous Receipt Book author, A. W. Chase, M. D. 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. Chas. Neltnett, East Main Street, St. Clairsville, Ohio, states:

"Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills cured me of the worst kind of nervous sick headache—headache that made me sick in bed and left me weak and nervous. Since taking a treatment of this medicine I have not had a headache and it has built up my system generally. It is the grandest medicine I ever used."

Whiteside Exploration, Mining & Milling Co.

TEN REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD BUY WHITESIDE

1 This Company is Capitalized for $500,000. Par value of stock $1.00 per share. This is an extremely low capitalization and with the proven substantial holdings means that a dividend-paying basis can reasonably be established. This is an important factor in any mining corporation. Many companies with very little showing are capitalized at $1,000,000 to $5,000,000 and would have to make two to ten times the profit of the Whiteside to declare a like dividend. The significance of capitalization can be readily appreciated by those who are interested in certain copper properties, which are big producers, but have very small market value, as such fractional dividends as they pay are not as good as a savings bank and over capitalization has killed them as far as speculation or investment is concerned.

2 The Holdings of This Company certainly invite investment. They consist of two groups of eight claims each, or 320 acres highly mineralized. These properties are located in southwestern parts of New Mexico, in Socorra county, in the Wilcox mining district, in the very heart of the Mogollon mountains. The famous Last Chance, Little Fanny, Top and Deep Down mines are well known big producers of this district. The Maud S. indicates fairly the productivity of this section of New Mexico and as a specific instance of values, 65,000 tons of ore have been mined with a value of $850,000 in this mine alone, which is by no means a leader in this district. The property adjacent to the Zook (a Whiteside mine) is held by owners at $15,000,000. These various properties make a good background for our holdings, even had we no absolute evidence save surface indications. We have, however, done considerable development work and acquainted you with the gratifying results.

3 The Zook Group (known as the Golden Link) is no longer a prospect, but a proven mine. A tunnel driven in 74 feet reveals several thousand tons of free milling ore averaging over $10 per ton. This tunnel site is a continuous ore body for 1,000 feet and is crosscut by four ore chutes carrying values from $20 to $500 per ton in gold and silver. Six of the Zook claims are located on a true fissure vein, which fact has been proven by samples taken at intervals of 150 feet along the entire vein in cuts driven from 10 to 20 feet. This vein proves to be from two to five feet wide and runs for 9,000 feet. Samples assayed by Henry E. Wood & Co., Denver, Colorado, show:

	Gold.	Silver.	Value
No. 1	5.18	50.70	$131.48
No. 2	5.88	81.00	$162.15
No. 3	.81	3.90	$18.34
No. 4	2.19	16.20	$52.71
No. 5	3.52	14.20	$78.21

These samples were taken to strike an average on the low grade and not the high grade ore. An estimate is now being made of the cost of erecting a mill on this mine.

4 The Tellurium Group is a high grade telluride proposition. Ten tons shipped from this property netted $30,000 after paying all transportation to smelter in Denver. There is no less than seven ore chutes on this property, where surface values run from $2 to $27 per ton in gold. One shaft is down 123 feet at a considerable angle. This shaft was sunk by Maguire & Peterson, original owners of property. After being taken over by the Whiteside, a vertical shaft was sunk 160 feet and on May 17 drift was in 48 feet. Two shifts are at work night and day driving the drift to catch the ore chutes which are known to exist. A number of tons could be selected from the dump showing values all the way from $20 to $1,000 per ton in gold.

5 These Are Now Proven Mines hence, you are not investing for the results of exploration, but will be simply putting in your money to build a mill on the Zook and to pay the expenses of further necessary mining and development work before the properties can become self sustaining and dividend paying.

6 Millions of Feet of Timber on both properties for all mining and building purposes and water power enough to generate power sufficient to run a 100-stamp mill. Railroad facilities will be within three miles of property.

7 Stock is Now Selling for 50c per share and we are offering at this figure a special allotment of 20,000 shares, any part of which may be purchased on easy terms or for cash. Five per cent additional stock allowed for cash. Easy payments as follows: One-fifth down and one-fifth every thirty days until paid.

8 Any Stockholder or Any Number of stockholders, either separately or working together, can at any time within 60 days after purchase of stock, send to examine this property any well known mining engineer and if his report to them is contrary to our statements and they desire to withdraw from this company, we will within 30 days after notice and upon reasonable proof that the mining engineer's judgment is not biased, return to them their purchase money and take up their certificates.

9 Remember, 50c is the Present Price on this stock. Immediate action will mean a big thing. There will be no more 5c increases on this stock. The moment a telegram is received that ore chute is struck on Tellurium, treasury stock will either be advanced to par or entirely withdrawn from the market. Under any circumstances a 75c price may be declared at any time.

10 "We Court Investigation and Publicity." All the records of this company from the day of its organization are open to the stockholders of this company. Prospective investors will be aided in every way where they desire information. For full information, samples of ore, assay sheets, blue prints, etc., call or write

BODIES OF CHILDREN FOUND.

Brockton, Mass., May 30.—The bodies of Grace and Thomas Ball, the two small children of Mrs. Mary Ball, were found buried in a field here yesterday. The mother, who became demented, wandered away with the children early in December. She returned alone, but could not tell the whereabouts of the children. The woman has since been incarcerated in an asylum. It is believed the mother killed the children.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The fact that only one short week separates the high school students from three months of vacation does not seem to cast any special gloom over the school. The halls for the last two days have been filled with anxious seniors who have been taking their examinations, while the under classmen stood about, pitied them, and thought of their own tests, which will be given next week. All the spelling tests were passed off early in the week, so a load has been lifted from the shoulders of many.

Prof. Custance declares that he has the senior class well prepared for the final events in the musical line.

A few of the "elect" were given a glimpse of the 1908 Zenith last Friday and their words of praise were very comforting to the anxious Zenith board, the members of which have poured over the pages for so long a period that its good and bad points are alike dear to the members. The books will be distributed to the classes on Monday and to the old graduates later in the week. A large sale is expected and all are warned to secure their copies early, as last year's supply was entirely exhausted within three days of its first appearance.

A high school delegation of about half-a-hundred boys went on a tour of inspection to the new Y. M. C. A. building on Thursday afternoon and were more than delighted with the visit. The splendid equipment of the gymnasium and the tempting swimming tank proved almost too much for some of them and they were with much difficulty induced to postpone their athletic desires to a more fitting time.

The seniors held a veritable lottery when the drawing of tickets took place. Those who emerged with seats in the back rows looked decidedly downcast. The invitations did not arrive until Friday, and a wild scramble ensued when they were announced. A crowded hall is assured for the final exercises as the seniors alone will send out more than 800 invitations.

The sniors showed their interest in the Leo Schmeid recital on Friday evening by attending the recital in large numbers. The talented member of the senior class deserves recognitinn for his wonderful musical talent and his worthy efforts to succeed.

The trackmen have quite given up hopes of donning their togs again this season, and the baseball rooters are utterly disgusted to think that the faculty-senior game is off. No doubt the faculty is much relieved to think that they have escaped a possible defeat and all their sympathies go to the weather man.

On Wednesday, the senior books were all handed in, and accounts with the book department were squared. It was with real regret that many of the sudents parted from these companions of many eary, toilsome hours.

The junior-senior, the closing social event of the year, will be held on Thursday, June 4, and is awaited with breathless eagerness. Although the hall is small, a large crowd is expected, and a good time looked forward to.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Eugene C. Chadwick, aged 20 years, of Atlanta, Mich., was found not guilty of killing his father last October. The elder Chadwick was found shot dead near his home.

Mrs. Grover Cleveland, her children and her mother, Mrs. Perrine, left Princeton, N. J., Friday for West Ossipee, N. H. It is said that Mr. Cleveland will join his family there shortly. All reports from Lakewood regarding Mr. Cleveland's health are of an encouraging nature.

A rise of eight feet in the Blue river has flooded the country between Beatrice and Barneston, Neb. Seven hundred feet of Union Pacific track is washed out between Barneston and Oketo and the track is under water for miles between Oketo and Manhattan, Kan.

James A. Baker was found guilty in federal court at Philippi, W. Va., Friday night of tampering with the United States mail and of murdering Edward Y. Hutchinson, telegraph operator and station agent at Clarinden, W. Va., on the night of Dec. 21 last. He was immediately sentenced to the penitentiary for life.

The jury in the case of W. P. McComas, the mining man who shot and killed Mrs. Charlotte L. Noyes of Boston in her apartments in the West Lake hotel at Los Angeles, on the night of Feb. 28, was discharged last night, having failed to report a verdict. The district attorney's office announced that the case of McComas would be called next Monday to be reset for trial.

The official canvass of the vote of the first Florida primary was held Friday, it being announced that only four of the ten delegates to the Denver convention had been elected. The four delegates elected favor Bryan.

Mrs. S. Joyce, 180 Sullivan Street, Claremont, N. H., writes: "About a year ago I bought two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It cured me of a severe case of Kidney trouble of several years' standing. It certainly is a grand, good medicine, and I heartily recommend it." At all druggists.

THE GORMAN POST.

Complete Roster of the Members in Good Standing.

Willis A. Gorman served in two of his country's wars, was representative to congress and the second governor of what was then the territory of Minnesota.

When the Mexican war broke out, Gorman was a lieutenant in an Indiana regiment, and later he was appointed major in another regiment from Indiana.

Following the war with Mexico he was elected representative to congress from Indiana on the Republican ticket. When the Civil war was declared he was appointed a colonel in the First Minnesota. Later he was promoted to brigadier general. His regiment was mustered out in 1865. Minnesota was then but a territory and had had but one governor in its short life. Gen. Gorman was appointed to the office of governor, and was the second man to fill this office for Minnesota. Following the Civil war he entered into business partnership with Cushman K. Davis, who had been on his staff during the war.

THE CULVER POST.

Complete Roster of the Members in Good Standing.

Col. Joshua B. Culver, besides having the distinction of having served through the Civil war, was the first mayor of Duluth and was again elected to that office in 1883.

During the Civil war he was colonel in the Thirteenth Michigan. He served under Sherman on that great commander's march to Savannah, and it was he who wrote the first dispatches from Sherman to Grant after Sherman had arrived at Savannah.

Col. Culver died suddenly in a barber's chair in Buffalo.

The following is a complete list of the Duluth members of the Joshua B. Culver post:

LARGEST CLASS IN HISTORY OF DULUTH NORMAL SCHOOL WILL BE GRADUATED NEXT WEEK

THE NORMAL SCHOOL GRADUATING CLASS.

Preparations are under way at the Duluth State Normal school for the sixth annual commencement exercises, which will be presented at the school the week of June 7. The senior class this year numbers forty-eight, the largest class to be graduated from the school in its six years of existence.

The program for the week's exercises will open Saturday evening, June 6, with the alumnae banquet, which will be served at 7 o'clock at Washburn hall. This banquet is always a delightful social affair and the year's graduates are welcomed into the ranks of alumnae. Many of the members are in the city, and will be guests of the banquet, although the program for the evening, nor an estimate of the number of covers that will be required, have not yet been prepared.

The commencement sermon will be preached Sunday afternoon, June 7, by Rt. Rev. James Mulfordrick.

Monday afternoon the class play will be presented in the auditorium of the school. Senior classes of the Duluth high school and from the surrounding towns will be the guests of the graduates at that time and after the play the visitors will be entertained at an informal reception at Washburn hall. The plays to be presented are "The Falcon," by Tennyson, and three scenes from McCarthy's "If I Were King." The cast of characters for the first play is as follows:

Ser Federigo ..... Neil Lorranger
Foster Brother..... Melinda Lavallee
Countess ..... Ruby Harris
Nurse ..... Lucy Wiseman

The characters of "If I Were King" will be personated by the following graduates:

King ..... Nellie Anderson
Villon ..... Vivian Burrell
Lady Katherine..... Eunice Brotherton
Harold, duke of Burgundy. Nina Nichols
Tristan ..... Mamie Wakelin

Attendants—Eva Hathaway, Opal Wiltse, Florence Nelson, Emily Ray and Ina Martin.

The students are busily rehearsing the plays under the direction of Miss Ethel Mae Long of the English department. Monday and Tuesday evenings, June 8 and 9, the friends of the school are invited to see the plays.

The closing chapel exercises and class day will be observed Wednesday morning, June 10 at 9:30 o'clock and at 10:30 o'clock of the following morning the exercises of commencement day will be observed. The speaker for that occasion will be Prof. E. A. Ross of the department of economics of the Wisconsin university. His subject will be "A Citizen of Zion." The diplomas will be presented by Hon. John C. Wise of Mankato, Minn., of the state normal board.

The members of the class of 1908 are as follows: Senior graduate class—Nellie Anderson, Duluth; Clara Aune, Duluth; Eunice Brotherton, Duluth; Vivian Burrell, Duluth; Ruby M. Harris, Duluth; Bertha Hendy, Virginia; Neil Loranger, Duluth; Margaret McCabe, St. Peter; Blanche Mallory, Duluth; Ina Martin, Soudan; Florence Nelson, Duluth; Mary Wakelin, Duluth; Irene Wetzler, Duluth; Lucy Wiseman, Pine City; Margaret Yager, Duluth.

Senior kindergarten — Lillian Gowan, Duluth; Emily Ray, Fosston, Minn.

FOOLHARDY FEAT.

Michigan Man Dashed Through Bullets After Ammunition.

"Fools rush in where angels fear to tread,' was never better exemplified than in the battle of Bull Run," said one of the Duluth veterans, who was willing to tell a yarn, but wanted his name withheld. "I saw a member of one of the Michigan regiments do an act of heroism and, though the war was one continuous series of gallant deeds, I doubt if there was one that equalled it in senationalism. It was patriotic and spectacular, but viewed later, out of the heat of battle, its foolhardiness was appalling.

"The fellow's name, I afterwards learned, was Mike Shuckeroo, and he was a little wrong in his upper story. That accounts for his taking a thousand chances of getting shot without accomplishing his object, to one of getting through safely.

"The battle had come upon the Michigan regiment by surprise and the men weren't any too well supplied with ammunition. After the firing had been going on for a couple of hours, the supply ran low and it was soon evident that more shells would have to be secured, or the day was lost. In the maneuvering the enemy had worked us away from our stores, and to reach the ammunition it would be necessary to cross several hundred yards over a field on which the bullets were literally raining. Just as the situation was becoming desperate, a man stepped out of the ranks of the Michigan regiment and, bending low and running rapidly, he almost appeared to dodge the bullets.

"It was bad enough to see men get shot down in the ranks, but to watch a man run out to meet what we thought would be instant death, caused feelings that can better be imagined than told. Our lines stopped firing as soon as we saw the man's object, for our bullets were as likely to hit him as were those of the enemy.

"To all appearance the man was a hero, who was trying to save his regiment at the risk of his own life, whereas, as a matter of fact, it was the deed of a half-witted fool, made crazy by the heat of battle. How he escaped we never could tell, but he reached the stores and, with the same foolhardiness and redoubled chances of being hit, he recrossed the long open space and came safely within the ranks again with as much ammunition as he could carry.

"His act brought him fleeting fame, such as other brave deeds of the war brought to the gallant men who were responsible for them. The spectacle of men offering their lives in the hope of saving a comrade or advancing the cause was so common that all could not be given the recognition they deserved. I understand Shuckeroo was given a special mention in the reports of the battle and that was the end of it, except in the memory of those who saw the deed.

"I learned a few years ago that Shuckeroo died in Upper Michigan, where he was a character for years after the war. His comrades in the regiment knew that he was half-witted, but he rushed out of the ranks at the time before they could stop him. In after years his affliction became more pronounced, but he was always harmless and was tolerated in the community for his war record, despite his strange ways."

RAN AWAY FROM HOME.

H. H. Hawkins in Regiment That Mistook Cranes for Indians.

H. H. Hawkins ran away from home three times in his zeal to enlist in the Union army during the war of the rebellion, but each time he was yanked out just in the nick of time by his father, who told the enlisting officers that his son was only 17 years of age. It was the truth, so it was not until he was 18 that Mr. Hawkins enlisted in Troop L, Second Minnesota Cavalry.

Mr. Hawkins joined the regiment at Fort Snelling. All the members were disappointed that it was not sent South to fight the rebels, but they saw plenty of activity helping suppress a serious Indian outbreak which occurred at that time.

Mr. Hawkins tells of an experience his troop had en route to the scene of the outbreak, in the Dakotahs. All the soldiers were raw recruits. They camped for one night very peacefully, for the scouts had reported that there were no Indians near at hand and that they might enjoy their slumbers to the utmost.

Just as they were about to turn in, however, says Mr. Hawkins, the alarm was sounded that several tribes of Indians were swooping down upon them. This was exciting intelligence to an uninstructed delegation like Troop L at that time. The men hastily grabbed their guns and feverishly, but stealthily creeped forward to meet their red brothers, and plunk them full of holes, if possible. But their scare was for naught, as the several tribes of Indians proved to be regiments of sand hill cranes, who were out for an airing.

But later, bloody encounters hardly found Troop L more wrought up than when that crane false alarm was turned in.

"MY POOR WIFE."

Religion Makes No Difference in Patriotism, Says S. F. White.

S. F. White was one of the delegation of Grand Army men which visited the parochial schools yesterday, and he told the young people the fallacy of a supposition that a man's ideas of religion or his denomination make any difference in his patriotism. Mr. White told the youngstersof the first man killed in his company. Mr. White was captain of Company A, Twenty-eight Michigan Infantry, and he caught in his arms the first man to be shot in that organization.

"Just before he died," says Capt. White, "he said, 'my poor wife,' and made the sign of the cross. He was one of the bravest men in the company."

SAW ALABAMA SINK.

Thomas Brian Was a Powder Boy on the Kearsearge.

"Tom" Brian, the custodian of the city hall, had an experience which few of the veterans can boast of.

He was serving in the navy and was a powder boy on the Kearsearge when that vessel sank the Alabama.

"We had chased the Alabama into Cherbourg," said Mr. Brian. "We lay outside for three days waiting for her to come out. It was on Sunday morning about 10 o'clock when she finally came out of the harbor. Crowds of people lined the shores watching the fight, which lasted 1¾ hours. We kept broadside to her, and kept sailing around and around her, raking her fore and aft. This probably won us the fight, for a shot going the length of a ship is bound to do more damage than one crossing her decks. She finally sank, and we got fourteen prisoners. The others were taken off by the English yacht, Deerhound, a boat about the size of the Vidette here."

BLEW UP SULTANA.

E. B. Force Says Disaster Was Not Due to Careless Engineer.

"While I was attending the national encampment, held at Washington in October, 1902," said E. B. Force, "I was sitting in the lobby of the old National hotel with a number of old comrades, talking over war times, when the subject of the loss of the Sultana was brought up and all present, with one exception, agreed that the engineer was to blame for the blowing up of that boat.

"The Sultana was considered to be the largest and best boat on the river, between New Orleans and St. Louis. She was commanded by a veteran, Capt. J. Case Mason. On April 21, 1865, she took on board at Vicksburg 2,000 Union prisoners, who had just been discharged from rebel prisons. There were in all, with passengers and crew, about 2,300 persons on the ill-fated boat. A few miles below Memphis she took on wood at a wood yard, early in the morning of April 27. A few hours later, when she had left her fueling station, and while nearly every one on board was fast asleep, one of the boilers blew up and 1,700 souls perished. The vessel burned to the wate's edge.

"At the time little was said or published about the disaster, so great was the excitement over the assassination of President Lincoln, the surrender of Richmond and the capture of Gen. Lee. Yet more lives were lost by that explosion than in the entire Spanish-American war.

"As I was saying, one comrade took exception to the idea of the engineer being to blame through carlessness for the blowing up of the Sultana. He was a gentleman from West Virginia. According to this Southern gentleman, the woodyards at which the Sultnana had taken fuel were owned by a man who, though he had pledged himself to the Union, was believed to be a Confederate sympathizer. He had suffered frequently from the inroads of the Yankees, and an old and well-loved negro servant of his had been imprisoned and whipped for smuggling goods across the line. He had often taken offense to the free manner in which the river boats had helped themselves to his wood without paying him. So, to revenge himself for many wrongs, he thought the Unionists had inflicted upon him, he took a long ash stick from the piles, split and hollowed it out, lashing the two pieces together tightly with many turns of strong wire. In this hollowed piece of wood he packed down all the powder it would hold and plugged up the end, leaving just a little space where he placed a fuse. The loaded wood was put on a pile at the wood yard and was among those carried aboard the Sultana. A few hours later the fatal stick was placed beneath the boiler, and the explosion sent the 1,700 souls beyond. The owner of the woodyard lived for twenty-five years after that, but was never known to express any regret over his deed of revenge. The gentleman who told the story was one of the only two to whom the owner of the woodyard had ever told the real cause of the blowing up of the Sultana."

Mr. Force said that he was very much interested in this history of the Sultana, as sixty-eight of the comrades who had perished on her belonged to his regiment. "If I had been captured with most of my company, when the rebels were surrounding Athens, Ala., on Sept. 25, 1864, I would undoubtedly have perished with them on the Sultana."

THE OTHER SIDE OF IT.

Confederate Colonel Who Was on Lee's Staff, in Duluth.

"If I had heard sooner of the surrender of Gen. Lee, scores of the gallant men in my regiment would have been saved, and I would not today carry two crippled fingers," said Col. Cyrus L. Murch, a Confederate veteran, and a former member of Gen. Lee's staff.

"I was commanding the Fifth Georgia and was sent to Florida with the rank of brevet-general to protect the coast. We fought the battle of St. Mark's, after Gen. Lee had surrendered. We had not yet heard the news.

"I enlisted when I was 17 years old and was captain on Lee's staff up to the battle of Gettysburg.'

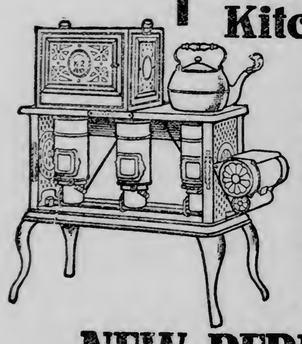
Maj. Murch is a Southerner of the old type, a genial, and warm-hearted gentleman with the Southern drawl and mannerisms. He has but recently come to Duluth, and with his "boy," a young Carolina "darkey," is a familiar figure on the streets. He carries four bullet holes and a crippled hand, with which to remember the war.

Bad Attack of Dysentery Cured.

'An honored citizen of this town was suffering from a severe attack of dysentery. He told a friend if he could obtain a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, he felt confident of being cured, he having used this remedy in the West. He was told that I kept it in stock and lost no time in obtaining it, and was promptly cured," says M. J. Leach, druggist, of Wolcott, Vt. For sale by all druggists.

Even a timid, or "scared', advertiser' is not in much harder plight than an indifferent one. 'No' store will thrive in the hands of either!

Keep the Kitchen Cool



Why swelter over a glowing range in a stuffy kitchen, when a new Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove will do the family cooking without raising the temperature enough to be noticeable?

By putting a "New Perfection" in and allowing the range fire to go out, you may make this summer's kitchen work not only bearable, but actually a pleasure. The produces an intense heat under the kettle or in the oven, but does not radiate heat in all directions as a coal range does—hence is used with comfort on the hottest summer day. Made in three sizes, and warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

NEW PERFECTION

The Rayo Lamp comes as near lamp perfection as it's possible to get. Gives a clear, bright light that reaches the farthest corner of a good sized living-room. Well made throughout of nickeled brass; perfectly safe and very ornamental. Warranted in every particular. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

BOYS BUSY WITH AIRSHIPS

Young Inventors Beat the Older Heads With Their Flying Machines.

"I got left last week and I come to pay up my dues," drawled a lad of 9 as he stepped into the headquarters of the Junior Aero club in West Twenty-second street, the other day, where Miss E. Laura Todd, the only woman aeronautist in the world, holds sway.

Miss Todd was the center of a group of keen-eyed boys ranging from 7 to 17, all deeply engrossed in figuring out some problem concerning the aerial craft they held in their hands. She glanced up with a twinkle in her eyes as the delinquent member walked to her desk and swarthed.

He dug down deep into his jeans with many contortions of body and face and fished up 25 cents. It was a lot of money, but it was worth it, judging by the rapt expression of his funny little face, for this sum entitled him to become a member of the club and sit at the foot of the instructor, who has taken it upon herself to teach the young how to fly.

It was the setting free of 75 toy balloons the other day that the youngster referred to. Miss Todd was telling her class in aeronautics about these balloons when a Sun reporter called.

Breathless interest followed the teacher's description of how and where all the small toy balloons sent up by the boys were found. Their eyes simply bulged with excitement as she told how one of them was caught by a tugboat Captain in the East River. After securing the balloon the skipper, Captain Starbuck, recorded that the balloon was caught in the East River "off Greenpoint at 4:08 p. m."

Curiously enough," said Miss Todd, "the balloons found nearest home were discovered at a much laterhour than those that landed further away. For instance, the one found near Prospect Park and that on the tug were caught about 4 o'clock, some 15 minutes after their ascension, while one picked up in the yard at 288 Eighth avenue, just one block away from the point of departure was corralled at 6 p. m.

The reasons for these discrepancies were explained and the students of aerial navigation listened with bated breath.

Some one asked Miss Todd of what aid pilot balloons were and she replied that they were used for the purpose of determining the direction of the wind, its velocity, etc., and that it was customary to send them up before the ascent of a large balloon loaded with human freight.

"It is, moreover, one of the first lessons in ballooning," continued Miss Todd, in explanation. "To be quite correct it is the second lesson which the novice must learn. For first of all comes the art of cutting and making the hot air balloons.

"The third step is the dirigible balloon filled with gas, and the last is the aeroplane."

The balloon and aeroplane school is conducted on Saturday afternoons between 2 and 5. But the hours are elastic.

"Do they go at 5?" Miss Todd was asked.

"Go at 5?" she exclaimed. I can't drive them out. If I can get the room clear at 7 I am doing well.

"I had no idea of the immense amount of interest that would develop from the club when it started. I don't know, though, that that statment is incorrect, for it has long been one of my pet hobbies, that to teach boys aeronautics they should be caught young, and I feel confident now my surmise is correct.

"We have applications for membership from all over the country, east as far as Maine, north from many Canadian towns, west as far as Seattle, etc. One small American boy living in Paris has written telling me he wants to join. This is not surprising, as over there the subject is much further advanced than here.

"Undoubtedly the boys of this country will do their share in solving the problem of aerial flying. Just now they know more about balloons than aeroplanes, but later on we will work that subject out."

One of the bright shining lights of the club is Percy Pierce, of the Bronx, who has invented an airship that is looked upon with favor even by members of the Aero club themselves. Then there is young Arden, who resides in the same district and thinks he has an airship that will really fly.

Harold Platt, of Brooklyn, has made a 100-foot balloon which he will enter at the exhibition of the International School of Aeronautics, which comes off about June 1. He has other attainments in the matter of wireless telegraphy, and upon the roof of his house has erected a forty-foot pole euipped with the wireless attachment. He has caught many messages from passing steamers.

Jacob Apatow, of Brooklyn, aged 17, who is a pupil at the Commercial High school, has constructed a lot of small balloons and kites. What he wants to do is to invent a real flying machine, and he says he has high hopes.

Edwin Little, aged 17, of Granville, Ohio, one of the club's out-of-town members, is making an apparatus which will measure the velocity of propellers.

Frank Cartright, of East Bloomfield, N. Y., who is 15, has already made many experiments with kites of different designs. He is now making a large eight-sided kite with which he means to find the lifting power at different angles and at different heights. It has a surface of 105 square feet and weighs 105 pounds.

Howard Benton MacDonald, of Yonkers is building an aeroplane, and Lewis Horne, of Granville, will enter a six-foot silk balloon at the approaching exhibition.

Miss Todd says the boys don't take her ideas, but work out their own.

"My boys come here with ideas of their own," said she, " and some very original models have been turned out which go to show that they do their own thinking. So great an interest does one boy take that, though employed downtown, he spends his lunch money to come up here at the noon hour and talk ballooning."

SOME QUEER WEDDINGS

Armless and Legless Girl Was Married in Her Husband's Arms.

The bridal couple who appeared at the altar in the Midlands the other day costumed like a cavalier and his lady of the days of the "Merry Monarch" are certainly more to be complimented on their taste than a Pennsylvania nuptial pair whose lives were linked recently while the bride was garbed in a dressing gown and her future lord and master was glorious in pajamas, says Tit-Bits.

But the range of bridal attire is as large as in some cases it is grotesque. At a wedding at Rugby some years ago green was the only wear. The bridegroom, a widower, who was making his third experiement in matrimony, appeared in coat, vest and trousers all of a vivid emerald, his lady was radiant in a gown of the same color, and the solitary bridesmaid was also arrayed in green.

Even less conventional was the attire of a Dorsetshire man who was proud of his prowess as a hunter of big game, and signalized the fact by choosing for his wedding garment a complete suit of bear skins au naturel, whiel the lady of his heart wore a jacket made from the skin of a grizzly who had fallen to her husband's gun, together with a necklace of bears' teeth.

Other bridegrooms of recent years have gone to the altar in khaki, reminiscent of fighting on the veldt, and in the full panoply of firearm, lifeboatmen and motorists; while an American Croesus wore at his nuptials not long ago the tattered suit in which he had tramped the streets of New York, hungry and penniless, in the days when fortune had not learned to smile on him.

One cannot read the newspapers without noticing the rapid growth of the craze for unconventional weddings. Within the last few months couples have been united on the top of the famous Washington monument in the United States; on the summit of Pike's Peak, Colo.; and in a monastery on a remote and lofty Servian mountain. But more remarkable than any of these peculiar weddings was that of an American couple, Miss Gale and Mr. Applegate, who, in consideration of a present of $25 and a gas cooking stove as a contribution to their housekeeping, consented to be made one on the top of the chimney of the Peoria Gas company, 200 feet above the breathless and admiring thousands of spectators.

At a recent wedding in an American rink Raymond Barret and Miss Susan Pierce stood at the altar on roller skates, the officiating clergyman struggling to maintain his balance on wheels while he linked their lives. Five hundred skaters kept time while the band played a wedding march, and at the subsequent feast the waiters skimmed to and fro on skates to minister to the guests.

The race track at Wyoming was a short time ago, the scene of a still more original wedding, in which bridegroom and bride prefaced the ceremony by racing together on horseback round the track to the invigorating strains of "I Want Ye, Ma Honey; Yes, I Do." The climax of this exciting contest came when Mr. Dodge the hero of the occasion, transferred the bride from her own saddle to his and proudly galloped with her to the altar.

In curious and pathetic contract to these weddings was one which took place recently in a suburb of Berne. The bridegroom, Stephano Lerezinsky, a Pole, was carried to the church in an ambulance and wedded to his sweetheart, Irene Doygerd. After the ceremony, Lerozinsky, who was actually dying during the ceremony, was carried back to his bed, and a few hours later his young and devoted wife was a widow. A little earlier, at Genoa, a beautiful girl who had been born without arms or legs was carried to the altar by her lover, a German named Joseph Starker, and plighted her troth nestling in his arms.

Of curiously assorted matches recent records furnish some very remarkable examples. Thus, at a marriage at Tarrytown, N. Y., the bridegroom, a man who torned the scale at 35 stone 10 pounds, took to his heart a dainty little lady exactly a fifth of his weight. In Kentucky James Hayes, commonly known as "Long Jem," a giant of seven and a half feet, had for bride Miss Atkins, a lady of four feet three inches, who could just comfortably hang on to his watch chain. Andrew Holt, a gilded youth gentleman of 96 summers, transferred his veteran affections to Miss Green, a young lady who was cradled after Andrew had buried four wives and celebrated his eightieth birthday; and a little earlier, Capt. Clark, a gay sea-dog of 80, placed the nuptial ring on the finger of a bride of 16.

A year or two ago there issued from the portals of the Hope Baptist church, Williamsburg, a bride and bridegroom (one Otto Nill, a hairdresser) who had not even seen each other half an hour earlier. But even this feat of precipitate matrimony was eclipsed by Miss Fanny Wood and James B. Bennett, who first met at Summit, N. J., at 10 o'clock one Monday morning. At 10:16 James proposed and was accepted, and by 10:29 Miss Wood was in a position to sign her name, "Fanny Bennett."

That weddings do not impair appetite is proved by many recent accounts of nuptial feasts. At a wedding breakfast at Sevignac in Brittany, the guests consumed 8 cows, 17 calves, 20 sheep and 7 pigs, with the assistance of twenty-one barrels of cider and eighteen barrels of wine; while when John Elekhorst, a wealthy farmer of West Prussia, gave a banquet in honor of his daughter's nuptials, this was the bill of fare provided: 1,500 pounds of beef, 1,200 pounds of pork, 900 pounds of veal, 600 pounds of mutton, 250 chickens, 150 geese, 100 ducks, as many turkeys and 350 loaves of bread. The liquid refreshments was on an equally generous scale.

AT THE LYCEUM

"The Ham Tree" Returns for One Day Only---Opening of Summer Engagement of the Reorganized Mack-Leone Stock Company.

Below will be found a brief introductory account of the members of the Mack-Leone Stock company for the summer. Mr. Mack has secured for Duluth the finest class of artists now in stock in the United States. There is no city that boasts of a stock company that is any better than the organization Mr. Mack has gathered together. A list of the players, and what they will do, and a mere sketch of what they have done, will be found below. The company opens Monday, June 1, in a three-act comedy by H. V. Esmond, called "Billy's Little Love Affair." This is the play William Faversham first used as a starring vehicle.

Willard Mack.

Mr. Mack has returned from New York, after concluding all arrangements for the summer season. He has several new surprises for his patrons this summer, which are said to be very unique.

Mr. Mack's friends will be glad to learn that they will have a chance to see him play "Strongheart" and Jack Frobisher, in "The Walls of Jericho," the coming season.

Miss Helen Holmes.

Miss Holmes, who will be seen in all the leading feminine roles, has been seen in Duluth frequently with the best standard attractions the Lyceum has had, including "The Virginian," "The Man on the Box," and with the grand old actor (now dead) J. H. Stoddard in "The Bonnie Brier Bush." Miss Holmes has a charming personality, a beautiful voice, and that greatest of attributes in any artist, intellect.

Will M. Chapman.

The "Bad Man" of the Mack-Leones will continue to be the fellow who destroys the peace of mind of every one in the cast each week. It is strange that nearly all the men who play "heavies," in any line of the show business, are always the direct antithesis off the stage. So it is with Mr. Chapman. Every one who knows him in Duluth has always voted him a rare, good fellow.

Miss Beatrice Meade.

Miss Meade will still continue to play the second business roles this summer with the stock company. Her work has always been appreciated in Duluth. Last season, for seven weeks, as will be remembered, she played all the leading roles with the Mack-Leones. She has had a good vacation, she says, and is ready to start in again with renewed energy. Miss Meade's friends are glad she remains in Duluth. Her popularity is now assured.

Miss Louise Farnum.

Another of the standbys will remain for the summer and continue playing the eccentric character parts, for which she has become so well known in Duluth. Miss Farnum is one of the most popular players the Mack-Leones ever had. Marshall Farnum is with the company this year, which may explain "Miss" Farnum's happy smile.

Jay Quigley.

Possibly one of the best character comedians in stock today is Jay Quigley, a man of twenty years' experience in all the varying phases of the theatrical business. Mr. Quigley has left a splendid record behind him in each branch. He has the past season been a stock star at the People's theater, Chicago, where his immense popularity made his name a household word in the city of Chicago. Mr. Quigley will be seen in some fine roles during the season.

Frank Tobin.

Mr. Tobin was juvenile man with the Mack-Leone players last summer. The past season Mr. Tobin has been playing juveniles with the People's Stock of Chicago. He will be best remembered in Duluth by his performance of "The Imp" in "When We Were Twenty-One." During the summer Mr. Tobin may have a chance to repeat his success in Duluth in the same role, at any rate the matinee girl's heart is glad he's here.

Agnes Bilal.

Amy Leslie of the Chicago Daily News says "Agnes Bilal is the best stock ingenue between Chicago and Frisco." That includes some of the best stock companies in the country. She was in Duluth last summer with the Mack-Leones and will be remembered particularly for her performance of Polly Love in "The Christian." She has been ingenue with the Marlowe Stock, Chicago, the past season.

Marshall Farnum.

Marshall Farnum, who is a brother of Dustin and William, would be just as worthy an actor if his name were "John Doe." Mr. Farnum is the youngest member of the Farnum family, but he does not require the reputation of his two brothers to assist him in making a name for himself. When "Society and the Bulldog" was produced in New York last February Marshall Farnum's name was foremost in the notices given by the most caustic critics in the United States. After he has had a chance to give Duluth theater goers a sample of his work, they will readily see he has his share of the family ability.

Percival Lennon.

Another new member of the Mack-Leone was last season playing the leading role in "The Shepard King," the greatest biblical play ever written. He has a handsome presence, a big deep rich voice, which has been the secret of his success with big powerful manly roles and in such he will be seen the coming summer. Mr. Lennon is a golf crank, 18 carats fine.

Maude Cleveland.

Miss Cleveland is another new member of the Mack-Leones, who has been playing heavies and characters the past season with the People's Stock, Chicago. Miss Cleveland is one of the best known stock women in the theatrical profession, having played the above line of business with the Vaughn Glaser Stock in Cleveland, Manhattan Beach Stock, Denver and the Proctor Fifth Avenue theater, New York. Miss Cleveland is the proud possessor of the smallest toy terrier in the United States.

Frank Patton.

Mr. Patton did not play every week of last season with the Mack-Leones, but to the man in front who knew, he saw Mr. Patton's handiwork everywhere. Mr. Patton is the stage manager for the Mack-Leones. He is the man who designs all the sets of scenery, used each week, the man who is doing more work while the curtain is down between acts, than anyone in front realizes. His is one of the hardest positions to fill that can be offered to a man in stock and it is needless to say how well he fills it.

Francis Joyner.

No matter how many new people join the Mack-Leones Mr. Joyner will always hold a warm corner in the hearts of Duluth theater-goers. He opened playing Lord Storm in "The Christian" nearly a year ago at the Lyceum and at once took his place among the Mack-Leones' favorites. Mr. Joyner will have the same class of roles that has gained him so much distinction in the past.

Edward Fourniер.

Mr. Fouriner is the scenic artist of the Mack-Leones. To those of you who saw his magnificent work last season nothing more can be said. He enjoys the distinction of being the best man in his class. No one doubts it, who sees his work.

SCENE FROM "THE HAM TREE," At the Lyceum Next Week.

"THE HAM TREE."

McIntyre & Heath's Success Will be Here for One Night.

One of the most important musical attractions of the season booked for presentation at the Lyceum Wednesday matinee and night is Klaw & Erlanger's big production of George V. Hobart's new musical novelty, "The Ham Tree," of which McIntyre and Heath, the widely known black face comedians, are the stars.

This company opened at the New York theater in New York in August, 1906, and made a run of several months to the largest receipts in the history of this great playhouse. Then followed long engagements in Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Chicago, where the New York success was emphatically repeated. Their current season also began at the New York theater, where they repeated their success of two years ago.

"The Ham Tree" is an elaboration of the famous sketch, "The Georgia Minstrels," which McIntyre and Heath have been presenting on the vaudeville stage for many years. The manuscript of this skit was placed in the hands of Mr. Hobart, who expanded it into a three-act musical play, telling an interesting story, interpolated with a large number of very attractive musical features and specialties. Their vehicle has proved a rare opportunity for the exposition of genuine, old-style negro humor, in which McIntyre and Heath have been conspicuous for the past thirty years. It finds room upon the stage of today because of its great worth in contrast to the prevalent style of hodge-podge entertainment without purpose and without aim.

Klaw & Erlanger have surrounded these comedians with an excellent company, which includes a long list of well known players, and what is claimed to be the prettiest and most attractive chorus seen on the stage. The chorus comprises young women, not one of whom is over twenty-two years of age, and young men who excel as singers and dancers. The leading principals of the company are Jeanne Towler, Carolyn Gordon, Belle Gold and Alfred Fisher.

AT THE BIJOU

J. C. Nugent & Co. in Sketch and Will Rogers and Buck McKnee, Lariat Throwers, Are the Big Features for Next Week.

A well balanced and varied bill of vaudeville novelties will be seen at the Bijou next week commencing with Monday's matinee.

Heading the list will be J. C. Nugent, the vaudeville comedian, in the sketch entitled "The Rounder." Mr. Nugent is cleverly supported by Grace Ferling who is a talented actress with strong emotional capabilities. The following notice from a Denver paper speaks of the talent of Mr. Nugent:

"Young, gravely humorous and quietly brilliant, J. C. Nugent has a sterling reputation both as an author and comedian. He has had fourteen years active experience, heading his own organizations, and with the Gus Thomas plays, Robert Downing and various stock companies. He has written many plays and sketches, besides his own, including ones accepted by the late Arthur Sidman, Thomas Fawn, Henry E. Dixey's last sketch, J. J. Corbett's last sketch and Downing's recent success, 'An Indiana Romance.' He possesses, moreover, a world of magnetism and a wonderful voice."

A pleasing number will be given by Louise Auber, who has a captivating manner and a vivacious style which gives excellent opportunity to display her ability as a singing comediene. An act that has been a big hit over the entire circuit is the Malrene-Thomas-Alfred trio, which comprises one man and two women. They will give one of the best singing dancing and character change acts ever seen in Duluth, introducing the newest material in the musical comedy line.

A comedy act will be given by Al Leonhardt, the "Juggling Eccentriful," who juggles all kinds of objects and introduces a line of comedy that is a scream from start to finish.

A feature that will be added to the week's bill will be Will Rogers and Buck McKee with their famous mustang "Teddy," who introduce an act of roping and lariet throwing that stands foremost in its line. They have appeared in every large city of the country and both men are known the country over. Mr. Rogers is a grand son of the noted Indian chief Girronimo, and Buck McKee is a former sheriff of Oklahoma, which official position he held for several years.

Isadore Silver will sing one of the newest illustrated songs, and the moving pictures will show "The Devil's Three Sins," and a new film entitled "The Idler." Matinees are given daily at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved by either phone. A school children's matinee will be given Saturday afternoon, and performances Sunday afternoon and night.

WILL ROGERS, At the Bijou Next Week.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Lively Musical Comedy, "The Gay Musician," Makes a Hit—Eugene Walter's New One-Act Play Was Not a Go.

New York, May 30.—"The Gay Musician," the new comic opera at Wallack's theater, which followed "A Knight for a Day," after the latter's long run, is something better than the musical comedies of horse-play and bizarrerie with which we are overfamiliar. The book is by Messrs. Stede and Campbell, new names in the prolific directory of librettists, with the score from the trained pen of Julian Edwards. Both the makers of the book and the composers have striven for a better standard. The plot is engagingly farcical and the music dainty, refined and pleasing, without distinct originality and yet never lacking in the musicianly qualities to be expected from the composers of "The Magic Kiss" and "Dolly Varden." It was played before one of the most fashionable first-night audiences of the season. Without rivaling the success of some of the Viennese importations, it afforded everybody a most pleasing entertainment and is likely to prove a popular attraction.

The story cleverly handles the embarrassment of Eugene Dubois, an Americanized Frenchman, who has composed a comic opera for the Novelty theater of New York, and stakes everything on his ambitious effort to have it produced. His embarrassment begins when it is announced that Lyons, the manager of the novelty; Maude Granville, the prima donna, and Hilda Branson, the soubrette of the theater, with a number of their friends, are coming to visit him at his pretty summer home at Bensonhurst, in order to hear the score of his opera.

Dubois has made violent love to Prima Donna Maude Granville in town in order to interest her in securing a production for his work, knowing her influence with Lyons, who is one of her worshipers. But Dubois is already married to the charming Marie. How charming Marie is, may be inferred from the circumstance that the part is played by Sophie Brandt, who recently scored a hit in "The Waltz Dream" at the Broadway theater, as the leader of the ladies' orchestra in that melodious operetta. There is nothing for it but to confess to Marie that he has represented himself to be a single man, and that he must keep up the delusion or despair of having his opera produced. The volatile Frenchman proposes to Marie's fat German mother, who was once a famous circus rider, shall pass for his landlady and Marie herself for the housemaid. You can imagine their indignation, but as desperate cases require desperate remedies, and the opera must be produced at any price, they consent, and Eugene for the time being becomes their boarder. What happened when Lyons and the leading members of his company arrive is essentially a matter of painful detail, however enjoyable the effect. The prima donna is fire and flame for the lively composer, and immediately arouses Marie's jealousy and her mother's indignation, while Eugene is put to his wits' ends to devise ways for keeping his wife and not losing his chance of producing his opera.

The incidents in this act are genuinely amusing. The composer has rehearsed the village choral society in some of the ensembles of his opera, and Maude has learned to sing "My Dashing Soldier Boy." Eugene himself sings a seductive madrigal, "Lovelight," which runs all through the opera like a silver thread. Marie plays the accompaniment on the piano on the rose-covered porch of the house. The nimble-footed Hilda has a coquettish solo dance, and the climax is capped when Marie's mother, to oblige Capt. Fish, an old lover of hers, who has just returned from twenty-two years of exile on a coral island, induces the old lady to don her pink tarleton riding skirts and fleshings and live again for a brief moment through her triumphs in the circus ring.

But an irrelevant episode is introduced when this elderly person falls into the bayou, and being rescued by the doughty Capt. Fish, precipitates a row with her son-in-law, and Eugene, by accident, lands a box on Marie's blooming cheek. Her fiery indignation at this insult leads to the discovery of the trick which the impulsive Frenchman has been playing upon Maude. The first curtain descends upon a grand opera finale, with Eugene in the position of the man who has a brickhouse tumble about his ears.

This brings us to the second act, the hall of the palatial home of Maude Granville, an indefinite period after the events of the first act. Maude has been persuaded by the resourceful Eugene that he boxed his wife's ears designedly that she might get a divorce and make him free to marry the prima donna. His opera has been successfully produced, Marie has got a divorce from him and Eugene is now to become the husband of Maude Granville. In fact, the wedding day is at hand.

At this juncture a letter comes from Maude's father, a retired wine merchant, whose spontaneous nature is indicated by his name, A. Corker, congratulating her on her prospective marriage to the man whom she has only referred to in her communications as her "darling," and announcing that he is joining her with a lady whom he has met abroad, who is to become his wife at the same altar that Maude becomes the wife of her anonymous "darling."

There is huge delight in the prima donna's household until pa appears upon the scene with his bridal entourage and the prospective Mrs. A. Corker turns out to be Marie, fresh from her musical triumphs on the stage in Paris and Vienna. Then the general delight turns into consternation.

But the sight of Marie awakens in Eugene's fickle breast a longing, only smothered, for the wife of his bosom. Under the spell of her magnetic radiation he forgets a golden opportunity to triumph over her rival she, womanlike, throws A. Corker overboard, and, instead of becoming her husband's mother-in-law, consents to become his wife for the second time.

This is the happy consummation of the story, brought about not without intervening scenes and incidents of lively opposition and hair-pulling by the two women. But in the end Maude is persuaded to accept her manager, Capt. Fish gets his Matilda, the dawager ex-circus rider; Hilda, the sprightly soubrette of novelty, accepts her English admirer, and the only one who draws a cipher in this matrimonial lottery is A. Corker.

The opera had the advantage of an excellent cast, which, besides Sophie Brandt, included Amelia Stone as Maude; Walter Percival as Eugene; Joseph C. Miron as Captain Fish; Martha George, late of the German theater, as the mother-in-law, and Olga von Hatzfeld as Hilda, the soubrette.

Julian Edwards, the composer, directed the opera the first night, and his charming music won aperfect ovation for him after the first act, when he was compelled to leave his desk and appear repeatedly on the stage, bringing out his literary collaborators to share in the triumph.

The only other novelty was the first production on any stage of a new offering by Eugene Walter, the author of "Paid in Full" and "The Wolf." This was a one-act playlet, entitled "In the Circle," offered as a special feature of the varied program for the benefit of the Friars' clubhouse at the New York theater. The piece showed dramatic power on the part of the author, who has an efficient way of making his points, but lacking intrinsic interest and can hardly be called a success.

The title is a geographis conception, referring to the Arctic region, and the scene is the interior of a logh ouse tenanted by two men—an elderly Irishman, played by Frank Sheridan, the Capt. Williams of "Paid in Full," and a young Creole from New Orleans, played by William Courtenay, the Jules Baublen of "The Wolf." Both men have committed a murder in the states and are fugitives from justice. The younger man is of good family; the other was a roustabout on the levees of Detroit and killed a companion in a drunken row. Both tell their tales, and then comes the sequel.

The young man is snow blind and the Irishman, with difficulty, reads him the New Orleans papers of a year back. So we get the story of the arrest of a man in the Southern city for the murder committed by a younger man, and so we learn that the man innocently charged with another's crime has been tried, convicted and executed a year before. Remorse seizes the guilty youth, way up there in the Arctic circle, and, taking the Irishman's revolver from its holster, he shoots himself and dies.

The feature in the Friars' program that overshadowed every other in local interest was the first joint appearance since their separation of Weber and Fields in their old sketch of the billiard game, which helped to make them popular in their early days. The two comedians received a perfect ovation from the typical New York audience which packed the big playhouse and which betrayed an obvious wish that they would resume their old relationship. Those who claim to know say that the obstacles which divide them are too deeply rooted for mutual condonement, though at its worst it seems to be only a misunderstanding.

So long as they are able to make money independent of each other there is likely to be no reunion. And during the present season, Fields in "The Girl Behind the Counter" and Weber in the burlesque on "The Merry Widow" have shifted splendidly for themselves. Weber closed his show on Saturday night and moved his company to Chicago, but Fields is still at home to all comers at the Herald Square theater, and is playing an occasional souvenir matinee, which always commemorates some protracted period of time in the history of a run. It will be time to talk of the re-establishment of the entente cordiale between them when they strike a snaggy season.

W. H. Crane confirms the report that he will not be seen much longer on the stage, and is looking forward to his retirement from active service after forty-six years. His "Father and the Boys," by George Ade, is still a money-making attraction at the Empire, the first genuine hit the veteran comedian has had since "David Harum," and it will be allowed some time longer to exercise its box-office magnetism it the home of John Drew and Maude Adams. But Mr. Crane is looking forward longingly to his closing night in order to take the steamer and go to Europe for rest. He will be the opening attraction at the same playhouse in the fall, but it is definitely announced thtt the part he is now playing will be the last role he will ever create, and, after playing a short season in "Father and the Boys" in the leading cities, he will probably go into retirement, to reappear only on special occasions and for the revival of some of his old successes.

For years past he has suffered from —stomach troubles, caused by nervous conditions, which are aggravated by worry and dianxiety incident to first-night appearances in New York. He shows the strain on his system in the increasing thinness of his face as well as his body, more noticeable off than on the stage.

The day after the Stuyvesant closed its doors Frank Keenan took the train for West Baden, Ind., to rest up after his season's work. From the Indiana resort he will go to Cincinnati for a short visit to friends.

His co-star, Charlotte Walker will take a month's rest before beginning her engagement as stock star during the summer at the Belasco theater in Washington, June 22.

Walter Clark Bellows has engaged May Buckley as his leading lady for the summer at Elitch's Garden, Denver, and has surrounded her with a strong company, which includes John W. Cope, Emma Dunn and William Elliott. He will probably be the first to produce "The Rose of the Rancho" as a stock company attraction, which means that the play has been retired from the road, and that Frances Starr will be seen in a new play next season, which will probably keep her in New York throughout the year.

Next year, it is said, will witness the establishment of a chain of theaters in some of the prominent cities, among which New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington are mentioned, devoted exclusively to colored people. Gus Hill is said to be the promoter of the scheme. The houses will be devoted to musical shows by colored actors and singers, and the plan is the outgrowth of a condition which has been apparent to numerous managers for years past, illustrating the necessity of providing suitable places of amusement for the rapidly growing colored population in many cities. Chicago is the first city in the land to cater to colored people in the amusement line, and the enterprise has proved profitable from an investment point of view.

The Shuberts are manifesting their faith in "The Wolf" by keeping it on the boards of the Lyric theater and sending the Knickerbocker Grand Opera company to the Majestic, instead of carrying out their original intention of having it succeed the Walter play at the down-town house.

Both Frohman and the Shuberts have given a denial to the story that Julia Marlowe and John Drew are to act together next season, and if Miss Marlowe acts at all, according to the Shubert offices, she will be under her present management.

Anna Held closed her season in Brooklyn last Saturday night, and will rest for two weeks before sailing to Paris for the summer. This is the second season of "The Parisian Model," and in it the Held has broken all known records for shows of that sort. The business has been phenomenal everywhere, and Miss Held has stored up a fortune. Next season she is to have a new piece, the name of which is not known. There is one certainty—Charles Bigelow will be with her unless his hair grows.

It leaked out last week that Mrs. Kirke La Shelle, widow of the former actor and producer is returning from Paris shortly for the purpose of becoming the bride of Joseph Howland Hunt, a young society man of New York city. Mrs. La Shelle, since her husband's death, has shared in the profits of the several successful plays left to his estate and has divided her time between New York and Paris.

There is no disputing the statement that in Wagenhals & Kemper's production of "Paid in Full," a four-act play of contemporaneous life in America by Eugene Walter, they have the dramatic sensation of the current season. At the Astor theater, New York, "Paid in Full" is in its fifth month of unparalleled success, and "success" was the consensus of critical opinion. A specially organized cast was recently sent to the Grand opera house, Chicago, and there "success" was again the keynote of all the reviews. The play is virile, vital, forceful and it will undoubtedly be a popular attraction in all the cities of this country for many seasons to come.

Two legal battles that have ended in Berlin and Paris touch upon subjects pertaining to the theater that can well be followed in this country. The one of more interest here is the ruling on the suit to protect "The Merry Widow" in the French courts. Under a convention treaty made in 1866, Austrian works are only protected in France if registered at the French home office within three months of their publication. This was not done in the case of "The Merry Widow," and for that reason the French courts have held that there is no copyright privilege to go with the work in that country and it is therefore open to general use.

The delay is explained in the matter of copyright through the fact that the story is taken from an old French book by Meilhac and that likely upon this account the librettists in Vienna feared to seek a copyright of the new version which has been such an overwhelming success. The life has about gone out of the piece in France in the past three seasons and therefore the ruling is not as far reaching as if it were made in this country, where "The Merry Widow" has been seen in only two cities to date.

The Berlin case is one of more immediate effect in a way. It is the outcome of litigation started a year ago. It appears that Mme. Labia, the dramatic soprano, was advertised to appear in "Carmen," but at the last moment a substitute was offered for her. An admirer of the soprano in the audience discovered the change about the time the opera was over. He went to the box office and demanded the return of his money. The management refused and the patron brought suit to recover the amount of his ticket. The lower and upper courts have sustained him and as a result all the other people in the audience who were aware of the outcome have threatened similar actions to recover from the management.

According to present plans Marguerite Clark, the clever little Cincinnati girl, long the principal support of De Wolf Hopper, will be made a star next season in a comedy by Edward E. Kidder, called "The Moon Child." The story is said to be one particularly suited to the comedienne's style, and great prospects are claimed for her as a stellar attraction. The Shuberts will direct the tour, and it is likely that Anna Laughlin of their musical comedy forces will be switched over to take the part in the Hopper company now held by Miss Clark.

Connie Ediss, the English comedienne, who came over in the fall to play the principal part with Lew Fields in "The Girl Behind the Counter," has been so taken with America that last week she bought a summer home in the Berkshire Hills, and by way of further good intention took out her first papers with a view of becoming a citizeness of the land. Miss Ediss will remain with the Fields show next season, by which time she is liable to be elevated to stardom.

Olga Nethersole has settled up the details of her second American tour within two seasons, and sailed this week for Paris, and thence to her summer home in the southern mountains of France. During her past tours of this country, Miss Nethersole has been to the Pacific coast and back twice, and it is estimated that within eighteen months she traveled over 55,000 miles in America and Canada. Her success in cities where her former repertoire was still a novelty was phenomenal, but in other localities the interest manifested was proof that Miss Nethersole, like so many sister players is sorely in need of new material. It is said she will not return until she has completed a new play, the authorship of which is shrouded in mystery. In fact, the mystery is so deep that some people have maintained that Miss Nethersole is writing the play herself.

It was reliably proclaimed last week that Eddie Foy was held up one morning while on his way home from the theater. Foy lives in New Rochelle and passes through White Plains on his way from New York to his ancestral estates. He makes the trip in his automobile when it's in working order, and an aged one of borrowed mien when the Foy car is out of commission. On the fatal morning he had a borrowed skate for a touring vehicle and was chugging along a weary avenue of approach to White Plains when two ungentlemanly persons stepped from the bushes and, demanding the chauffeur to pause, they meanwhile insisted that the eminent comedian-tragedian "come across wid de cush."

Foy, somewhat abashed by this onslaught of language, was dilatory, when the bold highwaymen yanked him out of his machine and proceeded to explore the Foy exchequer. They discovered $2.90, and as that was all Foy possessed it was all he lost in money. To get even the yeggmen kicked the stuffings out of the machine, cut the tires and mutilated the carburetter. This left Foy stalled four miles from White Plains, broke and very peevish as to disposition. He finally reached home in time to tell his family why he was late and hustle back to town the same afternoon to play a matinee.

"The Top O' the World," the Shubert musical comedy seen here early last season, is booked for a summer run in Chicago starting in about July 4 at the Studebaker theater. As a result of that deal it is said that J. M. Allison, the former Cincinnati newspaperman who piloted that production through the preparatory stages of its development, will have entire charge of the show. Allison broke into theatricals by interesting Messrs. Cox, Rhinock and Anderson in the Shubert affairs at the time they were in need of money to carry on their fight against the syndicate. He occupied a responsible position with the Shuberts then and looked after the interests of the Cincinnati investors in that deal. Later when peace was effected and the Shuberts went out of the independent game Allison made the production of "The Top O' the World," and subsequently when he had some differences with J. J. Shubert he transferred his interests in the Shubert company for a controlling one in the musical extravaganza and has looked after it ever since. It is hinted that in the future Allison will be affiliated with the Dillingham offices.

It is said that when David Warfield returns to America from his summer vacation spent in Europe he will depart at once for the Pacific coast, where he will play an extended engagement before working his way east. The present plan is to open Warfield at San Francisco for five weeks, and then play two weeks in Los Angeles. His engagements on the coast will be played in the Alcazar theater in San Francisco and the Belasco theater in Los Angeles. These houses are controlled by Fred Belasco, a younger brother of David Belasco. After this some doubt exists as to just where Warfield will play on the way east, for all the syndicate houses are closed to the David Belasco attractions, and those on the inside are speculating as to what theaters can be utilized for this tour. Wherever he plays it is a foregone conclusion that Warfield will do a marvelous business, as he has not been West since he made his first hit in "The Auctioneer," and, as he is a native of California, he is sure to be given a wonderful reception all through the Pacific coast territory.

Fritzi Scheff sailed for Europe last week and will take a long rest at Marienbad, where it is thought the waters will do her a lot of good. Before sailing the prima donna denied the reports that she is engaged to be married again, having but recently secured a divorce from her first husband, Baron Von Bardeleben. Fritzi also stated that, though separated, she and her former husband bear each other no ill will, and she captivatingly assured the reporters that they wished each other the best of luck.

Joe Weber and his merry forces in the burlesque of "The Merry Widow" are now settled in Chicago for the summer run. There are three of the important members of the original cast missing. Charley Ross, whose injury will keep him out of the bill for some time, and his wife, Mabel Fenton, who is ill at the same sanitarium in New York where Ross is recuperating from the injury to his kneecap sustained in a fall two weeks ago. Lulu Glaser is the other absentee. Her trouble is a fracture of disposition, coupled with a desire for rest.

An amusing twist in the matrimonial troubles of William B. Watson, the burlesque manager and comedian, developed last week in Philadelphia. It seems that Watson, who has been having all sorts of legal trouble with his wife, Jeanette Klaw & Erlanger in their big enterprises, and had been prominent in theatrical affairs for years. Mr. Jefferson is about 60 years old.

ACROSS FOOTLIGHTS
SINGING IS TABOOED

Theatergoers No Longer Amused by Having Singer Warble to Someone in the Audience.

Theatergoers will be pleased to learn that the active condemnation of the "across the footlights" habit of some singers in musical comedies or other productions in which music is a feature has resulted in making that custom unpopular. Vigorous complaint against a singer picking out some one in the audience and singing to him have been made for some time past, but more strenously of late than ever before. In speaking of the present on the part of a singer is regarded, the Chicago Tribune says:

"The stunt of making one person in the audience unduly prominent during the singing of a song is losing favor. The person who is picked out, generally because of the location of his seat, pays his way the same as anyone else, and it does not seem fair to make him unwillingly contribute to the success of the act without giving him at least part of the performer's salary.

"Of course, the man in the audience who has the unpleasant experience of being 'joshed' for the benefit of the actor gets no sympathy from the crowd, for they laugh at his predicament, and the more embarrassed he is the more they like it.

"Frank Daniels one night was sitting in a box next to the stage when an actress sang one of the songs that invite some one person, who is carefully pointed out to the audience, to come up and kiss her. Daniels, being an accomodating man immediately climbed over the footlights, much to the surprise of the singer. But the crowd, recognizing him, gave him more applause than they did the girl, and, of course, his press agent hustled for a typewriter.

"An inebriated and exceedingly fat man who climbed over the footlights one night after a similar invitation from a girl on the stage was not equally fortunate, for the stage hands came on the run, and the ambitious man wound up in jail under a charge of disorderly conduct.

"It is claimed that the "hook" the dreaded nightmare of the amateurs, originated from an incident that occurred one night in New York when a girl was singing directly to a man in the front box. As she started to leave the stage at the end of the song he reached out with a crooked cane and attempted to hook the girl in the same way the stage hands do at the amateur nights. This fisherman met the same fate as the fat man.

"Lotta Faust, when she was singing 'Sammy,' generally had some ushers in the right-hand box on the second floor and sang to them, thus causing no hard feeling on the part of the man to whom the song was addressed, and because the ushers were in plain clothes the audience appreciatd thir show of great embarrassment as much as if they were not connected with the house.

"One night after Lotta Faust had left the company the girl who took her part was singing the 'Sammy' song in a small city in the East. In the box were several men, one of whom knew the girl, and in the front row was a well-known man of that city, whose first name was Thomas. The box party sent a note around to the girl, giving the name of the prominent citizen and the location of his seat, and for an encore she addressed her song to "Tommy" in the front row, much to his disgust and the delight of the rest of the tudience.

"About 500 members of a business men's association attended a vaudeville performance one night, during which a monologue 'artist' sang songs addressed to various people in the audience. He declard that he would make up verses suited to different people in the crowd. Of course, he had a number of set verses that would suit any occasion; for instance, he could be reasonably sure that somewhere near the front of the house there would be a fat man, and he had a verse about the fat man sitting down in front, and so on with his other 'extemporaneous' rhymes.

"For his chief d'oeuvre he had a confederate dressed up in exceedingly loud clothes and with his hair parted in the middle, who walked down the aisles just before the last verse of the song. The monologue immediately 'made up' a verse about this man, which was supposed to bring down the house and to show the quick wit of the actor.

"This verse started off with a line somewhat like this: 'See the cheap skate dude coming down the ailse.' And it did bring down the house, but not in the way that the 'artist' had expected, for the members of the business men's association, not knowing that the 'cheap skate dude' was hired to take the part, and thinking it was an unwarranted insult to a man who had no way to resent it, began to hiss.

The actor, losing his head and coming to the front of the stage, wittily remarked that only two things hissed, a snake and a goose, and that the audience must belong to one of the two classes. This remark, of course, finished his act, for there arose such a tumult on the part of the 'snakes' and 'geese' that the actor had to quit with his act.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

Philadelphia Press: In six European countries capital punishment is not meted out to murderers, no matter how brutal the crime may be or how much premeditated. These are Russia, Italy Switzerland, Portugal, Holland and Norway. However, exception is made se far as the lives of the rulers and the heirs to the thrones are concerned.

The Canton of Zug, in Switzerland, imposes the lowest minimum penalty in the world, three years' imprisonment for willful homicide, the maximum punishment being imprisonment for life.

Of those countries which impose the death penalty but rrely carry it out Sweden is most notable. Capital punishment is inflicted by decapitation, but the penalty imposed for premeditated murder is almost invariably commuted to penal servitude for life.

Capital punishment is inflicted in France for premeditated murder, but the crime is excusable where a husband has moral grounds for murdering his wife.

Germany distinguishes between two kinds of murder—one, premeditated and intentional, is punishable by death; the second, intentional homicide without deliberation, is punishable by penal servitude for from five to fifteen years.

Dueling in Germany is a misdemeanor of a special kind. Who kills his opponent in a duel is not cnarged with murder or mansiaughter, but with dueling, the punishment for which is detention in a fortress for fifteen years.

Spain has a death penalty, but rarely imposes it, the customary sentence for premeditated homicide being penal servitude in chains for life. A parricide is punished by being imprisoned in chains "in perpetuity until death."

SOME JAPANESE ENGLISH.

Tit Bits: Taough the Japanese have borrowed many things from us they do not seem to have mastered our language as yet, as the following letter shows. It was received by an Englishman who resided in the native quarter of Tokio. He had annoyed his neighbors by keeping geese, which disturbed the calm of the place, and they accordingly resolved to send a protest to him. This letter was the result of their labors:

"Tokio, Jan. 3, 1906.

"Mr. John Bexington—Dear Sir: We have already twice written of your hateful geese cry with very unacceptable, unbearable, uncommon, uncouth, unquiet, and very loud voice. Your hateful geese cry in ugly stormy manner. Therefore, whenever your hateful geese cry, our childs are afraid and trembled with wonder. In that consequence the healthy of our childs is very injured.

"At the same time, we are all awakened from very early morning and must heard of the hateful, unquiet, unlikeful, ugly, loud voice of your uninteresting geese.

"Whenever your geese cry unquietly we all can think no thought. It is frequent that the thought made is partly trampled down by your hateful and unquiet voice of your geese.

"Since you bought the geese we all have no ease to think thought except in the night.

"We and our childs are extraordinarily injured, both materia1 and abstract. Kill your geese or carry away them to the distant place, and do to make us not be injured by their hateful and unquiet voice. If you do not satisfy our want, we all shall injure you in return, too. Yours faithfully,

"ALL NEIGHBORS."

A man must indeed be hard-hearted to ignore such a fervent appeal; yet, sad to state, the geese are still there, though now and again one comes to an untimely and suspicious end.

Whooping Cough.

"In February our daughter had the whooping cough. Mr. Lane of Hartland, recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and said it gave his customers the best of satisfaction. We found it as he said, and can recommend it to anyone having children troubled with whooping cough," says Mrs. A. Goss of Durand, Mich. For sale by all drugists.

FITWELLS AT VIRGINIA

Duluth Semi-Pros Will Play on Range, Weather Permitting.

Eveleth and Chisholm Teams Will Play Two Games.

The Fitwell baseball team left this morning for Virginia, where games have been arranged for today and tomorrow with Manager Carey's crowd of professionals. Prospects for pulling off at least today's contests were pretty poor, as it was raining some, when the boys took the train. They will be on hand, however, to go against the pros if the weather lets up sufficiently for the game to go on.

Innumerable corner lot games, scheduled for today, will go under on account of rain and wet grounds. The Spaldings and Oak Halls were to have played at Fifty-second avenue west and Ellinor street, but will be unable to do so and the small boys will miss his usual holiday game on Green's farm, Mendenhall's field, Ninth avenue west and Third street and the numerous other popular corner lots about the city.

Eveleth, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Manager Mat Doyle of the Eveleth baseball team has arranged some pretty fast games for the next week and "Butch" Kennelley's men will get a good work-out. The Chisholm team, with the great Judge Freeman in the box, is the attraction today and tomorrow. The Eveleth squad has practiced whenever the weather allowed and will be in good shape for the games. Knudsen and Johnson is the battery for today's game and Dahlquist and Johnson for tomorrow.

Wednesday and Thursday of next week the Minneapolis Keystones, the fast colored team of the Flour City, will play here. The Keystones are touring the state, meeting the best independent teams and they are a big attraction.

INJURY NOT SERIOUS.

Great Colt Colin Will be in Running for Belmont Stakes.

New York, May 30.—The great three-year-old races Colin, who was reported to have broken down while exercising Thursday, may race in the Belmont stakes today. Announcement was made last night by Decoursey Forbes, manager of the stable of James R. Keene, that the injury to Colin, which was first thought to be a bowing of the tendons of the fore legs, is nothing more than an injury resulting from stepping on a stone.

ELKS WILL SEE GOOD RACE MEET

Bemidji Jockey Club Has Speedy Entries for Annual Meeting.

Bemidji, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The members of the Bemidji Jockey club have finally decided that they will surely hold the proposed race meet in this city on June 20-21, in conjunction with the Fourth annual meeting of the State Association of Elks, which meets here June 18, 19 and 20.

The Jockey club was planning for an elaborate program of races and already the promotors are assured of some of the speediest goers in the state.

The program for the first day, June 20, includes the 2:22-class trot or pace, and the 3-minute class trot or pace.

On June 21 there will be 2:28-class trot or pace and a free-for-all trot or pace. It is probably that some running races will be also placed on the program both days.

The last day of the races will undoubtedly see the state half-mile track record shattered as the distance flag will be waved in the free-for-all trot or pace, and "Prince Hal," whose record is 2:06¾, will be sent for a record-breaking mile heat. As the horse is in splendid condition the residents of this vicinity will undoubtedly see one of the fastest miles ever pulled off in the Northwest. Bemidji undoubtedly has the best half-mile track in Minnesota.

TO QUALIFY NEXT WEEK

Championship Events for Men and Women at Northland Club.

Innovations Will be Introduced on Golf Course This Year.

On account of the inclemency of the weather today, the events scheduled for the golf grounds of the Northland Country club will probably be postponed. It was intended to have the qualifying round of the spring championship and first flight this afternoon, so that actual play for the two trophies might be begun next week.

The events will probably be held in a few days. Thirty-two will qualify in the event, the sixteen with the lowest scores to play in the spring championship event, and the next sixteen to go into the first flight for the special cup. It is intended to play at least a round a week in each event, so that the completions may be finished up as soon as possible. The full course of eighteen holes will be played, which is twice around the Northland course.

The qualifying round in the women's spring championship will probably be played next Wednesday. Eight will qualify for the championship and eight for the first flight, and they will play nine holes. The drawings in both the men's and women's events will be made as soon as the result of the qualifying round is known and play will be expedited as much as possible.

The officers of the Northland club are laying plans for a number of special events during the summer. About the middle of June the women's putting contests, which were a Saturday feature at the club last year, will be begun again and they are expected to be doubly popular this year. Innovations introduced on other golf courses of the country are being studied by the officers and there will be several new features at the Northland club during the season.

"It is already evident that golfing will enjoy immense popularity in Duluth this year," said E. P. Alexander, secretary of the Northland club. "We have many new members and many of the old members, who have not played for years, will be out. The entries for the spring championship event will be heavier than in any year of our history, and by the time the play in the president's cup and fall championship events begin, the interest will have spread to many more.

Last year we made special efforts to interest the women of the club, and we succeeded very well. This year there will be more of the fair sex on the course than ever, and we will cater to them with special events to arouse and hold their interest. The interest in the game is lasting, and the club will have the most successful season since its organization."

MINNESOTA IS BEATEN

Gopher Athletes Outclassed by Nebraska in Dual Track Meet.

Two State Records Are Broken and One Equaled.

Lincoln, Neb., May 30.—Nebraska yesterday won the track and field meet from Minnesota by 48 points to 28. Two state records were broken and one equaled. McDonald, Nebraska, clipped two-fifths of a second from the best previous time in the 120-yard hurdles, covering the distance in 15 4-5 seconds, and he lowered the 220-yard hurdles by 3-5 of a second. In the 220-yard run, Wildman, Nebraska, equaled the record of 22 2-5. Nebraska got twelve firsts and eight seconds in the fourteen events.

SUMMARY.

100-yard dash — Wildman, Nebraska, first; Hughes, Nebraska, second. Time, 10 1-5 seconds.

220-yard dash — Wildman, Nebraska, first; Hughes, Nebraska, second. Time, 22 2-5 seconds.

The relay race was not run.

FAST TIME IN TRIALS

One World's Record is Equaled in Preliminaries at Philadelphia.

Many New Marks Expected in Big Intercollegiate Meet.

Philadelphia, May 30.—One world's record was equaled and two intercollegiate records were broken in the preliminary trials of the annual intercollegiate championships which were held yesterday afternoon on Franklin field. With the pick of the college athletes of the East participating, yesterday's events were of a high order and today's finals promise record performances. Undoubtedly the best performance of the day was the equaling of the world's record of 15 1-5 seconds in the 120-yard hurdle race by A. B. Shaw of Dartmouth.

Besides Shaw's record, a feature of the day was the remarkable work of the pole vaulters. No less than four men, Dray, Nelson and Gilbert, all of Yale, and Cook of Cornell, broke the intercollegiate record of 11 feet, 11¾ inches held by Dray.

In the trial heats of the 100 yards dash the first and second men qualified for the semi-finals today.

100 yard dash—First heat won by L. A. Montague, Yale; second, Blummer, Harvard; third, Hammond, New York university. Time, 10:15.

Second heat won by Sherman, Dartmouth; second, Lockwood, Harvard; third, Connors, Princeton. Time, 10 seconds.

Third heat, won by Whitham, Pennsylvania; second, Gamble, Princeton; third, Geary, Fordham. Time, 10 1-5 seconds.

Fourth heat won by Cartmel, Pennsylvania; second, Carey, Yale; third, Hawley, Dartmouth. Time, 10 1-5 seconds.

The half miles was run in three heats, the first three men in each heat qualifying for the final today.

First heat, half mile, won by French, Cornell; Jones, Pennsylvania, second; Kirk, Yale, third. Time, 2:00 3-5.

Second heat, won by Beck, Pennsylvania; Franz, Princeton, second; Coe, Michigan, third. Time, 2:00 1-5.

Third heat, won by White, Amherst; Haynes, Columbia, second; Boyle, Pennsylvania, third. Time, 2:00 4-5.

The 120-yard hurdle was run in three heats, the first and second men in each heat and the third man in the two fastest heats qualifying for the semi-finals today.

First heat, won by Howe, Yale; Hullbert, Michigan, second; Mason, Harvard, third. Time, 15 4-5 seconds.

Second heat, won by Robbins, Yale; Rand, Harvard, second; Requard, Cornell, second; King, Yale, third. Time 15 1-5.

SHAKE-UP IN WHITE SOX

Several Releases Will be Handed Out Within a Week.

Scheduled Double-Header Will be Played If Rain Lets Up.

Business Manager Kuehnow of the Duluth White Sox was tearful this morning, yet hopeful. A big double header is scheduled for this afternoon, with games at 2:30 and 4 o'clock, but the east wind and gentle rain gave anything but promise of the games being pulled off.

If the rain lets up this afternoon, an effort will be made to play. The grounds aren't in bad shape, as the rain was not heavy yesterday or last night and the wind dried the field somewhat, so it all depends on the rain continuing.

A general shakeup is probable in the Sox within a few days. New men are now on the road and when they arrive, there will be a few blue tickets handed out. The releases will not be wholesale, but there will be a sufficient number of them to change the complexion of the team materially, and, it is hoped, improve it.

The management realizes that better hitting is necessary and is working to the improvement of that end of the work. Starr, the Indian from the Odanah reservation, is expected to help, and one or two other men are on the way, who will also make good, it is expected. The fielding of the team has been good and it is hoped that the hitting can be improved without impairing the fielding ability of the team as a whole, and next week, it is believed, the team will be playing with new life and better success.

AMES IS BEATEN.

Grinnell Springs Surprise by Winning Iowa Track Meet.

Des Moines, Ia., May 30.—Iowa college of Grinnell university won the intercollegiate field meet yesterday afternoon, defeating the strong Ames team by a margin of sixteen points. But Grinnell was compelled to share the honors of the day with an Ames man, Beard, who established a new state record in the half mile run finishing the distance with a splendid sprint in 1:56 4-5.

Huff, Grinnell's sprinter, equalled the state record in the 220 yard dash, going the distance in 21 4-5 seconds. Chapman of Morningdale college at Sioux City established a new state record in the two mile run with a mark of 10:05. Lambert of Ames threw the hammer a record distance, 139 feet 8 inches. The meet furnished a surprise in the defeat of the Ames team.

NEW RECORD MADE.

Restigouche Steps Seven and a Half Furlong in 1:31⅕.

Belmont Park, May 30.—James R. Keane's Restigouche, the even money favorite, easily won the New Rochelle handicap by one and one-half lengths yesterday, and in doing so made a new world's record for the distance, 7½ furlongs, stepping it in 1:31 1-5. The time is 4-5 of a second faster than the best previous time, held jointly by Dainty and Welbourne.

BUYS PALACE IN PARIS.

Mrs. Collis P. Huntington Will Renovate Empress Eugenie's Dwelling.

Paris, May 30.—Does that all-conquering individual, the American hostess, mean to buy up all the historic houses in Paris, as well as in London? The palatial dwelling which Mrs. Collis P. Huntington has just acquired, once belonged to the Empress Eugenie. Later, it came into the hands of Baron Hirsch and the entertainments which he gave there were the talk of all Europe. Nothing to equal them in extravagance and lavishness had taken place since the days of ancient Rome.

The interior of the house is wonderfully fine in decorations, but sadly in need in of renovation. The widow of the late American railroad millionaire intends to spend a vast sum in restoring it to its one-time splendor and perhaps add a little more to it. She has engaged a large staff of famous decorative artists and her agents are running all over France searching for historic tapestries, pictures and furniture.

Mrs. Huntington's final choice of a house in Paris is a great disappointment to many people in English society. She has a great many friends there and for a long time she hesitated between the two cities as her European home.

REVIVES MEMORIES OF GEORGE IV.'S EGERIA.

London, May 30.—The approaching sale of the late Lady Conyngham's collection of old plate, Sevres and other china, and old French and English furniture, is particularly interesting, because many of the best "lots" came originally from Windsor Castle, having been given by George IV. to the Lady Conyngham, who was his Egeria during the last ten years of his life. She received presents of immense value from her infatuated soverign, and Charles Greville relates that during the king's last illness loaded wagons were sent away from Windsor Castle every night. The remainder of the late Lady Conyngham's objets d'art came to her from her father, the fourth earl of Harrington, who owned a large and splendid collection, both at Elvaston Castle, Derbyshire, and at his house in London.

ITALIAN WOMEN MAKE SUCCESS OF CONGRESS.

Rome, May 30.—The Women's congress, which has just closed here, achieved a success as complete as it was unexpected. Being the first of its kind it was, in a sense, an experiment, and in a country where women are so little encouraged to take part in public life, people could hardly have hoped that such a brilliant capacity for reasoned argument would be displayed. In more than one instance, a burning question of the day found in the congress a more logical and dispassionate discussion than it has even found in the chamber of deputies.

The members of the congress are reproached in some newspapers for not having directly attacked the question of divorce. One can only say that in that matter they showed no more and no less prudence than have the legislative chambers. In the question of religious instruction in schools they even displayed greater courage than parliament.

The most interesting and useful section was that which dealt with the legal position of women in Italy, and in one particular question it may be hoped that their discussion may lead eventually to some practical result in the way of legislation. A married women's property act, or some similar law, is grievously needed in Italy, where the power of the husband over the wife is scarcely limited, and over her property or her earnings is absolute.

CAMERA AS A TOMBSTONE.

Animals Carry It Away, But Natives Always Return It.

Cape Town, May 30.—An amusing example of native superstition is related in a letter to the Cape Times by a traveler who has lately returned from a long trek in Portuguese West Africa. Some two years ago the Cape newspaper arranged to supply a hand camera to Leslie Barclay, a member of an expedition that was about to proceed overland from the Transvaal to the west coast, on the understanding that he should forward any photographs he secured for publication. Unfortunately, Barclay succumbed to blackwater fever in January of last year, and was buried in the wilds by his companions. By that time the camera had become warped and twisted out of all form, as a result of repeated wettings, and it was left in lieu of a tombstone on the dead man's grave. The present correspondent of the Cape Times came across the lonely grave in the course of his travels and found the dilapidated camera still in its place. "My native guides," he says, "informed me that the hyenas carry off the camera about twice a week, and that as soon as the natives miss it all the men around about turn out and scour the bush until they find it. They firmly believe it to be an important part of the white man's burial rites, and that vengeance will be wreaked on the tribe should the camera go a-missing."

CALCUTTA EXPERIENCES REAL HOT WEATHER.

Calcutta, May 30.—Calcutta has been suffering from an extrodinary heat wave. During the first week of April the temperature was that of the end of May and the beginning of June. One day the maximum touched 105.1, with a mean of 91.7. This is in excess of the normal by 10.2 and 7.1 respectively. On another day the maximum reached 107.1 degrees, which is only 1.3 degrees below the highest on record. Other maxima reported from various stations in Bengal were: Bankura, 111.1; Midnapur, 10.31; Puella, 110; Burdwan, 109.4; Ranigani, 109; Birhampur, 108.3; Krishnagarh, 108.1; Dehri, 107.3 Temperatures from 106 to 103 were common. These are from 6 degrees to 12 degrees above normal. The heat in Allahabad has also been excessive. The maximum in the shade reached 108.5, and the mean temperature of the day was 92.4, being 8 degrees in excess of the normal.

MATCH FOR CLEMENTS

Jack O'Leary of Milwaukee May Meet the Superior Boy.

Good Card Being Arranged for the Range Next Month.

The fifteen round bout between Walter Whitehead, the local middleweight, and Curley Ulrich, formerly of Superior and now of Thief River Falls, which was to have been pulled off near Detroit, Minn., last night, has been posponed for a month on account of the unfavorable conditions throughout Northern Minnesota and the short time in which to make the necessary arrangements.

Next month, however, the two men will go on and give the fight fans of the western part of the state one of the fastest bouts ever seen there. Whitehead, who is training here, is in good shape. He went on one night this week with Young Jack Johnson, sparring partner of the great Jack. The young Jack is in Duluth for a few days and he gave Whitehead a good try out. The local man more than held his own for the four rounds and thinks that when he goes against Ulrich, he will be in shape to do some trimming.

Arrangements are now being made for a couple of bouts on the range next month that will attract more than passing interest. The main bout will be between Joe Clements and another lightweight yet to be secured.

Joe Cherry of Saginaw was the first opponent considered, but he fights at 126 and will not give away a pound. Efforts are now being made to secure Jack O'Leary of Milwaukee, one of the classiest little fighters in the Middle West at his weight. He will very probably be secured and the Superior boy will be given the fight of his life.

The other bout will be between Whitehead and either Jack Parres or the Kerry Kid of Superior. Whitehead would have to give away considerable weight to the Kerry Kid, but the bout will be a slashing affair, as both men are mixers from the word go and the bout would be but little less interesting than the main event.

"Figures don't lie," but somebody has been mean enough to remark that liars figure. The sporting editor of The Herald pleads guilty—to figuring, not to lying. The batting and fielding averages of the players in the Northern league for the first trip of the American teams into Canada this year, are submitted today and the fans may find some good food for study in them.

It isn't hard to see just why Duluth is in third place, when one has the figures before him. Whereas Brandon has four regular men over the .300 mark and seven hitting over .200, Duluth has but three men over the .200 line and one of them had only been in three games. O'Brien is really the only man who did any hitting worth mentioning on the trip, four of the regulars hitting less than .100. It's no wonder the team stands last in club batting.

The fielding was fine. Only 23 errors out of nearly 400 chances is a record that is not to be sneered at for a team in its first series and that away from home. The infielders all compare favorably with the men in the corresponding positions on the other teams, and the outfielders were better than the average. However, without the hitting, the team could not possibly win games. Even inside baseball, such as they claim they were playing, couldn't avail against three and four hits a game, and they did mighty well to win four of their ten games on the other side of the border.

Give that team a couple of outfielders who will hit .280 or better and there will be a wonderful change. Ness can hit better than he did on the trip. So can Voss and Koepping. The pitchers are not supposed to hit. But the outfielders are chosen principally for their hitting ability and if they fall down with the gad and the team is bound to slump.

Rorabaugh was a big disappointment. Jim Haney hadn't found his batting eye and his big pole availed nothing. Morrow didn't hit a lick in four games and Pagles only landed three in the whole ten games. Pagles can do better than that and his work in the outfield is good. If his hitting can be improved, he will be a valuable man.

The trouncing the Sox took from Winnipeg Thursday isn't indicative of their strength, as the records show. Krick's weakness gave Winnipeg the start and the team went to pieces for the first time this season. The same thing may not happen again for a month. If the knockers will hold off until the management gets the right line on the team and discovers just what parts of it are useless, they may be converted to boosters before they get a chance to knock.

Dr. Roller, the Seattle wrestler, was in St. Paul this week, en route to Illinois on a visit, and the talk he puts up regarding his coming match with Gotch rings well. He says that, though wrestling was only a side line with him for years, he has an ambition to be world's champion and he will.

In Roller, Gotch will tackle no weakling. The Seattle physician stands over six feet and weighs 210 pounds when in condition. He has been wrestling and conducting gymnasium classes for years and is always in condition. He has the true American spirit, not the yellow streak of Gotch and he will be entirely a different proposition than the big Russian.

The last paragraph in his interview with a St. Paul newspaper man indicates just what manner of man he is. He says "When Gotch and I meet, whatever happens, I will not complain about being roughly handled. If I can't take care of myself on the mat, I will quit the game and say nothing about it. You must remember that wrestling is not a lady's game."

Wrestling sure is not a lady's game. It is a test of brute strength and sometimes science is lost in the use of strength. Spectators will yell about the "dirty" work of men on the mat, but there are few tricks illegal in wrestling. Though some wrestlers will not rough it, those who do are within their rights and Roller shows that he knows what he is going against in the Iowa farmer.

The Papke-Ketchell fight at Milwaukee is the big fistic event of the next few weeks. Ketchell's new ambition to become heavyweight champion of the world is being taken seriously by fight men and it adds interest to the match with the Spring Valley terror. Jim Corbett, who can judge fighters if any man can, thinks that Ketchell will reach the goal he has set for himself. Corbett, who saw Ketchell out on the coast, gave out an interview in Chicago, in which he says Ketchell will not only win from Papke but within a year will be heavyweight champion of the world.

"He is the greatest natural fighter now in the game," continued the ex-champion. "Every angle of the game comes naturally and easily to the boy, and he can hit like a heavyweight of the most powerful caliber. The weight will begin coming fast in a little while—he already has the frame—and he will go right down the line, beating all comers. When he is a full-size heavyweight he will whip them all with little trouble. One year more, then it will be Stanley Ketchell, heavyweight champion, sure."

IRISH LAND ACT PROVES FAILURE

Ireland is Robbed of $15,000,000 a Year in Taxation.

Dublin, May 30.—Now that the home rule question has been removed for the time being from the arena of practical politics, public attention in Ireland is being focused on the disgraceful breakdown of the land purchase act. This act was passed by a Unionist Government and has worked so well that in the districts where it has been applied there has been almost a total disappearance of agrarian discontent. It has satisfied both landlords and tenants, and now that the Liberal Government has allowed it to break down for want of financial support, both landlords and tenants are united in denouncing the government.

Lord Dunraven has sent a letter to the leading Irish newspapers pointing out that Ireland is being robbed by England and calling for a union of all classes of Irishmen to insist on their rights. He gives some figures of the overtaxation of Ireland, which, coming from a Unionist peer, are very striking. For instance, he declares that the annual taxed revenue from Ireland is about one-eleventh of that from Great Britain, while her taxable capacity is estimated by no one at more than one-twentieth of that of Great Britain. Ireland, he declares, is paying in imperial taxes about $15,000,000 a year more than she ought to pay and is getting nothing in return, and now a scheme for the benefit of all classes to which the government is pledged is allowed to break down for the want of just about that sum every year. Lord Dunraven calls for a conference of landlords and tenants, with representatives of the various local public bodies in Ireland, to devise some plan of acting together to compel England to recognize the rights of the Irish people.

It is an encouraging sign of the changing times in Ireland that the synod of the Irish Protestant Episcopal church is found debating means for stopping the emigration which is draining the life-blood of Ireland. The Irish Protestant church is becoming more and more an Irish organization. It is no longer a state endowed church, officered by Englishmen and used as part of the machinery for the English government of Ireland. Its present position is in sharp contrast to that which it assumed in the time of the "great clearances" after the famine of 1847, when Archbishop Whatley, an Englishman, who was sent over to administer the see of Dublin at a salary of $35,000 a year, drawn from the Irish people, placed himself at the head of an organization whose object was to send 1,500,000 Irish people to Canada and to provide the funds for so doing out of the income tax.

The retirement of Sir Anthony MacDonnell from the post of under secretary for Ireland marks the end of another experiment in "governing Ireland according to Irish ideas." Sir Anthony is an Irishman, a Catholic and a home ruler. He made a great reputation as an Indian administrator, and it was thought that here, surely, was a chance for the Irish people. Even Sir Anthony, however, soon found the castle red tape too much for him, and he tendered his resignation several times. He was persuaded to remain, but now he is utterly disgusted and insists on leaving. He will receive a peerage as a reward for his Indian services.

LONG STAY IN LONDON FOR KING AND QUEEN.

London, May 30.—The king and queen will be in constant residence at Buckingham palace until nearly the end of July, except for a fortnight at Whitsuntide, when the court is to be at Windsor castle. This year the Whitsuntide holidays are immediately followed by Ascot race week. It is expected that the king will pay a weekend visit to Lord and Lady Desborough, at Taplow court, in June. The royal yacht, the Victoria and Albert, will not be required for service until the middle of July.

The statement that the king and queen will stay at Barton Court house, the royal residence in Osborne park, during Cowes regatta week is incorrect, for their majesties will be on board the Victoria and Albert in Cowes Roads during their ten days' stay in the Solent. The king is to pay a private visit to the Emperor Francis Joseph at Ischl during the second week in August. His majesty will stay at Ischl for twenty-four hours.

IVANHOE BANKER TAKES LIFE WHILE DESPONDENT.

Ivanhoe, Minn., May 30.—Charles Soderlind, vice president of the First National bank of Ivanhoe, and president of the Farmers' Independent Elevator company of Ivanhoe, committed suicide on his farm near there Friday, by cutting his throat.

His act is attributed to temporary insanity, brought on by melancholia and ill health.

EX-MAYOR OF ANOKA DEAD.

Anoka, Minn., May 30.—Charles F. Woodbury died here early yesterday while sitting in a chair. He was attacked Thursday night with heart failure, but rallied somewhat and passed a comfortable night. Soon after rising Friday morning he was attacked a second time and was found dead by his sister.

Mr. Woodbury was born on April 17, 1839, in Columbus, Ohio. He came to Anoka in 1862, and has resided continually since. In 1874 he was elected to the legislature and was re-elected two years later. He was once mayor of Anoka and a county commissioner.

UNDERMINED; BUILDING DROPS.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 30.—Undermined by recent heavy rains, the two-story brick store building of Alex Deane collapsed. The building is a total wreck and the stock of furniture was destroyed. The loss is $10,000.

THE SEVEN WONDERS OF DULUTH

Few cities have more wonders to show admiring and curious tourists than Duluth.

Many people, who have made the city their home for many years, do not realize the interesting features which Duluth possesses and which are lacking in other cities, and it takes the visit of some friend or relative from the flat and uninteresting cities of the interior of the country to awaken them to the beauties and wonders of their home town.

Visitors who come to Duluth from such cities as Indianapolis, St. Louis, Louisville and a score of other inland points, never cease to marvel at the great sweep of Lake Superior, at the magnificent scenery, the bracing air, and the wonderful harbor. Such wonders which Duluth people learn to take as a matter of course are to them a constant delight.

Duluth can certainly be called a city of wonders, and there are few cities in the country which can boast of such attractions for the summer tourists.

The iron ore docks of Duluth are the largest in the world; its grain elevators the greatest; it has trout streams within its city limits; it has a great water power system, second only to Niagara; its aerial ferry is the only one of its kind in America.

The harnessing of the water of the St. Louis river at Thomson is a modern improvement which Duluth has just lately secured. Water has done much for the prosperity of Duluth; quite as much, in fact, as beer has done for Milwaukee.

With the completion of the Great Northern Power company's dam on the St. Louis river and installation of the wonderful machinery which links the power of the rushing water with the electric switch in the factory and mill, a great engineering feat was accomplished and a new wonder added to Duluth's list.

The realization of this sheme makes it possible for Duluth to offer the prospective manufacturer cheap power.

If the market for his product lies in the East, giant freighters can transport it from the very doors of his mill to consumers in other parts of the United States.

Wonderful Ships.

Incidentally, the iron and steel ships which ply the waters of the Great Lakes during all of the months when their way is not obstructed by large sheets of ice are wonderful craft. They cost fortunes and carry them on every trip they make.

A striking contrast between the lake boats of today and those of yesterday is to be seen near the ship yards, where an old wooden hulk—a steamer at that—can be seen lying alongside a solid rangy ore-carrier of today. Not so very long ago mariners thought that the old hulk was a leviathan, but now she is a derelict and too insignificant to be worthy of serious consideration even if her sides were not caved in.

Duluth is the greatest flax market in the world and the amount of export business done by local board of trad firms in that seed and other grains reaches enormous totals annually.

Wonders of Ore Shipping.

An idea of the proportion the ore shipping industry has taken during the last few years can be gained from the fact that this season, which is bound to be a short one, because of the tardiness in getting under way, it is estimated that the total shipments from the Lake Superior mines will be something like 30,000,000 tons. Not very many years ago 30,000,000 tons was regarded as an enormous total. So it is, and yet mining men expect to see that amount shipped even if there is nothing doing on the ore docks at all until after the first of June.

Duluth is really the center of the iron industry and the United States Steel corporation appreciates the fact so fully that it is going to establish here a plant where the ore is transformed into steel rails.

Duluth's pioneers were rugged, courageous men who overcame many obstacles and suffered many privations. The hillside, about one of the most perfect natural harbors in the realm, seemed to be the logical place for a city and the sagacity of the early comers has been proven time and again.

It was up-hill work for the early settlers, both literally and metaphorically. It is one thing to hew trees on level ground and another to climb steep hills and do it. But the early Duluthians, like those of today, were stickers and they persevered.

Captious critics from rival communities are wont to speak sneeringly of Duluth's hills, but to your true Duluthian there is nothing about the city that is more dear.

The Incline Road.

Modern machinery and methods have overcome obstacles which nature provided. By taking the incline railway the citizen who has his home on the boulevard at the hill-top or in the suburbs beyond, can get down town to his office as quickly as the Lakeside resident boards one going to the city's extreme East end. And he seldom stops to think how effectively man's genius and enterprise have placed his lofty home so near to the center of the city's commercial life.

Duluth is a sticker for business, but there is no community in the land which gets more enjoyment out of its amusements and pastimes or can offer as great natural playgrounds as this city affords. Duluth people seldom think of the wonderful trout streams which gush or trickle down the slope into the lake through the limits of the city. There is many an anglers' paradise within hailing distance of the street cars.

Duluth Too Modest.

It is the general belief of tourists and others who have visited the cities, that Duluth is too modest regarding its wonders, and has failed to properly advertise the sights that are to be seen at the Head of the Lakes.

"It seems to me," said an Easterner, who was being shown over the city during the past week, "that everything you have here is either the biggest or the second biggest thing of its kind in the world. You have the biggest ore docks, and the only aerial bridge, and the biggest or the second biggest elevator, and the biggest harbor, and the second biggest wholesale hardware store, and many other biggest things.

"If some of the 'boosters' out in Denver, or Seattle, or Spokane had such things to rave about, they would be advertised all over the country. Duluth is slowly but surely working up a tourist trade. The city is naturally one of the most wonderful and interesting cities in the United States. I know of no other city that has so much to build on as Duluth, and tourists who come here find much to marvel. Little has been done yet to advertise the city as a place for sightseers and as a summer resort, and I believe the summer tourist trade could be greatly increased if this were done. Duluth has a summer climate that simply cannot be touched by any other city in the United States. Why shouldn't you get thousands of Americans who travel through the hot and dusty West during the summer or thousands of those who go to Europe? There are more wonderful sights to be seen right here at the Head of the Lakes than you will see in Europe, and nowhere can a tourist spend such a delightful summer, or such an instructive one as right here at the Head of the Lakes.

"When he has seen what there is to see in Duluth, there are the wonderful iron ranges, and the Copper country with the greatest copper mines in the world. Advertise and boost your summer attractions. When you have so much to advertise it is poor policy to hide your light under a bushel."

"See America First."

Duluth last year benefited greatly by the "See America First" movement, and this year it is hoped that the movement to keep tourists in this country as far as possible will be pushed even more energetically.

Few places can offer better scenic attractions. The dells of the St. Louis river, the beauties of Duluth's natural parks, and the beauties of the lake, and the view of the city from the bay by night, are not fully appreciated by Duluthians until they leave the city and see the few attractions of this nature that other cities have to offer.

Duluth is indeed a city of wonders.

FROM THE MINES AND THE SMELTERS

IS AT LAST UNDER CONTROL

Fire in the Minnie Healy and Leonard Mines at Butte Reported Under Control and Hoisting Ore May be Resumed.

Butte, Mont., May 30.—It is believed that the fire which has been raging in the underground workings of the Minnie Healy and Leonard mines for the past several years is at last under control, and it is expected that mining operations on the levels made possible on account of the fumes and gasses will be resumed at an early date. It is quite probable that hoisting may be resumed through the Minnie Healy shaft, and that all of the levels of the Leonard may from this time on be productive of ore.

This will add materially to the tonnage of the Butte Coalition company. It is stated that the output of the Coalition mines during the month of April was 1,500,000 pounds, and it is believed that the output from May will eclipse all previous records. Owing to the economical methods of mining it is understood that the cost of producing copper by the Coalition company will not exceed 8½ cents a pound for the metal delivered to New York.

The lower workings of the Minnie Healy are operated through the Tramway shaft. The fire zone has been confined between the 600 and 800-foot levels. From the Tramway shaft crosscuts have been run to intersect the Minnie Healy veins, and large bodies of very rich ores have been uncovered. On the 1,400-foot level, according to the last reports, an ore body measuring twelve feet across, and assaying 10 per cent copper, has been exposed. Drifting on the vein is now in progress and the vein is proving permanent and of great width.

A production of 3,000,000 pounds of copper annually is the possibility of the Butte Coalition company, and this is scarcely the limit of production when once the new plant of the company at the Tramway mine, which will also be accessory to the Rarus mine, is in operation.

The Rarus shaft is now down 1,400 feet, and from the lower level a crosscut is being run to the great veins which have proved so productive on the upper levels. Before the close of the year the magnificent Tramway surface plant will be in full operation, and being one of the most economical in the camp, it will place the Butte Coalition company in a position to produce copper ore at the minimum cost of the entire district.

The application of the British Butte Mining company for patents on about 1,000 acres of placer ground just west of this city is being opposed by government agents and several referees have been taking testimony. The company has for more than a year been opening the ground preliminary to extensive placer mining by means of dredges and cyaniding, and to a width of about 750 feet the ground has been sampled and tested every two feet. Not a single blank test or sample was found, and in the underground crosscuts assays showing from 40 cents to $24 a ton in gold were made. However, special agents of the government, who assume to be mineral experts, have testified before the referees that the ground is valuable only as agricultural land and does not contain gold values. It has been the testimony of placer miners for thirty or forty years that gold values could be found in any spot over a vast territory west of Butte.

The suit of the South Butte Mining company against the East Butte Mining company and a number of the lat-

TO STOP DEVELOPMENT WORK

Calumet & Arizona to Suspend Operations at the Snyder-Shibell Group for a Time at Least and Possibly Permanently.

Tucson, Ariz., May 30.—It became known last week that had been definitely decided by the Calumet & Arizona officials to discontinue development work, at least temporarily, on the property which the corporation has under bond in the Sierrita mountains, thirty miles south of Tucson, in this county. No official announcement of the fact had been given out.

Superintendent George Arnold of the property, arrived in the city last week from Bisbee, for the purpose of conferring with Col. L. W. Powell, third vice-president and general manager of the Calumet & Arizona company. Jack Keenan, superintendent of the Calumet & Arizona's property at Dos Cabezos, also arrived here. Whether operations at the latter point will be discontinued is not known.

The Calument & Arizona interests took a bond on the Snyder-Shibell group in the Sierritas about eighteen months ago and since that time have been developing ground steadily, and, it is understood, with fairly good results. At the present time there are on the property a compressor, one machine, lumber and other supplies. These will probably be taken over by the Esperanza company, which is operating close by.

OGDEN SMELTER TO REOPEN

Company Now in the Market for Ores---Fine Vein of Ore Opened in Mineral Flat in American Fork Canon.

Salt Lake, Utah, May 30.—The Ogden Smelting company announces its purpose to reopen its plant immediately. It is now in the market for ores. The company is an independent concern that began business over a year ago. A considerable amount of Nevada and Utah ore was purchased at high prices. Then came the slump, depriving the compny of a market.

A fine vein of ore has bee opened in the mineral flat in American Fork canon. The vein was cut by the shaft. It is two feet wide and is well defined and carries values of $50 to $75 a ton. A tunnel has been started in the hillside to catch the vein at depth.

A 50-horse power electrically driven compressor, with three sets of Burleigh drills, has been ordered for the Indian Queen in Beaver county. The company will obtain power from the Beaver Power company. The tunnel on the Indian Queen, which is expected to open known ore bodies at great depth, is now in over 550 feet. Up to the present time work has all been done by hand. With the use of power drills it is expected that over 100 feet a month can be made.

The old Washington company's property in Loeber gulch, Beaver county, is to be worked again, after lying idle for several years. The Cupric company has been organized to take over the ground. A. I. Harrison, president of the Horn Silver, is president of the Cupric. The Washington was owned largely by the same men as the Horn Silver. A shaft was sunk on it to a depth of 400 feet in a ledge that was well defined, and from this much high-grade ore was mined and shipped. For some reason the ground was never thoroughly prospected and the purpose now is to ascertain the value of the ledge at depth.

The annual meeting of the Imlay Mining company, operating in Humboldt county, Nev., was held here last week. The report of the superintendent was to the effect that ore is exposed in every working of the property. The work done on the 140 level leads the superintendent to believe that the ore there exposed is really the capping of bodies of high grade below. He therefore urged that provision be made to explore the ground to a depth of 250 feet. He reported also that there is 2,000 tons of $12 milling ore on the dump and many thousands of tons of higher grade ore blocked out in the mine. George W. Morgan, O. W. Powers, Sidney M. Bamberger, Joseph Lippman of Salt Lake and F. M. Smith of Rockford, Ill., were elected directors.

The Utah Antimony company is about to start up its works at Coyote, Garfield county. The company built a complete concentrating plant last year at its mines, but just as everything was in readiness for regular production, the trust closed its reduction works at Staten island and in California, the only plants in the country that treat antimony. Incidentally a big cut was made in the price of antimony. The Utah company then ordered a volatillizing plant, and this is now ready. The mill has a capacity of 100 tons a day.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Work Resumed on Golden Reward Company's Properties in Nevada Gulch---Custer Peak's Recent Strike is Turning Out Well.

Deadwood, S. D., May 30.—The Golden Reward company has resumed work on two more of its properties in Nevada Gulch. The properties to go into commission are the Bosco and Double Standard, the latter one of the most prolific of the company's holdings. The ore at present is coming from the northern end of the gulch and is being shipped to the Golden Reward cyanide mill in Deadwood. It is of fair grade gold value.

Supt. John H. O'Brien of the Custer Peak Mining company says the recent strike made there has developed into a large body of gold ore that will average from $4 to $5 a ton, free milling and easy to handle. This vein has been well opened up and appears to be permanent. The company has decided to erect at once a ten stamp mill. The company has a fine mill site with plenty of water.

During the coming month the Reliance Gold Mining company will undergo a change of management. Since its formation through the amalgamation of a number of other properties three years ago it has been under the direction of Capt. F. W. Medbery, who has built it up but is now desirous of giving his full time to his personal business. His successor will be F. B. Baldwin, until a few months ago the manager of the North Homestake property at Maitland. The Reliance stock is held principally by Gen. S. F. Olson of Minneapolis. Both mine and mill are now being successfully operated, the Reliance turning out over 150 tons daily. The main ore body is seventy-five feet wide and five air drills are to be put to work on its face.

The Ivanhoe Mining company has resumed operations on its property near Keystone in the Southern Hills. A new Downie-Wright Chilean mill of modern crushing arrangement has been installed and will give an additional capacity of ten tons daily.

Supt. St. John is operating the Tinton Mining company's mill steadily. It has a daily capacity of 100 tons, which can be increased to 250. The grade of the ore, while not high, ensures a fair profit if a good tonnage is run through each day. The ore bodies are being steadily developed, and it is the intention to keep a large supply of mined ore on hand. The Tinton company is one which the English syndicate has included in it's proposed deal for the control of Black Hill properties.

GLOBE DISTRICT TO FRONT

Former Mine Superintendent of the Dominion Much Impressed by the Globe Consolidated's Showing—Ore Shipments Increased by the Superior & Boston and the Warrior.

Globe, Ariz., May 30.—The local mining situation continues very satisfactory, changes, where noted, being of a favorable character. Since the first of the month the Warrior Copper company and the Superior & Boston Copper company have increased their ore shipments considerably, while the Gibson, United Globe and Arizona Commercial are maintaining their tonnages. The Old Dominion has four furnaces in blast and the production of copper for the current month promises to be in the enighborhood of 3,600,000 pounds. The Old Dominion company will, at an early date, commence shipping sulphide ore from Dalton, Cal., to its smelter here, the product being desirable on account of the high percentage of sulphur and iron it contains.

N. S. Berray, until recently mine superintendent of the Old Dominion and United Globe, recently visited the Globe Consolidated and Superior & Boston and was very favorably impressed with the developments at both properties. To a representative of the Silver Belt, Mr. Berray stated that the Globe Consolidated had exposed in the north crosscut from the Gem shaft a well mineralized zone about 100 feet wide, which shows strong indications of making a mine with further development. About twenty-five feet of this lead is sulphide, fifteen feet of which is good concentarting ore carrying 2 per cent copper, 14 per cent sulphide and 21 per cent iron. Drifts have been started east and west on this ore, which in the east drift shows an increase of copper. Work in the drifts will be pushed with vigor and later a winze will probably be started. The showing in the Gem is certainly very encouraging and justifies Supt. McCarthy's confidence in the success of the enterprise.

The progress made during the past month in underground developments and surface improvements at the Superior & Boston has been noticeable and reflects credit on the management. The most important development has been on the 425-foot level of the Great Eastern mine, where a large stope is being opened, which will eventually extend west from the crosscut to the line of the Black Hawk claim of the Arizona Commercial Copper company, a length of 235 feet, the drift already opened being in good ore for that distance. The lead is forty feet wide and carries fourteen feet of commercial ore, which, as shown by the smelter returns for last month, averages 9 per cent copper and runs from five to eight ounces of silver to the ton.

The stope is being opened the width of this ore body, three sets in height, and as now timbered is eighty-four feet in length. It is advancing as rapidly as three shifts of four men each, with one Ingersol-Sargent drill and one No. 1-A Wahl drill can do the work. A winze has been started in one, work on which has been temporarily suspended to permit of timbering the stope.

Mr. Berray, after inspecting this ore body, gave it as his opinion that, with some future development, it should supply ore of sufficient value to meet all the expenses of development work by the company for the next year. A forty-ton carload of ore from the stope on the Great Eastern is being shipped daily to the Old Dominion smelter.

The Gardner shaft, which will develop the Iron King and Black Oxide claims, has reached a depth of about ninety feet and is going down at the rate of about two feet a day. It has three compartments—two each 4 feet 6 inches by 5 feet, and one 5 feet 7 inches—and is one of the best constructed shafts in the Globe district.

A steel tank, with a capacity of 20,000 gallons, for the storage of oil, is being erected at the Great Eastern shaft. Improvements and additions to the plant are made as required, but there is no unnecessary expenditure under the management of Superintendent W. E. Carter.

The Red Spring shaft of the Miami Copper company is down about 625 feet and sinking continues. The work is being done by contract. Developments on the 500-foot level are highly favorable. The drifts and crosscuts are still being extended in one, to which there appears to be no limit, and the estimate of Engineer J. Parks Channing made several months ago of 2,000,000 tons of ore in sight, will have to be revised. It is safe to say there is now several times that tonnage of ore in sight. There is now news in regard to the railroad to the Miami property and until rail facilities are provided little can be done toward the construction of a concentrating mill further than laying the foundation.

Bierce and Kaltenbach, who own three claims on Mineral creek, have sulphide copper ore that will average 25 per cent copper and 15 per cent iron with 20 per cent sulphur. These claims have been worked all through the winter. There is a 200-foot tunnel which taps the ore vein at a depth of 160 feet from the surface where the ten-inch vein of sulphide was discovered. The claims are three-quarters of a mile west of Gibson's old shaft and at the head of Mineral creek. Sixty buckets of water is being taken from the mine daily and five men are employed there.

The Gibson Copper company has abandoned work temporarily on the new vertical shaft and is developing on the fifth and sixth levels of the old shaft and making stations in the new. The new vertical shaft is between the third and fourth levels and is 250 feet west of the old shaft. The ore that is coming from the Gibson now is averaging 25 per cent copper. There are seventy-five men employed and six wagons are hauling ore daily to the Old Dominion smelter.

The Warren-Jimison-Moody co-partnership which is developing three claims one mile east of the Gibson mine have opened a vein of sulphide copper ore that assays 20 per cent copper. The vein was discovered fifty feet west of a blowout which the company was working toward and it was expected that copper would be found at the blowout. Approximately 250 feet of tunnel work was done before the sulphide was encountered. Several small stringers of chalcopyrite were cut before the sulphide was opened. There are eighteen inches of the ore in the new vein.

MICHIGAN'S COPPER IN 1907

James L. Nankervis, Commissioner of Mineral Statistics, Gives Resume of Work—Mines Never in Better Condition Than at This Time—Future Outlook is Especially Bright.

James L. Nankervis, commissioner of mineral statistics for Michigan, has made public the following resume of the important facts in his annual report, which is now in the priter's hands:

Unlike the mines in most other mining camps of the country, in 1907 the Michigan copper mines, like the iron ore mines of the Lake Superior region, were operated, in most instances, at full capacity and had a successful year. In some particulars the year was troublesome, disappointing, short of expectations, but it could have been worse. Productions of copper obtained in a number of instances were record ones. The average number of men employed in and about the mines was greater than in any former twelve months in the history of copper mining in Michigan. Wages and supplies of all kinds were exceptionally high. The amount of money paid out by the companies for all purposes was larger than in any like period.

Twenty-one Thousand Employes.

The average number of men employed in Houghton county was 17,759; in Keweenaw county, 2,003, and in Ontonagon county, 1,252. In all three counties, 21,014. In the early months of the year there were not men enough to go around and they were in demand at practically their own terms. Operating costs soared to heights and cut deeply into treasury balances. Annual reports recently issued forcibly illustrate this fact. Such conditions must change or before long a number of mines, now active, will be idle. However, this condition is changing and in the course of a month or two the general situation wil be back to normal again. Men are already doing much more efficient service and cost sheets reflect the changes going on.

Fifteen Millions in Dividends.

The produce of copper obtained for the calendar year was 220,217,532 pounds, which compares with 224,407,859 for the previous year and 217,763,382 pounds for 1905. Fiscal year reports will vary slightly from these totals. Michigan copper is the best brand in the world and unless the market conditions are decidely bad it finds a ready market at the best prices going. Dividends paid, including Copper Range company, St. Mary's Mineral Land company and Union Land company amounted to $15,114,760.

In the amount of copper produced and dividends paid, excepting 1906, the year under review was a record one. But for the financial stringency and business depression occuring through the latter months, still better results would have been witnessed for the year's work.

In fact but for this condition, 1907 would have been a record breaker worthy of note for the Michigan copper district. Copper sold for much better than average prices and the mines that worked at full capacity and sold their products have no room for complaint. Whether the price copper happens to be high or low, the policy followed by the Lake managements is to keep on mining with characteristic energy, producing copper for the general good and making dividends for stockholders or developing properties with this end in view. And this is the chief end of legitimate mining and the goal aimed for by consistent managers.

In a general way, Lake managements are up-to-date, progressive, among the best going and conduct operations in a practical business-like way. The future well-being of properties are considered as much so as their immediate physical portion of the money earned by the Lake companies was put back in the properties with the result that the positions of the miners have been strengthened and improved in practically every working department. New power houses were added to mine plants, additional mechanical equipments installed, more shafts started, active ones sunk deeper, fresh levels commenced, established ones driven further into virgin territory, reserves of ground carrying average values of lodes mined increased and put in shape for economical extraction, rock houses overhauled, remodelled and improved, stamping facilities increased and new shops were built. Besides such improvements, other economics were incorporated that served to maintain equipments up to a high standard of efficiency.

Outlook Is Bright.

Taken as a whole, Michigan copper mines were never in better condition than they are at this time, and the future outlook for them is especially bright, the price of copper the principal contingency. Barring accidents and shutdowns, I predict for 1908, in amount of copper produced, the banner year of copper mining in the Michigan district of the Lake Superior region.

After careful consideration, I have formed an opinion that future developments may show that discoveries made, new mining enterprises started and modifications in mining methods of operation introduced will result in proving 1907 to have been a very eventful and important year for the future of the copper industry in Michigan. Foremost among these events and undertakings may be placed, perhaps, the developments now under way at the Lake copper mine, Ojibway, Gratiot, Ahmeek, Isle Royale, Globe shaft, electrifications of mines and Calumet & Hecla recrushing mill. Other innovations might be included.

Calumet & Hecla—always interesting—in 1907 had a year of distinct success. The company's product of copper, while not the largest, was one of the best, amounting to 88,000,000 pounds, which compares with 95,000,000 for 1906 and 83,500,000 for 1905. Dividends paid amounted to $6,500,000. Copper Range Consolidated made a record product which amounted to 32,140,297 pounds. The three mines, Baltic, Champion and Trimountain, together produced 41,385,015 pounds. If desired the management can take out a much larger product of copper in 1908. Dividends paid, $2,304,810, besides one commenced, established ones driven further into virgin territory, reserves of ground carrying average values of lodes mined increased and put in shape for economical extraction, rock houses overhauled, remodelled and improved, stamping facilities increased and new shops were built. Besides such improvements, other economics were incorporated that

FEELING IS MORE CHEERFUL

In the Lake Superior Iron Mining Districts Over Prospect of Brisker Ore Shipments in June—Mahoning Will be One of the Biggest Shippers This Season.

There is more cheery feeling in the Lake Superior iron mining districts generally. This is because ore shipments are gradually increasing and there is promise the month now about to open will witness a movement quite as brisk as could be expected in a time of depression in the trade. Advices from the furnace regions, too, are more encouraging, consumption being reported slowly expanding, and when coupled with testimony indicating an upward tendency in general business affairs, there is engendered an optimism productive of more hopeful views of the outlook.

It cannot be learned that there have yet been sales of ore of any particular magnitude, still there is a growing belief that the movement from the mines will, after all, attain very good proportions and will, in fact, compare quite favorably with that of any year with the exception of the abnormally large outgo recorded in each of the last two seasons. Indeed, it is the present prediction of some judges of the situation that the production for the region as a whole, doubtless, will exceed thirty million tons—a month ago it was twenty-five million—but now much in excess of 30,000,000 tons, none care to state at this time.

Ore is now going forward from all five ranges, and shipments have been made from five of the six upper lake ports at which the traffic is handled, this quintet comprising Duluth, Two Harbors, Superior, Ashland and Escanaba. Marquette is the laggard, but the docks there will be opened during the coming week, such ore as is ready being sent from the Marquette range meanwhile going to the Lake Michigan shore, where the recent slight labor troubles have been amicably settled. There are large stockpiles on all the ranges, notwithstanding the curtailment of operations maintained throughout the entire winter season, it is an immense relief to the people of the various communities to see steam shovels once more engaged in the work of loading cars. However, there has been no reopening of idle mines, and no appreciable addition to forces at those properties operating on halftime. Apparently it is the intention to draw proportionately heavier than usual from the more cheaply wrought producers of the Mesaba.

To a very large extent the operating concerns that have already started shipments are those with furnace connections. There is very little doing in this line at the properties of those independent companies that sell to consuming interests. Nowhere is production yet anywhere near capacity. The Steel corporation, which annually sends out more ore than all the rest of the companies together, is forwarding ore from various of its mines on all the ranges. Among the Mesaba properties operated by other concerns, and which have been shippers thus far this season, are the Shenango Furnace company; the Iroquois and Susquehanna of the Rogers-Brown interests, the Miller of the Pitt Iron Mining company, the Lincoln of the Jones & Laughlin company, the Crosby of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, the Alexander of the Republic Iron & Steel company, the Laura of the Midland Steel company, the Jordon of Corrigan, McKinney & Co., and the Mahoning of the Mahoning Ore company, identified in the ownership of which are both the Canibria Steel company and the Steel corporation. A few of the concerns mentioned are shipping from properties elsewhere in the region, as are Oglebay, Morton & Co., Pickands, Mather & Co., Ferdinand Schlesinger, the Pewabic Mining company and a few others.

Mahoning to Be Big Shipper.

The Mahoning will be one of the biggest shippers of the region this season again, and it is quite likely that its outgo will not fall a great ways under the record of 1,660,000 tons achieved last year. It is employing35 0 men, which force is not much below the maximum during much of the shipping period. Stripping is in progress. Work of this kind on the Mesaba is, in fact, about as brisk as in past years. Many team shovels are engaged in it. The great majority of these are at the Canisteo, Holman, Sellers, Hartley, Hull Rust, Morris, Fayal, Burt-Poole, Monroe-Tener, Gilbert, Mountain Iron and Leonard properties of the Steel corporation. Others are busy at the Shenango, LaRue, Virginia Silver and other tracts. The Brunt property of the Pittsburg Iron Ore company, in the Mountain Iron district, is to be stripped, but it is probable the work will not be undertaken until next year. Meanwhile the pumps have been pulled and the mine, now an underground proposition, will not be operated. The Pitt Iron Mining company's Wacootah property, in the same field, also is idle and is not expected to be restored to the active list this season. G. H. St. Clair of Duluth is searching for ore in this district and has one daimond drill in commission.

The work of opening still another mine in the western portion of the Mesaba has been started by the Steel corporation. This property, which will be known as the Hill, named in honor of the well-known railroad magnate and empire builder, is seven miles east

GREENE-CANANEA TO RESUME

Dr. Ricketts Says Operations Will Probably be Started Again Some Time in June—Depends Mainly Upon Completion of Furnaces.

City of Mexico, May 30.—It is stated upon reliable authority that the smelters of the Cananea Consolidated Copper company at Cananea will be blown in during the month of June, probably near the first of the month.

The repairs and enlargement of the furnaces, which have been going on for several months past, will be completed and the smelters ready for operation by June 1, and, according to the report, the smelters will resume operations as soon as these furnaces are ready for work.

The resumption at Cananea will mean a great deal of work for the district and for the country, as it will mean a restored feeling of confidence upon the part of the interests behind this company and a belief in a better price in the near future for the metals.

These furnaces have been without fire for several months and the starting up o fthe smelters will be a source of gratification to the entire mining section of the public.

Dr. L. D. Ricketts, president of the Cananea Consolidated Copper company, who was recently in the city was asked to confirm the report as to the resumption of operations at Cananea and stated that while he did not care to state positively that work would be resumed at the smelters June 1, that it was his expectation at this time that operations would be again commenced some time during June.

Dr. Ricketts stated that the repairs, which have been going on for the purpose of increasing the capacity of the smelter, are now prctically completed and will be ready for operation by June 1, and that he hoped to start operations very shortly thereafter.

Dr. Ricketts has just returned to the republic after a trip over the mining districts of Arizona and states that conditions are very much improved throughout Arizona.

"The general tone," said he, "is one of improvement and this applies not only to one particular camp but to the whole of Arizona.

"Bisbee, Clifton-Morenza, Globe and Silver City, all are showing up in good shape and increasing their output, and more activity than formerly prevailed.

"While the increase is not so large it is steady and has a very healthy tone and things generally appear to be picking up.

"The improvement as far as I can see is not artificial but is real and indicates a condition of restored confidence. If the improvement is real, it follows that the manufacturing industry is picking up, or at least that the improvement is based up a general opinion that it will pick up, and if the manufacturing industry improves prices of copper will necessarily improve.

"I believe that we are going to see a very substantial improvement in the price of copper in the near future, and

LEADVILLE CAMP IS ACTIVE

Valuable Properties Are Being Developed by Calumet & Arizona Company in Cochise County, Ariz. —New Camp is Called Cortland.

Pearce, Ariz., May 30.—Nine miles southward from Pearce are the Gleason and Turquoise camps. At Gleason the Copper Belle Mining company is mining a good grade of copper ores, and ships about fifty tons daily, heavy freight teams hauling the ore into Pearce, whence it is sent to El Paso by rail.

Turquoise is noted for a large deposit of the rare stone from which it takes its name. It is the property of Tiffany & Co., the great manufacturing jewelers in New York city. Occasionally the house sends out to the camp a number of lapidaries, with their tools and instruments, who have taken out from the mines an amount of the precious stone, sufficient to supply the trade a couple of years or more, which is cut and polished at the camp, and the finished stones packed and sent to New York, followed by the workmen, who return not again until the supply taken has been exhausted.

Across the hill, east from Turquoise, is the Leadville camp, where the Great West Copper company is developing a number of good claims, and are employing about fifty men. The Calumet & Arizona Copper company is developing valuable properties at Leadville. their holdings, including properties held under option, and a great deal of new ground that has been located by the company. That company has established a new camp about half a mile eastward from the Leadville camp, where work is being pushed upon a great and continually growing scale. The company named is expending a great deal of money at Cortland, as the new camp is called, and they have every faith that the properties they have will turn out fully as valuable as those they have developed at Bisbee, which yielded more than thirty million pounds of copper in 1907. If they do the railway now terminating at Pearce will be extended to Douglas, about fifty miles distant, to enable the company to transport its ores to its own smelter at that city.

The work of the Calumet & Arizona Copper company at Leadville and Cortland is under the management of J. Talbot, formerly a resident of Nogales, who was superintendent for the Reina de Oro Mining company at El Tiro, in the Altar district of Sonora, and working afterward the American mine at Cananea. Watt Gittins, from Nogales, is the superintendent of the work. W. G. Simonton, long superintendent for the Yerkes Mining company, at El Cajon, in the Altar district, is the consulting engineer at Cortland.

OLD MINE FOUND IN MEXICO

Tyopa Gold Mine, Which Was Worked by the Jesuits Before They Were Massacred, Has Been Rediscovered by a Mexican.

Casas Grandes, Mex., May 30.—After being hidden for centuries, the Tyopa gold mine, which was worked at one time by Jesuits before they were massacred and driven from the mine of fabulous wealth, according to report, has been rediscovered by a Mexican, and excitement is high at Temosachic.

The famous Tyopa mine, according to mining men in this vicinity, was recently claimed by a Mexican, who has heretofore claimed that he had located the hidden treasure, which was sealed up by the Jesuits, but until the past few days little importance has been given to the report, but at this time, it is stated, a fight is on between Col. W. C. Greene and friends of the Mexican to retain possession.

The mine is situated in the Guaynopa district, on Col. W. C. Greene's concession from the Mexican government, and according to telephone messages from Temosachic, Col. Greene now has an engineer and party of men on the site to secure possession.

Friends of the Mexican, it is said, have presented the matter to Acting Governor Sanchez and Governor Enrique Creel of Chihuahua, and it is further said that the authorities at this time are inclined to favor the Mexican, regardless of Greene's enormous acreage concession.

The Tyopa, of silvernit gold ore, is situated three miles northeast of the old Guaynopa forts, and a few sacks of ore from the rich veins of this mine, it is said, will provide a man with sufficient money so he will not have to work during the remainder of his life.

It is the same class of ore which created excitement and started the boom in Cripple Creek, according to mining men, and the attitude of the Mexican authorities toward Col. Greene, and the reports regarding the find of the lost treasure, are keeping the mining camps in a furor.

PECK MINE STILL VERY RICH

Ore Running Over 1,000 Ounces in Silver to Ton Taken From Old Workings Abandoned Years Ago As Worked Out.

Prescott, Ariz., May 30.—Conclusive evidence that the Peck mine in the Bradshaw mountains, the richness of which startled the civilized world after its discovery in the early 70's, is not entirely worked out, is seen in a shipment of four tons of ore, which has arrived at the Prescott Sampling works, mined from the old workings, abandoned many years ago as entirely worked out. The ore, which samples over 1,000 ounces in silver to the ton, was discovered a few weeks ago by a miner in the employ of the Great Peck Mining company. O. I. Tawney, general manager, had a drift run on the new find, and to his surprise, found some ore that assayed as high as 60 per cent in the white metal.

In addition to the four tons, now at the sampling works, he has a good sized bar of silver bullion, which he melted from the 60 per cent ore he found in the deposit. He is developing the small paystrak and has good ore still in sight in the face of the opening.

The history of the Peck mine is one of romance and legal entanglements. It was discovered at a time when the nearest railroad station was 300 miles distant, and no wagon road within twenty miles of it. A wagon road was soon built, and a plant installed and even under the adverse conditions then existing it continued to produce $60,000 a month in silver bullion for years. Over $3,000,000 was mined from its immense ore shoot, which measured 300 feet in length and which has been exploited to a depth of 500 feet. Although there is rich ore in the bottom of its lowest level, it lay idle a number of years until it fell into the possession of the Clifford interests, some five years ago, when a shaft was started on a level with the lowest tunnel. This shaft was sunk to a depth of 250 feet and connection made with the old workings through a drift and raise from the lowest level. An immense volume of water was encountered in the new working which compelled cessation of development until the installation of pumping machinery of greater capacity. The installation of the machinery has been delayed by the Eastern money panics last fall, but the management of the Great Peck Mining company, now owning the property, expect to finance it again for large operations in the near future.

MEMORIAL DAY.

This day becomes a sadder and a more tender occasion every year. More and more, in addition to its sacred devotion to the memories of the soldiers who have passed away, it acquires a deeper tinge of solemnity because of the pathetic rapidity with which the ranks of the living are melting away.

The mortality in the ranks of the veterans of the Civil war is becoming as great as it was in many battles of that bloody contest. Yet it is more dreadful than that, because then there was an enemy to be fought, there was something that generalship could do to lessen the casualties, there was the excitement of battle to make the pillow of death softer, even though that pillow were the crimsoned sods of a battlefield. There was glory to be gained even in death, and that glory is immortal as the soul is immortal.

Yet it is not to be wondered at that the ranks are thinning. The war closed forty-three years ago, and the ranks of those who lived in that day but did not fight are also growing lesser every day. Let it be said, as the other side of the picture, that the remaining veterans are holding their own mighty well. Consider their years, consider the weakening effects of hardship, of danger, of nerve-stretching excitement, of nights spent upon wet and frosty ground, of food that was indifferently nourishing and often bad indeed, of prison confinement: consider these things, O youth in your strength, and ponder whether at their age you will walk with as sprightly a step and face the beckoning grave with as gallant an air as the veterans of '65 can show today!

Without abating any jot or tittle of the significance of the day in its relation to those that fell on far-off battlefields, or that sleep in quiet church yards in the home towns all over the land, it is time that this day should prompt us to greater thought of the living.

We owe them a duty that we do not always heed. Even to them the battle-time is a far-off memory, stretching back along the far-flung line of years. To most of us it is not even a personal memory, and we know of it only from their lips or from the books. We are apt to forget the sacrifices these men made that "government by the people, for the people, of the people might not perish from the earth." They have fought their fight, and they fought it well. The unity of a great nation we owe to them, and upon that unity the present greatness of that nation has been builded. These men did it, and we must never forget it. We owe them honor, not only for their sacrifices but for their years of noble citizenship since peace dawned brilliantly over a saddened and chastened country.

Though we give one day in the year as a memorial to the fallen, we have the survivors with us every day, and though they cannot be with us long, we can do more than we have been doing to make their stay with us as peaceful, as pleasant, and as full of honors as it should be. This is something that we should remember not only on May 30, but on every day of the year.

Peace be upon the sleep of the fallen, and may comfort and plenty be with those who still march steadfastly in the thinning ranks.

A STATUE TO MARK HANNA.

The attitude of public and press toward the unveiling in Cleveland of a monument as a public memorial to the late Mark Hanna was something that The Herald watched with a good deal of interest.

The monument itself, designed by Saint Gaudens, is said to be a work of art, and as such it is a gain to the city of Cleveland. That city, too, is indebted to the late Mark Hanna for many tangible benefits. He was a great business man, and had he continued to be a business man only there might never have been any question of the propriety of erecting a public memorial to him.

But he didn't remain a business man only; he became a politician, and a great one. More than any other one man, perhaps, he typifies in his later career that mixture of big business with politics that has produced so much discontent and distrust among the plain people. The orator of the day described him as "an ideal citizen of the republic." Viewed in his own light, he was all of that. To his mind, the proper function of government was the protection and conservation of business interests. That this led to neglect of humanity through overscrupulous care of property rights did not, probably, occur to him at all. If it did, he dismissed it as unworthy of thought. The people could not prosper, he thought, unless capital was encouraged to give them employment. The idea that there could be anything wrong in a condition under which a few holders of capital had the right to say whether or not millions should have the chance to work for their daily bread would have been scorned by him.

Yet, as the Springfield Republican says, he was "a conspicuous type of a citizenship against which the history of this republic since his death has been one continuous and feverish protest." If the people have been injured because government has been prostituted to the selfish demands of "big business;" if human rights have been forgotten in a zealous devotion to property rights; if the interests of the few have been served at the cost of the many: if these things are true, Mark Hanna must be held responsible to as great a degree as any other single individual. He nominated and elected William McKinley as president of the United States in the interests of property, and no matter how much all may admire the personal character of the martyred president, his election was distinctly not a victory for the plain people.

In his life time, no voice would have been raised against a proposal to honor Mark Hanna in the name of the people. Is it quite the same now? Manifestly it is not. Republican newspapers have treated the incident with dignified aloofness. Here and there a voice has been heard declaring that these public honors to the memory of a man who did so much to bring about the economic serfdom of a free people is an outrage. Yet in general the doctrine of "de mortuis nil nisi bonum"—of the dead be nothing said but what is good—has resulted in relieving the incident of much of the unpleasant bitterness that might have come if the proposal had been to thus honor a living "statesman" who was suspected of betraying the people; Cannon or Aldrich, for instance.

IS CHURCH INFLUENCE WANING?

Dr. Charles F. Aked, the brilliant English preacher, delivered a notable sermon recently in New York, in which he attacked the often-asserted claim that the religious influence in this country is on the decline. He said that he had been greatly impressed, during his visits to this country, by the depression of preachers and church leaders. He found this all the more significant because the American nature is buoyant and not easily discouraged.

At the same time, he takes a more cheerful view of the situation from the viewpoint of religion than do most of the American churchmen he quoted in his sermon. He admitted that church organizations are not holding their own. While there are more churches and more church members than there were fifty years ago, the increase has not begun to keep pace with the gain in population. Perhaps the most serious feature of the situation is the reluctance of the young men in the colleges to choose ministerial careers. They are going into law, medicine and business instead.

Yet Dr. Aked believes, from his investigations in this country, that even if church organizations are losing ground, religion is not, and that the spirit of religion belief—even of religious fervor—is gaining in a very comforting manner.

Reassuring though this may be, if the churches are losing ground the situation calls for attention, because the churches are needed to give form and utility to religious convictions. If the spirit of religion is not losing ground, and the churches are losing ground, clearly the trouble lies with the churches. What is that trouble?

Dr. Aked does not attempt to discuss that point, but it is a proper subject for discussion, and one that should appeal to the mind and conscience of every man who wishes well to humanity. A world without religion is a lost world, and a man without religion is an incomplete man, if not a lost man. Why do the churches no longer successfully appeal? If one may timidly suggest a solution, it is because the churches have fallen behind the current of modern thought. They have clung too long to rigid dogmas and cast iron conventions that belong to other days. They have looked too much upon religion as a thing apart from the world's daily life. The churches should take a larger part in the world's affairs. They mustn't let any department of public thought that tends to progress get away from them. They should remember that the Golden Rule, the cardinal principle of the Christian religion, would solve all social, political and economic questions if it could be made the law of life.

In William Dean Howells' "A Traveler From Altruria"—which isn't read enough, by the way—the Traveler, in his description of the history of Altruria, tells of a period when "religion ceased to be the hope of the world, and became the vague promise of the next." This was a time of economic strife, "when every man's hand was against his neighbor, and might was the rule that got itself called right." The Traveler speaks of this period with horror and relief in the light of a better day when the Golden Rule became the fundamental law of human relationships—The Golden Age of human brotherhood when a competition of service replaced the competition of greed that at one time made life a hideous warfare in which the cunning man who could make money beat down and trod upon the man who could not.

This description bears a marvelous resemblance to the conditions that prevail in this country today, and of course Mr. Howells intended it to convey that impression. At the same time he wished to convey the hope that as Altruria overcame these unpleasant conditions, so may the United States yet overcome them. And if this is done, the churches, founded upon the sublime Golden Rule, must have a leading part in the uplift. To do this part they must make religion the hope of this world. If it becomes that, the next world will take care of itself.

Religion is distinctly not a "vague promise of a future world," and it distinctly is—or should be—a glorious hope of this world. It is not a philosophy of forms and ceremonies, but a system of living, a noble scheme of human relationship.

Religion is not a system of living for one day out of seven, but a system of living for every day in the year. Many a very pious man, it is sad to say, permits his piety to congest into one day of the week, and spends the other six days in the pursuit of gain by means that are abhorrent to the doctrine of the Golden Rule. While church-going and singing hymns of praise are good in themselves, they do not make a religious man, and they do not constitute, alone, a religion worth having. The benefits of religion are for this world, not alone for the next.

The possibilities of the Christian religion as a solution of the world's troubles are infinite. This would be a very happy world if conditions were as Howells describes them in Altruria, but if every man would accept the teachings of the gentle Savior and form his philosophy of living upon them, Altrurian conditions would prevail, for humanity would be born again in the spiritual likeness of the Nazarene.

This solution of social, political and economic evils should not be confined within the churches, nor should it be limited to a single day of the week. If the churches will take their proper place in the world, they may become the centers from which this gentle doctrine will radiate everywhere, bringing sunshine instead of shadow, service instead of greed, kindness instead of envy, happiness instead of bitterness. All these changes can be brought about if the churches will come out into the world and make people see that the way to happiness lies through every man's adherence to this noble counsel: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets."

CHILD LABOR IN THE SCHOOLS.

Charlotte Perkins Gilman, in the current issue of the Independent, says: "We are hearing a great deal these days about the evils of child labor in factories, mines, etc., but I wish to call your attention to a less recognized form of the same evil—the child labor in our schools." She says that we have a wonderfully efficient education system, but that it has one serious blemish, namely, that it systematically overworks the pupils and sacrifices their bodies for the benefit of their minds. To illustrate, she shows the following "exact record" of the working day of a high school boy:

Wakened	7:00 a. m.
Breakfast	7:30 a. m.
Takes car for school	8:10 a. m.
Arrives	8:40 a. m.
School begins	9:00 a. m.
Lunch	12:00 m.
School out	2:30 p. m.
Gets home	3:00 p. m.
Home study	5:30 p. m.
Dinner	6:30 p. m.
Home study	7:30 p. m.
Sent to bed	11:30 p. m.
Gets to sleep	12:00 m.

She finds here ten hours of mental work daily except Saturday, when there are five hours, and she finds only two and a half free hours, from 3 to 5:30 p. m. If this were a true picture, and represented the daily schedule of the average school boy or girl, it would indeed portray a tread mill system, damaging to the health and therefore to the future prospects of the pupil. But is it typical? Here is a schedule that sounds more like real life:

Wakened (third time)	8:10 a. m.
Breakfast (galloping)	8:25 a. m.
Takes car (on the run)	8:29 a. m.
Arrives at school (out of breath)	8:50 a. m.
School begins	9:00 a. m.
School out	2:30 p. m.
Playing ball	2:30½ p. m.
Gets home	6:29 p. m.
Dinner	6:30 p. m.
Playing ball	7:00 p. m.
Dragged in to study	8:15 p. m.
Sent to bed	10:30 p. m.
Gets to sleep	10:30⅛ p. m.

Unless boys have changed very suddenly, this second schedule, which is purely hypothetical, more nearly represents the average boy than Mrs. Gilman's does, though she says hers is that of a real boy. In her schedule there is no time for outdoor exercise, which involves both recreation and physical development, and she says her schoolboy spends his two hours and a half in the afternoon mostly in reading. It is an unwholesome schedule, and while The Herald's schedule leaves little time for study—not enough, indeed—the sixty minutes or so a day spent on the street car must be included because it affords a chance to study.

If conditions were as Mrs. Gilman pictures them, it would be serious indeed. It would mean that school life was sapping the vitality of the nation's children, and building up an unstable superstructure of mentality upon an insecure and insufficient physical foundation. Youth is playtime, and regard for the body demands that proper time be given to outdoor play. Otherwise, there will be no constitution to make proper use of what is gained in school.

POPULAR GOVERNMENT REFUSED.

By the very manner in which the United States senate recently disposed of the bill submitting a constitutional amendment providing for popular election of senators, it proved conclusively the need of such an amendment. Senators are elected by legislatures, not by the people, and this separation of the servant from the real master, the people, makes the servant headstrong and heedless of public wishes. In this case the majority of the senators who had instructions from their legislatures on the subject failed to heed them, and voted as they pleased.

The vote was not a political division. It showed more clearly than such votes usually do the real division in public affairs in this country, between the old idea of service to property and the new idea of service to humanity.

Twenty-seven state legislatures have declared for the popular election of United States senators, thus instructing fifty-four senators how to vote. The people in all these states favor this change, and so do the people in the states whose legislatures have not yet acted. Yet only twenty votes were mustered for the measure, while thirty-three were cast against it and thirty-nine senators did not vote. Thirty Republicans and three Democrats voted against the bill, and ten Republicans and ten Democrats voted for it.

The only states whose senators both obeyed instructions were Kentucky, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Washington and Wisconsin—five out of twenty-seven. In three states, Illinois, Pennsylvania and Wyoming, both senators voted against the instructions of their legislatures. In seven states both senators dodged the vote. In five states one senator voted according to instructions and the other voted against instructions. This includes Minnesota, which has declared for the principle of this measure. Senator Nelson voted against the bill and Senator Clapp voted for it. In four states one senator voted for the bill in accordance with instructions, and the other, though instructed, did not vote. In three states, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri, one senator voted against instructions and the other dodged.

The senators are elected as they are now in order to provide a check upon popular government. The time has come when the people have had too much "check" altogether, and wish to see a few of the checks removed. The defeat of this measure, disguise it how you will, is simply the success of a move to keep the hands of the people off their own government. Somebody fears them. Is the government to be run for those who fear and distrust the people, or is it to be run by the people themselves? That is the only question involved in this measure. So long as there are buffers between the people and their government that are easily controlled by property interests, this country has not yet attained popular government.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

H. W. Lyman told a story at the Lenox yesterday of how a ventriloquist almost started a panic in a small Iowa town. The ventriloquist was traveling for a shoe house and had two very large trunks, which shortly before the time for the departure of the train were placed on the platform of the depot.

The trunks had not been on the platform very long before cries and groans began to issue from the interior of one of them, or at least appeared to do so. "Let me out, I'm being murdered," wailed the voice that seemed to be coming form the trunk.

Most of the residents of the small town were down at the depot, and most of the people imagined that some dark deed had been perpetrated in the midst of the peace and quiet of the little town. Some one shouted for an ax while others started in search of the village constable. At last the town had a real mystery on its hands.

The cries continued to grow louder and more imploring. The voice begged to be released from the trunk. The villagers believed that the supposed person in the trunk was slowly dying. The constable was slow in arriving, so that when he reached the depot the crowd was about ready to break open the trunk and rescue the person that was supposed to be imprisoned inside.

Constable Simmons was filled with the importance of his duty. His sallow face showed a glow of excitement. The constable ordered some one to bring an ax and the boys and men ran in a hundred different directions to secure the weapon.

While waiting for the ax the constable struck an attitude of extreme heroism. He had seen a picture of Napoleon in deep meditation, just before the fateful battle of Waterloo, so the constable sank into a deep reverie and imitated the posture of the little corporal while waiting the bringing of the ax. The villagers looked on with admiration.

Just as the ax brigade was approaching a man who had been loitering on the outskirts of the crowd approached the trunk and drew a key from his pocket. Quickly he opened the trunk and began to rearrange his samples. He was almost knocked from his feet by the rush of the villagers, as they gathered around the trunk with gaping jaws to gaze at the person who had been making the appeals for help.

Imagine the surprise of the excited villagers when they beheld nothing more romantic than a lady's opera slipper. Not that ladies' opera slippers have not been connected with romance, but in this particular instance the people of the little town were expecting more.

With an important air and imperious frown the constable ordered the traveling man to open the other trunk. This he did and nothing but a similar line of samples met the eager gaze. Surely a mystery was confronting the cunning of the constable. The traveling man was questioned, cross questioned and then requestioned. He denied any knowledge of the affair. The constable was holding the traveling man and his trunks for a further investigation, but the commercial man threatened to sue the village if he were compelled to remain in the town.

So it is quite certain that the mystery of the voice that seemed to be coming from the trunk will never be solved, unless the traveling man returns and gives an illustration by showing the possibilities of ventriloquism.

A commercial man who was stopping at the St. Louis recently wanted to make a town that was just fifty miles from Duluth. Here some money from the firm was awaiting him. He had only 75 cents and the fare to the town was exactly $1. What was he to do? Borrowing was against his principals, so he resorted to strategy.

He took the 75 cents to a pawn shop and pawned it for 50 cents. Then he took the ticket and sold it to a brother commercial man for 50 cents. In that way he got his dollar the pawn broker was satisfied and the traveling man had the ticket. Question, who was out on the deal?.

THE WEATHER.

Some more of the same. A good deal more of the same, in fact. The storm center that has been producing all this mischief, instead of moving east as it was expected to do, liked the Head of the Lakes so well that it has stuck right here, and is still doing business at the old stand. This morning a high northeast wind, accompanied by rain, persisted, and the weather man is afraid it is good for tonight and possibly tomorrow, though there is a faint hope that the storm center may move on and let in the good weather that is prevailing today in Dakota.

A year ago today the weather was threatening, but comfortable.

The sun rose this morning at 4:18, and sets tonight at 7:53, making 15 hours and 35 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The center of the storm affecting this vicinity remains stationary over Minnesota and Wisconsin. During the past twenty-four hours light to heavy showers continued over the western lake region and the Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri valleys, with strong northeast winds on western Lake Superior. The display of northeast storm warnings was continued at Duluth, Superior and Two Harbors at 10 a. m. today. Mostly clear weather prevails in the Dakotas, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. The Far Northwest disturbance has moved its center to Wyoming, and has caused showers in Montana, Alberta and British Columbia since 7 a. m. Friday. Temperatures continue rather cool in the Northwest."

And, take it all around, you bet,
We need a lot of things.

The cellar window needs a pane,

We'll need it pretty soon.

We need another bedroom set,
We almost need a stove,
We need a fancy rustic seat
To beautify the grove.
And as for money, well, I guess,
We need it in our biz.
If there is something we don't need,
I don't know what it is.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Life and Sacrifice.

Memorial day gains in impressiveness because it comes at a time when May is gliding into June, when life in every blade and bough is moving toward its consummation, when the vigor, the beauty, the opulence of nature appeal most powerfully to our senses. Just at this time we turn aside to put wreaths upon the graves of our patriot dead, to tell once more the story of their valor, to mourn their departure and to draw lessons of hope and incentive from their careers. But all the while the scent of the spring time blossoms has been wafted to us, the birds have sung merrily above our heads, unconscious of the existence of any such thing as war, and life, not death, has been regnant in the world.

But even this lavish loveliness of nature has, much of it, been evolved from the death of last year's growths. "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die," said the Master, "it abideth alone, but if it die it beareth much fruit." Almost everything fair in nature or in human nature has its pecuiar sloughing off of the old in order that the new may take its place. The thing that links those now far away days in the early '60s to this spring time in the year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and eight, is the eternal element of sacrifice without whose constant operation the world would stand still or retrograde.

What makes these days of strife glorious in the retrospect is the evidence they afforded of the capacity of men to lay down their lives for the cause that they loved. It was the demonstration on a grand and conspicuous scale of a quality never absent from the human breast. Many of those who fell were young, with life stretching away before them all golden with promise and opportunity, and yet they hesitated not a moment to take the risks of battle. As time goes on we dwell less on the issues to settle which they gave their lives than on the fact that they were ready, cheerfully to yield their lives.

And yet men of this type would have lived sacrificial lives had there been no war with its one great test. Indeed, sometimes those who stay at home bear the heavier part of the burden. It is the constant, normal sacrifices in days of peace rather than the abnormal, occasional sacrifices in times of war that show the stuff of which men are made. The scarlet thread runs through all life. What is a home but the product of unnumbered sacrifices on the part of the wife and father. What is a well-ordered, intelligent, righteous community but the outcome of sacrificial effort on the part of many a teacher, many a preacher, many a public official, many a private citizen. They have learned and acted upon that splendid saying, "Life is not a cup to be drained, but a measure to be filled." They are not reaching out in every direction and tapping fountains simply that the waters may flow into their own exclusive cup, and they may drink and be filled. Rather are they contributing of their very life blood to a common chalice, from which other thirsty ones may drink and be satisfied.

This is the permanent lesson of Memorial day, that the sacrificial element is wrought into the very texture of a nation's life, that only as an individual life is touched and thrilled by this sacrificial element does it become fine and strong and beautiful and serviceable. Shall we not take this lesson afresh to our hearts as we go on from another Memorial day to the year before us which is sure to bring us constant challenges to sacrifice in our public and private lives?

Cleveland Leader: "I understand your husband always goes out between acts."

"You heard wrong; he sometimes comes in between drinks."

Philadelphia Press: Miss Romany—It's funny that all these love stories open in the early summer.

Mr. Crabbie—O! that's natural. How else could the heroine be discovered standing among the roses, "none of which are fair as she?"

Chicago Tribune. "Millie," said the young man, as he slipped the engagement ring on her finger, "have you told your mother about this?"

"Oh, you innocent!" exclaimed Miss Millie. "Why, Clarence, mamma knew it six months before you did."

Baltimore American: "Miss Belle Towne may be a pretty woman, but she has such a fixed countenance."

"Of course she has. It takes her half her time to fix it."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "But remember, my dear, that you and I are one."

She looked at him scornfully.

"One!" she echoed. "Nonsense. We are 10. I'm the one and you are the cipher."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of the Herald of This Date, 1888.

Notwithstanding the lowering clouds and threatened rain this morning, the numerous societies that had signified their intention of joining in the march of the Grand Army to the cemetery were on hand this afternoon. In addition to the old veterans there were in line Company K., M. N. G., the Sons of Veterans, Odd Fellows, St. Jean Baptiste, Turner, Hibernian, German, Swea, Knights of Pythias, Knights of Labor and other societies and the Woman's Relief corps. At the cemetery the ritual for the dead was impressively read by Col. C. H. Graves, post commander, a hymn was sung by the Glee club and prayer was offered by Rev. C. C. Salter. The graves were then decorated by a committee of young girls, daughters of the veterans, and Miss Ada Wood recited "Cover Them Over." Company K fired salutes over the graves. Judge West, the orator of the day, then delivered an eloquent address.

There is considerable complaint that the water furnished by the Duluth Gas & Water company throughout the city is not what it should be. The pumphouse is located near the outlet of Chester brook, which is rapidly becoming an open drain for a large section of the city, and it is between this brook and Fisher's creek down which the polluted water from a large slaughter house is constantly pouring. The water company intends to lengthen the intake pipe several hundred feet this season, but this will have little effect. The pumping station should be moved at least two miles eastward from its present location.

Ignatius Donnelly is in England, where his Shakespeare cryptogram has aroused much interest. He has been invited to deliver an address before the students of Oxford university on the cipher.

Teste of the scales at the Buffalo elevators have shown that they are defective and have been responsible for the alleged shortages of grain cargoes from Duluth.

Paul H. Wood has returned from a business trip to Montana.

The Ely residence, on the corner of Second street and Second avenue east, has been bought by Col. A. B. Jones, who will make it his home.

Complaint is made by residents of the East end that their lawns are injured by cows running at large, and demand is made for an ordinance to restrain them.

T. T. Hudson welcomed his parents and brother and sister, who arrived last night from Illinois, to reside here.

The first annual ball of the Bricklayers and Masons' union was held in Ingall's hall, last night. Fully 200 people were present. The floor committee consisted of Messrs. Adams, Hoffman, Oireal and Waite.

A-COMIN' AN' A-GOIN'

By SAVOYARD.

(Copyright, 1908, by E. W. Newman.)

THE other day I saw on the sidewalk George Gray of Delaware. I had not seen him since he left the senate, nine years ago. He is of that order of statesmen who command the confidence of all and get the support of few for first place in the land. They are a numerous tribe—John Forsythe, John M. Clayton, William L. Marcy, Thomas F. Bayard, Levi Woodbury, James Guthrie, Salmon P. Chase, John G. Carlisle, John Sherman, William B. Allison, Allen G. Thurman, Edward Bates, Thomas Ewing, Felix Grundy, John J. Crittenden, Reverdy Johnson, Richard Olney, Judson Harmon, Philander C. Knox, Thomas A. Hendricks, Horatio Seymour, Howell Cobb, and numerous others.

Of all men in the world, the president of the United States ought to be a man of judicial temper and endowed with a capacity for sound thinking. He ought to be a man devoted to the Constitution and able to interpret it according to its plain meaning. He ought to be governed by certain fixed principles and immovable in his adherence to them.

The American people are hero worshipers, and they are never satisfied till they set up an idol to fall down and worship, and sometimes their idol is made of rather poor clay. Henry Clay was one, and a very superior man, a real plumed knight, who had the most devoted following any American ever commanded. Thrice he was a candidate for president and voted for in the electoral college, and thrice he was defeated. In 1840 more than 80 per cent of the Whigs demanded his nomination. He was refused the honor, and the man the party did nominate was elected. Precisely the same thing happened in 1848. The party demanded Clay; the cool heads, who likewise preferred him to all other men, nominated Taylor, and Taylor was elected. Why? Because Taylor could carry New York and Clay could not.

An episode in Mr. Clay's life was as follows: A Kentuckian and a neighbor who worshiped him, and a very rich man for that day, proposed to devise him a large sum of money. It came to Clay's ears, and he served notice on his friend that he could not accept the gift. I have somewhere read of a certain great statesman of our time—made of less immaculate clay—who allowed a guest under his roof to bequeath him $50,000, but this is a commercial age, and political idolatry is now become an asset of pounds, shillings and pence. Indeed, as I now recollect, this great man with his own hand wrote his guest's will bequeathing him the sum of $50,000. I believe there was a lawsuit about it, and the court awarded the money to the widow instead of to the host.

While Mr. Clay was yet alive, Stephen A. Douglas succeeded to the chair of popular idol. He was a very great man—the first debater of senates that contained Toombs and Benjamin, Davis and Crittenden, Pugh and Green, Fessenden and Sumner, Seward and Chase, Collamer and Trumbull. He stood intermediate, antagonizing the radical North and the radical South. Had he prevailed, had the people supported him, the big war would have been averted and slavery would have died a natural and a lingering death.

A few years after the passing of Douglas the groundlings found another popular idol, James G. Blaine. He was a very able man, and even more brilliant than able. Had he not been a most extraordinary character, magnetic and forceful, the publication of the "Mulligan letters" would have done for him what the credit-mobilier did for Schuyler Colfax—sent him disgraced to private life. I was at the Republican national convention in 1888, that was on its head to nominate Blaine. Indeed, the nomination was postponed at least forty-eight hours by his friends, who kept the ocean cable hot—the messages were said to have cost $10,000—begging him to allow the convention to nominate him, but Blaine had a clear head, and knew that he could get more applause than votes. He did not believe that he could be elected, and hence he steadfastly refused to allow the convention to consider his name. Ben Harrison was nominated, and James G. Blaine elected him. A thing exactly like that could happen on the Democratic side of the hedge this very year of 1908 if William J. Bryan were as great a man as James G. Blaine. But the man who shall beat Mr. Bryan for the nomination this year will, if elected at all, achieve the thing in spite of Mr. Bryan, and it is that very feeling pervading Democratic leaders at the South that will nominate Mr. Bryan if he is nominated. The word is "nominate him, and beat him worse than Parker was, and we will be rid of him."

Not long after Mr. Blaine's death, William J. Bryan got to be the popular idol and went up and down the earth getting more applause than the rest of the statesmen together. His gospel was that 47 cents is a dollar, and that it is criminal to be rich. Strong men got hysterics when he came around, and one fellow was blasphemous enough to strive to touch the hem of his alpaca coat, that virtue might issue to him thence. The country was in a frenzy, and it hasn't got out of it yet.

But in 1901 a greater than Bryan appeared. He, too, was a popular idol, and, unlike all the others, he was the most successful vote-getter our country has yet produced, with the single exception of George Washington. He has done and is constantly doing things that would have forever damned any other public man of our history, with the exception of his rival idol, Bryan. If Andy Johnson had done any one of a dozen things Theodore Roosevelt has perpetrated to hurricanes of applause, the impeachment would have been accomplished and Andy hurled from office. Roosevelt's interpretations of the Constitution are those of the usurper. He has already nullified the tenth amendment. For example: It is the right of the sovereign state of California to provide that Japs be admitted to the common schools of San Francisco. California failed, and refused to do that. Roosevelt interposed and forced Jap children into those schools. Mr. Roosevelt announces that when a state neglects or declines to exercise its reserved powers, it is the right and the duty of the Federal government to do so. And, touching child labor in the states, Mr. Bryan cordially indorses the heresy of his co-idol.

This curious phase is presented. Mr. Bryan has given Mr. Roosevelt a certificate of good statesmanship, and Mr. Roosevelt has declared that what he has insisted on was to save this country from the diabolical statesmanship of Mr. Bryan. Mr. Bryan says that Rooseveltism is very good. Mr. Roosevelt says Bryanism is simply horrible. In one thing they are in perfect accord, and that the augmentation of governmental power at Washington. Thirty years ago our country was a republic; today it is a bureaucracy, with hundreds of thousands of civil service agents. Unless the Democratic party comes out of the hypnotic trance into which it fell in 1894, when it abandoned Clevelandism for Bryanism, ere the new century fulfills its fifth lustrum there will be on the Federal pay roll 1,000,000 civil service officials, and every citizen's conduct will be put under the scrutiny of a bureau in Washington.

This is not idle speculation. In our Nebraska platform, written less than six weeks ago by Mr. Bryan, it is declared that no corporation shall control 50 per cent of any product. What is Mr. Bryan going to do with the patent office? That establishment, up to three years ago, had created 756,523 absolute monopolies—every one private.

Now, I make the assertion that the inventive genius of this people, rewarded by letters patent, establishing unequivocal monopolies, has been of incalculable blessing to the American people, and especially that class Mr. Bryan has in such affectionate ward—the farmers. It is hardly extravagance to say that the patent office, the sole mission of which is to create private monopoly, has done as much to make our country great as cheap bread and meat ever did.

If no corporation is to control more than 50 per cent of a product, what corporation would know how many hands to employ, how much material to buy, how large a plant to erect? And then again there would be necessity to create another department at Washington, presided over by a secretary of production, with thousands and thousands of special agents running up and down the earth investigating private affairs. Spies would be everywhere and business would be chaos. Mr. Bryan cannot find terms too extravagant to eulogize Abraham Lincoln for freeing the negro, who was made to produce all he could, and here he is advocating a despotism that limits the production of the white man. The old South would have stood that for about a quarter of a second. God help us—the old South is now but a fond and revered memory.

I have made a thousand predictions, most of them discredited by the events, but that shall not deter me now. Taft will be nominated. Bryan will be nominated. Hearst's plutocratic friend, Hisgen, will be nominated. It will be a whirlwind campaign. The Democrats will make the noise, the Republicans will make the organization and the Hearstites will make fences for 1912.

About the calends of October, or a little later, Teddy will take the sump and his crowds will dwarf Bryan's, while the noise they make will drown that of the Bryan meetings.

• • •

The result in the electoral college will be the same. Then the Northern Democracy will be shipwrecked and Hearst will gather the salvage.

And all because the old South, that feared God and nothing else, is dead.

MR. CREWE'S CAREER. By Winston Churchill. New York: The Macmillan Company. $1.50.

A new novel from Mr. Churchill is a literary event, to which a large body of novel-readers look forward with keen anticipation. From the first this body of readers has been a very large one; indeed, large enough to put his books among the "best sollers," a list which they grace with more real merit than most of the fortunate company.

In "Coniston," a story of New Hampshire politics covering a period a generation or two ago, Mr. Churchill reached the highest point to which he had yet attained. In "Mr. Crewe's Career," which is a story of New Hampshire politics of a later day, one not far in the past, he gains another step in the ladder of literary achievement, and though this new novel contains no single character so strongly pictured as the chief figure in "Coniston," it contains a better grade of character-drawing on the average than any of his previous novels. It is narrowing the interest of the book unjustly, however, to say that it is a story of New Hampshire politics, because it is a story of American politics. The conditions which he describes in this book are to be found in every state of the Union, a little bewildered and somewhat baffled by the rise of the people and their attacks upon the ranks of the political bosses, but still there, waiting to be finally mowed down and cast out.

Mr. Churchill's new book is manifestly the fruit of his experience as a member of the New Hampshire legislature. The conditions and the machinery he describes are peculiarly those of that state. He has evidently been recognized by everybody familiar with legislative and political machinery in any other states. The book is dedicated "to men who, in every state in the Union, are engaged in the struggle for purer politics," and they will find much in it that will strike chords of poignant memories; much, too, of encouragement and hope.

To the general reader the localization of the characters and incidents will be of little concern. No matter what state the reader may be in, he may be sure that in his legislature and political condition there is—or has been—the same shameful co-partnership between the railroads and other corporations and the political powers that be. The story will explain to those who do not already know why there has apparently been in this country of late a sweep of resentment against the railroads and big business corporations, occasionally taking the form of bitter hostility. It is the indignation of a people who have awakened to the knowledge that they had been betrayed by their public servants into the hands of those who have been profiting by the betrayal. The awakening is barely hinted at in the story, which ends as the awakening comes about.

Some may think the story overdrawn in its relations of the partnership of politics and big business. It may be that in some states it has not been quite so bad as it was in New Hampshire, but to a greater or less extent it has been very bad in every state, and it is still bad in the national congress. It is a very illuminating book, and it will do a large part in perpetuating the reform movement that is in progress.

The story of America's shame is told plainly, vigorously and fearlessly, but, beyond that, it makes a splendid novel. The hero and the heroine are real people—manly man and a womanly woman, whose association in the tender relationship of hero and heroine cannot fail to give pleasure to the readers. Hilary Vane, the railroad attorney who controls the political machinery of the state in the interests of his railroad; Austin Vane, his son, the hero, a wild, willful youth, but a born leader and a brilliant figure in the awakening—the novel, by the way, might aptly have been called "The Awakening"—Humphry Crewe, the self-satisfied aristocrat who thinks the plain people should be floored when he condescends to become their champion, who goes into politics with great vigor and determination and with a very patronizing devotion to the people's interests, and the story of whose political career makes very good comedy; Pardriff, the country editor, who rides on a pass and prints what the railroad wants and omits what it does not want; Job Braden and other local "bosses" and legislative bell wethers; Hamilton Tooting, the corporation jackal—lobbyist, detective, procurer of personal injury claims: these are the real people who have their counterparts in every state and who make this picture of American life very real and very useful.

PRIEST AND PAGAN. By Herbert M. Hopkins. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. $1.25.

The chief interest of this strong novel of sensations lies in its development of two characters; that of Cresson, the Priest, a very human but very strong young man with a strain of Jewish blood and a very active conscience; and that of Berwyn, the Pagan, a young man who, having been reported as drowned, leaves his relatives to mourn his loss, and when he remembers that he shouldn't have done this determines to win a reputation as an author before he reveals himself. The promise of good faith in the Pagan's determination is not borne out by subsequent events and the innate heartlessness and paganism of his character are laid bare by circumstance. Circumstance, on the other hand, welds the character of the priest—he is an Episcopal clergyman but in the reaction of conscience because of his concealment of his Jewish blood he turns missioner to the Ghetto—into rigid steel. The girl of the story is not altogether satisfactory. She seems to be the sport of each passing emotion, the slave of whatever stronger nature overshadows her own, and—temporarily at least—she picks the young man in a way that makes the reader want to shake her for her blindness, though her realization of her mistake is so prompt as to win instant sympathy. It is a good story, well told.

STORIES OF THE STRUGGLE. By Morris Winchevsky. Chicago: Chas. H. Kerr & Co. 50 cents.

The author states that this collection of short tales and sketches might have been called "Behind the Scenes in the Socialist Movement," and it could not be better described. The stories are intimate views of the under side of the struggle for freedom and equality now going on all over the world. Though not uniformly good, they are very vivid, and they possess much native strength.

THE COMMON SENSE OF SOCIALISM. By John Spargo. Chicago. Chas. H. Kerr & Co. Cloth, $1; paper, 25 cents.

The Socialist propaganda hasn't a clearer, saner and more convincing writer in America than John Spargo, whose writings in behalf of the masses have accomplished much good. His "Bitter Cry of the Children" is a magnificent philippic against child labor. In the present volume he addresses a series of letters to a typical American workingman, Jonathan Edwards of Pittsburg, who is supposed to have written him about Socialism, stating his doubts about it and the questions that have arisen in his mind or that have been suggested to him by opponents of Socialism. In a clear, vivid style, marked for its simplicity and strength, the author answers this inquiry, telling what Socialism is and what it isn't. He says that most people oppose Socialism because they have in mind something that bears no relationship to Socialism, and that when they find out what it really is they find that they have really believed in it all the time. He appeals direct to the hard-headed, practical sense in the intelligent American, and makes as strong a brief for his type of economic views as anybody has yet written.

TRUTH. By E. E. Arner. Faribault, Minn.: Faribault Pilot Publishing Company. 25 cents.

The author of this book, noting the vast disagreements and puzzlements and doubts of the economic and political fields, seeks to tell the truth about it all and thus set the people to rights, so that they may know what to go after. Knowing what to go after, they will get it, so the purpose is a good one. He says that one set of economists looks upon the trusts as an outgrowth of an economic development, and therefore inevitable and uncontrollable, while another says that they are wrong in themselves, and should be dissolved, giving as the only alternative, government ownership of the means of production and distribution. Agreeing with neither, he finds the proper remedy in government regulation, not government neglect or government ownership, and this book seeks to tell why that is the only proper solution. It is probable, however, that he has the two opposing sets of thinkers a little mixed. Those who favor government ownership believe that the formation of trusts is an economic evolution; that monopoly has naturally and properly replaced a wasteful competition; and that the choice is between private monopoly, which is a tyranny that we cannot accept, and public monopoly, which is government ownership. This writer comes between with the acceptance of the growth of monopoly, and the proposal that government insure the participation of the people in the benefits of monopoly by government regulation. Undoubtedly that will be tried; if it fails, then in the opinion of many people government ownership—Socialism, in short—will come about.

THE CHAPERON. By C. N. and A. M. Williamson. New York: The McClure company. $1.50.

It is a motorboat, this time, which the ingenious Williamsons choose as their vehicle for a fascinating story. There are automobiles, too, but they only come in for side trips, and are not at all essential to the progress of the story, which the motorboat certainly is. It is really a description of a very pleasant trip around the canals and waterways of Holland, but you never would suspect it. The charming descriptions are intermingled so delicately with the processes of the story, that unless you deliberately take note of it, you will not realize that you are being personally conducted upon a tour that must be delightful indeed. The love affairs of seven young people, five of whom are the passengers upon the motorboat, make up the story, which is full of very peasant comedy, not without its spice of adventure and brimming with enjoyable romance. The book has dash, piquancy and charm.

THE FIVE KNOTS. By Fred M. White. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1.50.

This prolific author of thrills draws upon the Orient this time for his mystery, which hovers around the peculiar manner in which certain men are found dead with their heads encircled by a silken cord in which five peculiar knots are tied. The scenes are located in England of today, and the story concerns the search made by a group of Malays for a certain treasure that has been stolen from them by an English adventurer, Samuel Flower. Into the turmoil of mystery and tragedy this involves are swept Flower's niece and a Dr. Mercer, who furnish the slender love theme which the turbulent action of the story renders subordinate. The book is quite up to the usual style of this English writer who makes a specialty of just this sort of story, and who does them—including this one—rather better than the average of his class. The tale will appeal to jaded interest.

THE BIRD OUR BROTHER. By Olive Thorne Miller. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. $1.25.

This is a very intimate and attractive description of bird habits and characteristics which cannot fail to appeal to all lovers of nature. It is based upon the real and sympathetic observations of the author and others, and while it is not technical, it provides a very comprehensive and very fascinating review of American bird life. The author well describes it as simply an earnest attempt to bring into compact form the information gathered by the author and others; "to present the bird as an individual fellow pilgrim in this fair world of ours."

THE ADVENTURES OF CHARLES EDWARD. By Harrison Rhodes. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1.50.

Here is a thoroughly pleasing and abundantly interesting story, or series of stories, with a hero as captivating and engaging as any in current fiction. The first chapter presents a specimen of his peculiarly audacious and irresistible methods. Being a stranger in London he volunteers to give a dinner to another American, the guests to be distinguished and beautiful London people who do not know their host and whom their host does not know. He attempts it, and as in all his subsequent adventures, his perfect self-possession and self-confidence, combined with an irresistible good humor and attractiveness, enable him to bring it to a successful conclusion in spite of the perils that are so obvious. The reader can't help liking Charles Edward, even though he may be perfectly aware that if any ordinary human being tried any of his adventures he would be arrested and subjected to all sorts of humiliation. A pleasant feature of the book is furnished by Penrhyn Stanlaws, who provides twenty-four full-page drawings that are peculiarly piquant.

THE AVENGER. By E. Phillips Oppenheim. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1.50.

In his own particular field, this man Oppenheim is supreme. It may not be a very broad field; it may not further the uplift of humanity; it may not pervade the atmosphere with sweetness and light; but it doesn't scatter fogs or cloudiness, it doesn't disturb anybody's ideals, and it does interest. Blood and thunder? Perhaps, but it is real blood, not diluted red ink; and it is real thunder, not the property-man manipulating a piece of sheet iron. The advertisement on the cover of this new volume says: "In 'The Avenger' Mr. Oppenheim has exercised all the powers of his fertile imagination, and with exceeding skill has unraveled an intricate tangle of political intrigue and private revenges, the result being a novel of the most absorbing dramatic interest." Comment upon the story further than to say that this advertisement is not overdrawn in the slightest degree, and that it is a rattling tale, moving swiftly to a well-wrought climax, is unnecessary.

BARHAM BEACH; a Poem of Regeneration. By Julia Ditto Young. Buffalo: Published by the author.

This seems to be a poetic novel, embracing a love tale of vivid strength, with a hero manifestly modelled upon the character of President Roosevelt. Louise, the heroine, wife to Lance, a convicted criminal, and mother of his child, loves Theodore, who returns her love. After renunciation, the death of the convict smoothes the way to the happy finish. The story is purely imaginative, though there is no mistaking the identity of "Theodore," who

"Felt in his soul that the beautiful earth belonged
Just to the common people, befooled of it, cheated and wronged,
What! Should he seal up his vision against the appalling fact
That close to America's money center lies a hopeless tract
Of poverty all as degrading, as brutalizing to man
As ever rotted and stank upon earth since earth's existence began,
That in cannon shot even of the slender spires and under the golden domes
The poor are huddled to fester and faint in their fever struck homes,
That palaces gilded and floating and fine of multifold millionaires
Glide by the wharf rats starved, half naked and numb on the water stairs,
That near to a banquet Lucullian, rose-rich, where the wine free floweth as rain,
There be those who are drowning in charcoal fumes their hunger and utterless pain?

The poem is in nineteen parts, and no two consecutive parts are in the same form or meter. While the lines are not of uniform virtue, the poet displays a rich profusion of imagery that is little short of tropic.

TERRIBLE TEDDY AND PEACEFUL BILL; or, The Quest of the Treasure Box. By H. L. Sayler. Chicago: The Reilly & Britton company. Paper, 50 cents.

The story of current politics, written in a deliciously accurate imitation of the dime novel style, tells us not only of the two notables mentioned in the title, but of False Alarm Joe, Buttermilk Charley, Sliver Bill Brennings, Old Joke Annon, Billy Whiskers, Yon Yonson, Big Smoke (Henry Watterson,) Young Albert, the boy orator, Randolph Curst, Old Shucks, the detective (Leslie M. Shaw,) Badger Bob, Old Rich (Aldrich,) Pittsburg Phil and others. The skit is very cleverly written, and some good caricatures by Francis Gallup embellish it.

EDGAR ALLAN POE. By John Macy. Boston: Small, Maynard & Co. 75 cents.

This is one of the "Beacon Biographies," the aim of which is to furnish a series of brief, readable and authoritative accounts of the lives of those Americans who have impressed their personality most deeply on the character of their countrymen. Though special care is taken to lay the accent upon the personal side of the subject and the characteristics which made him and his work notable, each volume is very carefully designed to take its proper place in what is intended to be, in the end, a comprehensive view of American history in the entertaining and vivid form of a just and lifelike portraiture of its chief characters. Mr. Macy's sketch of Poe admirably carries out the idea of the publishers of this series and seeks to give the reader a right view of the man as seen from modern days and interests.

Among the Magazines.

The June number of Scribner's Magazine begins Will H. Low's "Chronicle of Friendships," which is almost the first example of artist memories in American letters. Low's recollections have to do with the present generation of American artists, many of whom are at the height of their career. It is a charming circle into which he introduces the reader in the first number—Theodore Robinson, R. A. M. Stevenson, Ridgway Knight, Wyatt Eaton,—with the life in the studio of Carolus-Duran, and in the court where these artists lived with their foreign fellow-students. The paper is fully illustrated, some of the sketches by contemporaries. Another artist who can write is Sidney M. Chase, who describes the life of a Maine fishing village in the summer time, giving, in the picturesque language of an old fisherman, the very essence of the place. He illustrates it fully with his own sketches.

Harper's Magazine for June devotes its opening pages to Waldemar Kaempffert's narrative of the astonishing new theory of light pressure, which is the most wonderful discovery of modern astronomy, and excites the imagination with a fresh conception of the universe. Vilhjalmr Stefansson gives an uncommon description of a winter among the Eskimos east of the Mackenzie river, the least-known people of the North American continent. In "A Glimpse of the Clipper Ship Days," Capt. Arthur H. Clark offers not only a historical resume of a romantic period in navigation, but an intimate study of the old sea captains. The article is like a genuine breath of the ocean. Edward S. Martin discusses with delicate humor the congenial topic of our popular "Proclivities and Compunctions," and Prof. Thomas R. Lounsbury considers "The Correct Use of Words" in his usual sensible fashion.

A very jolly feature of the June Century is the series of Harvard, Yale and Princeton "Old College Songs"—"Fair Harvard," "I-ee!" and "Old Nassau"—with drawings, eight pages in all, by John Wolcott Adams, who has done his work with a vanished touch. Of altogether different quality, but also marked by timeliness, is Mrs. Isaac L. Rice's condemnation of "Our Barbarous Fourth"—whose "grim statistics probably furnish a sadder commentary on human folly than that afforded by any other celebration in the world"—a helpfully constructive, as well as destructive, discussion of a very live question. There will be some new ideas for most readers in Gerald H. Thayer's discussion in this issue of "The Concealing Coloration of Animals," in which he treats at length, with much detail of interest, of Abbott H. Thayer's discoveries—first of the great principle of counteracted light and shade, "by which almost alone the long recognized 'protective coloration' of animals is achieved; and, second, that most of the colorations which have always been called 'conspicuous' are purely and potently concealing."

A novelette with a Southern California setting is the main feature of the June Smart Set. It is entitled, "Hors-d'Oeuvres" and is written by Austin Adams, who has contributed many charming short stories to the magazines. A young American girl, who has become impoverished, seeks a situation as governess on the plantation of a wealthy Mexican, and the pictures given of her life with this interesting family are delightful. The story is light and rollicking, but it has an undercurrent of seriousness that gives it a place far above the average ephemeral magazine fiction. Anne Warner, the creator of Susan Clegg, tells a very human little story of an artist who painted only one picture; she called it, "It Was Sold—That's All."

Every one is interested just now in the two big national conventions to be held in Chicago and Denver. This interest is natural when the selection of presidential candidates is fraught with so much importance to the country. It is prophesied that the two conventions will be the most sensational since 1860. The Metropolitan Magazine publishes an article on "The National Conventions and the Country," by Charles Wadsworth Camp, reciting entertaining and dramatic incidents of those of the past from which inferences of those about to be held may be drawn, and reviewing the situation as it appears on the eve of the conventions.

In the June number of Popular Mechanics is given a full description of a French scientist's demonstration of his ability to produce real diamonds artificially. The event took place before the president of the De Beers South Africa Diamond Mining company. The French scientist was thrown in prison on a charge of fraud, but there are many who believe that the diamond magnate was frightened by the actual results he saw attained, fearing effect on the diamond market. A number of good illustrations in the same number depict the devastation wrought by the recent fire at Chelsea, Mass.

The June number of The American Magazine is up to the high standard of excellence now maintained by this periodical. It contains humor, stories, and an abundance of interesting and important informing. Mr. Dooley, who is writing for nobody but the American Magazine, contributes an article on Diplomacy. William J. Locke, author of "The Beloved Vagabond," is just beginning his new serial, "Simple Septimus." Lincoln Steffins contributes "An Apology for Graft." Ray Stannard Baker writes of "The Negro in Politics." Ada and Julian Street contribute a translation of selections from "La 628 E 8" by Octave Mirbeau—the experiences of an automobilist on the road, the speed of an automobile, the story of a chauffeur, and so on.

For genuine icy thrill up and down your spinal column read "Billy Thurston's Reversion" by Frank Atwater Ward in June 10 Story Book. It is the story of the man who literally reverted back to his tree-climbing ancesters. 10 Story Book, by the way, is becoming more and more pronounced every month in its tendency toward those wierd and fantastic stories by which Poe and Maupassant and Bierce send their readers chattering under the bed clothes.

Five hundred photographs of President Roosevelt, all assembled in one big double-page picture, 13x19½ inches in size, is an extraordinary feature of the June Woman's Home Companion. The 500 photographs were taken in almost every state in the Union, at all periods of Roosevelt's public career, and show his wonderful versatility and energy. In the June Companion appears the first chapters of Harvey J. O'Higgins' great story, "A Grand Army Man," based on Belasco's famous play of the same name, in which David Warfield starred all last winter. Other fiction in this delightful summer magazine is by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Zona Gale, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Temple Bailey and Clinton Dangerfield.

The romance of the June bride is a living reality in the pages of the Housekeeper for June. "Her Wedding Gown," by Ada B. Rogers, is a clever bit of fiction with a delightful ending. "The Benediction of Service," by Emily Ruth Calvin, is another story of romance. "A Close Corporation," the serial by Elizabeth Knight Tompkins, is continued. "In the Land of Canaries" is an interesting article by W. G. Fitz-Gerald. The other stories and special articles are equally attractive. There is also a double page of answers to the query, "Why Do People Not Want to Go to Church?"

The Engineering Magazine for June gives the leading place to Herbert T. Wade's profusely illustrated description of the exhibition of the American Museum of Safety Devices held in New York during April and May. In addition to describing the leading exhibits, Mr. Wade shows clearly the important influence exerted by such museums in Europe and the necessity for some such educational influence in America to check the enormous death rate due to indifference.

As an instance of wide-awake, unalloyed entertainment the June Lippincott's deserves a place in the front row. This number opens, as always, with a complete-in-one-issue novel, followed by a strong showing of "fiction, fact, and fun." The novel is "The Plague of a Heart," by Helen Milecete, a young Canadian writer, who is rapidly making a name for herself. Katherine Holland Brown's contribution is called "The Birth of Irony," a striking tale of the cave man and his love; Anna Wharton Morris is the author of a charming summer romans, "A Hundred Dollars Down;" from the clever pen of Owen Oliver there is "Lady Tommy," a story of English setting scintillating with wit; "The Lone War," by Will Levington Comfort, is a story of heroism which makes the point clear that the size of a man's body has nothing to do with his spirt.

The baseball batter and catcher on the front cover of the June American Boy will excite interest and amusement with every one who loves the national game. In variety and interest the contents of this number will please every reader. The opening chapters of a splendid serial, "Bred in the Bone, or Born an Electrician," by Edwin J. Houston, one of the foremost authorities on electricity, is given, and promises to be both entertaining and instructive; "That Dillingham Boy" and "Four Boys on the Mississippi," are continued with increasing interest, and "Jimmy Jones—Pirate" has reached its conclusion.

The illustrations alone would make the June McClure's a notable number. Beside the St. Gaudens frontispiece there are two charming color reproductions of Gilbert Stuart's portraits of Don Josef de Jaudenes y Nebot and his young American wife with a short article on them by Samuel Isham. Miss Terry's monthly installment, "My First Appearance in America," affords an opportunity for unusually interesting illustration. "A land of sunshine and light, of happiness, of faith in the future," is the English actress' enthusiastic summing up of America. George Kennan contributes a very interesting article on "The Problems of Suicide," giving some startling statistics, of which not the least surprising is the fact that the "rare day in June" is the real "suicide breeder."

Success Magazine for June describes a number of our well-known men as they appear before the camera in an article by Robert Lee Dunn. Sidney Curtis contributes a character sketch of President Eliot. Congressman Quinn, through the medium of Henry Beach Needham, tells what he thinks of the house of representatives. Robert Mackay contributes a descriptive-historical article upon the the Madison Square region of New York city.

Among the leading articles in the Technical World Magazine for June are: "How the Dirt Flies at Panama," by Roy Crandall; "Sowing Future Fish Crops," by John Ray Smith, Jr.; "To Travel by Tornado," by T. B. Moon; "Billions in Swamps," by C. F. Carter; "Milk Bottles out of Paper," by Emmett Campbell Hall; "Life Work to Make Huge Bugs," by Henry Hale.

In House and Garden for June, C. L. Meller points out that "Pruning" is an art learned only by long study and careful practice. Trees are numerous, he says, that have been rendered permanently unsightly because the man with the saw lacked all knowledge of their nature or needs, and was unable to appreciate the difference between lumbering and pruning.

An interesting feature of the current number of Smith's Magazine is the play "Polly of the Circus," told in short-story form and illustrated profusely with photographs taken from the New York production. This was one of the most emphatic successes of the theatrical season which has just closed. In story form and with the splendid illustrations, the work preserves in great measure the fascination, the realism, and pretty sentiment that made it such a success on the boards. Those who like the theater but have few opportunities to see the play they like owe a good deal to this sort of enterprise on the part of the magazines.

People's Magazine for June contains, besides its 192 pages of complete fiction, 32 pages of clearly printed pictures representing scenes from the current plays. An especially interesting feature of this number is the new series of military stories by Wolcott Le Clear Beard, who having been himself on the firing-line in three countries, has a deep knowledge and insight into this life, which bristles on every page. An illustrated military poem, entitled "Sailing Orders," by Alfred Damon Runyon, will prove of timely interest to readers.

Ainslee's for June has a list of fiction of a quality and variety that make it the best magazine of fiction published. Some of the authors are W. A. Frazer, Steel Williams, Ralph D. Paine, Austin Adams, Frederick M. Smith, Owen Oliver, Johnson Morton, Carter Goodloe, Fanny Kemble Johnson, and Margarita Spalding Gerry.

Gunter's Magazine for June is peculiarly fitting for the month of romance and roses. It contains the initial story of a series entitled "The Sword of Esme Dacres," by that talented author, Alan Gordon. These stories deal with the romantic and thrilling experiences of a young adventurer in the time of Queen Bess. The adventure in the June number is, "Out of the Fog," and introduces Esme Dacres with a clash of steel, and after concluding this adventure, bids him farewell as he starts out on a perilous mission. "The Fortunes of Blackmorton" is a stirring tale of the remarkable career of a man on change who makes and loses a couple of fortunes in a trice.

• • •

The Popular Magazine for June opens with a complete novel, "My Lord of the Pillagers," by Francis Lynde, author of "The Taming of Red Butte Western," etc. It is a great story, full of rapidly shifting scenes and intensely dramatic situations. The main interest lies in the efforts of the hero to prevent the despoliation of forest reserves by an organized band of lumber thieves. "How He Became a Ball-player," by W. B. M. Ferguson, is the unvarnished account of the supposed formation of the greatest baseball nine the world has ever known.

Fiction that strikes the human note is what Young's Magazine aims to offer its readers. The June issue, with a novelette and twenty short stories is an especially "human" number, without a "sawdust story" in its pages. The novelette, of Aubrey Lanston, "The Intrusion of Pamela" is a passionate, appealing story, exquisite as a pastel etching, whose heroine, a lovely, flower-like beauty of smart London society, is leading a remarkable dual life. When she is suddenly revealed as a "scarlet woman," the clever young diplomat who loves her, refuses to believe and urges her to marry him. So skilfully is the tense situation handled that there is no "bad taste" left, and the delightful denouement is absolutely unforesen. A startling vivid, colorful romance of a countess and a newspaper man who met in the dense blackness of a "black scene" in a theater is "Belkis," by Alice Leal Pollock.

SOCIETY

THE WEATHER has so overshadowed all other matters of consideration that all hope of getting truly interested in any other subject has been given up. There is a unanimity of opinion concerning the weather that makes discussion of it difficult. Boiled into the prevailing feminine phrase it is "just horrid" and the masculine phrase is unprintable. During the last two days the cheerful idiot who enjoys weather has not dared breathe forth a single word of tolerance for the brand which has been coming. The theory that it always has cleared up and so presumably it will again has been advanced over time and the observation has been made that if Duluth people stopped doing things because of the weather, there would be a dearth of diversion. Also it has been said that of course one realizes that nature needs a little rain—but this downpour; that it is certainly fierce, has been mentioned so many times that the count is lost. Weather has occupied Duluth almost to the exclusion of all else.

When spring comes the shut-ins will flock like hungry chickens at the call of mealtime to the out of doors, and picnics and June weddings will rival each other in attractiveness.

The most interesting event of the coming week will be the wedding of Miss Lou Smallwood and Frank Eugene Brooks, which will take place at St. Paul's Episcopal church. The service will be read at noon by Rev. A. W. Ryan. The bride will be attended by her sister, Mrs. G. Herbert Jones, as matron of honor, and as bridesmaids she will have Miss Smallwood and Miss Ethleen Fee. Mr. Brooks will be attended by S. D. Glass of Minneapolis, and the ushers are to be Paul Welch, W. H. Smallwood, Jr., Paul Morris and S. D. Brooks of Scanlon.

Mr. Brooks and his bride will leave for a wedding trip and after their return will be at home at 1729 East Fourth street.

Miss Smallwood has been one of the most feted brides of the spring season. The concluding affair in her honor was the informal dancing party, at which Dr. and Mrs. Jones were hosts, last evening, at the Boat clubhouse.

• • •

Mrs. M. J. Forbes of 530 East Second street, who spent the winter at Palo Alto, Cal., is expected home next week.

WIVES ARE CHEAPER THAN DONKEYS IN TURKEY

MRS. D. M. B. THOM.

"A donkey may be purchased in Turkey for $4.50, American money, but a wife may be secured for even less than that in that land where wives are bought," said Mrs. D. M. B. Thom today in speaking of Turkish life and ways. Mrs. Thom is the guest of her cousin Mrs. B. E. Baker of Lester Park, and will remain in this city another week. She with her husband and little daughter are now enjoying a rest from missionary labors at Mardin, Turkey. They will return to the field in July of this year, sailing from Montreal. Dr. Thom has been stationed at the missionary hospital at Mardin for more than thirty years, and Mrs. Thom has spent twenty-two years as missionary to the Turkish people. They go from America under the direction of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

"Wives are invariably bought in Turkey," continued Mrs. Thom. "Those of the middle class may cost the prospective bridegroom several hundred dollars, but the lower classes can secure them at sale prices. The marriage customs are interesting. The women friends of the man decide upon the girl he is to marry. He calls at the house in some cases and requests the maid to bring him a glass of water or a cup of coffee, and upon her demeanor while performing this service he decides whether or not he will have her. The girl of course realizes what is going on and that her future is in a way at stake, for the Turkish maidens have nothing on earth to look forward to but marriage, and she is often confused and awkward at the ordeal. He may decide that he won't marry her and the matter is dropped or he may decide favorably and the wedding preparations go forward. In other cases the interested people do not see each other at all until the time of the marriage ceremony.

"The Turkish women are not taught to read or write and their only aim in life is marriage and days of ease in which they talk and talk and do nothing but talk. With the years of missionary effort this condition is slightly improved and education for the women is becoming a little more general. The men of the country who receive some slight learning to make business possible are also coming to desire educated wives."

The difficulties of the field in which Dr. and Mrs. Thom have pursued their missionary labors may be realized when it is known that in the town of Mardin there is no telegraph, no telephone, electric lights nor gas. There is no machinery operated by steam and there are used none of the modern implements of labor. Not even a plow is used but a crooked stick is dragged through the ground to answer this purpose. No papers or magazines are published, there is no theater or place of amusement. There is no water system and in the country there is none of the attraction of an old civilization which would fill the country and the people with an added interest.

The laws of Turkey prohibit the carrying forward of missionary effort among the Moslems, and consequently the work now being done is exclusively with the people of the so-called Christian church, which has departed far, however, from the accepted Christianity of the Western world. Contrary to the popular belief, there is little or no native rug weaving in Turkey and within the last few years the weaving of rugs has been taught the orphans in the schools by the missionaries. Through this industrial training it is hoped that eventually much may be done for the people, but Turkey, now occupying a unique position in the world's affairs, is a difficult country to labor in. The government does nothing for its people and the other powers who covet the country dare not, for fear of each other.

Mrs. Thom has some most interesting and beautiful pieces of old Turkish embroidery which she brought from the country. When she returns in July it will be to enter upon another ten years' missionary labor.

Leo Schmied in Recital.

Mrs. Emma L. Schmied last evening presented her son, Leo Lachmund Schmied, in a piano recital, and the representative audience which gathered to hear the young musician completely filled the auditorium of Pilgrim Congregational church. During the evening a rare sympathy and interest was manifest in every effort of the young performer. Master Schmied is but 16 years of age, and the program he played was one worthy of an experienced concert-giver. He has studied exclusively with his mother, and Duluth may well be proud that in its musical circles it boasts a youth of such training. The opening group included a prelude and Fugue in C Minor of Bach, and "Pastorale" and "Capricco" of Scarlatti-Tausig, which were played with a fine understanding of the classic requirement of the old masters. The numbers were marked with a dignified character. The concluding number of the group was "Sarabande," by Rameau-MacDowell. In the Beethoven number, the "Moonlight Sonata," some of the best work of the evening was shown. The quiet, sustained character of the first movement was finely realized by the young musician, and the contrast of the succeeding Allegretto and Presto Agitato movements was admirably brought out. The four sea pieces of MacDowell were splendidly played, the reading being of remarkable clarity and convincing force. The brilliant "Papillons," by Rosenthal, was an interesting number, as were the group of nine sketches of "A Day in the Woods," which is a composition of the player's own. The latest compositions by Ernest Lachmund of this city, who is spending the winter in Berlin, were played, and are delightful bits of music.

Bendel, Grieg and Leschetisky numbers were included in the closing groups, and the program was brought to a brilliant close with a "Scherzo" by Karganoff. He was recalled repeatedly, and the encore numbers were "Pavane," by Scharpe, and "Diabolique," by Leybeck.

Seldom has a Duluth audience been more interested or enthusiastic over a piano recital. The members of the senior class of the high school, of which Master Schmied is an honor member, were his guests last evening at the recital and presented their classmate with a bouquet of roses. A number of the senior boys assisted in ushering. The career of the young student will be watched with interest, as he enters Harvard university in the autumn, and as yet his plans for the future are not definitely made. His performance last evening showed powers of unusual greatness and, with the understanding and grasp which maturity will bring added to the splendid training and sympathy which are now his, may bring him to a high place in the world of art.

Bobby and Fenny's Picnic Dinner.

A STORY FOR THE WEE ONES, BY MAUD WALKER.

Bobby was seven years old. He had curls and freckles and a sore big toe. Fenny was Bobby's sister, aged five. She had curls and freckles, but no sore big toe. Now, the sore big toe was what kept Bobby home from school one day; it hurt him to wear his good shoes. He didn't mind wearing his old shoes—those with the holes in the toes. Oh, no, indeed; he liked wearing those old shoes, for then his sore big toe could take a peep out of doors—or I should say out of shoe—every little while. And as Fenny was still too young to go to school (they lived in the country, where there were no kindergartens) she did not need a sore big toe to keep her at home. The fact is, Fenny would have loved to go to school; although her brother Bobby wished very much to stay at home every chance he got.

"I'll tell you what let's do," said Bobby on the morning of our story. "Let's have a picnic down behind the chicken-coop. Mamma won't care if we go there, for that won't hurt my sore big toe."

"Oh, doodness! Won't 'at be jes' fine?" cried Fenny. And she clapped her hands in glee. "I love a picnic, I do, bruver." (Fenny remembered a picnic that her mamma had taken her to almost a year ago.)

"What'll we have for our picnic dinner?" asked Bobby. "Mamma's gone to town an' Nancy, she's so cross to us that I'm afraid to ask her for cake an' bread an' jam."

"I'll ask her," suggested Fenny, running off to the kitchen. When she entered she found the old servant very busy baking cookies. "Oh, Nancy, will you p'ease dive bruver an' me some cookies for our picnic dinner? We're goin' to have a picnic down behind the chicken coop." Thus spoke Fenny, addressing the sour-faced old Nancy, who never liked to have children come about her domain.

"Nope, you can't dip into my bakery," Nancy snapped. "It's bad enough that yer mommer told me to cut out a lot of cookies in the shapes of animals for you and Bob. I can't take time to bake a lot of extra ones for you to eat between meals. If you wait till teatime you'll have a lot of elephants, cats, dogs, and the goodness only knows what else, to eat. Yer mommer got a lot of them little animal-cutters last time she went into town, an' today's bakin' day, so I'm goin' to try makin' animal cookies for you'n Bob. But you mustn't come pesterin' about the kitchen. I can't be bothered. Run along an' play corn cobs an' chips are your cake and chicken fer your picnic dinner. That's the sort of play picnic dinners I used to have when I was a little youngster."

Fenny, her lips pouting with disappointment, went back to her brother, saying, "Ole Nancy, she won't dive us any goodies for our picnic. She says for us to play 'at corncobs an' chips are cake and chicken, an' that she won't be pestered by us in the kitchen."

"She's awful cross," declared Bobby. "I wish mamma would hurry home. Then we'd have a fine spread for our picnic, we would. Any time 'at we want a picnic dinner mamma would give it to us, an' 'specially when I've got a sore big toe."

"Dat's cause our mamma's so sweet an' good," declared Fenny, the pout leaving her face as she recalled her dear mamma to mind. "But, bome 'long, bruver, let's go an' have our picnic anyway. We can play 'at corncobs an' chips are goodies, though it be lots nicer to have real goodies to eat sure 'nough."

Bobby, limping with his sore big toe, and Fenny, running and bouncing ahead of him, went off to a shady spot behind the jolly big chicken coop. It was so lively there with the old red rooster and the old black rooster crowing and strutting about in the glorious sunshine. And there were mother hens with their little broods of downy chicks going cluck-a-cluck, cluck-a-cluck. And there was a great cornfield stretching away over the long hillside, running up and up behind the chicken coop. Fenny and Bobby thought it would be fun to play the field was a forest and the little stalks of corn great trees. In the country where Bobby and Fenny lived there were very few forests, and the trees that grew on their farm had been planted there. As these stood about the front yard and down the lane leading to the big road. Bobby and Fenny rarely ever played beneath them. They preferred the shade of the stables, the chicken coop or a hay stack.

And while they played behind the chicken coop, pretending that the field was a forest, that the roosters were lions and the hens and chickens were panthers and wolves, old Nancy was baking animal cakes in the kitchen. She had a whole pan of elephants, dogs and mules done to a fine brittle brown, and had turned them into a big platter to cool. The platter was set on the window ledge where the cool atmosphere would drive away the heat of the oven. "As soon as they're cool I'll put 'em away in the pantry, fer if them youngsters sees 'em thay'll begin to beg for 'em. But while they're coolin' off an' while my bread is rising I'll just steal a little nap before dinner time an' while the mistress is away."

No sooner had Nancy sought the pillow of her own bed in a room leading from the kitchen than a strange thing happened. On the platter in the window the animals came to life—or, that is, they began to move about. "I say, friends," said one little fat dog, whose nose had gotten scorched, "I don't like this humdrum place a little bit. Suppose we go out and stir up some excitement."

"Ah, wisely said," declared an old elephant, whose trunk had baked so hard that it could not bend. "A great idea. Suppose we go into the world and see what it's like."

"I'm with you, friend animals," said a brisk mule with a pair of very long ears. "I'm ready to run and kick up my heels this very minute if others of my friends will join me."

"Ah! that sounds jolly!" cried a young colt, as frisky as you please. "Come, let's be moving before that sour old woman returns to the kitchen."

"Then away they all went, jumping from the window and going off toward the chicken coop, just as if they knew two little ones were there longing for a picnic dinner. At the moment when they arrived Fenny and Bobby had gone into the edge of the make-believe forest to hunt for fairies, so the elephants, the dogs, the mules and colts all frisked about, jumping right on Fenny's white apron, which she had spread upon the ground for a make-believe luncheon cloth. And hardly had they become located upon the cloth when back to the spot came Bobby and Fenny. Now, the funniest part of this funny happening was that the very minute the cookie animals got upon that white cloth they became mere sweet cakes again, and lost all power of action or speech. And as they never did have feeling, they were mere cookies once more, just like they had been half an hour ago, when first coming from a very hot oven.

"Oh! see the cookies!" And Fenny ran with all possible speed to the spot where her apron lay covered with elephants, dogs, mules and colts. "Oh! old Nancy brought them to us. Isn't she dood?"

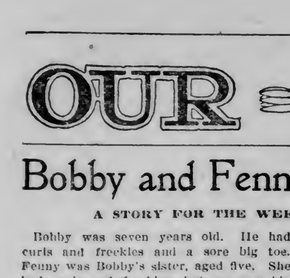
"Well, if she didn't bring us a spread!" exclaimed Bobby, limping up to the picnic cloth. "Well, Nancy ain't so cross after all. But say, I'm as hungry as a wolf from the forest behind us. Suppose we fall to."

"Ugh! but dis elephant is dood!" exclaimed Fenny, eating off the trunk of the largest elephant. "An' dat 'ittle tolt wif the long main—ugh! I'm doin' to eat him next."

Bobby was too busy with eating dogs, elephants, colts, mules, all mixed up together, to say anything more for 10 minutes. In the meantime a pair of eyes were watching the little picnickers from behind the chicken coop. They belonged to old Nancy. Upon missing the animal cookies from the platter she had started in quest of them, thinking that Bobby and Fenny had slyly taken them away during her 40 winks. But just as she neared the shady spot behind the chicken coop she was surprised to observe the little dough animals capering about, jumping upon the apron which lay spread as if ready to receive them. And then, while still dumb with surprise, she saw Fenny come toward the spot and saw that the little girl's surprise was almost as great as her own. Then followed Bobby's appearance, and from the manner of both children Nancy knew that they had had no hand in the strange conduct of the animal cookies.

"I reckon I'm bewitched," Nancy whispered to herself. "Anyway, them youngsters are as innocent as lambs. Let 'em eat the elephants, the dogs—the whole fool dough menagerie, fer I'll go in an' bake a lot more of 'em. But of all the tricks I ever saw in my life this one beats 'em. Dough animals—baked good and hard—getting up and running off to serve as a picnic dinner! Pshaw! It's too silly to talk about. I reckon the whole thing's a dream. But I'd better get into the kitchen or my bread will take legs and run away the next thing."

And that's the story of the picnic dinner that came to Bobby and Fenny in the edge of the great forest where terrible animals and fairies abounded. And it may be just a dream, and it may be that it really happened; but we have no way of finding out about it, for it happened so very, very long ago, and Bobby and Fenny are grown up now and have forgotten about it, while Nancy, now a very old woman, will not talk of the time when "dough animals came to sure-enough life."



Beware.

Be careful! Don't speak!
Dear Dolly's asleep.
And she mustn't be waked
You know.

She hasn't been well
For quite a long spell;
And her poor health is Only so-so.

"Oh, see the cookies! Old Nancy brought them to us, isn't she dood?"

Poor Lost Lottie.

BY ANNIE JAMES.

"Come, Lottie, and hear what a fine surprise mamma has in store for you!" So called Mrs. Grey to her little daughter, Lottie, a merry, maid five years old.

Lottie was playing in the sand pile in the backyard when her mamma called her, but she dropped the bucketful of sand and ran to her.

"We are going to the city today," explained mamma. "Just you and I, Lottie. Won't that be fine?"

Lottie jumped up and down, clapping her little hands for joy. She had been in the city with mamma two or three times before, and always did enjoy seeing the great tall buildings and the busy throngs of people in the streets. And the great enticing show windows of the shops were so mysterious and full of curious things that Lottie never had got to see half the things there displayed to view.

About 10 o'clock Lottie and her mamma stepped from the suburban train to the big platform at one of the suburban stations of the city. In another minute they were aboard a street car and going like the wind into the very throbbing heart of the noisy and crowded town.

Lottie kept her eyes open, and her little inquiring mind, also. She asked occasional questions of mamma, by whose side she sat very close, her little hand clasped tightly in one of the big, warm, mother hands. Oh, how nice it was to go into the city with mamma!

And soon they got off the street car and began walking along a very narrow street, or so it looked by reason of the extremely tall buildings that bordered it on either side. "Oh, how very, very big everything is!" exclaimed Lottie. "It makes my head spin to look at so many things at once."

Mamma laughed and pressed lovingly the little hand that lay so confidingly in her own. "Well, dearie, here's a store where I want to do some shopping. Now, if you wish to stay right by the door till I run in and get some cotton I'll let you do so. Just stand right here—in this corner by the showcase—until I return. I won't be a dozen minutes."

Lottie much preferred to stay by the store door, so that she might see the passers by, to going inside with her mamma. But hardly had she been left alone when she became a bit frightened by the thought that she was alone. So she decided to go into the store and find her mother. She went up and down all the aisles between the counters in the big shop looking in vain for her mother. Where could she have gone? she asked herself. Not finding her, Lottie thought it wise to return to the door and await her coming. So she sought out her little corner by the showcase once more. But there she stood and stood waiting for her mother. As the time went by she became very much frightened, for she feared her mother had gotten lost inside that immense store and couldn't find her way to the door.

"Why, what are you doing alone here?" asked a lady's voice. And Lottie looked up to see a very pleasant lady standing near her, with kindly eyes bent on her face. Lottie's quivering lips could not reply, and she broke into tears. Then, the lady becoming more tender with her, the poor child stammered out: "I'm lost from my mamma, I am! Or maybe it's my mamma that's lost from me!"

"Oh, you little precious!" declared the lady, taking Lottie's hands in her own. "How can some people be so careless of their little ones as to lose them on the street? Come, dearie, don't cry. We'll find your——"

"Oh, there she is—there she is!" And Lottie's mother's voice rang out as its owner came rushing toward her little girl. "Oh, my darling, I thought you were lost! When I came from the store about 10 minutes ago you were nowhere to be found. I looked up and down the street. I went into the shops next door. Then I became almost distracted and ran to a policeman to help me hunt for you. And he suggested that we come back here before sending out a general alarm. And here you are, my precious one."

Then, with her arms about her mamma's neck, Lottie told of how she had gone into the store to hunt for the mother just about the time that the mother had returned to the outer door to join her little daughter.

"Mercy, it's awful to be lost in a big city, mamma," said Lottie in conclusion. And mamma said, "Yes, darling, and we'll not be parted a single moment again—while in the city. Now, let's go and have some dinner, for I know my little Lost and Found Girlie is as hungry as she can be after so much excitement."

"I'M LOST FROM MY MAMMA, I AM! OR MAYBE IT'S MY MAMMA THAT'S LOST FROM ME!"

When Naughty Chub Went A-Fishing.

BY JELENA DAVIS.

Chub was a little boy. His real name was not Chub, but because of his being such a roly-poly little chap the name seemed to suit him better than did the name he had been christened by, which was Charles Andrew. Now, his mamma and papa both thought that Charles Andrew was entirely too heavy for their son till he should grow to be a big boy, so he was called Chubby when a tot and Chub when he got to be six years old.

Well, as soon as the fine weather of early summer had set in Chub began begging his mamma to allow him to go to the river, half a mile away from his home, to fish. He had never gone fishing alone, for during the previous year he had been too young to go to the river unaccompanied by his father or mother. And he had never fished, either, except in the bathtub, or in the pretty pond in the back yard where the water lilies grew. And, of course, he had never caught any fish in either of those places.

So, with the first summer days Chub began begging and coaxing his mamma to allow him to go fishing in the big river at the outskirt of town.

Looking intently into the water hoping to see the great fish.

"Why, Chub, I couldn't think of allowing you to go to the river alone," explained his mamma. "You might fall into the water or get snake bitten. Oh, there are so many dangers to beset a little man like my Chub when he has neither mother nor father with him."

"But I want to go," wailed Chub, tears gleaming in his eyes. "Tommy Peters and Fatty Smart went all by themselves yesterday, and Fatty said they pretty nearly catched a big fish—oh, as big as—as—as a elephant."

"No, no, no, Chub," said mamma, pursing up her lips and drawing her little son on her knee. "No, dear boy, fishes as large as elephants do not exist in rivers. Whales are the largest fish known, and they stay away out in the ocean. So, if Tommy and Fatty thought there was any chance of catching such large fish as they have doubtless described to you they have been misinformed about the size of river fish. And it is very wrong of them to use such exaggerated forms of speech. Exaggeration is one kind of falsehood, you know, dear."

"Well, maybe they saw a fish what looked as big to them as an elephant," insisted Chub. "Fatty said he saw one swimming right under the water where he stood, and if he'd had a fish line and hook he'd 'a caught it."

"Well, well, we'll learn more about fish some day soon," promised Chub's mamma. "And for the present you may run and play in the yard. But don't get on mamma's flower beds; and don't stray outside the fence. I must go down town on an errand, and after I return—if you've been a good boy and obeyed mamma—we'll have a little outing. Sam will hitch old Rodger to the phaeton and Chub may handle the lines. Won't that be jolly? Now, kiss mamma, and play merrily till she comes hurrying home again in about an hour."

Chub watched his mother depart; then he wandered about the yard for a little while. But the confines of the fenced domain held little attraction for him, and he went to the gate and watched the passers-by.

But pretty soon he found his eyes straying toward the line of timber that bordered the river half a mile away. "I wonder how big the fishes in the river are?" he questioned himself. "I bet I could catch one if—if—only I could go there alone. I wonder why mamma won't allow me to go fishing alone? I'm most as big as Fatty, an' he goes with jest Tommy. And Tommy isn't much bigger'n me."

Then Chub strolled down the side of the fence, going in the direction of the river. "Wish that old fence wasn't here," he murmured. "Oh, there're a lot of boards off it down by the alley." Then he ran with all his might to the place where several of the fence boards had been torn away by some men who were digging a place for a new sewer pipe. The men had quit work for the noon hour, and Chub examined their work too's. But these held little interest for him, and soon he found himself outside the fence that confined the yard of his own home and yet he had not gone through the gate nor over the fence. He had walked right out at the place where the workmen had been digging. And it was really very difficult to know just where his own fence ought to be, for the dirt had been tossed every which way, and the line where the fence had been was completely obliterated. So Chub eased his little conscience by thinking he had not really disobeyed his mamma's instructions after all, for he had not gone outside the fence—there being no fence at that particular spot.

Once outside the fence it was very easy to stroll down the alley in the direction of the river. Of course, Chub had no notion of going far from home. He just thought to walk along the alley behind the neighbors' houses and look for stray cats. No cats coming to notice, he went on and on, soon emerging into the street about two blocks away from his own house.

There he stood for a minute, wondering whether he should turn back or continue his walk. Again his eyes sought the line of timber that marked the river bank, and he said again to himself: "I wonder how big the fishes in the river are?" Then, thinking that it would be a long time before his mother should return, he decided to walk toward the river for a little piece and to return before his mamma should do so.

And so it happened that Chub did the very thing he should not have done; he disobeyed his dear mamma. And once his mind was made up to go toward the river he went off at full speed, making the alley dust fly from his little fat feet. He hadn't a hat nor jacket, but the day was so warm that he didn't need them. So on he flew toward the river, his little face beaming from the sun's rays and dripping with perspiration.

The line of trees looked very close indeed when viewed from the yard of his own home; but in covering the ground, step by step, the distance became great, and before Chub had reached the first few straggling bushes that led to the greater trees on the river bank he was quite exhausted. He really had not meant to go all the way to the river, but after starting his curiosity had become so great that he could not turn back. "I may get a peep at a fish as big as the one Fatty saw swimming in the water," he said by way of encouraging himself.

Once on the bank of the river he wandered along and along, looking intently into the water, hoping to see the great fish that had figured in Fatty's "fish story." And in this way he forget to take notice of the place where he had started from—the point where he had approached the river. After walking for sometime he became very tired and sat down to rest a minute. And, as I have said, the day was very warm. Within a very short time Chub's eyes had gone shut and Chub's head had dropped upon the soft, green grass behind him. Then Chub slept and dreamed of fishing. After a little a bird's shrill note caused him to wake, and recalling where he was he started up quickly, determined to run home with all possible speed. He had entered a deep bend in the river, and was now confused as to which direction he had come from. As a matter of fact, he started homeward the wrong way, taking the direction which led him further and further away from the desired destination.

And so the time went on and Chub's feet were weary and sore. He climbed the bank several times to look for the town, but somehow the church spires and tall houses had disappeared from the face of the earth. Chub's heart sank with fear. Was he lost? The truth of the matter was that in walking in the wrong direction he had followed a curve in the river which led him away from the town, and threw a long hill between that place and his present location.

Then poor little Chub realized his dear mamma's wisdom in refusing to allow him to go to the river alone. He sat down and wept tears of real anguish. Somehow, he felt that he would never see his dear home, his darling papa and mamma again. And there were old Rodger, the horse, little Sport, his pet doggie, and Tabby, the cat, and Fiddler, the canary bird. Oh! none of these would he ever behold again. Oh, oh, how very naughty he had been to run away! And that great, big fish that Fatty had bragged about! It was all a two-story fib, that was just what it was!

How long this might have lasted we cannot say had not a dear voice at that moment cried out: "Chubby, dear!" And Chub looked up through his tears to see his own mother coming down the hill toward him. He forgot his disobedience in the moment of extreme happiness and ran to greet her.

"Oh, mamma, I've been lost," he cried, fresh tears streaming from his eyes.

"Yes, and hadn't it been for an old farmer whom I met on the road you might never have been found," said his mother. "I missed you from home, and those workmen in the back yard said they had seen you going off toward the river about noon. So I followed the path this way. On reaching the road I didn't know which direction to turn to look for you. An old man happened to have seen you coming this way and put me on your track. Otherwise you might have been lost over night. Now, you see what your disobedience has done for you? I had planned a little fishing picnic for you this afternoon and went to town for the fishing rod and line. And after everything had been arranged you spoiled it all by running away. No—not a word, my naughty child! You have disobeyed my orders, and you shall go straight home and get into bed without your dinner or supper. No, do not protest; you must be punished. Had you been a good boy and obeyed mamma your day would have been a glorious one."

And in his heart Chub vowed to never disobey his mamma again.

Pretty Is As Pretty Does.

There are some small boys,
And some small girls, too,
Who sullenly do pout
The whole week through.

Their tempers are ugly
Their faces, also;
And people dislike them
Wherever they go.

There are some small boys,
And some small girls, too,
Who are happy and helpful
The whole week through.

Their manners are lovely,
Their faces, also;
And people do love them
Wherever they go.

LETTER ENIGMA.

My first is in anger, but not in mood;
My second is in lake, but not in wood;
My third is in pear, but not in tree;
My fourth is in hive, but not in bee;
My fifth is the same as my first, you know;
My sixth is in baker, but not in dough;
My seventh is in ear, but not in corn;
My eighth is in trouble, but not in forlorn.
My whole of eight letters
A language does spell;

Know me very well.

HIDDEN PROVERB.

A well-known proverb is hidden in the following six sentences, one word of the proverb being contained in each sentence, and the words appearing in their rightful order:

Every one should do his best in life.
Sometimes a very small cloud obscures the sun.
A boy or girl with a noble ambition has in his or her possession a gold mine.
Sometimes a clear-visioned man can see behind him.
To be a great thinker doesn't always mean to be a silver-tongued orator.
The lining of a garment should correspond with it in quality.

BEHEADINGS.

(1) Doubly behead a pattern in a carpet and leave that which means an omen or a signal.

(2) Behead a place in a barn where a horse is kept and leave a name often applied to an object of great height.

(3) Behead a small white grain used for food for people and leave a hard substance to be found in great quantities in Greenland.

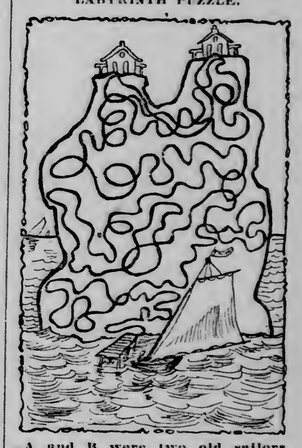
CURTAILINGS.

(1) Curtail a small silver coin and leave the effect of a fire-lit room.

(2) Curtail a sweet, sticky food and leave a certain kind of stone used for sharpening fine-bladed instruments.

(3) Curtail a copper coin and leave a place where pigs are kept.

LABYRINTH PUZZLE.



A and B were two old sailors who lived in houses on top a cliff-like rock in the middle of a deep bay. A man brought provisions and mail to them once a week. On making the perilous ascent to the houses which one did he reach first? The path was a very crooked one and crossed and recrossed itself many times before it reached the summit.

Follow the black line leading from the boat landing and thus you will trace the man's winding way.

CONUNDRUMS.

What is the difference between an auction sale and seasickness?

One is the sale of effects and the other is the effects of a sail.

Why is an orange like a church steeple?

Because we get a peel from it.

When was the great Napoleon most shabbily dressed?

When out at Elba (elbow).

Why is a dog biting his own tale like a good manager?

Because he makes both ends meet.

What two animals accompany you everywhere you go?

Your two calves.

PRESIDENT AMADOR OF PANAMA AND THE FIRST LADY OF THAT NEW REPUBLIC.

PARDO OF PERU, YOUNGEST OF THE SOUTH AMERICAN PRESIDENTS.

By JOHN S. HARWOOD

(Copyright, 1908, by the Associated Literary Press.)

THESE are the presidents to the south of us—as this article is being written: Penna of Brazil, Williman of Uruguay, Ferreira of Paraguay, Alcorta of the Argentine Republic, Montt of Chile, Montes of Bolivia, Pardo of Peru, Alfaro of Ecuador, Reyes of Colombia, Amador of Panama, Zelaya of Nicaragua, Cabrera of Guatemala, Figueroa of Salvador, Davila of Honduras, Viquez of Costa Rica, Alexis of Hayti, Caceres of the Dominican Republic, and, of course, Diaz of Mexico and Castro of Venezuela.

Two of these nineteen heads of governments have world-wide fame—Castro, "the monkey of the Andes," and the particular Latin-American thorn in the flesh of Uncle Sam, and Diaz, for many years universally recognized as one of the world's greatest modern statesmen and empire builders. Of the world's three negro presidents two are among the nineteen, and each rules over a portion of the "black" island of Santo Domingo. Two are sons of former presidents of their respective countries, Montt of Chile and Pardo of Peru. The latter is probably the youngest of the Latin-American chief executives; he is now only 44. When he was elected president to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Candamo, he was 40, or one year younger than Theodore Roosevelt when he became president following the death of McKinley.

Alexis the Oldest.

The oldest of the presidents is Alexis of Hayti, who, despite the fact that ninety odd years of life have shriveled him to a shadow of his former giant self, keeps an iron grasp on the remotest part of his unhappy country. He, too, probably has the bloodiest career of all the nineteen—and that is saying a good deal when it is recalled that Cabrera of Guatemala is frequently called the "Nero of Modern Times"; that Zelaya, "the stormy petrel of Central America," does not hesitate to wage war or order executions when he thinks his ends will be justified thereby; that Alfaro, before he succeeded in entering Quito in triumph in 1895, as dictator, was the head and front of twenty revolutions spread over a period of thirty years; and that Castro got Venezuela in the hollow of his hand and has kept it there by freely letting the blood of his enemies.

Of course, most of the presidents (even Diaz) have fought in one or more internal revolutions apiece, and some have fought against other governments than their own. In the latter class come Diaz, Montes of Bolivia and Pardo, of Peru. Montes, when the war with Chile broke out, left his law books and went to the defense of his country as a private. He fought so valiantly that when he returned to his studies he was a captain. Montes, be it said, has not fought nearly so much as the average Latin-American chief executive, and yet he twice led an army against Brazil during the dispute over the Acre territory. Pardo, like Montes, is a lawyer by profession, and in no sense a military man, his martial experiences being those of a volunteer in the war with Chile in 1879. At that time he was but 15 years old, a real boy soldier.

A Man of Peace.

But the only simon pure man of peace among the presidents is Penna of Brazil. Penna, the Brazilian consul-general in New York city told me, with a touch of pride in his voice, has never fought in battle or taken even a passive part in an incipient or a full-fledged revolution; and he added that, for his part, he felt that both the president and the country should be complimented on this head. Penna, when the empire was overthrown, let others do the overthrowing, then quietly became a Republican and went on in the even tenor of his way teaching political economy in the University of Belle Horisonte and holding office betimes until, in 1906, Brazil, having tried him for four years as vice president, elected him chief magistrate by a large majority. So quietly and inoffensively has Penna lived that he has not even experienced the sensations of escaping assassination, as has Alcorta of the Argentine Republic recently. In brief, a study of his career will not bring to light a single incident even remotely suggestive of a "thriller."

But with the other presidents it is another story.

Amador, when the government had put a price on his head, dead or alive, managed to escape across the isthmus in a lard barrel. Montes more than once led troops in fierce charges on the Chileans, and he was then only 18. Zelaya secured control of Nicaragua by marching, fresh from a hardly won battlefield, into the presence of the president and his cabinet and, with his "trusty" revolver in his hand, announcing to the little assemblage that he had put down the revolution not for love of the president, not for love of the country, but for his own personal elevation. A little later the country districts voted for three candidates for president, Jose, Santos and Zelaya, and at the proper time all three were inaugurated in the person of Jose Santos Zelaya.

The Andean "Monkey."

Castro marched at the head of his handful of marauding mountaineers straight up to the gates of Caracas before his predecessor in the presidency had stopped laughing at the audacity of the Andean "monkey." The thrills in the life of Diaz would furnish sufficient AI material for a lengthy series of dime novels. Cabrera has been exceedingly busy of late putting down revolutions, dodging assassins and war with Mexico, and ordering and superintending executions galore. Alexis' latest bit of convincing evidence to his people that he is the whole show in Hayti was the execution in March of twenty-seven alleged conspirators against his authority. Pardo has just succeeded in quelling a revolution against his government which broke out in the sky-high copper and silver mining region of Cerro de Pasco. Montt of Chile, when congress revolted against Balmaceda and war ensued in 1891, fled into hiding, and in hiding he remained until an armistice was declared. As a leader in congress, he was one of the leading revolutionists.

Alfaro of Ecuador, as already remarked, has been the head and front of twenty revolutions. Caceres of the Dominican Republic, as befits an inhabitant of that country, has been a professional revolutionist from his childhood up. As for Reyes of Colombia, he has found zest in living not alone in putting down and stirring up revolution, but also in exploration. In brief, he is one of the most noted explorers of modern times, and both his and Alfaro's careers bristle with years crowded with thrilling incidents.

Alfaro was a mere lad when he got severely stung by the Ecuadorean presidential bee, and he was only twenty when he led his first insurrectionary army against the government. That was in 1883. The youngest leader in the revolution, he was also the only one who won success on the battlefield, and, as a result, he left hastily for Panama, which was destined to be his place of refuge many times during the next three decades.

Secured Three Fortunes.

The eight years following Alfaro's initial flight to the Isthmus could properly be called the most uneventful in his entire career, since he simply spent them building up one fortune through commerce and marrying another. Thus equipped with three fortunes—he had inherited a large patrimony—he promptly and generously began financing revolution after revolution against the Ecuadorean government. Sometimes he directed the camptigns from his refuge in Panama. Not infrequently he took the field himself, when he proved himself as daring an adventurer as ever strove for a Latin-American presidency.

Shortly after Caamano had been made president Alfaro loaded a ship which he called the Alajuela with several hundred loyal followers and sailed from Panama to the province of Manabi, where he led an attack on the government stronghold of Portoviejo. Defeated by the veteran troops garrisoned there, he was compelled to lead his remnant of soldiers back to Manta and re-embark them on the Alajuela, which had barely been got under way when a government boat, fairly alive with men, bore down upon it.

Alfaro, though he realized that all the odds were against him, at once gave battle, and in a few minutes over two hundred dead were lying on the decks of the two boats. Spurred on by Alfaro, who was in the thick of the fighting, his men proved so valorous that they would probably have won had not another government boat come to the rescue of the first. Then, in an effort to save the surviving handful of his followers, Alfaro had the Alajuela run ashore. With his own hands he set fire to the vessel's hull when it neared shore. Then he and his nine companions—all that were left to him by this time—threw themselves into the water and made their way as best they could to land and into hiding. Eventually, Alfaro turned up in Central America, where he experienced the sensations of dodging would-be assassins, put on his trail by Caamano.

Fought For Three Decades.

It is simgular fact that, though Alfaro fought and planned for three decades to make himself president, he became president not as a direct result of any fighting or scheming on his part, but because of the mercenary role that Caamano elected to play in the China-Japan war.

Japan very much wanted to buy of Chile the cruiser Esmeralda. Chile was willing to sell to any nation not engaged in war. Charles R. Flint of New York, long recognized as an adept in dealing with South America nations, took the matter in hand, and soon after the Esmeralda left Valparaiso flying the flag of Ecuador, which shortly gave place to the Rising Sun of Japan. Meanwhile, the snug sum of $400,000 had been paid to Caamano's agent in New York. As for Caamano, he was greatly pleased with himself until Ecuador learned from the foreign press of the use its president had made of its flag—and then Caamano fled up to New York, annexed the $400,000 and left for Europe to spend it. Incidentally, he went north from Ecuador in the guise of a woman.

At this time Alfaro was hanging out in Salvador, waiting for a good chance to stir up further trouble for his old enemy. Imagine, therefore, his surprise when he received a telegram from the Ecuadorean army, which had hitherto been loyal to Caamano, politely requesting him to come and take command of it. Needless to say, he immediately turned his face homeward; and so great was his hurry to reach Quito that he bribed the captain of the ship on which he took passage not to stop at his old headquarters, Panama, where a delegation of his countrymen was waiting to welcome him.

It was on Sept. 4, 1895, that Alfaro, at the head of the Ecudaorean army, entered the capital. His was, in truth, a triumphal entry. Delegations and committees went out five miles, from Quito to welcome him; the road was lined with a cheering multitude, and when he found it in a transport of joy and himself the hero of the populace, to whose emotional nature his long and picturesque career as a revolutionist appealed with peculiar force. Since that day Alfaro has been "the big stick" in Ecuador, both while in and out of the presidential chair. His first term ended in 1901; his present term began in 1906, as a result of his seizure of the office as a revolutionary aftermath. Only when he has been in the presidential palace has there been comparative peace in Ecuador since the day he led his first insurrectionary army to battle. He is now 65 years old.

Reyes An Explorer.

Though Reyes went to the Isthmus of Panama in 1885 with an army recruited largely from among the Indians on his own estate, and there brilliantly put down a revolt against the central government, thereby winning his title of general; though his has been one of the big voices of Colombia for upwards of a quarter of a century; and though he is favorably known as a diplomat in Paris, Washington, Mexico City and other national capitals, his chief fame rests on his exploration exploits, which occupied the better part of twelve years of his life.

All these years were spent in the interior of South America, and during the course of them he crossed the continent at its widest point, passing over great stretches of country and floating down rivers never before seen by a white man. On foot he explored the Yapura, the great river of Southeastern Colombia, practically from its source in the Andes to the headwaters of the Amazon, a distance of more than a thousand miles in a straight line. Arrived at the Amazon he built a canoe and floated down that mightiest of all streams to Para, on the Atlantic. Then he struck south from Para up the Tocantins river, followed it clear to its source, about a thousand miles above Para, as a bird flies, crossed the great mountain range in which the river has its birth, came upon the headwaters of the Parana, put his canoe into it and in the course of time found himself in Buenos Aires, over 1,500 miles to the south as a ruler is laid on the map. Before he made the trip down the Parana no man dreamed that it was possible to go by water from the heart of Brazil to the Argentine capital.

When he began his explorations, Reyes was accompanied by his two brothers, Nester and Enrique, and a nephew. He was the only one of the venturesome quartet to turn up at Buenos Aires, Enrique died of yellow fever. Nestor was eaten by cannibals, who were met with in abundance in the heart of the continent. The nephew became the victim of a poisoned arrow, shot at him from ambush, just a few days before Reyes arrived without a scratch at Buenos Aires by way of the Rio de la Plata, the Parana emptying into it not many miles above that capital city.

Created New Commerce.

The number of miles traveled and the extent of the country explored by Reyes compare favorably with Stanley's record in Africa. And Reyes' adventurous undertakings, as did Stanley's in Africa, resulted in the opening up of large sections of South America to commerce. A short time after he had finished his canoe journey from the source of the Amazon to its mouth, a shipping company began to do business up to the great river's headwaters, and also far up the Yapura. When he demonstrated that it was feasible to go from the heart of Brazil to Buenos Aires by water the commerce seekers again got busy and today their boats ply the Parana hundreds of miles back of Rio Janeiro.

It is rather interesting to note that Reyes turned explorer when he became intensely interested in keeping out of the way of certain Colombians who had been on the successful side of an uprising. These gentlemen had craftily seized the ports and the highways generally taken by defeated revolutionists to safety, and Reyes was forced to turn his face towards the unexplored forest depths of his native land. A few days in the wilds aroused his love of adventure, and he straightway forgot his revolutionary defeat in the new-found zest of exploration.

In this country Reyes will be remembered as the man sent here by Colombia to protest against our recognition of the republic of Panama when it was newly formed out of Colombian territory. He protested valiantly enough and courteously enough, but in vain. This was in 1903. The next year he became president of Colombia, and the following year he declared himself dictator.

Like most of the South American presidents, he is splendidly educated, and he is probably the handsomest of the presidents to the south of us. Tall and dark, with a figure as straight as an arrow, an equiline nose, eyes that can pierce and are lustrous at will, and features stamped with the indomitable courage of the man, he would catch and hold attention in any gathering.

Two Autocrats.

Of the five Central American presidents two—Zelaya and Cabrera—have managed to attract a great deal of attention since they began using Nicaragua and Guatemala, respectively, as their own property. Both are autocrats of the most approved Central American pattern, and as a result those of their countrymen whom they have not executed or exiled stand continually in fear and trembling of them. And yet, to their credit be it said, foreign observers in both countries say that these presidents have benefited Nicaragua and Guatemala by opening up territory to trade and encouraging the establishment of various industrial and commercial enterprises. This is still true of Zelaya. During his first term in office Cabrera accomplished quite a little deal along this line. Then great things were expected of him; but since his second election the better part of his time has been taken up with keeping his enemies under his heel.

Cabrera first came to the notice of his country when the late President Barrios found him an obscure lawyer in the town of Quezaltenango and put him in his cabinet. There Cabrera served his benefactor so well that the latter had him named as first designado. In other words, he was told off as successor to Barrios if the latter should die in office. Barrios, eventually, met death at the hands of an insane Dutchman, Cabrera moved into the presidential palace, put his cronies in command of the army, and the soldiers, at the presidential election which soon followed, at the command of their officers stuffed the ballot boxes in Cabrera's behalf, and he was triumphantly elected and inaugurated. When he came up for re-election in 1904, Cabrera was again successful by the same method.

Not so long ago a foreign diplomat, who had spent some time in Guatemala, was reported as saying that "no story was too horrible to be believed if it concerned the cruelties of this strange man." However that may be, Cabrera's long list of executions proves beyond question that his is not a soft nature, and goes a long way toward explaining why his enemies have given him the title of "the Nero of Modern Times." This same list, likewise, elucidates in part the numerous attempts made during the past year or two to assassinate Cabrera with bomb, bullet, knife, poison and bayonet. Only last month one of his hands was pierced by a bayonet wielded by one of five military cadets banded together to kill him. Like the czar of Russia, Cabrera, it is said, does not feel safe even in the seclusion of his own room. He is in constant dread of his enemies; at one time he would not eat

HE GETS THE BIGGEST SALARY

Why John Hays Hammond Can Command the Princely Sum of $500,000 a Year.

Merely for pronouncing his "Yes" or "No," John Hays Hammond, the greatest mining expert in the world and the prototype of Richard Harding Davis' hero in "Soldiers of Fortune," is to receive a salary of $500,000 annually from the Guggenheim Exploration company, for the next five years, says the Philadelphia Press.

Think of it! One man whose individual earning capacity is greater than the combined capacities of the president of the United States, the chief justice, the lord high chancellor of England, the archbishop of Canterbury, the lord lieutenant of Ireland, the president of the Pennsylvania railroad and three or four bank presidents thrown in for even measure.

In one day he earns more than $1,700; at the end of a month his pay check is more than a year admiral gets for a year's sea duty, and at the end of each year his check for services rendered is greater than the president of the United States would receive in eight years.

No other man in the world receives such an enormous salary. There are many men whose incomes from various sources exceed this—but Mr. Hammond receives this amount just for his services in mining matters.

One of the stipulations in the contract with the Guggenheims, and, perhaps this is the keynote to the reason for paying the engineer such a large salary, is that any other company or give any other company the benefit of his expert knowledge. For it can easily be seen that with he must not speculate in the stocks of his vast knowledge of mines and their value, he could make fortune after fortune if he cared to by buying and selling mining stocks.

His income from investment has been tremendously large for many years, and today this unique man, whose knowledge of the earth and what it contains is great, is one of the richest men of the country.

In this era of big salaries, when the executive heads of railroads, banks and big companies of various sorts are receiving enormous pay, one naturally asks the question: "When will the limit for one man's earning capacity be reached?" Gradually and rather erratically the salaries or big men have been jumping higher and higher. The climax has now been reached—$500,000 every year for five years.

In comparison with this huge sum the salaries of most of the well-known men of the country pale into insignificance. Stop for an instant and look at the salaries paid some of the world's prominent men: The president of the United States, $50,000; the ambassadors to France, Germany and England, $17,500 each; a United States admiral, $13,500; the chief justice of the supreme court, $13,000; the lord high chancellor of England, the president of Mexico and the lord mayor of London, $50,000 each; the archbishop of Canterbury, $75,000; the lord lieutenant of Ireland, $100,000; the cabinet officers, $8,000 each. President McCrea of the Pennsylvania railroad is accredited with receiving $50,000. As for the governors of the various states, only three of them receive $10,000.

Among the big insurance companies and trusts the salaries range from $150,000 downward, and a few executive heads of trust companies get more than this.

But after one has jotted them all down—the big and the middlers—and then put the Hammond salary beside them, the comparison is almost one-sided enough to be amusing.

For a number of years past Hammond has been one of the most conspicuous figures in the world of mining and engineering. On his mere word the disposition of many millions of dollars has been determined in the past, and today, more than ever, the men who control millions eagerly await his final word, it might be said, to spend their money in this field or in that.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Hammoned is more than a mining engineer. He is a manager, an organizer, a financier of rare ability, and as quick to grasp the need, the possibilities and the requirements of a new railroad line that will open up an entire stretch of virgin country as he is to know the gold-bearing quartz from plain granite.

Mr. Hammond is 55 years old, tall and broad of shoulders and an athlete to the tips of his fingers. Born in San Francisso, he studied in the West for some years and then came East and graduated from the Sheffield Scientific school of Yale in 1876.

As an engineer he was comparatively unknown to fame until some fifteen odd years ago, and then he was looked upon as one of the foremost and most expert men in his line in the country.

But it was not until he went to South Africa and became Cecil Rhodes' right hand man in the exploration of the Transvaal and Rhodesian gold fields that he became an international figure in the mining world. The two men met at Johannesburg and in less than a year Rhodes was paying the American engineer $100,000 a year. He became the consulting engineer to the Consolidated Gold Fields of South Africa and for a number of years practically dictated the outlay of all the millions that were poured into the South African gold fields.

Then came the Jameson raid. Hammond, with Lionel Phillips, Col. Frank Rhodes, a brother of Cecil, and George Farrer were leaders in the reform committee, at whose invitation Jameson was to make his rush on Johannesburg. Every one remembers how Jameson, becoming impatient, crossed the border on his own account and spoiled all the reformers' plans. Helpless in the enemy's camp, the four leaders were captured and sentenced to death. Joseph Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, telegraphed President Kruger within an hour of the arrest that England would hold him personally responsible for the lives of the four prisoners, including Hammond, and the next day the sentence was commuted to fines of $125,000 in each case and they were banished from the Transvaal for fifteen years. Mr. Hammond returned to America and within a year was making $20,000 a month.

Mr. Hammond has explored into some of the wildest corners of the uncivilized world in the search for gold.

THE COLORADO DISTRICTS

Hall Tunnel at Georgetown Has Changed Owners---Atlantic Cable Mine in High-Grade Lead Ore---Dregding in Summit County.

Colorado Springs, Colo., May 30.—The Hall tunnel, Georgetown, Colo., has been purchased by Georgetown capitalists holding a lease and option thereon. It was driven 2,700 feet into Leavenworth mountain by G. W. Hall, former owner of the Colorado Central mine. It will be driven 1,200 feet further to intersect at the 1,000-foot level a system of important veins, also to drain thirty miles of levels and underground workings.

The Atlantic Cable mine, Rico, Colo., is in high grade lead ore containing zinc blend, lead, copper, silver and gold. The galena found in large bunches throughout the stope has appeared in the breast. A second shift has been added on the company's Propatria mill and a third is contemplated.

J. R. Patterson has received first payment on the Isolde mine, Lake City, Colo., district. A syndicate of Silverton, Colo., capitalists headed by George Pratt are purchasers at $100,000.

The Old Missouri mine, located between Old Town and Saratoga mines, Idaho Springs, Colo., wil shortly be reopened. It has been unwatered and is being repaired and equipped. Large ore bodies are reported in the property.

The Metallic Exploitation company of Idaho Springs, Colo., has declared its sixth regular monthly dividend of 1 cent a share. The company is operating leases on the Shafter and other mines.

The Two Brothers mine, Idaho Springs, Colo., owned by the Wells brothers of Denver, yielded 700 tons of ore, worth $12,000 net, during April. The May product will approximate 1,000 tons.

Ore is being extracted from the Wellington No. 6, through a lateral in the Newhouse tunnel, Central City, Colo. The values in gold, silver and copper range from $60 to $90 per ton.

Summit county, Colorado, is being exploited by degrees, which, notwithstanding their cost of $80,000 to $105,000 each, are proving a good investment. Three such boats are now operating near Breckenridge. In French Gulch the Reliance company's boat has uncovered two large veins of ore of much value. One vein probably extends into the Ford placer, adjoining the Reliance company's ground. The vein in a crosscut from the Ralston shaft shows smelter grade ore.

The Windsor Gold Mining & Leasing company has been organized to work block No. 20 of the El Paso property, Cripple Creek.

The McPherson lease on the Dillon mine of the Granite Gold Mining company, Cripple Creek, is in a vein of $30 ore on the 700-foot level. New York capitalists are interested in the Granite company.

The Portland old Mining company, operating at the greatest depth of any Cripple Creek mining company, is outputting 200 tons of $22 ore daily.

The Whitney-Mullin lease on Vindicator No. 2, Cripple Creek, is yielding ten cars of $40 to $60 ore weekly. The Vindicator company is outputting 2,000 tons monthly of $40 ore.

The Ophir mine, Cripple Creek, owned by Mrs. Cone of Canon City, Colo., is outputting from $50 000 to $60,000 monthly. A new shaft house has been built, and new machinery including a double-decked cage, will be installed.

The British-American Leasing company, Cripple Creek, is shipping from the Dante mine three cars daily of $20 ore broken from t three-foot vein in the 600-foot level. The net production of the mine since Jan. 1, 1905, is $133,918.

The Ironclad cyanide mill, Cripple Creek, treated 115 tons of ore from the Magna Charta claim aggregating $1.91 per ton, or $2,075.16 total. The ore was highlihly oxidized and easily treated.

IS AT LAST UNDER CONTROL

ter's lessees for $100,000 damages, on account of ore alleged to have been mined from 14-100ths of an acre of ground embraced with a Great Northern railway right-of-way, the mineral rights to which the railroad company assigned to the South Butte company, has been tried and submitted to Judge Bourquin for decision. The East Butte company owns the Oneida, a quartz location, which covers the small tract in question, and asserts title through that, while the South Butte claims under a placer title. The ground is outside the original East Butte territory and the latter company did not assert its quartz title until forced to do so by the action of the South Butte. The South Butte has two claims for ore, aggregating $100,000, but its own evidence at the trial showed that the total net value of the ore mined was less than $18,000. If the East Butte wins on its quartz location it will be a very important victory, as the Oneida not only covers the small bit of ground claimed by the South Butte, but also much valuable mineral ground held under placer patents and owned by the Amalgamated Copper company.

of the company's model town of Coleraine, where is located the giant Canisteo mine, still in process of development. Like the Canisteo and its big neighbor, the Holman, the Hill will be an open pit proposition. It is not the present intention of the company to ship much, if any, ore from its Western Mesaba properties this year, all energies being directed to opening the mines for tremendous production and to the construction of the huge plant at which it will be washed a very large percentage of the ores of the district. The development program that has been outlined will require vigorous work for many months yet. The Canisteo, whose ore body lies at an average depth of eighty feet from the surface, is already one of the very biggest pits on the range, and it will be made much bigger still. Not far from 1,000 men were employed there last summer, along with the steam shovels, and a force of some hundreds was kept at work throughout the winter season.

The company having so many leased properties on which royalties must be paid, it is not at all likely that the Steel corporation's Sharon mine at Buhl will be operated this season. It is doubtful, in fact, if this Mesaba property will be found on the active list for a number of years to come. The tract owned in fee, its 10,000,000 tons of high-grade ore will in all probability be held in reserve for an extended period yet. Excepting that it was stripped in 1904, the Sharon has been idle since 1903, after having been operated for three seasons as a milling proposition by the Sharon Ore company, which then owned it. The property was explored by Robert Whiteside of Duluth, was opened in 1901, and has produced 320,000 tons of ore. The Steel corporation has the Iron Chief and the Culver, in the same field, but neither property has yet been developed. The tracts adjoin, and it is understood that both contain large deposits of ore, particularly the Iron Chief.

Yates Almost Exhausted.

After the present season, it is understood, the Yates mine will be abandoned. Its deposit is said to be practically exhausted, all but some 70,000 tons, and this it is intended to take out during the course for the next few months. The Yates is an open pit, located in 58-19, to the east of Buhl. It is a property of M. A. Hanna & Co., of Cleveland. The Yates has been producing for four years and has shipped 600,000 tons of ore, 475,000 tons of this the past two seasons. The Franta mine, also a property of Hanna & Co., in the Buhl district, continues inactive, as was the case last year, and it is apparently not the intention to do anything there this season. The mine was explored by Former Lieutenant Governor Alexander Maitland of Negaunee, Mich., and was opened in 1904 as a milling proposition. It has produced only 150,000 tons of ore, of which 900 tons were sent out last year. The fee is owned by the state. In the Virginia field, stripping has recently been started on Hanna & Co.'s Sliver property. Butler Bros., of St. Paul are doing the work, and they plan to use two shovels.

Stripping will be carried on this season at the Republic Iron & Steel company's Kinney mine, in Section 14, 53-19, east of Buhl. Drilling has been in progress for some months, preliminary to the work of enlarging the pit, and a good idea has been obtained of the dimensions of the ore body. Opened in 1903, the Kinney has a production of 230,000 tons to its credit. At Jones & Laughlin's Grant mine in 20, 58-19, at Buhl, still another test of the grab and overhead carrier systtem of stripping will be made this season by the Hoover-Mason company of Chicago. The trial given the apparatus has not been attended with any espacial success thus far, and it has been decidedly costly.

as against 16,194,786 pounds for the previous year and 18,827,557 for 1906. Dividends paid, $1,350,000. Osceola was operated with a reduced force and product of copper obtained much smaller than those of former years. It amounted to 14,134,752 pounds as compared with 18,588,451 pounds for 1906. Dividends paid in 1907, $1,249,950. Tamarack was also worked with a reduced force, but produced 11,078,904 pounds of copper as compared with 9,832,644 pounds for 1906. Dividends paid, $420,000. Wolverine's product was about an average one, being 9,372,982 pounds. Dividends paid, $1,050,000. Mohawk had a record product amounting to 10,107,266 pounds as compared with 9,352,252 pounds for 1906. Dividends paid, $900,000. Ahmeek had a record year of distinction while Centennial, Winona and Victoria also had record products. Elsewhere in this report each mine is referred to separately and at some length.

Improved Mining Methods.

In a general way Lake copper companies have been stretching out for bigger an better results and continued improvements have been made in all branches of mining. The people behind the mines know the business thoroughly and conduct it for the best interest of the companies and likewise for the future wellbeing of the properties. Future requirements are anticipated, kept well in the foreground and provided for in good season. To anticipate the future is the most important effort of human endeavor and intelligence in mining as well as in the course of every day life. Mines are opened on broad, practical lines and economically operated. The splendid success achieved, all over the upper peninsula becomes possible only by taking our enormous products with the aid of the best machinery the genius of man can invent and money buy, combined with a thorough knowledge of the business manageiments and working the mines in the most practical way for bringing the best results.

During the past few months copper mining companies have been passing through a strenous season. Many of them felt obliged to suspend operations entirely or to run along with a reduced force. Copper is now selling for 12¾ or 13 cents a pound according to brand as against 25 cents a year ago. There is not much money in 13 cent copper even for the richest and best conditioned mines. But there are better times ahead. In fact we are now, it is well believed, on the threshold of them. The keenest financiers of both the United States and Europe are already discounting the future. General business shows unmistakable signs of picking up and getting in condition for enlarged mining transactions. Farm products promise to be abundant and prices good with a ready market for every bushel of grain invested. Upon crops of grain and soil products more than anything else hinges the prosperity of the people. With three-quarters of the population of North America rolling in wealth, hard times will soon vanish and pass away like an unpleasant dream. The world must have copper. It has to be electrified and copper will form an important factor in the work. Michigan will contribute its share of the metal and her mines are in prime condition for furnishing the best brand on earth. All should be of good cheer. Just exercise a little patience and everything will turn out well.

while I do not anticipate any advance to such figures as prevailed before the slump in copper, I do expect a material increase i ncopper prices."

When Dr Ricketts was in the city on his former visits he was extremely conservative in his views as to any improvement in copper prices and it is matter of encouragement to those engaged in copper mining that on the present trip he expresses himself in a very optimistic manner as to the prospects for a rapid improvement in the copper industry.

"Mexico," said Dr. Ricketts, "was the last country to feel the effects of the recent monetary conditions originating in the United States and on this account was loth to believe those conditions serious. Just as this country was the last to feel the evil effects so will it be the last to feel the improved tone to all business in the United States may safely be taken as an index and the same improvement may be expected in conditions here."

THE SOCIALIST PARTY

Socialism means the collective ownership of the tools of production, the land, mines, mills, factories and railroads, and every means that will give power to one man to exploit another. Socialism does not mean, nor does it aim to gain control of the ownership of the property that belongs to the individual, but only strives to gain control of the property that is needed by all. Our work is not individual today. We must all co-operate, one with another, in our daily work.

The Socialist party is the political expression of the working class. By the working class, we mean every member within society today who performs useful labor, whether it is intellectual or manual. We have been forced by economic necessity to study present day conditions, and after a careful consideration have found that society, as organized today, is divided into classes. The interests of those classes being opposed to one another, it has caused us to set about organizing a party that we as workers could control, and which also would be the expression of our economic needs. As members of the party, we have direct control of all its actions and expressions, for the reason that anything that is done in which all of us do not have a voice, states our position on the question. The party membership in the United States is 41,000.

It must not be understood that Socialism is a national issue, for that is not true. It is international; it follows in the wake of capitalism, the same as the ferret follows the rabbit from hole to hole; so socialism follows capitalism, from country to country. The party is a dues-paying organization. All of the expenses of the party are paid out of the dues or assessments from all members who are able to pay. No member loses his right in the local because he is unable to pay dues. We do not know what the word pauperism means. We have no papers that we consider as such. When any member is unable to pay his dues, all that is asked of him is to make the statement to the recording secretary. He is granted the same right, the same liberty. We do not find that human nature is greedy and grasping. We do not find that a person will lie to avoid paying dues, and from this we are compelled to note that man as man is honest; what makes him dishonest is his environment.

Our method of collecting dues is the stamp system. The membership book or card that is given to the person when he or she becomes a member, is colored red. We do not use it, as our opponents say, as a red rag to enrage humanity, nor do we use it as the matador does the red rag to incite anger in the bull. We use it because it is a color that our opponents cannot use, without giving the lie to their own words. The stamp costs 25 cents and is placed in the book by the financial secretary and is signed by him. We in the local retain 10 cents; this is used to carry on the business of the local. I will state here that possibly you have noticed that the individual candidates at the elections have spent no money for their election. If they may wish to spend individually, they are denied the right to do so. They must turn such money to the local. They cannot use it as they wish to do themselves. The local does all the campaign work, meets all expenses, pays all bills. The other 15 cents is used as follows: Ten cents is held by J. E. Nash at Minneapolis, who is our state secretary. This portion of the dues is used to carry on the work of the state. After Comrade Nash has deducted the 10 cents from the 15 cents sent him for each member, the other 5 cents is sent to the national secretary at Caicago, who is J. M. Barnes, he is simply carrying out the wishes of the party. We have no dictation from the party. We will allow no form of despotism, no form of individual rulo to creep into it. We simply set our foot down upon all hero worshippers. We know there are some men with brighter minds than others, but the moment he tries to use the same as a dictator, we simply put a stop to it.

Our national and state secretaries are elected by referendum vote. All business transacted by us, whether in the local, state or national organization is carried on through the referendum. Every question that is of importance we all have a vote upon. There is not one thing that can be forced upon us, without first having the indorsement of the majority. I do not mean to say that we do not have our squabbles or differences in our discussions and work, but I do mean to say that nothing can be forced upon us individually.

The charge has been made against us that we are a money making institution. That is not true. In this state we have only four officials who draw a salary. One, Comrade J. E. Nash, the state secretary, draws a salary of $75 per month. He returns $20 to the party. The reason for a thing that seems so unreal to most people today is why this should be done. The answer is plain; we think that a salary of $75 is not too much money for the work the comrade is doing, but the comrade thinks, upon the other hand, that he is not working for money but is only asking for a living, and as he is able to live on the $55 per month he therefore returns the $20 to the party to use. Our congressmen and senators might copy the actions of this man. They might ask whether they are better than the people whom they serve, and whether they deserve a better living. The average Socialist who is able to speak upon the street or in the hall will do so free of charge, as long as there is no expense attached to the meeting. He will travel from place to place preaching and teaching the gospel of Socialism, if his expenses are paid. We do not believe that man's mission on earth is one of money making, but that it is a mission of a better humanity, not one of selfishness. The other paid official in this state is Guy Williams of Minneapolis, who is state organizer, who travels from place to place, organizing locals wherever he can find material to do so.

If every person who wishes to be honest with himself and honest to his brother and sister of the world, would take the question of Socialism and study it for two weeks, casting aside all riffraff and prejudice and give the question a little thought on what it is seeking to accomplish, and what humanity would gain by setting up the Social Republic, there would be very few persons not Socialists. But we can not get them to study or listen to what we say. They seem to be filled to the brim of making dollars at all cost, and never consider the misery they are causing other people. If there are any who wish to join our party, they can call or communicate with P. G. Phillips, recording secretary, 3823 Magellan street, West Duluth.

ORDER TO HEAR PETITION FOR LICENSE TO SELL LAND TO MINOR.
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. —ss.
In Probate Court.
In the Matter of the Guardianship of Georgia G. Evans, James T. Evans and Mary E. Evans, Minors.

On reading and filing the Petition of Fidelity Trust Company, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, guardian of said minors, duly appointed by the County Court of the County of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, representing, among other things, that the said Wards, are each seized of certain real estate in the County of St. Louis and State of Minnesota, and that for the benefit of said Wards the same should be sold, and praying for license to sell the same; and it appearing to the satisfaction of the Court, from said Petition, that for the benefit of said Wards said real estate should be sold;

PRESIDENTS TO THE SOUTH OF US

food that had not been prepared by his mother, and he is never without a bodyguard in public or private.

Zelaya's Ambition.

Cabrera does not seem to have any ambition other than that of keeping a strangle-hold on his own country. Zelaya, on the other hand, has long dreamed of being the dominant voice in a union of the Central American nations. His fellow presidents know of this ambition; they are also aware of his unscrupulous ways and his power, and for these and other good and sufficient reasons they dread him even more than they do the revolutionists of their respective countries, whose backer Zelaya has frequently been accused of being. Today Zelaya practically dictates the government of Honduras, as a result of his victory in war over that republic early last year, and Washington will tell you that today the question of Central American peace or war rests largely with Jose Santos Zelaya, as it has for a good many years.

Born in 1852, Zelaya is four years older than Cabrera, and he was 41 when he became president. Unlike Cabrera, he was well known in his country before he was obsessed of presidential ambitions. His family—of unmixed blood—has long been prominent in Nicaragua and is one of the wealthiest of the aristocracy. Ten years of his life he spent in travel and study in Europe and this country. It was during this period that he worked out his presidential plans and began dreaming of a United States of Central America. When he returned to his native land he at once set about to materialize his schemes, and not long thereafter he had dramatically seized the presidency, as already described.

Though the statement is not in keeping with the revolutionary and autocratic careers of some of them, it is nevertheless true that all of the presidents to the south of us—with possibly two exceptions—have conferred benefits on their respective countries through realization of their presidential ambitions. A certain exception is Nord Alexis, voodoo worshiper and former page of the notorious Emperor Christophe of Hayti, whose career was one of almost unbelievable atrocities from beginning to end. Alexis has proved himself an apt pupil of his old master.

Ecuador's President.

There is Alfaro of Ecuador. Following the failure of one of his revolutions, he journeyed to New York city and got acquainted with Yankee enterprise. When he became president he decided that what Ecuador really needed was a railroad through the mountains which famous European engineers had pronounced impenetrable even by modern engineering methods. Alfaro got New York capital interested and imported a Virginia engineer, and in time the wonderful Guayaquil & Quito railroad resulted, an enterprise which has been of great value to the commerce of the country. Alfaro, too, put his country on a gold basis, paid off the national debt and separated church and state, all prior to the close of his first term, thus proving himself a statesman of no mean calibre, as well as a revolutionist of great bravery.

Pardo has awakened throughout Peru great interest in education, which he has put under national control. He has imported a number of German professors, and at his solicitation Peruvian students now go in large numbers to the universities of this country and Europe. At the present time about 150 Peruvians are now studying here and a like number in Europe. Under Pardo the country's railway system has also been enlarged.

Montes has astonished the Bolivians by going outside of his party in order to fill appointive offices with the best men available. Under Reyes Colombia has experienced its quietest period in years, and in Chile Montt's administration has been marked by unbroken national progress. Both as president and holder of minor offices, Alcorta, of Argentina has done much to promote the agricultural and commercial prosperity of that country. Following the revolution of 1890 he was one of the men who restored the financial solidity of the republic. Castro—well, it is not the fashion to say anything good of him in this country, and he probably deserves to be classed with Alexis as a president, whose tenure in office has resulted in no material good for the people.

Alcorta, like Penna, is a former university professor. He taught in the University of San Carlos, an institution much older than Harvard. Alcorta, too, is a former editor, and as chief of El Interior wielded a large influence before he took to office holding. For years before he became head of Panama, Amador was one of the famous physicians of Latin America. He is a specialist in yellow fever, and nations have consulted him regarding the best methods of fighting that dread disease. Montt of Chile has been an office-holder the better part of his active career; he comes of one of Chile's office-holding families. Lawyers, professional revolutionists, emperor's page, explorer, doctors, professors, adventurers—such were some of the presidents to the south of us before they were given or seized their high offices. But only one was a cattle thief, and that one was—Cipriano Castro.

The Most Common Cause of Suffering

Rheumatism causes more pain and suffering than any other disease, for the reason that it is the most common of all ills, and it is certainly gratifying to sufferers to know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm will afford relief, and make rest and sleep possible. In many cases the relief from pain, which is at first temporary, has become permanent, while in old people subject to chronic rheumatism, often brought on by dampness or changes in the weather, a permanent cure cannot be expected; the relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. 25 and 50-cent sizes. For sale by all druggists.

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR LICENSE TO SELL, MORTGAGE OR LEASE LAND BY REPRESENTATIVE OR GUARDIAN.
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis.
In Probate Court.
In the matter of the estate of Henry H. Evans, Deceased.

The petition of Burdett A. Siggins, administrator of said estate, duly appointed by the County Court of the County of Milwaukee, State of Wisconsin, having been filed in this court, representing, among other things, that for reasons stated in said petition, it is necessary and for the best interests of the estate of said Henry H. Evans, and of all persons interested therein, to sell certain lands of said Henry H. Evans, deceased, in said petition described, and praying that license be to said Burdett A. Siggins granted to sell the said land:

It Is Ordered, That said petition be heard before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in Duluth in said County on Monday the 8th day of June, 1908, at ten o'clock, A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

Ordered Further, That this order be served by publication in The Duluth Evening Herald, according to law.

It is rumored that the Section 30 mine will resume in the near future. Some preparations are being made for re-opening the exploratory work on that property. The mine has been shut down since last fall, owing to troubles between the lessees and owners. It is reported that an entirely new company has been formed and will be given a lease on the property.

The Presbyterian church was dedicated last Wednesday evening, and the pastor, Rev. P. W. Jacobson, was installed. Mr. Jacobson is the first pastor to be installed here in this church for many years, the minister being only considered as temporarily holding the position. There were present several ministers from neighboring towns and Duluth. The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacobson was christened during this service also. The church has recently been papered, painted, and supplied with new altar, and other church furniture, newly carpeted, new electrollers, and new communion table. The church now presents a very pleasing appearance—in fact, one of the prettiest in this part of the state.

Walker

Walker, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Walker has only two Civil war veterans in its midst, but Memorial day was observed nevertheless. The two survivors are Judge Ely Wright and Paul Noe. Three soldiers have answered "taps" within the past year—Comrades Jerrard, Bromley and Hero.

Little Irene Halderman, daughter of D. H. Halderman, the liveryman, had a narrow escape from drowning Saturday. While playing on the government dock she fell into the water, disappearing from sight, and was not seen again for fully five minutes, having gone under the dock. She was rescued by Martin Martinson, and Dr. Wilcox summoned. After over half an hour's hard work the little one was resuscitated. What probably saved the girl's life was owing to the fact that she was eating liberally of oranges at the time she fell into the water, and, in endeavoring to scream, caused a liberal quantity of the juicy fruit to lodge in her throat. This prevented water from entering her lungs, and the drowning proved to be more a case of choking than otherwise. Being in the water so long, it is doubtful if life could have been brought back to the little body had not the orange served its purpose.

The county Republican convention will be held at Walker on June 25. Several county towns were after the convention, but the chairman thought it advisable to hold this meeting at the county seat.

MAKE AWARD FOR CAMPUS

Cass Gilbert, Noted Architect of Capital is Declared Winner.

Captures $1,000 Prize Offered by University Board of Regents.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cass Gilbert, the famous architect who designed the handsome state capitol of Minnesota, the great New York customs house and many other buildings of note in this country, has added another laurel by winning first place and the $1,000 prize offered by the board of regents of the University of Minnesota for plans for a greater campus and architectural arrangement for the university. The university regents made the award yesterday afternoon.

The competition was established by the board of regents to obtain a general plan for the development of the university grounds and buildings, with the understanding that an expert commission should be secured to aid the regents in arriving at a decision as to the awards. The commission named was D. H. Burnham of Chicago, Walter Cook of New York and W. M. Kenyon of Minneapolis.

The call for the competition stated that the regents desired a plan with esthetic and practical merit, and that the architect selected should be a man of integrity, ability and broad experience in the special line of work. Within ten days of the advertisement the competing architects had registered.

Drawings were required in the competition as follows: General plan showing grounds and buildings; one section in any direction, at option of competitor; one birdseye perspective, from point selected by competitor; the contour lines of the site in the topographical survey furnished to each competitor to be shown in the plan.

It was provided that the designs were to be in outline, and no alternative drawings were to be submitted, except in the case of the general arrangement. The rules covered also other multitudinous details of the competition.

The paragraph relating to the award read: "The board of regents will award, with the counsel and advice of the advisory board, two prizes to the most successful competitor, the first prize of $1,000 and a second prize of $500, prize money to become due and payable immediately after the competition is judged and the award made."

If further development of the selected plan shall be decided upon by the regents, the successful competitor is to be required to make such modifications or restudies as are necessary to meet final approval of the board. An additional fee is to be paid for such services.

Red Lake Falls High School Commencement Exercises.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The commencement exercises of the class of '08 of the Red Lake Falls high school were held at the opera house Thursday evening and attended by a large audience. A fine program was rendered, with President Weld of the state normal school at Moorhead, delivering the principal address. The vocal solo by Mrs. Emma F. Marshall was well rendered and called forth a response, while the instrumental duet by Messrs. Harry Healy and Clem Brunelle was deserving of special mention. The class was composed of thirteen girls and two boys, who have pushed from ashore in their bark to sail upon life's rugged sea.

PURSE FOR MAYOR SMITH.

Aged Retiring St. Paul Executive to Receive a Testimonial.

St. Paul, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Robert A. Smith, who at the age of 81 years, will retire on Tuesday from the office of mayor of St. Paul, will receive a purse donated by his friends, and probably large enough to keep him in comfort for the remainder of his life.

The purse was started by R. T. O'Connor, with the idea of making it a testimonial from the close personal friends and political associates of Mr. Smith, and the intention was that it should be a surprise to the recipient, but the circle of the contributors broadened until secrecy became impossible and the movement took the form of a big public subscription. The amount will run well into the thousands.

Brainerd, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Martin Dowling of Mission has just been visited last week by his two brothers, Michael and Lawrence Dowling of Glen Falls, N. Y., the former of whom he had not seen for fifty-two years. When Martin was but a child his parents came West, his older brother remaining in New York. As a result the brothers drifted apart, growing up almost as strangers to one another. Martin Dowling has made his home in Minnesota during the entire half century, and more.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Crookston—Bandmaster G. O. Riggs of this city has received a distinct honor in being engaged as cornet soloist and assistant conductor of the band of forty pieces which will furnish music for the North Dakota State Fair, which will be held in Fargo this year, during the week of July 20 to 25.

Glyndon—President C. O. Drayton, of the Illinois State Union of the American Society of Equity, will address the farmres of Clay county on Tuesday, June 2, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon at the village hall here. The subject of his address will be "How to Secure Profitable Prices for all farm products."

Middle River—The local creamery made twenty-nine and one half tubs of butter last week which is within three or four tubs of high water mark for last year. It is confidently expected that the production will reach fifty tubs per week by July 1.

Sebeka—Dr. O. V. Johnson of Sebeka, will become a benedict on June 17, when he will wed Miss Clara A. Robbins of Deer Creek. The ceremony will take place at the home of the bride in that village.

Crookston—The congregation of the Congregational church here decided to issue a call to the Rev. C. C. Warner of Eldora, Iowa., who preached at the church last Sunday. The members of the congregation were much pleased with Mr. Warner and believe he is the man they have been looking for.

Wadena—Tuesday Young & Jacobson were awarded the contract for the construction of a new store and opera house at Bertha. The builder of the new structure is Mr. Kolhauss and he will furnish all materials, the contractors simply doing the work. The contract price for the labor will amount to about $2,000 while the building will cost about $6,000.

Deerwood—Miss Maude Phelps closed a nine months term of school in District No. 12 on Friday, May 22. In the afternoon a program consisting of recitations, dialogues and music was given, after which refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

Stillwater—The Prison Mirror says two hundred yards of bunting and eleven dozen flags of assorted sizes have been purchased for use on Memorial day and the Fourth of July. The old flags were all in and presented a very unsightly appearance.

Little Falls—The drive which started from Little Falls to St. Cloud on April 13, under Foreman Ed Lavoie reached that place May 21, taking only a little over five weeks. The lower drive, from St. Cloud to Minneapolis, is not yet finished and the upper drive, from Brainerd to Little Falls, is still somewhere between here and Belle Prairie.

St. Cloud—The work on the new power station which the Public Service company is constructing at the site of the old paper mill below the dam is progressing rapidly. The upper coffer dam has been completed and the water has been shut out from the work above. The work of putting in the lower coffer dam was ebgun Wednesday and that will also be completed by the middle of next week.

Fertile—Mrs. H. A. Thews, who moved to Roberts, Wis., last fall with the expectations of making her permanent home, returned Wednesday morning and will again engage in farming and dairying on her farm in the town of Godfrey. She says there is no place like Northern Minnesota after all.

Wabasha—While Mrs. Chipmann of Kellogg was standing in front of a store in this place Friday she was attacked by heart disease and fell dead. She was about 55 years of age. Her daughter was with her and took the remains to Kellogg for burial.

Barnesville—Contractor Fisch of this city brought into town Friday samples of rye that measured eighteen inches. The grain is well headed and has a good color.

Litchfield—Mayor Robertson has ordered all dogs to be muzzled owing to the spread of rabies. Several dogs have recently gone mad here and the council will pay $1 each for all dogs found without muzzles and killed. Since the order went into effect dogs are very scarce on the streets. About twenty have been killed.

WISCONSIN

SLEPT NIGHTLY HARNESSED UP

Crippled Miser Kept Himself Alive in Strange Manner.

Manitowac, Wis., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the death of Thomas Rodin, an old recluse and hunchback medicine peddler, $25,000 to $40,000 will be put into circulation that has been hoarded for over forty years, the vender's property having been discovered when the man died at the Holy Family hospital. Having a premonition that he was going to die, Rodin made his will, which he deposited with a trust company, leaving his property to distant relatives at Sturgeon Bay and vicinity, where he for? merly resided.

Rodin was one of the characters of this section. At the hospital he told of his wealth, which occasioned a deal of surprise, since it was generally believed he was poverty-stricken.

Early in life Rodin was the victim of an accident in a mill, which deformed his back. For the last ten years he has suspended his body in a harness each night before retiring. He did this to relieve his back, and he said before death that this nightly practice of hanging himself from the arms was all that kept him alive so long.

THREE KILLED IN A WRECK

Burlington Freight Leaves Track Because of Washout in Wisconsin.

Maiden Rock, Wis., May 30.—A northbound Burlington freight train was wrecked near here early yesterday, due to a washout, and three men were crushed to death, while four boys had a narrow escape from death. As identified by letters found on their bodies, the victims are supposed to be Willard D. McAuley of Chicago; Bert Reel, who has relatives living at Sauk Rapids, Minn., and Roy R. Reel, probably a brother of Bert Reel, and who has a wife and two children at Seattle, Wash.

A heavy rain had undermined the track at the foot of a ravine, and as the engine passed over the weak spot the track began to settle. Fifteen cars were thrown off the track, some of them being demolished. The three men were riding in a stock car loaded with steel rails. They were lying down on the floor, at one end of the car. As the train came to a sudden stop, the rails were thrown against the end of the car where the men were, crushing them to death. Four boys were taken from under a car of coal, but they were not injured.

RAILROADS VIOLATE LAW.

Said to Ship Stock Into State Without Giving Notice.

Madison, Wis., May 30.—The state live stock sanitary board, at a meeting here, instructed Secretary J. M. True to again call attention of the railroads to the law requiring them to notify the secretary of the board when they ship cattle into this state from other states, in order that they may be tested for tuberculosis. Complaints have come from different parts of the state that the railroads are not strictly observing thelaw. State Veterinarian Roberts says there does not seem to be any increase in tuberculosis among cattle in this state. This is due to the activity of the state veterinarian and his assistants.

BOX CAR HOBOES THICK.

Ashland, Wis., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The police report that box car hoboes are increasing, never a day passing that several men are not taken from the cars. In addition to the regulation hobo, real workingmen out of jobs, are making their appearance. The epidemic is not bad yet, but it is expected to grow during the summer. The police report a number of lodgers every night.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Ashland—The six ward schools of the city held their final declamatory contest in the high school auditorium Wednesday evening. Twelve young people, two from each school, participated and all did very well, although the audience was not as large as it should have been in order to encourage the contestants to do their best.

Fond du Lac—Larry Rubin and Will McDonald were arrested at midnight for robbing the Union school. They were caught with their pockets loaded with spoils. Information reached the police station that a light had been noticed in the school building. Officers Fischer, Smith and Silgen went to the school, and after watching the light for a short time, entered quietly and captured the robbers, who were crouched behind a bench.

Waukesha—This city is being flooded with counterfeit money and a number of business men have been victimized. The greater part of the spurious coins in circulation are bogus silver dollars of excellent workmanship, but light in weight. A number of counterfeit half dollars have also been passed.

Madison—Clarence Allen, who held up Nels Johnson, a farmer, on the streets of Stoughton several weeks ago, was brought back from Chicago, where he was captured on Sunday, and sentenced to eighteen months in the state reformatory at Green Bay.

Fennimore—Clanton's livery stable was destroyed by fire early Thursday morning. Seven horses perished. All the rigs but one, all the harness, feed, grain, etc., were destroyed.

Waukesha—Sheriff George L. Dwinnell was exonerated by a jury on charges of brutality brought against him in a suit for $8,000 damages by Charles L. Capsel, "Holy Jumper," who testified that he and his fellow prisoners had been beaten and drenched while in jail.

Mazomanie—During the storm at 4 o'clock Thursday morning, twenty-one of the milch cows on the Morrill farm, three miles northwest of here, were struck by lightning. The herd was valued at over $1,000, and included all the milch cows on the farm.

UPPER MICHIGAN

RED JACKET IS AFTER REUNION

Knights of Pythias to Send Strong Delegation to Escanaba.

Calumet, Mich., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charity Lodge Knights of Pythias of Red Jacket is making a campaign to secure for this place next year's Upper Peninsula convention of the order. The two delegates, A. Rosewarne and Joseph Kemp, will attend the convention to be held at Escanaba on June 21, 22 and 23, pledged to secure the next reunion and judging from the sentiment of the lodges comprising the district, it is believed Calumet will be successful.

In addition to the delegates who will go to Escanaba, Charity lodge will enter a degree team to take part in the contest to be held during the convention. The members of the team are: Dr. Elliott, J. Thomas, A. Rosewarne, W. S. Smeed, John Biscombe, Will Dawe, Dan Ross, W. Williams, John Ritchie, A. E. Moe, W. Parish, Joseph Kemp, George Kemp, Dave Ross, and B. Barnum.

The local lodge in conjunction with the other Copper country lodges, which includes Laurium, Houghton, Hancock and L'Anse, has made arrangements for a special train over the Mineral Range road for Escanaba, leaving the Red Jacket depot on Sunday afternoon, June 21, at 3 o'clock, stopping at the Portage Lake cities for the members of the order who intend journeying to the convention. Special round trip rates have been secured, and it is expected the Copper country contingent will be a large one.

There are twelve degree teams entered for the contest, including the Calumet team, and it is expected the contest will be one of the keenest and most interesting ever held by the Knights of Pythias in the Upper Peninsula.

ORDERS BRONZE STATUE.

Peter White to Provide Tribute to Father Marquette.

Marquette, Mich., May 30.—Peter White has ordered a magnificent bronze statue of Father Marquette to be erected on Mackinac island, and although the entire cost of the memorial will be in the neighborhood of $12,000, Mr. White assumes the burden of the cost and the entire responsibility.

"I simply got tired waiting for those Chicago fellows who were interested," said Mr. White. "They wanted a statue that would cost $50,000 or $60,000. In the meantime I have been holding that site donated by the Makinac Island park commission for four years, waiting for those men to help me do something. If it hadn't been for the fact that I am chairman of the commission the site would have been taken from us long ago.

"I finally decided that I'd act alone, so I ordered a bronze statue that is even finer than the one presented by the state of Wisconsin to the government and now in the hall of fame in Washington. I have a few donations of $200 or $250, but any one of those who donated those sums could have paid for the entire monument and not have noticed it. The statue is eight feet tall and will be mounted on a high pedestial. I expect to have it unveiled some time in July."

BIG INDIAN TURNED DOWN.

Refused License to Marry White Girl at Menominee.

Menominee, Mich., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday morning an aged Indian, weighing 300 pounds and paralyzed so that both legs and his right arm are useless, was carried to the courthouse in a rig, and there met by a young white girl, 19 years old. Their application for a license was refused by County Clerk Hanson, who seemed to think that a man who was not able to go to get his license, but must have the county clerk come to his carriage, was not able to take care of a wife

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet—Edward Cooke, aged 25, a well known resident of Mohawk, died Wednesday afternoon at his home after a prolonged illness. He is survived by a mother, five brothers and three sisters.

Houghton—Peter Karinen was Thursday morning found guilty by a jury in circuit court of the crime of murder in the second degree. The case was completed Wednesday afternoon at the close of the afternoon session, and the jury at once retired to commence upon its dilliberations.

Hancock—The 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Erik Belranen of Pontiac, near the Mesnard location died Wednesday. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon, with services conducted by Rev. John Back of the Finnish Lutheran church. Interment will be at Lakeside.

Calumet—Harry E. Kling of this city, received a beautiful new gasoline launch this week from St. Joseph, Mich. The engine off the boat has four cylinders which will make the craft speedy. Another beautiful launch will be received here shortly for Norman S. MacDonald of Laurium.

Menominee—A notice has been posted at the plant of the Bird & Wells Lumber company that the sawmill will shut down as soon as the logs in the pond and those decked in the woods are sawed. Logging operations have been suspended and it is estimated that the stock of logs on hand at the mill and in the woods will keep the ulant in operation until the latter part of July.

Calumet—The lady friends and wives of the members of the Calumet lodge of Elks were entertained Wednesday evening in the Gate-Wiggins' hall, and a very pleasant evening was spent. Music was furnished and dancing was one of the features. Luncheon was served.

The class will number 70. The exercises will take place at 10 a. m. June 19, in the assembly room of the Central building.

DAKOTAS

MAKES INQUIRY ABOUT HIS DOG

Runaway Husband Not Very Solicitous About His Better Half.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 30.—Charles Bowers, who mysteriously disappeared, leaving a letter for his wife in which he told her to say goodby to his little dog for him, has written from a Montana town. He gives no explanation of his disappearance. He asks his wife how she would like to go out to Montana and inquires as to the health of the dog.

This is at least the second mysterious disappearance of Bowers. On the eve of the date fixed for his wedding he left and nothing was heard of him for three months, when he returned and told his sweetheart he had been in Minneapolis. He secured her forgiveness and they were married.

MINOT'S SPECIAL ELECTION.

It Will be Held June 10, to Vote on Bond Issues.

Minot, N. D., May 30.—The Minot city council ordered a special election to be held June 10, for the purpose of voting on the issuance of bonds to the amount of $32,000 for the erecting of a municipal waterworks plant. The matter has been threshed out in council meetings for the past five years without any decision having been reached. With this issue the city will have about $75,000 on hand for waterworks. A new site will have to be purchased for the plant as the one now owned by the city is below the sewer pipes. The vote for the special election passed with but two dissenting votes. H. H. Luken of Grand Forks and Mr. Wheeler of Beloit, Wis., were present and talked for some time on the waterworks proposition.

TRAINS ARE DELAYED.

Fargo, N. D., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Several washouts on the Montana divisions of the Northern Pacific have caused much delay in traffic from the coast this week. Several trains have been tied up at Livingston, Mont. the first one coming through yesterday morning.

DEFIANT SOCIALIST EDITOR.

Deadwood, S. D., May 30.—Judge Garland has sentenced Former Congressman Feenan Knowles, editor of the Socialist paper here, to pay a fine of $500 for sending improper material through the mails. Though local Socialists raised the required fund, Knowles refused to pay the fine, and was taken to the Pennington county jail.

In yesterday's issue of his paper, Knowles re-published the article on which he was convicted.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D.—Members of the Fargo council, U. C. T., have received invitations for the grand council which will be held in Calgary on June 8, 9 and 10. Quite a number of Fargo travelers are making arrangements to attend this meeting.

Minot, N. D.—Alleging that the side of his head was peeled from a blow with a billiard cue, Gullick Johnson has signed a complaint against Hugo Benz, proprietor of a pool hall at Mohall. Johnson alleges that Benz struck him over the head with a cue and that he suffered great injury as the result.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The Northwestern Telephone company has completed repairs on its lines torn down in the recent storm. About thirty miles of wires were down. The district worst affected was between Osnabrock and Hannah and Munich and Hampden.

Fargo, N. D.—Julius Stavener, an old offender at the excessive drinking habit, was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail Thursday by Judge Ryan. Stavener was found in a beastly state of intoxication yesterday afternoon at Island park.

Park River, N. D.—Prof. and Mrs. R. N. Grace departed Wednesday evening for Metropolis, Ill., where they will make their future home. Prof. Grace has been located at Park River for the past three years, engaged in teaching music.

Fargo, N. D.—Mayor Peter Elliott left Thursday morning for Hunter's Hot Springs, Mont., where he will spend some time on account of poor health. He had intended going several weeks ago, but a severe sick spell coming on prevented him at that time.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Lou Weller has left for Winnipeg, where he will remain about a week, then going to Dominion City, Man., where he will be engaged during the summer months in handling a string of field trail dogs for the Manitoba Field Trials club.

Devils Lake, N. D.—A grand Fourth of July celebration has been planned for the North Dakota Chautauqua this year. Even at this early date, all the details of the program for that day have been completed. The program is so varied and has such a variety of attractions, that the likes of everybody will be suited.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Present indications are that the coming meeting of the Red River Valley Baptist association, to be held in Grand Forks on July 2 and 3, will be the greatest and most largely attended gathering ever held by the organization.

PINE RIVER SCHOOLS CLOSED FOR SEASON.

Pine River, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village schools closed here last evening after a very successful term. The commencement exercises were very elaborate and well attended. Diplomas were awarded to the following: Myrtle Thornton, Willie Gilbert, Irene Peterson, Cecil White, Florence Davis, Bert Fuller, Helen Gilbert, Henry Leef and Elsie Moberg. The attendance during the past year has so increased that it will likely necessitate the fifth teacher during the coming term

PINE RIVER FAIR.

Association Reorganized and Plans Made for Success.

Pine River, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Pine River Agricultural society has been reorganized and incorporated, under the name of the Cass County Agricultural association. Elaborate plans are being made for the annual fair this fall, and a bigger and better meeting than previous ones is assured.

The officers of the new association comprise: T. A. Nash, president; B. E. Wideman, vice president; James H. Percgrine, secretary, and James E. Gearey, treasurer.

DR. MITCHELL

Benefits Humanity, His Treatment a decided Boon to the Sick and the Crippled.

Ten years in Duluth, treating all kinds of diseases that flesh is heir to, without the use of drugs or the surgeon's knife. Cures cancers, removes tumors. No risk of life, no pain attached to this treatment. Also, neuralgia, nervous prostration, heart, stomach, liver, kidney, sexual weakness, female troubles, deafness, paralysis, lumbago. All diseases yield readily to his electro magnetic treatment, because the treatment goes directly to the diseased organs and restores perfect harmony throughout the entire system.

Sena Hagen, Neilsville, Minn., cured of rheumatism and kidney trouble.

Mrs. L. Lautave of Grand Forks was cured of female weakness. Had been a great sufferer for years and was about to have an operation performed and did not expect to live through the summer. Was cured by Dr. Mitchell. This statement can be substantiated by calling at 125 North Fifty-sixth avenue east.

Capt. Thomas Read of the Read Wrecking company of Port Huron, Mich., says:

To all whom it may concern:

I advise all suffering from diseases that are not getting well under their present treatment, and have given up all hope, to consult Dr. Mitchell. His treatment has worked wonders for me. I had doctored five years with medical doctors and taken all kinds of treatment and spent over ten thousand dollars and got no relief until I placed myself under Dr. Mitchell's treatment.

GREAT WESTERN ROAD HARD HIT

Seven Bridges Carried Out and Considerable Track Washed Away.

Red Wing, Minn., May 30.—The Chicago & Great Western railroad sustained great damages as a result of last Thursday night's storm, seven bridges and hundreds of feet of track being washed away.

In the surrounding country there has been great loss of property. Almost every bridge in the Hay creek valley has been washed away and it is impossible for many farmers to get to town. All streams are out of their banks, and the Mississippi is now nine feet over low water mark and is rapidly rising.

Near Wacouta a flock of eighty sheep were carried away in a flood that swept over the lowlands.

Fairbault, Minn., May 30.—Recent rains have flooded the lowlands in this vicinity and crops are under water. Straight river is higher than it has been before for fifteen years. The river has risen five feet since last night and at 7 o'clock last night was up to the top of the Rock Island brigde. The bridge, it is believed, will withstand the flood.

LIVED MANY YEARS THERE.

Mrs. Eliza Richards, Wife of Capt. Richards of Laurium.

Laurium, Mich., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Mrs. Eliza Richards, wife of Capt. Richards, for many years under-ground superintendent of the Osceloa Consolidated Mining company, who died Wednesday evening, after a lingering illness, will be held Sunday at 2 p. m., from the home, Rev. W. E. Marvin, pastor of the Laurium M. E. church, officiating.

Mrs. Richards was aged 66 years, and is survived by a husband and one daughter, Mrs. A. MacRae of Centennial. The decedent was born in St. Buryan, Cornwall, England, and came to this country many years ago. She has been a continuous resident here for more than forty years, and well know. She was married in Cornwall about forty-eight years ago to Capt. Richards, and has been a devoted and loving wife. Her loss is deeply felt.

A LASTING EFFECT

This Evidence Should Prove Every Claim Made for Doan's Kidney Pills in Duluth.

Relief from the pains and aches of a bad back is always welcome to every backache sufferer; but to cure a lame, weak or aching back is what's wanted. Cure it so it will stay cured. It can be done. Here's the strongest evidence to prove it:

J. Vaugan of 532 First street west, Duluth, Minn., says: "In the summer of 1898 I told the people of Duluth, through our local newspapers, of the splendid results I had obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. My trouble was a kidney and bladder disorder, that was painful and annoying, and had clung to me for a considerable time. The kidney secretions were quite irregular and contained a sediment which varied in color and condition. There were dull, heavy pains through the loins, and I was very restless at night, being unable to remain in one position for any length of time. The trouble was becoming worse, when I was induced to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I continued taking them until entirely relieved of the affliction. I am glad to say that the cure has been permanent, and will always be pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

it was a custom for only the relatives of the soldier dead to deck the graves.

But the proud significance of the day, said Capt. Smallwood, impressed the nation and it might mean, said he, that it was for the living, but there could be no mistaking the meaning of the word memorial.

Bishop Morrison Speaks.

Bishop J. D. Morrison gave a strong patriotic address. He pointed out the progress of the world's civilization from Asia, always west, until the cycle was complete, and it had as its triumph in the United States, the peer of all nations.

He spoke of the achievements of this land, which embraces so many people whose homes were once across the sea.

"When the question is of whether the great hordes of people who come to these shores can be made Americans arises," said Bishop Morrison, "the common schools of the land solve the problem."

"A short time after these strangers come to our land, their children are seen coming down the steps of the little red school houses throughout the country, carrying American flags and singing 'My Country 'Tis of Thee' and they are Americans, for they would be strangers in any other land," said the bishop.

Alex Enna sang "The Star Spangled Banner" and a male quartet gave two pretty numbers.

W. E. Culkin also addressed the meeting.

Mr. Culkin spoke in part as follows: "Memorial day has become a great national holiday. It is observed universally by the American people. The money makers and toilers are resting from their usual labor and the minds of all the people are filled with feelings of reverence and gratitude. A little halt has taken place in the rush and clamor of daily life which cannot be but beneficial. This holiday is recognized by statute law. The law makers of the state and nation have declared that it shall be observed, but unless this declaration met with popular approval and unless the things which the holiday meant to celebrate appealed to the imagination and gratitude of the average man, no holiday would exist. The statute declaring Memorial day a holiday, therefore, merely announces the will, the desire and the intention of the people. It is peculiarly necessary and proper that the American people more than any other should celebrate the memory of its dead heroes. As a nation we are losing very rapidly that reverence for the past which all must possess who are capable of reflecting. As a nation, we are losing far too rapidly that reverence for age and experience which is becoming. As a nation our minds are too much occupied with the present, and we are pushing into the future with too intense a feeling, with too much anxiety, and with too much clamor. The American people and the American person do not often enough relax activity, do not often enough study the history of the past, in order that past experience may lead to a more correct way of living and judging.

Thoughts Turned to Past.

"It is well then that on this occasion the shop is closed, the factory silenced, the courts adjourned, and the great nation, putting aside for a day both business and hilarity, has turned its mind to the past. More than that, many millions of people are today wending their way to the burial places and seeking out special graves, and are decorating them with flags and flowers. Who were these men whose remains are thus honored and what did they do to entitle them thus to be remembered and thus to be separated in popular esteem from other men? To answer that question in its fullness would be to recite a history, which would take too long, but we can say that these graves we decorate are the graves of men who were in a great internal struggle, the warriors of the nation. They offered their lives for its preservation and the results of their heroism has been momentous. We decorate the graves of the boys in blue. What fond memories are awakened by the term 'the boys in blue.' It is no misnomer, for those who filled the armies from '61 to '65 were indeed boys. Men who gazed at the dead on the battle fields often thought that the great war was a slaughter of children. The armies of the United States were composed very largely of men from 16 to 30 years of age and the proportion of those who were under 20 was astounding. A man of 35 or 40 in the army of the United States in the Civil war was deemed an old man. It was the boys, almost the children, who held our flag aloft and preserved the national integrity.

A Unique Holiday.

"We do well to honor then in this country, on this occasion, not birth nor position, but simply the brave soldier boy. This is done by no other people. While we have no titles of nobility, at the same time it is esteemed a sort of a title, a sort of an honor and distinction for a man to be able to say 'I was at Vicksburg,' 'I fought at Gettysburg,' 'I marched with the army of the Cumberland,' 'I tramped with Sherman from Atlanta to the Sea.' And it is not only an honor to a man to be able to say these things, but it is an honor that descends to his children after him. It is our only American title of nobility.

"This country and this people have their share of faults and no doubt may be justly subjected to some criticism, but it is evident after all that the American nation is a very great nation. This is so because it has always happened that in every national emergency, American citizens have been willing to give their lives in the nation's service. This has always been true and it is true today. It would prove true tomorrow were this country assailed by any alarming danger, and we need never fear that the nation will be deserted by its sons in any time of peril. When all the men of a nation think more of their ease and comfort and the few short days that they may have to live, than they do of the honor of their country, then such a country is marked for sure extinction."

The exercises were concluded with the singing of America by the entire audience.

THE HIGH SCHOOL MEETING.

Boys Make Up in Enthusiasm for Lack of Numbers.

Though the assembly room of the high school was not more than half filled with boys at the Memorial day exercises this morning, those present fully made up for their lack of numbers by their enthusiasm. As each speaker took the floor the walls of the room fairly shook with the applause. Martial strains furnished by the drum and bugle corps of the Trinity Pro-Cathedral boys added greatly to the enthusiasm that prevailed.

B. P. Neff's Talk.

B. P. Neff was the first to speak. He was introduced by Mr. Bates.

After paying an eloquent tribute to the heroes of the Civil war and pronouncing the day as profoundly one of inspirations, Mr. Neff gave some very practical advice to his young audience and said in part as follows:

"We, too, have battles to fight, kingdoms to conquer and enemies to overthrow. God grant we may never have to go to war and fight as did these men in '63, and yet their battles, perhaps, were fought under more favorable circumstances than many in which we may be called upon to engage. They fought, filled with enthusiasm, with courage sustained by numbers and under leaders whose personalities were such as to inspire confidence and the utmost courage.

Moral Battles.

"On the other hand, we frequently are called upon to fight moral battles where we stand, practically or seemingly alone. It takes great moral courage to stand up for the right when the world and one's best friends are against us, and yet it must be done if we are to maintain the glorious heritage left and keep high the standard raised by such men as Washington, Lincoln and our own President Roosevelt.

"We all desire good homes, pure municipal government, clean legislatures and untainted halls of congress. Did you ever stop to think where the foundation of all this is laid? It is in the home. If the home is pure, if the children are properly trained and if the boys are right, municipal government will be pure. The legislatures will be clean and congress will properly uphold the dignity and majesty of the law. It's good, pure boys we want in America today. Boys who are manly, honest and pure in thought, word and deed.

"Education begins with life. Before we are aware of it the foundations are laid and subsequent teaching avails but little to remove or alter them. This is why I say the home is the basic principle of good government.

The World and the Boy.

"While possibly some of you are too young to appreciate it now, still the thought may not be out of place to leave with you, because it will come to you with striking force as you go out into the world, that from the time you learn to walk until the time you graduate some one is watching you, some one is taking an interest in your behavior. The world resolves itself into a jury, you are the defendent and your actions are the witnesses. The verdict is being passed every day in our mercantile establishments favorable or unfavorable, in other words accepted or rejected. Many an applicant for a position does not know that an unkind word, a falsehood or a curse uttered months before on the streets, on the train, on the street car or in some public gathering may have been heard by the very man who later will pass judgment upon him.

The Boy's Capital.

"Every business man in our city today, whether directly interested or not, passes judgment every day of his life upon the boys or our city, and there are many boys today, some of them selling papers upon our streets or delivering them in our offices, who are already selected for positions unknown to them when they have reached an age where they can be taken into the concern. They are winning this recognition by their honest, open, frank manner, which is a certificate of merit negotiable with any employer of labor.

"This is a day when good boys are needed, for the responsibilities of our country are increasing as our population grows and it will only be a matter of a short time before you are called upon to fill positions of responsibility, and may you discharge your duties as faithfully, as conscientiously, and as gloriously as did the men whose memories we are honoring today.

"I believe in a boy being a boy in every sense of the word. It is not my intention this morning to so fill your souls with a sense of responsibility that it will sadden your hearts and cause you to think of Memorial day as something dark and gloomy. Be a boy, enjoy your sports, but in all be manly, truthful and pure.

"Early cultivate the habits of reading good books. Respect the Sabbath day, develop your body, attend faithfully to your duties at home and at school and unconsciously you will be developing into a good citizen.

Graduate Into the Citizens' Staff.

"Every boy in this room today should aim some time to be a member of the Citizens' Staff, an organization formed to help the old soldiers in their Memorial day exercises and to perpetuate the memory of the day. The time is not far distant when the last soldier of the Civil war will have passed away. It will then be our duty to keep the day sacred to their memory and each year I am confident will teach us more and more to honor and respect these men who fought so gallantly in the cause of humanity.

A Boy's Relation to His City.

"We have a beautiful city blessed by a magnificent location and sustained by a citizenship composed of men of integrity and great business enthusiasm and ability. Our destiny is assured and the day is not far distant when Duluth will be the great commercial center of the inland states. Nature has dealt very liberally and bountifully with us. Our responsibilities, therefore, are so much the greater. This heritage is ours today, yours tomorrow. Let us look into the future bravely, consistently and with a full sense of what the future means. As the ranks of the grand old army are thinning day by day, so are the ranks of our commercial and professional bodies thinning year by year. You are the ones who will be called upon to fill the places of those who will go, and insomuch as you will have prepared yourself in mind, body and spirit for the work you assume, will lay the success of the enterprise in which you engage.

"Therefore, boys, let us cultivate virtue, habituate ourselves to industry, activity and spirit. Consider every vice as shameful and unmanly and fire ourselves with ambition to be useful. In this day we will best be serving our city, our state, our country and show by deeds our appreciation for the glorious accomplishments of the men who fought for us in '63, whose graves we strew with flowers this day and whose deeds will always be held in loving memory by every citizen of the United States of America."

Rev. A. H. Wurtele was the second speaker. He told of the military companies of boys he had helped to organize in New York city, and of how they had marched 4,000 strong through the city streets, cheered by thousands for their manly bearing and discipline. Mr. Wurtele said that to this discipline is due success in life. To be a good citizen one must be well disciplined, and ready on the instant to obey the right command.

He spoke of the spirit of patriotism that should be in every heart, especially on Memorial day. It should be a day of sorrow as well as pride.

"Do you know what the flag stands for?" he said. "It stands for freedom in itself. Each star and stripe that goes to make it up stands for freedom. The stars are increasing in number right along, and some day I believe, we will have to enlarge the flag to make more room for more stars, for the United States is growing, and new territory and states are being added every few years. It seems to me, taking each part of the flag separately, that the blue background represents loyalty. Do we not always say that friendship is true blue? Each star stands for the glory of liberty, for each state has its liberty. The red stripe stands for blood, not alone the blood of death, but of life, activity, energy and industry. The white is the color of purity. Each boy should keep his mind clear, his body pure and life pure. We all have equal rights. The stripes are parallel, which means infinity and eternity.

"Boys, today, while we mourn, we must shed a tear for the gray as well as the blue," concluded the speaker.

Rev. Harry Knowles told the story of the great Italian leader, Garibaldi, and how when a boy of but 7 years he had said he wanted to be a George Washington. Mr. Knowles drew from this the moral that every boy should study the lives of great men, especially in this country, from George Washington to Theodore Roosevelt, and the boys should model their lives after them.

Judge Page Morris was the last to address the boys.

Judge Morris Speaks.

In his address, Judge Page Morris dwelt on patriotism and the duties of citizens, defining the allegiance which every man owes to his country, and which causes him to go to the front and defend its honor when attacked.

He defined the spirit of Memorial day as not a celebration of war, but a commemoration of the men who laid down their lives in defense of their country, and the paying of merited honor to those who went through the war, assisted the great cause and still survive. He deprecated the idea that the observance of Memorial day encourages war, or glorifies it. War, itself, he said, is an evil institution, but when countries become involved in it the men who, with the purest of intentions, go forward to fight for the right which they believe is there, deserve all glory and honor which the remainder of the world may pay them.

arms of the senate. They were brought into the chamber half dressed, but they did not remain long enough for their dishabille to be generally noticed.

Throughout the day and night Senator La Follette sustained himself on a punch of egg and milk and on one occasion during a roll call he ate a sandwich. He husbanded his strength by sitting on the arm of his chair as he talked.

HIT BY AUTOMOBILE.

R. W. Spencer's Machine Strikes Bicyclist on Superior Street.

While riding down Fourth avenue east yesterday on a bicycle, Homer Brainerd was struck by R. W. Spencer's automobile, and was dragged a distance of about sixty feet before the machine could be brought to a stop. Brainerd was not seriously injured, but was quite badly cut and bruised. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital.

MARINE NEWS

SHIPS TAKE ORE CARGOES

There was a little activity at the ore docks yesterday, the French, Fleetwood and Moravia away from the Allouez docks early this morning, and the Corey, B. F. Jones and Wolvin leaving the Missabe docks. The Morgan arrived at the Missabe docks yesterday to take ore.

There was a persistent rumor about yesterday that the Duluth, Missabe & Northern will make a pronounced increase in its shipments from the range next week. The number of train crews to be put on will bring the total to nearly normal and the season's work will be taken up with a rush. Nothing official has come up, but the company is very probably preparing to make an opening soon, to keep the Pittsburg boats, now in commission, busy shipping.

Everything now hinges on the meeting of the Lake Carriers in Cleveland Monday, and the result of it will have a good deal to do with the future developments. However, there is very little in sight for the wild boats in any event, and it is said that many of the owners will keep a portion of their fleet in port all season rather than send them into the light traffic, which will be unprofitable. Fully 20,000 sailors are in different ports waiting for the word to sail on the ships now lying idle.

In speaking of the situation, President William Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association said, in an interview at Detroit:

"I do not believe that 65 per cent of last year's business on the Great Lakes will be transacted this season. The conditions are the result of the crisis of last November. Then, as every marine men can see, the presidential year coming on the heels of the depression is not altogether blameless. I believe there will be lake boats that will do no business at all this year.

"The present trouble lies in the lack of ore. Line boats are running because there is a small demand for ore coming from mines that are owned by those who own the boats. There is nothing for the independent boats but up cargoes of coal. For them there is nothing coming down. To run would be profitless. The report that this is an effort to freezze out the little fellows is utterly devoid of truth.

"Last year nearly 40,000,000 tons of ore came down from the Head of the Lakes. This year I do not believe over 25,000,000 tons will come down. Next year, however, I think will prove a good one for the lake craft."

GOULD GOES AGROUND.

Mutual Liner Leaves the Channel in Portage River.

Houghton, May 30.—The steamer Gould, under charter to the Mutual Transit company grounded at the head of Portage River shortly after midnight Thursday night and was released at noon yesterday after being lightered of several hundred tons of her cargo of copper.

The Gould was bound down and the captain mistook the range lights of the dredge at work in the river for the regular range lights and got entirely outside of the channel on the west bank. The tug Sheldon was summoned. The Gould sustained no damage, it is believed.

HAS CHANGE IN MANAGEMENT

W. S. Quayle of this city, who for the past several years has been manager of the Kelley Hardware company on Superior street, has served his connection with the store and will enter business for himself next fall after enjoying a well earned vacation this summer. Under Mr. Quayle's management the concern has grown to be one of the largest retail hardware stores in the Northwest, and is a business enterprise that is a credit to the city and the surrounding country.

Mr. Quayle has been succeeded by W. M. Hart, who for the past four years has been sales manager for the Kelley-How-Thomson company, wholesale hardware dealers. Mr. Hart is well known to the trade and takes into his new position years of experience in both wholesale and retail hardware. The change in management became effective last evening.

Men's Clothes.

It is a most popular assumption that women care more about clothes than men do. DIVIDENDS ON COPPER STOCKS!

The amount of dividends on any stock depends entirely on how much profit the mine can make in operating. Smelting of the ores is the biggest item. If the cost of smelting could be cut in two, the dividends would almost be doubled.

COPPER AT 5 CENTS PER POUND.

The Universal Oil Smelter, designed particularly for smelting copper ores, produces copper at a cost of from 5 to 7 cents per pound, as against the present cost of from 8 to 12 cents. The Universal Oil Smelter uses crude oil as a fuel—all smelting has heretofore been done with coal or coke. The advantages of the oil smelter are these:

1. A saving of from 40 to 60 per cent in cost of fuel.
2. Cost of installation is at least one-half.
3. The operation is easier and more simple, hence cheaper.
4. The cost of maintenance is half that of the coke smelter.

The Union Smelting & Refining Co.

Owns the rights and patents and processes of the system.

The company is exhibiting at 301 Burrows Building, Duluth, a complete smelting plant, in miniature, showing the entire operation of smelting. Whether interested in mining, mining stocks or smelting, or not, you are invited to call and see the model. It is the most complete and unique model of its kind ever built.

The company already has a contract for plants in Arizona and Mexico, with an aggregate capacity of 250 tons per day. It has two contracts under negotiation in Duluth. It intends to build a 200-ton per day custom smelter in Arizona.

These plants are to be built and in operation by Jan. 1st, 1909. The cost will be at least $500,000.

To provide funds for building purposes, the company offers 30,000 shares of its fully paid, non-assessable, treasury stocks at par, $5.00 per share.

Dividends.

Quarterly dividends of at least $1.00 per share will be paid after Jan. 1st, 1909. The smelters are not sold, but operated on a royalty basis. An average of $5.00 per ton is charged. The field is unlimited. There is no competition. The demand will always exceed the ability of the company to build. The dividends will increase every year. The stock will sell higher as each plant is built.

Why You Should Buy This Stock.

It is absolutely safe. It won't fluctuate. You will receive quick returns. The dividends will be large and constant. The value will increase each year.

The opportunity of securing some of this stock will be open but a short time. Shrewd investors are availing themselves of the opportunity at a rate which promises to oversubscribe the stock before June 1.

The Price Per Share is $5.00.

You may make payment in five equal installments, if you desire—or you may pay all cash and receive a 5 per cent discount.

$50 buys	10 shares,	$10 down and	$10 per month.
100 buys	20 shares,	20 down and	20 per month.

SEVERAL LARGE DEALS IN DULUTH REALTY CLOSED

Considerable Activity Shown During the Week in Spite of Adverse Weather Conditions—Railroads Own Nearly All Available Property on Michigan Street.

In spite of the adverse weather conditions this week, there has been considerable activity in local real estate circles. In fact several large deals involving centrally located property valued at nearly $160,000 have either been closed up, or the earnest money has been paid within the last few days. In one case the property was bought for improvement and in the other two the purchases were made for investment. Several offers are known for East end properties at figures ranging from $5,000 to $7,000 and some, or all of these, may be closed within the next week or two. Inquiry, particularly from the outside for local property is reported to be stronger than ever and the local real estate men claim that "things are looking up all along the line."

The most important deal that was closed up this week was the sale of 50-feet frontage on the lower side of Michigan street, between Lake avenue and First avenue west, from Chicago parties to George A. Hormel & Co., the pork packers, from Austin, Minn. The property purchased comprises lots 5 and 6, block 12, Central division, and is situated between the properties occupied by the Duluth Paper & Stationery company and Crane & Ordway. The purchase price is said to have been $17,500, the deal being made through the office of A. C. Volk & Co. The Hormel company will build, this fall or coming winter, a four or five-story structure, containing a complete cold storage plant, offices and the equipment necessary for one of the largest branch houses that the concern has in the Northwest. The company has been occupying leased property in Duluth for some time, but as this field is considered one of its best, arrangements have been made to branch out on a larger scale, and the purchase of the two lots for an important improvement is a result of an investigation of the local situation by Mr. Hormel. The local plant is in the charge of Fred A. Andrews.

An interesting feature in connection with this deal is the fact that there remains only 100 feet of available property on the lower side of Michigan street between Lake avenue and Garfield avenue, that is not owned by a railway company. This scarcity of biulding sites for wholesale houses is apt, it is said to either increase the valuations placed on properties already improved, or campel the erection of the future new wholesale houses in another district.

Through the office of C. P. Craig & Co. two deals involving $140,000 have been negotiated this week. Neither deal has been closed yet, although the earnest money has been paid. One of the trades involves the sale of a centrally located unimproved property to out of town investors for $65,000 and other involves the purchase of another centrally located improved property for $75,000. It is understood that neither of the properties are on Superior street. The details of the trades are not made public at the request of Mr. Craig's clients.

"The real estate situation is better in the East this spring than for many years," says N. J. Upham, who has just returned from a business trip in that part of the country. "The Middle West has just about held its own while the business depression has affected the real estate conditions in the Far West to a considerable extent. The lessons given the investors of the country in stocks and other securities this past season are largely responsible for the present turning of attention to real estate. The people are beginning to realize that stocks, bonds, personal property, etc., have enjoyed an unfair advantage in the past over real estate in the way of taxation. The tendency now is toward placing a higher rate of taxation on personal property thus lightening the burden on real estate while, at the same time, the income from real estate is unimpaired. As this comes to be better realized the buying movement in realty will be even more stimulated. There is more inquiry coming in now from outside investors and this will probably grow stronger as the season advances."

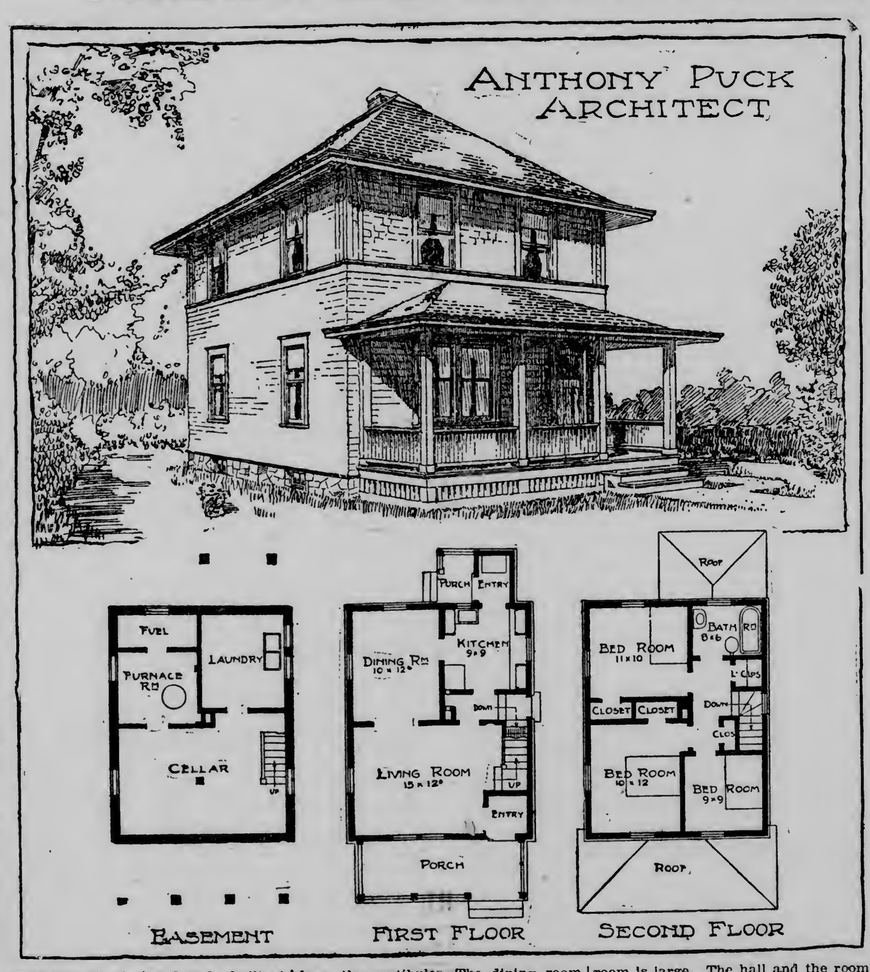
ARE YOU PLANNING TO BUILD? HERE IS A COSY HOME FOR $2,100



This house is designed to be built at the lowest possible cost, consistent with good material and workmanship. The plans are compact and convenient and the rooms are of good size, considering the limited dimensions of the building—20 feet by 26 feet. The exterior is of simple but attractive design.

In the first story are the living room, dining room and kitchen, and in the second story three good bedrooms, a bathroom and four closets. The entrance is directly into the living room from the vestibule. The dining room at the rear opens directly to the kitchen, which is equipped with all necessary cupboards, counters, flourbins, etc. A rear entry has space for a refrigerator and shelves. The cellar stairway goes down from the passage between the kitchen and living room, and also has an outside entrance.

The stairway to the second story ascends from the living room. Note how well the space is utilized in the second story—the lack of "wasted space." Each bedroom has a good closet. A linen closet is also provided. The bathroom is large. The hall and the rooms are well lighted and airy.

The basement is built of concrete, with a cement floor throughout. Separate laundry, furnace room and fuel room are provided.

The basement is 7 feet high, the first story 8½ feet and the second story 8 feet. Floors of the first and second stories are maple and the finish birch.

In Duluth or vicinity the cost to build such a home, including furnace heat and plumbing, would be $2,100.

STREET CARS.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

This company operates a street railway line in the city of Duluth between Third avenue east and the end of Rice's Point, and another street railway line in the city of Superior between Twenty-first street and the end of Connor's Point. These lines are separated by the waters of St. Louis bay, and are operated as two distinct and separate lines.

The fare for a continuous ride in one direction between any two points on either one of these lines is 5c.

The public is hereby notified that this company does not, by undertaking to carry any passenger, or by accepting fare for such carriage, assume any responsibility beyond that of carrying such passenger safely between points on the above mentioned lines.

This company is not responsible for close connections, nor safe transportation, between the above mentioned lines by any ferryboat or other means of transportation. While the employes of this company have been instructed to keep themselves posted and give upon request all the information they can as to the probability of connections being made with other transportation lines, the company has no better means of foreseeing unexpected interruptions in the service of such lines, nor of telling how long such interruptions will continue, than the public has, and, therefore, cannot be responsible for notice of such interruptions.

PROPOSALS FOR WORK ON THE MILLER TRUNK ROAD.

Sealed bids will be received by the County Auditor at his office in the City of Duluth, Minnesota, up to 9:30 o'clock in the forenoon of Friday, the 5th day of June, 1908, on behalf of the Board of County Commissioners of St. Louis County, Minnesota, as follows:

For the ditching, grading and gravelling of the Miller Trunk road Northerly from a point beginning at the Southeast corner of Section 15, Township 54, Range 17. Such grading to make a roadway not less than 24 feet wide between the ditches and not less than 3 feet higher in the center than the bottom of the ditches. All ditches to be so dug as to carry off all surface water from the roadbed. All necessary culverts to be built or repaired and the roadbed properly graveled to the width of 12 feet and a depth of 8 inches, and all work to be done under the direction and to the satisfaction of an engineer furnished by the County and an inspector and a committee of the County Board, and such bids to be for the complete construction and finishing aforesaid of as many rods or miles of said road as the bidder will so undertake for the full amount of $11,100.00.

The Board of County Commissioners reserves the right to reject any and all bids and parts of bids.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners.

O. HALDEN,
County Auditor.
By J. O. WALKER,
Deputy.

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR PROBATE OF FOREIGN WILL.—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. In Probate Court.

In the matter of the estate of Edwin C. Weaver, Decedent.

Certain instruments purporting to be authenticated copies of the last Will and Testament of Edwin C. Weaver, and of the probate thereof in the Orphan's Court in and for the County of Philadelphia, State of Pennsylvania, having been presented to this court, and the petition of W. Judson Sprankle being filed herein, representing, among other things, that said decedent, then being a resident of the County of Philadelphia, State of Pennsylvania, died testate at Beach Haven, State of New Jersey, on the 4th day of July, 1907, leaving estate in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and that said instrument has been allowed and admitted to probate as his Will in the court above named, and praying that said Will be allowed and admitted to probate in this state, and that letters testamentary be issued thereon to Francis H. Bohlen.

It Is Ordered, That said petition be heard before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in Duluth, in said County, on Monday, on the 22nd day of June, 1908, at ten o'clock a. m., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

Ordered Further, That this order be served by publication in The Duluth Evening Herald, according to law, and that a copy of this order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not later than ten days prior to said day of hearing.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., May 27, 1908.

By the Court,
FRANCIS A. WATKINS,
Judge of Probate of Carlton County, Acting Judge of Probate of St. Louis County, Minn.

(Seal, Probate Court, St. Louis County, Minn.)

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Industrial Conditions Improving All Over the Country.

New York, May 30.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Industrial conditions continue to improve and arrangements have been made for the resumption of many plants next week, while retail trade is increased by seasonable weather. There is still a degree of conservatism regarding plans for forward deliveries, but sentiment is definitely better and progress is in the right direction, although slow. Mercantile collections are more prompt and money rates are slow, despite exports of $40,000,000 in gold and treasury withdrawals of $45,000,000.

In the iron and steel industry the increased purchases of raw material have supplied the principal feature this week, numerous moderate-sized orders aggregating a large tonnage, and most furnaces restored quotations to figures prevailing before the cut last week. Improvement in demand was sufficient to cause resumption at more idle plants.

Most interest is shown in the dry goods market, and cotton mills are steadily increasing the percentage of active machinery. Prices are firmly held, and it is expected that as demand broadens there will be much pressure for goods because the extensive curtailment has eliminated supplies usually available to meet urgent orders. There is still a disinclination to buy for future needs, both by jobber and retailer, making a much stronger statistical position than has existed during recent preceding years, when goods were sold ahead for a long period. More inquiries from China stiffened export prices, which are held above the views of foreign purchasers.

It is evident that the woolen goods season will open very late, reports from clothiers' salesmen indicating slow distribution.

Shoe manufacturers are receiving more orders, although business still compares unfavorably with former seasons. Best reports are for medium and low-priced calf goods, and orders from the West show a good gain over last week's figures. Prices are well maintained and the warm weather has stimulated the demand from nearby retailers for summer specialties. Improvement is slow, but definite demand for leather is evident, and tanners anticipate further progress as the season for fall shoes advances. Belt manufacturers report a large volume of business. Further gains are reported in the hide market, and especially for native and branded steers that produce heavy leather.

LABOR

TWO WOMEN DELEGATES

Duluth Will Have Good Representation at State Convention.

Plumbers Fall in Line With Open Shop Conditions.

For the first time in the history of organized labor in Duluth, two women will be delegates from this city to attend the state convention of the Minnesota Federation of Labor at Winona, June 8. Mrs. Louise Van Dalen and Mrs. Catherin J. Dempsey, or their alternates, Mrs. Mary McInnis and Mrs. Bertha Theho, who were elected by the Women's Union Label league, No. 230, to represent that organization, will be delegates.

Most of the other local unions have elected delegates to the state convention. Among the unions to elect delegates are: Hod Carriers and Building Laborers' union, No. 178, O. of Ingebo.

Duluth Typographical union, No. 138, Martin A. Olmen.

Cigarmakers' union, No. 344, Frank Heidemann.

Butchers' union, No. 12, C. B. Uncapher, Leo Bernhardt.

Painters and Decorators' union, No. 106, William Perry, D. M. Robinson.

Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, No. 31, Frank Fisher.

Federated Trades assembly, Henry Perault, Ed Blackwood, James Walsh, E. P. Peters, Alex Kennedy.

Dock and Ship Carpenters' union, No. 1461, Peter Marandeau, Phillas Proulx, Alex Johnson.

Carpenters' union, No. 361, Ed Lowe, S. T. Skrove, K. Miller, Peter Anderson, George Burgher.

• • •

Duluth unions, due to the labor troubles with which this city for the past six months has been agitated, are endeavoring to be well represented at Winona, and it is expected that there will be a large attendance.

It was made known to the members of the open shop committee this week that it had been decided, at a meeting of the plumbers' union, that the local plumbers would accept the open shop conditions.

Dwight E. Woodbridge, yesterday afternoon, stated that this was the first official acceptance of the open shop policy that has been made by any of the unions since the movement was started last November, though he claims that a great number of the union men are working under the open shop conditions. Mr. Woodbridge also says that most of the steamfitters have accepted the open shop policy as a body. It is also rumored, according to Mr. Woodbridge, that other unions are contemplating taking the step. Mr. Woodbridge says that the open shop committee does not wish for any agreement from the unions, but that they only wish to remove any restrictions against non-union labor—in other words, that both union and non-union men shall work on the same job together.
